HALIFAX, N.S., Aug. 29.—(Canadian Press). — With sections of Nova Scotia coast strewn with wreckage, with vessels failing to reach their destinations; with no hope that crew, six all told, of three masted schooner, Anna MacDonald, portions of which have come ashore on lonely prospect ledges, near here, were alive with American cruising yacht Shang hai wrecked off White Point Bluff-Canso, but her company heroically and miraculously safe; with coastal Steamer Aspy wrecked at Neil's Harbor, Cape Breton, but with her crew and passengers numbering about seventy rescued; and with man drowned at Yarmouth when Schooner Lizzie E. was driven ashore on Yarmouth Bar, it became apparent yesterday that storm which swept over this province Tuesday night, took heavy toll of life and shipping.

PRINCE LANDS TO-DAY.

He Will Set Foot on U. S. Soil This Afternoon.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—(Canadian Press.)—The Prince of Wales will set foot on United States' soil late this afternoon, at Glen Cove, L.I., where an extra shift of workmen employed by the New York Yacht Club, worked last night under electric lights to create a setting fit to welcome the heir to the British throne.

It was said at the office of the Cunard Line that the Berengaria would arrive at Quarantine with her Royal passenger about four o'clock and it is possible that the rough weather may cause delay.

Before the Prince reaches Quarantine he will receive messages of welcome to the United States, broadcast from an aeroplane flying above the big liner, from the Federal government, Governor of New York State and the Mayor of New York City.

A tug will visit the Berengaria at Quarantine before His Royal Highness leaves. It will carry Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador to the United States, who will greet the Prince on behalf of his government.

stow. There is no reason why some boy here should not aspire to the same position| It is in your grasp."

Of Mr. Gordon, the speaker said he is one of the most versatile of men. "As Deputy Speaker in the House of Commons it is Mr. Gordon's duty to preside at meetings of the committee of the whole house." he said. "There he tells us when we must stop speaking. But when he gets us here in Peterborough he tells us when we must start to speak. We were out driving around the country having a really good time when he sprang this meeting on us. I like it, but I'm old-fashioned. I like to be out late at night."

To the young ladies present the Minister of Railways had a word to say regarding their votes at the next election. "If you are twenty to-day," he said, "you will be twenty-one before the next general election." He congratulated the voters of Peterborough on the sagacity they showed in returning Mr. Gordon at the last election, and read in the faces of his audience that the thought was becoming intensified.

Dancing and Fireworks

The fireworks display that followed the closing speeches was fully up to advance notices, and the dancers were the only persons on the grounds who did not pause to gaze on the pyrotechnic display. The dance floor and the seductive music of the orchestra inveigled scores of couples throughout the evening, and many hundreds of spectators gathered to watch the happy crowd inside the brush barrier that surrounded the floor.

Guests at Dinner

Representatives of the County Council present at the dinner in the Peterborough Club to meet the Premier were County Warden Martin P. Coughlin, Reeve of Douro; Reeve Morley Smithson of Otonabee; Reeve Bert Middleton of Smith Reeve D. Brown of Burleigh and Anstruther; Deputy Reeve William Brown of Smith; Reeve A. Wilson, of Harvey; Deputy Reeve W. A. Anderson of Otonabee; Reeve Ed. Corkery of Ennismore, Deputy Reeve R. T. Lillico of North Monaghan, Reeve J. Hawthorne of Dummer and County Clerk and Treasurer Ed. M. Elliott.

The City Council was represented by His Worship Mayor Turner; Aldermen M. J. Maher, Walter Stocker Robert Morrison, Nagle Phelan J. O. Fife, Joseph Crowe and E. M. Turner. The Chamber of Commerce was represented by G. A. Gillespie, vice president, and Leon Fraser, secretary. Among others presents were J. J. Hartley, president of the Liberal Association of Peterborough; Hon. Nelson Parliament; B. Oulette and W. C. Boardman of Sydney township West Hastings, and J. Manley of Belleville.

PREMIER DEALS WITH AFFAIRS OF CANADA

Following Hon. George P. Graham the Premier spoke. Mr. Hall in introducing him spoke of his service to Canadian women, as Deputy Minister of Labor in sponsoring legislation before the women obtained the franchise to eradicate sweat shops, and generally improve the outrageous conditions under which they were compelled to labor.

Little Isabel Duffus presented the Premier with a bouquet of roses and as he faced his audience he was compelled to wait until the ovation subsided before commencing his address.

Thanking His Worship for his gracious welcome, the speaker said: "From the moment we arrived we have received nothing but the kindest and heartiest reception."

"There is in this city a growing appreciation of the principles the present government is putting forth and what they mean when they are applied"

Turning to Mayor Turner's prediction that Mr. Gordon would be the next Premier, Mr. King assured his audience that he could promise anything but the Premiership, and that perhaps before very long, but it must be remembered that to do so it would be necessary to retain the present government in power.

"His post, that of Deputy Speaker, is a difficult one, and frequently he is called upon to take the Speaker's chair. As Speaker, one is supposed to drop all political leanings and in that position to act wholly impartially. I think I am reflecting the feelings of the Conservative and Progressive members of the House, when I say that Mr. Gordon has satisfied all with his fairness, justice and dignity.

"My success, as attributed by the other speakers, has been due to the fact that I have been surrounded by the most loyal and devoted colleagues that any Prime Minister could have. No one could be more helpful than the Hon. George P. Graham. To have at my side his wisdom, loyalty, experience and friendship, is indeed a blessing."

The speaker declared that he was pleased to see his old friend, Mr. R. R. Hall taking the same important place in the political life of the province.

Turning to his chat with Mr. J. H. Burnham earlier in the afternoon the Premier stated that they were together in the House of Comomns.

"While we didn't see eye to eye, we did agree on the advisability of getting Mr. Meighen out of office, and I have to thank him for the courageous stand he took in ridding the country of Arthur Meighen."

Mr. Burnham thought he should resign for carrying on in office when he was only returned to support a Union Government to carry on the war. Mr. Meighen usurped the throne and held the reins of government. Now he tells you that the Union Government was a Liberal-Conservative government holding office for nine years.

In his speeches he has spoken many times about the 3,000 sent to the United States as a result of the recent legislation of this Government, when referring to the subject of immigration.

Continuing, showing that the present government found all the immigration machinery at a standstill, when it assumed office, Mr. King declared that it is impossible to accomplish results in a year. "Like the seed you sow it takes time."

Pointing out that the country to the south experienced a great boom after the war, and limited by legislation immigration except from Canada and Mexico, the speaker remarked that at a time when the Dominion's labor markets were overfilled, it was only natural that there would be a temporary migration to the United States. There has always been that flow more or less.

The figures of the Canadian Department of Immigration indicated that out of every 100 Canadians going to the United States, 60 came back, and that during the months of April, May, June and July, over 18,000 returned to this country. That is over the same period since the inauguration of the tariff changes, alleged to have caused the migration to the south.

You will see that people from all parts of the world will come to this land. The tide of prosperity is coming again, a new prosperity, a new forward movement for the great body of people in this Dominion.

The Public Debt.

Turning to the public debt, Mr. King announced that the present government, despite the fact that it inherited the deficits of the government railways and a public debt of nearly two and a half billion dollars, instead of increasing the public debt by a deficit of $92,000,000 as the Meighen Government did in its last year of office, for the first time in ten years, the Government had an operating surplus and a surplus of over $35,000,000.

As a mortgage to the industry and social welfare of this country, Sir Robert Borden and Mr. Meighen created a debt of $1,640,000 through loans, exempt from taxation, on which this Government has still to pay interest.

That is the truth of the public debt. All along the way we have been thwarted. In 1920 the addition to the public debt was $436,125,000, and last year there was a surplus of over $35,000,000.

Referring to expenditures that suddenly appeared as obligations of the Government, the speaker pointed out that it was discovered that the Toronto Station was not paid for, the Government being held to the liability by a note.

Challenges Meighen.

Quoting one of Mr. Meighen's speeches where he stated that he had a list of a thousand factories that King closed, the Prime Minister said "I ask him as a man of honor, discharging a position of trust to publish this list and ask the people to be on the lookout for that publication."

"We are going to tell the facts, the same as we have told them during the nine years of power" another statement of the conservative leader, he quoted. "What do you think of that Mr. Burnham," asked the speaker?

Platform Popular

Referring to Mayor Turner's comment on the collapse of the platform at the Liberal meeting in Montreal a few days ago, the Premier attributed the accident to the popularity of the Liberal platform. Its popularity is so great, that no supports were strong enough to hold the multitude that clamored for a position. Increasing in confidence, the Liberal platform is growing from day to day among men and women of all political shades.

It's important that the Government should be strengthened, in view of the small working majority, asserted Mr. King.

The present government on taking office was confronted by the largest debt that ever faced any administration a debt of $2,400,000,000, with an annual interest of $136,000,000 as the first charge upon the revenue. The interest alone amounted to a greater sum than it took to run all of Canada before the war.

In the beginning the majority was such that there would be no majority unless the Speaker was allowed to vote. Starting in that fashion, in actual fact the Government had a splendid majority (although theoretically, there was no majority).

Pointing out the majority of 112 on the budget and 121 on the address the speaker stated that those figures spoke more eloquently than any words, as evidence of the confidence reposed in the present Government.

Turning to the Senate, Mr. King declared that the purpose of the Government is often thwarted for every act has to pass the second chamber before it becomes law.

Whispers of Death

Previous to his denunciation of the charges and predictions of the Right Honourable Arthur Meighen, the Prime Minister pointed out that in the leader of the Opposition, the Government had a party leader given to misrepresentations, constantly sounding notes of pessimism.

"I bring that charge against Mr. Meighen this afternoon."

"I had hoped that from what he witnessed in the Commons and out of the Press, that he would be striking a different note in his message. No, but it is the same note of detraction and pessimism saying that the country is going to the dogs, proclaiming that the country is in a position that would repel any man or woman from its shores. That is not patriotism to my mind," admonished the Premier.

Quoting an utterance of Mr. Meighen, when he said that "Homes are boarded up factories closed and despair in the hearts of our citizens," the speaker asked his auditors if those conditions were true of Peterboro, true of this district or any district in this Province.

"Would you wonder, if men reading such words as these should hesitate to come and settle in our country, if this view is proclaimed by a leader of a great political party? If there is any cause for the migration to the United States, it can be found in great measure in the words of Arthur Meighen during the last two years."

"It is an old trick of a certain class of politicians to attribute to others faults of which they themselves are guilty. I have not charged Meighen that way, for I wouldn't use the language. The people can draw their own inferences."

Wembley Exhibition

Larkin is scored by Meighen because he is a success, remarked Mr. King.

For the sake of British loyalty and solidarity, following the example of Sir John A. MacDonald, the Government sent representatives to Wembley. This has been criticised by the Conservative leader, despite Sir John's action in sending representatives to the world fair at Chicago.

Rising above partisanship,the Government sent to the Exhibition as representatives of this country, the Chief and Assistant Liberal Whips, the Conservative Whip and the Progressive Whip. Even so Mr. Meighen in his criticism stated that the Government, selecting reluctant supporters, sent them on trips around the world.

Natural Resources

Touching upon the greatest national problem, the Premier said there was the public debt and the task of reducing taxation. It is necessary to find some means to develop the industries and the community life of the country, and the only solution lies in the development of the natural resources, the wealth in field, mine, sea and forest.

"We can solve all these problems by getting out of these resources the wealth that is in them."

Recalling the Indian band that passed in the procession and referring to the growing of corn and the process of turning it into flour by their forebears, as witnessed by the first explorers in Canada, the speaker observed the first transformation of wealth from the natural resources Mentioning the Canadian General Electric and Quaker Oats Company, it was shown that the object of all industries is the transformation of the natural resources through human labor, capital and machinery into commodities fit for human life.

By moving as far as possible in relieving at the root, to be a help to the management, transportation and communication in the common businesses of this country the path must be clear for the development of the natural resources, in order to effect the Government's policy of increased production and decreased cost of living.

Concluding the Premier, expressed his deep appreciation of the book of city views presented by Alderman Crowe, which he stated he would keep as a souvenir, in remembrance, of the kind hospitality tendered him on the occasion of his visit to Peterboro.

TRIP ON CANAL AND GOLF CLUB LUNCHEON

Arriving Thursday morning on the six o'clock Ottawa train, with the Honorable George P. Graham, the private coach of the Premier was left on the Lift Lock siding, near the C.P.R. canal bridge. At the noon luncheon, in responding to President J. J. Hartley's brief address of welcome, Mr. King voiced his surprise at the beauty and magnificence of the Lift Lock and the scenery along the canal. Arising as if in a dream, he beheld from his private car the beauty of the Trent waters and the verdure of the surrounding country.

Shortly before eleven o'clock the Premier and Hon. G. P. Graham were joined by Hon. W. E. N. Sinclair, Leader of the Opposition in the Ontario House, Hon. Duncan Marshall and Hon. Nelson Parliament. Accompanied by Mr. G. N. Gordon, Mr. R. R. Hall and a few others, including Mrs. Gordon, Mrs. Chas. Perry and Mr. J. J. Hartley, the small party boarded the Bessie Butler at the Maria street wharf.

It was Mr. King's first visit to Peterborough as Premier and certainly the first time he ever viewed the mechanism of the Peterborough Lift Lock, a monument to the enterprise of Canadian engineering achievements. As the huge pontoon bore the Bessie Butler to the high level of the canal, the scene was significant. On the one hand the Peterborough Lift Lock, the highest in the world and the greatest structure of its kind—on the other, the Right Honorable MacKenzie King, an outstanding personage in world conferences, who guides the nation's destinies.

The party proceeded to the golf links, where, along with several prominent Liberals, who joined the party here, lunch was served in the club house. Mr. J. J. Hartley, who in the capacity of President of the West Peterborough Liberal Association has often greeted former leaders of the Liberal Party, including the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier delivered a brief address of welcome. The Prime Minister responded in a short, informal speech.

SPLENDID PARADE OF GAILY DECORATED CARS

Following the lunch, seven cars, beautifully decorated and forming the leaders in the parade, conveyed the Premier, his colleagues and other guests at the luncheon, to the Exhibition grounds.

Cars joined in the parade all along the course to McDonnel street when the monster parade was complete, comprising a chain of autos fully two miles in length. Of simple and elaborate design and with a diversity of colour, the parade afforded a unique spectacle. It was a feature of the celebration, which together with the four bands radiated the warmth of the welcome.

All were part and parcel in the reception.. From stores and business houses flags were flying and banners waving and as the procession passed, attracted by patriotic tunes, bared heads emerged from nearly every available window. A neat pennant on the Mayor's car read, "A Civic Welcome to Canada's Premier." "We are all for King and Gordon" were frequently seen during the course of the parade, while the big bus from Curve Lake, bore conspicuously on a large sign, "Chemong Reserve, we fight for King and Gordon."

Particularly noticeable was the large banner in front of the Canadian Packing Company reading, "The Canadian Packing Company Makers of Rose Brand Products, Welcomes Canada's Premier and his colleagues."

As the autos displaying emblems of rural centres in the riding and from points outside the riding passed the grand stand at Exhibition Park they were loudly applauded.

"Keene and Otonabee are keen for Gordon," "Douro honors our Premier and G. N. Gordon, "King and Gordon Count in Harvey," were among the inscriptions appearing on huge banners, while North Monaghan, Lakefield, Port Hope, Lindsay, Oshawa, Cobourg and Toronto were displayed on other ensigns noticed.

Lindsay probably had the largest representation from an outside point, placing seven decorated cars in the parade. Among those from Lindsay were Senator McHugh and Larry O'Connor, Liberal candidate in the last Provincial election.

The large streamer just inside the Exhibition grounds bearing the words, "The tide of prosperity is turning towards Canada as after 1896," was strictly in accord with the predictions of the speakers. That Canada was bordering on a golden era of prosperity and gradually lifting from the post war depression was the opinion of the Right Honorable Mackenzie King.

WELCOME BY THE MAYOR AT EXHIBITION PARK

His Worship Mayor Turner, in a scintillating address, warmly welcomed the Premier and his colleagues. It was a fitting opening to the day's speeches and his words deeply implanted the spirit of good fellowship.

Speaking of the democratic age and referring to the Prime Minister as "Mac," he admonished the crowd for their bashfulness, which brought rounds of applause, resounding the sincerity of the welcome. The heartfelt hospitality of the citizens of Peterborough was obviously conveyed.

Mentioning the many urgent demands upon the Premier, Mayor Turner shrewdly intimated that he might expect a delegation from Peterborough, in the near future memorializing the Government to speed up with the new post office. Smilingly, Mr. King was seen to make a note of the oversight in the Postmaster General's Department.

Following his address, Mr. King was presented with a book of views of the city, by Alderman Joseph Crowe, chairman of the Legal and Reception committee.

R. R. HALL, K.C., EX-M.P. IN BRILLIANT SPEECH

Mr. R. R. Hall, K.C., ex-M.P., was chairman of the afternoon meeting. He was among old colleagues, with whom he had associated for years. Hon. George P. Graham in particular referred to his happy associations with Mr. Hall and stated that he was glad to see him still going strong and prominent in the political life of Ontario.

"Your presence in such large numbers is evidence of the esteem and respect enjoyed by the Premier in Peterborough and the surrounding district," began Mr. Hall.

Recalling the by-election when this riding returned Mr. Gordon and the general election in 1921 when the Hon. Mackenzie King was placed in power, the speaker stated that on that great eve of prosperity, everything was Conservative. But those same people who created the difficulties, have grown into pessimists. From any shade of a glass, they can see nothing but darkness and blue ruin.

It is on account of their recklessness that there are great national problems to be faced and an almost unbearable burden of debt to be shouldered.

Pointing out the condition of England after the Napoleonic wars, when she was faced with a debt of $4,000,000,000 and her subsequent return to world supremacy and mentioning the depression in the United States at the close of the American Civil Wars when her dollar was worth but forty cents, let these croakers and pessimists look to the history of England or the United States. Canada stands in a better position than America did, for the Canadian dollar was never below eighty cents.

All this means that the great nation of Canada, under the guidance of Mackenzie King, can look forward with hope and confidence to the future.

W. E. N. SINCLAIR SPEAKS, FOLLOWED BY GORDON

Stating that he came as a leader of the Ontario Liberal party, to join in the demonstration, Mr. Sinclair said that he would limit his remarks.

As an old acquaintance and a college class mate of the Prime Minister, the speaker declared that in Mackenzie King, the nation has a man directing its administration who spent his entire career in developing his life in the study of the science of Government and who now occupied, by right of his training, the position he merits and one he is fit to fill.

Turning to Mr. Gordon the speaker observed the recognition of his ability in Ottawa. He is made of the real stuff and has made a name for himself in Parliament. He is a credit to Peterborough and a credit to the Province of Ontario.

Referring to the administration of the Ferguson Government at the last session Mr. Sinclair stated that the Government did not do justice to the people of the Province in the investigation of the Public Accounts committee. They are playing the game to the limit, he concluded.

G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P.

Chairman R. R. Hall, proclaimed Mr. Gordon's distinguished service in the House of Commons, in introing him.

The Deputy Speaker was tendered a rousing reception as he proceeded to speak.

"I'm proud that we have been able to come together and meet the Premier in the City of Peterborough. It is his first official visit here, and I am proud of your attendance," began the speaker.

Mr. Gordon made special mention of the representation from Lakefield, Otonabee and Douro, and expressed his pleasure at seeing so large a turn out from these three municipalities, that only recently became a part of the riding, by virtue of the changes effected by the Redistribution Bill. Mr. Meighen agreed to the change, the Government accepted the proposal, so all ought to be happy.

The industries in the city are improving. The C.G.E., one of the largest plants of its kind in America and located here, intends to enlarge its capacity. The Quaker Oats Company is the largest flour mill in the British Empire. This city is becoming the Minneapolis of Canada and is progressing.

The speaker said that because of requests from returned men he was going to deal with the Senate of Canada, in regard to its action with the Canteen and Pensions Acts, at the last session.

In accordance with the recommendations of veterans' organizations all over the country, the Canteen Bill provided for the redistribution of $2,500,000.00 amongst the returned men, representing the profits of the canteens conducted by the soldiers. It was the soldiers' own money, and all were agreed that it should administer to the needs of the destitute.

After receiving the unanimous support of the House of Commons, the bill was killed by the Senate. This is the question, whether the Senate or the people shall rule this country, observed Mr. Gordon.

Gladstone's achievement in fighting the House of Lords for the same cause resounds down through history, and the time has come for a similar demand in Canada. "I believe that the great majority will support the Prime Minister in his stand for the returned men, and that they will obtain their rights."

Turning to the Pension Act, the speaker explained that it was accorded the same treatment from the Upper House. The Tory majority, headed by Sir James Lougheed, took from the Bill, practically all the concessions and benefits for the returned men. The permanent living bonus was cut down to two years.

This should be a day of responsible government, by the people and for the people. Sir James Lougheed can deal directly against the will of the people, and the time has come to deal with the Senate.

"I have not heard one word of sympathy from Right Hon. Arthur Meighen in all his speeches, in regard to the conduct of the Senate with the Pensions' Act. His silence with the Senate is conspicuous. It is to be hoped that the Premier will reintroduce the Canteen and Pension Bills at an early stage of the next session. I know it will pass again. It will be sent to the Senate, and then will be the time to press for a limitation of that body's powers."

In concluding Mr. Gordon stated his appreciation of the large representation from the different municipalities and the adjacent counties. "I trust the next time you greet the Prime Minister and some of his Cabinet the trade of this country will be moving, as in the golden era experienced in Canada during the regime of Sir Wilfrid Laurier."

HON. GEO. P. GRAHAM IN A STIRRING ADDRESS

Returning a kiss to little Miss Blade for her beautiful bouquet of flowers, Mr. Graham began by exclaiming that he had a beautiful start on his speech; for even a man of his age it had rather unnerved him.

"At my time in life, I am confined to kissing young girls, and it still has an effect on me. A man is only old by comparison. My uncle, Mr. James Stephenson, is on the platform and he considers me only a kid."

"I am glad to be here, because George Gordon lives here," said the speaker. You know a good thing when you see it. It is not only a good thing, but there is a lot of it. He carries weight wherever he goes."

"We like Mr. Gordon at Ottawa and although you might imagine the Government runs him, he runs the Government. He calls the Prime Minister down and he can't speak unless Mr. Gordon says so."

Remarking that his late son was a great friend of Mr. Gordon's, as father, the veteran statesman claimed the right of friendship. Other than reminding the electors to return Mr. Gordon at the election, Mr. Graham promised to steer clear of politics.

Referring to the chairman, the speaker stated that he knew Mr. Hall and that he also remembered Mr. Richard Hall, whom he understood was not in the best of health at the present time. In a reminiscent mood he recalled his associations with Mr. Hall and the late Hon. J. R. Stratton.

Government Railways.

Turning to the Government railways, the speaker observed that the Liberal party was not responsible for the owning of some 22,000 miles of railway, but that as the present government, the party was trying to wean the Conservative baby, that has been feeding at the public crib, ever since its adoption.

Pointing to the reduction in the operating expenses of the national railways, until the last year showed a surplus of $30,000,000 Mr. Graham predicted a good showing for this year.

Referring to the criticisms of Sir Henry Thornton, the speaker declared that he was one of the best railway men in the world. He was schooled on the Pennsylvania Railway and called to Britain to carry on the transportation supplies, made a British subject and knighted for his good work. "In him, we have both an American and a British subject and the very best railway man obtainable."

His greatest task is melting into one organization the different lines and the better management is obvious to the casual passenger. The axiom placed before the employees is "A man woman or child, a passenger of the C.N.R. is a guest of that system as a person is a guest of a hotel.

St. Lawrence Waterways.

Hon. Mr. Graham has been named as head of the National Advisory committee of the Great Waterways project.

Touching upon this work the speaker declared that any disturbance in the natural levels will work a hardship to the people of Canada. The diversion of the waters to Chicago is to provide power and navigation to the Mississippi. Compensation could not be arranged for that diversion. It is a vast problem, remarked the speaker and both countries must be protected. The proceedings have been slow, but it is wise to go slowly that each country can accept and approve of every step, for the sake of the happiness and satisfaction of the future generations. The deepening of the St. Lawrence is a task of magnitude and of great significance as an international project.

Proud of King.

In the last year, said the speaker, the national debt has been reduced by $35,000,000, while the Provinces of Canada have increased their indebtedness to $50,000,000 during the same period. At the same time the federal government is carrying the whole burden of the war.

In conclusion the Hon. Mr. Graham stated that he was proud of Mackenzie King, a real leader and a worthy successor to Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Speaking of his association with the Premier in Europe last year, he declared that the counsel of Canada's Prime Minister was accepted and that he was not only an outstanding personage, but one of the ablest men from the four corners of the earth.

GOLDEN FLOOD FROM PRAIRIE

Apt To Blind Easterners To Riches at Their Own Door.

TORONTO, Aug. 29.—(Canadian Press).—The golden flood of wheat from the West for a few weeks each year is apt to blind Easterners to the riches at their own door, says an article here to-day. The very fact that the estimates of the major Western crop vary by millions of bushels with every change in weather makes the situations peculiar, but at the same time very uncertain. In Ontario, on the other hand, 200,000 farms are producing revenue every week in the year. There is no feverish climax, but this steady return over which the weather has relatively little control, runs up a tremendous total at the end of the year, exceeding by a third the gross agricultural revenue from the leading prairie province, Saskatchewan. It is almost double the output of Manitoba and Alberta combined.

A year ago the total revenue received by Ontario farmers was estimated by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at $400,511,000, compared with $576,470,000 received by their fellow workers in the three prairie provinces.

"One is safe in concluding," says the article, "that an increase of from 20 to 30 per cent in the total income should be received by Ontario farmers this year. Grain prices have risen over 20 per cent. and crops on the whole promise bigger yields than in 1923. Fall wheat has averaged 27 bushels per acre, oats should run about 35, hay yielded a ton and one-half, potatoes and roots promise the best crop in years, and corn, while late, in the majority of fields should mature safely. Pastures, upon which Ontario's great live stock industry depends during the summer months, have been particularly good. Fruit growers expect at least fair returns."

The article estimates that field crops should be worth $250,000,000, dairy products at least $100,000,000, sale of farm animals over $40,000,000 and poultry industry $25,000,000.

EFFECTIVE WAYS TO PRESERVE BUTTS OF TELEGRAPH POLES

STOCKHHOLM, Aug. 29.—An ingenious method to save telegraph poles from rotting has been successfully tried here. Before being planted, the poles are dried longitudinally with a small center hole, and then the opening at the bottom is plugged. The hole runs to a point about one foot above ground when the mast has been set up. The pole erected, a small side hole is drilled aslant one foot above ground to meet the center hole. Creosote oil is poured in the center hole and the outside opening closed. Linemen refill from time to time.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 29, 1924.

YESTERDAY'S PICNIC.

The civic reception to the Prime Minister yesterday was quite properly interpreted by Peterborough's distinguished visitor as a tribute to the office and not as a greeting to the leader of a political party.

That was exactly what it was, and there is no occasion to criticize the Mayor and Council for their participation to this extent in the demonstration.

It would have been churlish indeed had the Prime Minister of Canada been allowed to visit Peterborough without a proper civic recognition of his presence.

As for the picnic itself, it was remarkable for the number of visitors from all points in the district that it attracted.

Particularly noticeable was the large attendance of farmers at a time and under weather conditions when it might be expected that the rural community would be too busily occupied to be able to spare the time to be on hand.

It was a political gathering insofar perhaps as the tenor of most of the oratory was concerned, but beyond that it was a community affair in the variety and scope of its programme, and in the evident enjoyment that young and old obtained from the manifold events of the day and evening.

The committee are to be congratulated upon the successful working out of their plans to give the Prime Minister a fitting reception and the people of Peterborough and the district an enjoyable function.

A QUESTION OF ECONOMY.

Hon. Geo. P. Graham's little sermon at the picnic yesterday on the necessity of having economy like charity begin at home should be kept in mind.

The Minister of Railways pointed out a fact not generally appreciated, namely, that Provincial and municipal administrations have been increasing their bonded indebtedness, while the Federal Government has been able to show a decrease.

There is every need of economy, but all the effort should not be directed at Ottawa; there is room for improvement in every public spending body.

Deputations will condemn the Federal administration for extravagance, while at the same time their own civic government is showing no signs of recognizing the need of retrenchment.

Not only is this so, but it is also true that very often the individual who is the loudest advocate of Federal economy is the keenest member of a deputation urging the Government to embark upon some line of public work that will represent a heavy drain upon the treasury.

"Cut down," say such citizens, and then they flock down to Ottawa and eloquently plead for an appropriation for this, that or the other enterprise.

They are all for economy, but they want the other fellow to do the saving, and they want it done in some other district save their own.

It is this peculiar twist that makes it needlessly difficut for Governments to be as efficient and as economical as they would like to be.

THE PRINCE'S VISIT.

It is announced from Montreal that the final arrangements for the visit of the Prince of Wales to Canada do not include any stops for reception purposes on the westbound trip.

Canadians would be glad to see and welcome the Royal visitor, but they should be even more anxious that the smiling Prince should have a restful visit and escape for a short time some of the onerous responsibilities of his position as the heir to the throne.

Just as big business men like to cast off the cares of the every-day grind and steal away to a northern lake for a week's fishing, the Prince of Wales apparently welcomes the chance to escape for a short time the manifold duties that are his because of what he is and what he may be tomorrow.

Canadians should be eager to co-operate with His Royal Highness in this holiday, and eager as they are to do honour to him should be willing to respect his wishes and let him come as an ordinary visitor from the other side of the Atlantic.

Let him feel that when the pressure of his position becomes too great, that when there seems no end of the functions and receptions that it is his duty to participate in, there is over here a chance to recuperate, an opportunity to throw to one side for the time being the responsibilities of his office.

In other words, we want the Prince to come along and visit us for a while just as a jolly, athletic young Englishman, feeling that everybody is glad to have him come and that nobody is going to take the fine edge off his enjoyment by insisting upon "fuss and feathers" receptions.

MARS HAS KEPT ITS SECRET.

Mars has swung close to this earth, and has started off again in its path away off to fraternize with other stars.

The reported "messages" at receiving stations are now scouted as being a case of nervous expectation. Men who sat all night squinting through our most powerful glasses, or with finely tuned instruments waiting for a signal—well, they simply had to hear something. They do not know whether there are people on Mars, but they had it all mapped out that there were, and, of course, they would be sitting up all night trying to send some sort of a message to us. If they wouldn't do that much then the Martians would be a measly lot of people.

Now comes one of the observers who says that there are no canals on Mars. Years ago some person wished a canal system on that dazzling star, and they did it without asking the people up there if they had canals or if they wanted them at all. The canal system in Mars has about as much foundation in fact as the pot of gold at the end of a rainbow.

Nor with all the peering that the world has done at Mars in recent nights, it has not been established that there are any people living there. The most powerful telescope has not seen the front door of a moving picture house nor the billboards of a circus. Nor have the observers seen the people of Mars hopping out of the way of cars, or the non-hoppers being carried off on a shutter to the morgue.

Mars came close to pay us a visit—a mere trifle of 35,000,000 miles away. We did our best—we squinted, photographed, sketched and listened. It may be that we have added something to the sum total of our knowledge, or at least whittled a few splinters from our heap of ignorant delusions. In 120 years the planet will be around again, and it will shine with its golden brilliance and challenge the students of the year 2044. So far Mars has guarded well its secret. —London Advertiser.

UGLY PERSONS AND HANDSOME ONES.

An English writer tells how being in a theatre with a foreigner he asked him the inevitable question as to what he thought of London. "I never saw so many ugly people in my life," was the startling reply. On looking about him the writer felt that the reply of the foreigner was not far astray.

From this he enquires as to why it is that in a country blessed with pretty children there should grow up such unattractive adults, and he concludes that civilization is doing something to the race—something undesirable, unless we are to assume that ugly people are brainier than handsome ones.

This, every handsome man and woman among us will hasten to deny. The fact is, no doubt, that when a person is ugly something has to be said to commend him to our acquaintances, so they are hastily assured that this person they are about to meet, while he does not look well, is really quite an unusual person and highly gifted. One statement like that about a man may keep him going for years, for others repeat it. All he needs do is refrain from showing that he is without gifts of any sort.

There is, of course, another influence at work. A handsome man meets with approval wherever he goes, and takes his acceptability for granted. Large and impressive, way is made for him, attendants single him out, he is first of any company to be served with tea or with checks for his luggage, and he is escorted to his room in the hotel while less attractive persons are left to wait their turn. The fact then is that the ugly man or the insignificant one has got to use his wits to get what is his due. If his exterior does not make his way an easy one he has got to call upon the interior of his head for aid, exercising twenty times a day resources which in the other man are not called into play at all. It may be that a certain deftness of practice develops in him, which if it does not descend to cunning adds to his worthy fitness in getting along in the world. Or he may be so driven by his difficulties that he resorts to cunning and ceases to be an admirable character, and even becomes a villain because he was ill-looking at the outset and had to fight for or scheme and cheat for the favors that to others were free.

The influence of character upon features has been much written about, but less has been said about the influence of features on character. Possibly it works as strongly one way as the other.—Toronto Star.

USEFUL WORK FOR THE UNEMPLOYED.

The appointment of a committee of experts to make preliminary investigations in the great Severn River Power project, marks a new era in the tackling of the unemployment problem in Britain. It is a practical attempt by the Government to substitute Labor for the dole and the wonder is that the transfer has been so long delayed.

Tomorrow, ministers from the various Provinces, with delegates from the large cities, from Boards of Trade, and from big employers of labor, are gathering at Ottawa for the round-table conference to co-ordinate plans for the relief of unemployment in the Dominion, which while not yet acute, looms as a tragic possibility in hundreds of homes, to darken the prospects of the coming winter. The idea of the dole does not appeal to Canada. It is doubtful indeed if it would ever have been adopted in the Old Country if its present magnitude could have been foreseen. Nevertheless, the dole, with its exact standard of payments, is probably not so liable to abuse as unorganized and promiscuous charity, and it has been the custom in the past in Canada to call upon the benevolent and the well-to-do when times are bad and employment is scarce. The only other alternative which has been tried out in this country seems to be the provision of useless and unprofitable work provided by municipal authorities which, as a rule, is almost as demoralizing for the applicant as idleness and as extravagant as private charity.

Britain therefore points the better way with the inauguration of the gigantic Severn River project. It is proposed to harness the tides of this great inland waterway, and to provide thereby sufficient power at a ridiculously low cost to run all the industries of the great hive of South Wales, and possibly to extend this power to London. The scheme will take seven years to complete, but every gallon of concrete that is poured into place, every brick laid and every shovelful of earth turned will bring the great scheme one step nearer realization. A large percentage of the workers engaged will be unskilled, but in such a plan there will be obvious need for engineers and craftsmen in metal and stone, while every man employed will be able to feel that he is doing something in one of the greatest pieces of construction ever undertaken.

Canada, too, has need of finding employment for those to whom the shutting down of the factories or their working at half time means a bareness of the larder. Those who sit in conference tomorrow could do worse than study the Severn scheme.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The appearance of hockey items in the newspapers causes uneasy thoughts about next winter's coal supply.

By the way, what has become of that Ontario coal campaign? Apparently Ontario will continue to have to depend upon the supply from across the line.

Yesterday's picnic proved a drawing card that attracted hundreds of visitors from all over the district. The Premier had no reason to complain of the warmth of his reception.

The question naturally arises as to whether the tug-of-war competition yesterday could be properly described as a case of political pull.

The Canadian dollar was quoted at a premium in New York yesterday. No whisper of death about that.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, August 29 (Canadian Press). — Owing to the sharp advance in wheat prices at Winnipeg and Chicago and further strength displayed in the local market yesterday, there was a lull in the demand from foreign buyers for supplies and exporters reported business much quieter than it has been of late. Cash prices for car lots of oats were marked up locally another 1 1-2 cents per bushel.

There is nothing new in the flour market, prices for spring wheat grades being steady, and there is no improvement in the demand from local and country buyers for supplies since the have still some to receive on old contracts made some time ago. Volume of business is therefore small. The condition of the winter wheat flour market is unchanged. Offerings of new crop wheat grades from Ontario millers were not large, but were ample to meet local requirements and a moderate business continues.

A steady feeling and a moderate demand for millfeed obtains, and the prices are unchanged. The market for rolled oats was firm. A firm feeling prevails in the market for old crop baled hay on account of the continued small offerings and the steady demand for home consumption.

A fair trade continues to be done in a wholesale jobbing way in most grades of eggs and the market was moderately active with a firm undertone.

Demand from foreign sources for butter was again reported limited, while trade with domestic houses is also stated to be very limited.

Owing to the continued disappointing demand from English importers of cheese and the liberal quantities coming forward an easier feeling developed in this market, and prices were shaded 1-8c to 1-4c per pound.

WINNIPEG LIVE STOCK.

WINNIPEG, August 29 (Canadian Press). — Arrivals: 1,456 cattle, 145 calves, 974 hogs, and 180 sheep and lambs.

With a heavy carry-over from Wednesday, trading on the cattle market continued inactive yesterday morning. The store trade was particularly bad with bidding very weak. The cow classes were about steady, with the close of the previous day.

Trading on the hog market opened steady with thick smooths going around $9.00.

Prospects on the sheep and lamb market appeared steady, with best lambs from $8.50 to $9.50, and ranging from $4.00 to $5.50.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, August 29 (Canadian Press).— Cattle receipts, 6,000; yearlings and handyweight steers fairly active; strong; spots 10c to 15c higher; desirable light yearlings very scarce; most weighty steer offerings stale kind at $7.50 to $9.50; best, $9.75; fair clearances on heavies, but trade very slow; stale Western grass steers averaging 1,257 to 1,311 pounds, $6.00 to $6.60; tail-end, $4.00 to $4.50; stockers and feeders scarce; weighty feeding steers very slow; she stock firm to higher; bulls fully steady; vealers largely $12.50 to $12.75; several lots $13.00 to packers.

Hogs, receipts 17,000; mostly 10c higher; weighty butchers and packing sows showing 10c to 15c advance; light lights and slaughter pigs dull, weak to 25c lower; top, $10.00; bulk good and choice 160 to 325 pound weight, $9.50 to $9.95; better 140 to 150 pound kind, $8.50 to $9.25; packing sows, $8.45 to $8.90; desirable 120 to 130 pound pigs $7.50 to $7.75; estimated holdover, 16,000.

Sheep, receipts 18,000; fat lambs fully steady; sorting moderate; bulk desirable native lambs, $13.00 to $13.25; few to city butchers, $13.50; culls mostly $9.00; bulk range lambs $13.40 to $13.50; sheep weak; odd lots fat ewes, $4.50 to $6.00; no early sales feeding lambs; best held steady at $13.25; full mouthed breeding ewes, $7.00 to $7.25.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, August 29 (Canadian Press). — All grains averaged higher in prices here yesterday due to the bullish foreign news and continued unfavourable crop reports from the domestic corn belt.

At the finish, wheat was up 1 1-4c to 2c, with September $1.22 5-8 to $1.22 3-4 and December $1.27 3-4 to $1.28.

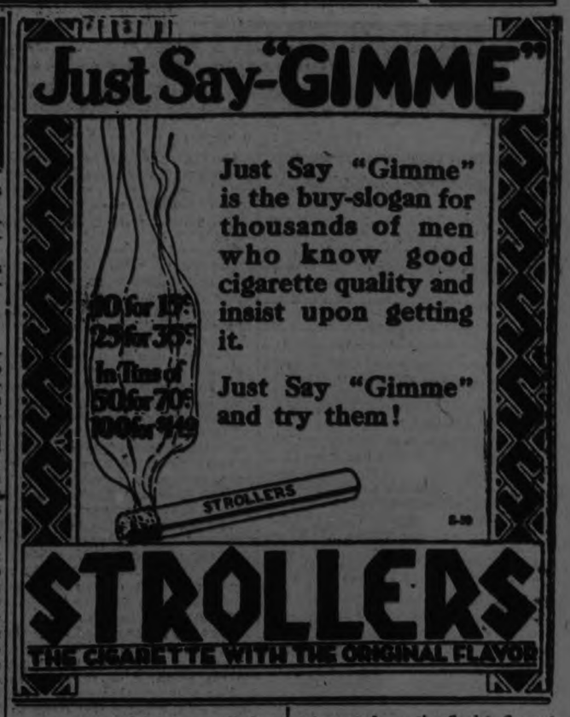
Corn scored a net gain of 1 1-2c to 2 3-4c.

Oats rose 1 1-2c to 1 7-8c.

Provisions advanced 12 1-2 cents to 25 cents.

Wheat displayed a firm undertone throughout the day, largely in sympathy with corn strength and because of lower temperature in Canada and the advance in Liverpool.

A report from Germany telling of the rotting of crops as a result of excessive wet weather, an official statement from the Soviet Government of Russia stating that about 60 per cent. of the planted wheat acreage will be a failure, and a report that the Swedish wheat crop will be nearly a million and a half bushels less than last year, also helped to lift values here.



A THOUGHT

SUMMER EVENINGS

Along the ribbon of the road
The baby beetles are asleep;
And through the drowsy evening air
The cricket boys their rhythm keep.
All the dim world is willing now—
Nothing holds back or frightened seems—
Since night so softly slips her cape,
And sets the air adrift with dreams
I like to think things hold me close—
I am all theirs and they all mine—
And so we float beyond the curve,
Out where God's gentle candles shine.
I like to think all is one song,
And he who cares to sing may live;
And he who cares to teach the song
May live to know the peace he gives.
I like to think the flower's wee smile
The curling colors of the sea,
The darkness of the evening hills,
The mothers of our souls may be.

"NAME ONE THING DONE TO CONSOLIDATE THE BRITISH EMPIRE SINCE WAR ENDED"

Britain Neglects Trade in Canada and Pacific, Says Envoy of British Columbia--United States Capturing Trade of the Dominion.

By the HON. FREDERICK C. WADE, B.A., K.C., Agent-Gen. in London for British Columbia.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—Is it a fact that America has captured a great deal of the Canadian trade?

I have no hesitation in saying that the United States has captured a great deal of it. While we in Great Britain never cease talking about Empire, about our place in the sun, and about the Mother of Parliaments, we are rapidly letting the British Empire slip through our fingers.

And I would ask if any one can name a single thing that has been done to consolidate the British Empire since 1918.

The British Empire cannot live on flag and sentiment alone, and the chances are that we will soon be reduced to that diet unless something is done.

Desire British Trade.

The two great English-speaking peoples with which Canada can trade are Great Britain and the United States. The desire of every Canadian is to trade with Great Britain as far as it is humanly possible. But the results, so far as investment of British capital is concerned, are extremely disappointing. For instance, in 1918, the stocks, bonds and other securities held by incorporated and joint stock companies engaged in the manufacturing industries of Canada were 56 per cent. Canadian, 34 per cent. United States and 9 per cent. British.

Lumber Trade.

In the lumber business in 1919 the United States held 27 per cent. as against the United Kingdom's 11 per cent.; in in the pulp and paper industry, the United States 24 per cent., United Kingdom 4 per cent.; agricultural implements industry, the United States 31 per cent, United Kingdom 9.8 per cent.; foundry and machine shop industry, the United States 21 per cent., United Kingdon 8.4 per cent.; electrical apparatus industry, the United States 49 per cent., United Kingdom 12 per cent.; meat packing industry, the United States 41.4 per cent., United Kingdom 0.2 per cent.; rubber industry, the United States 50 per cent., United Kingdom 2 per cent.

All this has occurred in spite of the 33 1-3 preference tariff in favor of British goods.

Should Have Agents.

British business houses should have agents in Ontario and Quebec and the maritime provinces for their Eastern trade, at Western points for Central Canadian trade and in British Columbia for Pacific Coast trade.

In that connection, how many are awake to the fact that the greatest commercial development in history has begun on the Western coast with the opening of the Panama Canal, which has cut the distance between Liverpool and the Pacific in two and brought the greatest ocean in the world—around which dwell two-thirds of mankind and where are to be found eight-tenths of British possessions—within easy reach of the factories and productive industries of Great Britain?

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

THE TRAVELLERS VISIT THE KANGAROOS

Weeny gave a few flaps with his big ears.

"Where are we going now, Weeny?" asked Nick when the elephant had placed them both carefully on his back after they had left the iceberg. "Who else are you going to visit on your vacation?"

"I believe I'll go to see Kicky Kangaroo," said Weeny. "We used to have a lot of fun in the circus. He lives a long way off, but that doesn't matter, since the Fairy Queen taught me to fly with my ears. Let me see—where's that card? The last postcard I had from him had his address on it."

"It must be in your satchel," said Nancy.

"So it must," said Weeny.

So the Twins opened the satchel and took out Weeny's nighty and his specks and his toothbrush and there sure enough, was the lost postcard.

"It says 'Bamboo Grove, Australia,'" read Nick.

"Yes, sir! Of course!" said Weeny. "I wish my memory was as long as my trunk. But it's only as long as my tail. My head will never save my heels, I'm afraid. Wasn't it lucky I happened to have that card along! Hold tight now, here we go."

Weeny gave a few flaps with his big ears and soon the travelers were whizzing away over mountains and seas until they came to Australia. At least that's what the whale said it was, when they asked him out in the ocean.

And before they know it there they were at the Bamboo Grove, where Kicky Kangaroo lived.

In a sort of tangly place under some trees there was a house and on the door-plate it said, "Mister and Mrs. Kangaroo."

"Why, it doesn't say a word about Kicky," said Weeny anxiously.

"Oh, it never mentions the children," said Nick wisely. "But if his mother and daddy live here, he must too."

"Of course!" said Weeny.

"Who's there?" called a voice suddenly from inside.

"Me!" said Weeny. "I mean us."

At that the door flew open and out jumped Kicky Kangaroo himself.

"Hello here!" he cried. "If it isn't my old friend Weeny, the elephant! Are you still doing a circus act?"

"No!" said Weeny. "These are not circus riders. They're Nancy and Nick, the Twins. I'm taking them on travels. And we've come to visit you."

"Then you're just in time," said Kicky. "We're having a ball-game this afternoon between the Jumpers and the Boxers and we need a batter and an umpire. Do you want to play? You can bat, Weeny, and Nick can be umpire to decide who wins, and Nancy can watch."

"That's fine!" cried Nick and Nancy and Weeny together.

They all went to the ball-field and after meeting Kicky's friends the game began, with Weeny at the bat.

You never saw such a fast ball-game in your life, and when it was over the score was about two hundred to one hundred and ninety. For when the kangaroo boys ran for bases they just gave one hop with their strong hind legs and tails, and there they were. And runs! It was something awful!

But everybody said that Weeny was the best batter they ever had, he knocked the ball so far.

They had such a good time they all stayed a week.

GASOLINE TAX FOR PROVINCE

New Form of Taxation To Be Introduced at Next Session.

TORONTO, August 29. — Ater some years of discussion on the subject, observation of its effects in the United States, and tabulation of statistics and reports thereon, Ontario is at last going to have a gasoline tax, according to the information made available yesterday. At least this new form of taxation, it was said, is going to be submitted for legislative approval at coming session.

The tax which is to be proposed in Ontario, will amount, it is said, to two cents on every gallon, and instead of being imposed at the retail end of the distribution system, will be imposed upon the wholesalers, who handle the commodity in hundred thousand gallon lots.

It is said the government will take steps in connection with the new system of taxation to see that the consumer does not pay more in respect of the gasoline taxation than the actual two cents levied.

It has been estimated by the department that a two cent tax would bring in from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 additional provincial reveiues each year.

PICNIC TO COBOURG

The Centreville Presbyterians Held Annual Excursion.

BAILIEBORO, Aug. 29. — On Wednesday, Centreville Presbyterian Sunday school held their annual picnic to Cobourg. In spite of the fact that this is a very busy season among the farmers, a good representation of the Sunday school found it possible to enjoy the outing at the lake shore. BEDOUINS OF JEWISH ORIGIN ASK RETURN TO ANCIENT FAITH

JERUSALEM, Aug. 29.— Part of a Bedouin tribe in Palestine numbering about 1,000 persons, claiming to be descendants of Jews who remained in Palestine following the destruction of the Temple, have applied to the government for help in their efforts to return to Judasim.

The tribe known as "Arab el Simalni" is scattered over Upper Galilee. Some of the tribesmen are at present encamped at Tabha, on the northern shore of Lake Tiberias, whence they addressed their request to the Rabbis of Safed. The claim as descendants of Jews is based by elders of the tribe on documents said to be in their possession, showing their ancestors to have been part of the Jewish race. One of the documents of the Simalni is a scroll written in Arabic resembling somewhat in form and content the "Torah" or scroll of the Mosaic Pentateuch. Some of the Simalni customs are also said to resemble those of the ancient Jews.

After waiting in vain for action on the part of the Rabbis of Safed who apparently were none too anxious to precipitate a proselytizing activity of such importance, 25 chiefs of the tribe submitted a written application to the government.

A British official sent to investigate the request and examine the claims, reported that while there may be some doubt as to the authenticity of the documents, the earnestness of the Bedouins' desire to embrace, or to re-embrace, Judaism was unquestionable.

The authorities are understood to be proceeding very cautiously, fearing the effect upon the Moslem and Christian population of a wholesale conversion of the tribe.

The question of the direct decent from the Jews of certain Bedouin tribes of Upper Galilee and the Sinai Peninsula has engaged at various times the attention of Orientalists. There is a belief that the Jews remaining in Palestine after the destruction of the Jewish nation managed to remain true, perhaps clandestinely, to their faith, until forced by Omar to exchange their religion for the Islam. Since then they are believed to have lived outwardly as Mohammedans, while handing down to their children the story of their Jewish ancestry. In this respect the Simalni would be not unlike the "Moranos" of Spain and Portgual, who secretly retained their Jewish traditions and practices, although compelled by the Inquisition to live as Christians.

NO QUEENS FOR BOLSHEVIKI

So They Bar Importation of Books Mentioning Insect Sovereigns.

LEIPSIC, Aug. 29.—The Soviet authorities have prohibited the importation into Russia of books about ants and bees in which "queens" are mentioned, says the German Buchhandler-Boersenblatt, a weekly devoted to the book trade.

The Bolsheviki are said to object to the description of colonies of ants and bees as helpless when lacking the ruling power of their queens.

ANIMAL REMAINS INDICATE BRITAIN ONCE TROPICAL

LONDON, Aug. 29.— England 100,000 years ago was a tropical country in which the inhabitants hunted elephants and other animals of the warmer climates with skillfully made weapons, in the opinion of Major A. G. Wade, the British archaeologist, who has recently made important discoveries in the gravel pits near Farnham, Dorsetshire.

Among the relics brought to the surface were the remains of mammoths, an elephants, wooly rhinoceri and beautifully made flint instruments. The finding of the remains moths and elephants, wooly rhinoceri and beautifully made flint instrutheory, according to Major Wade, who said that both had thick coats and could have lived in a cold climate.

"With the elephant," he said, "the case is different. He had only a warm weather animal, but needed a tropical climate."

The flint instruments consists of great hand axes, oval shaped discular implements larger than a man's hand which were probably used for skinning and cutting up large animals, and enormous spears of the Paleolithic age. According to Major Wade, the persons who used them had attained a much higher degree of civilization than those of the Neolithic period who followed them.

Major Wade placed the age of his discoveries at 100,000 years, basing his estimate on the depth at which they were found under the gravel of the old bed of the Wey River.

WORK BEGUN ON BOULEVARD TO ENCIRCLE CITY OF PARIS

PARIS, Aug. 29.—Paris' dream of a great, green-bordered boulevard around the city is coming true. It may be a few years before the plan is completed but the work of tearing down the obsolete fortifications is half done and the first sale of the land will take place soon so apartment houses may be erected there.

There are 1,100 acres of land in all in the 92 forts and defensive walls and the moats surrounding them. Three other forts will be kept, partly as a relic of old Paris. Half of the land will be given over to military establishments and railroads while much of the remainder will be sites for government buildings, schools, the city's proposed low-priced apartments to relieve the housing shortage and the little "University City," where students, particularly poor ones, may live cheaply under good conditions.

There will be sold only 170 acres in small lots but from these sales for the cost of razing walls of Paris. For the first time the limit on the height of buildings will be limited so as to get the most housing facilities possible out of this land. The buyers also will be required to erect apartment houses immediately.

With the sports costume the hat of crocheted straw in bright colors is quite the proper touch.

TURKS AGITATE SALE OF CALIPH'S TREASURES

CONSTNTINOPLE, Aug. 29.—The question of what is to be done with the treasures of the caliph is occupying front page space in all Turkish newspapers. These treasures contain some of the most valuable gems in existence.

One group of papers demands that the treasure be sold at international auction so that the money may become available for much needed purposes of reconstructing the country and for relieving distress among the abjectly poor.

Until 1916 the treasure was kept in the Palace of Top-Kapu. After the present regime succeeded to power it was brought to the mosque of Achmed Pasha at Angora. The treasure includes the gems and works of art collected by the sultans and caliphs through centuries. There are necklaces of walnut sized diamonds, medallions of rubies and topaz, chains of pearls of priceless value, diadems and crowns of precious stones, goblets and cups of gold and silver, swords and scimitars and pitol set with jewels, and the famous saddles of the sultans and princes, which are studded with diamonds and other precious stones.

THE TIRELESS PASTOR.

During a five-year pastorate at Bowmanville, one of the most Methodist towns in Ontario, Rev. S. C. Moore made 7,000 pastoral calls. In addition this pastor had 225 burials, 225 baptisms and received 450 persons into church membership, making a net gain of 265 if deaths and removals are taken into consideration. And yet, it is said, that there are no industrious or business-like ministers.

PIGEONS STEER STRAIGHT COURSE THROUGH HEAVY SWISS FOGS

BERNE, Switzerland, Aug. 29.—An interesting test of the reliability of pigeons as message bearers was recently made by the Swiss general staff. Twenty doves were taken to the highest accessible point of the "Jungfrau" and released. The day was cloudless in the upper regions of the Alps, but all the cities and valleys were screened from view by a thick layer of fog.

PATENT OFFICE MAY AUCTION MODELS OF OLD INVENTIONS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—What to do with all the old-time models, now in the custody of the Patent Office, is awaiting solution and efforts will be made at the coming session of Congress to clarify the situation.

The demand for space in the Patent Office ousted the models from their exhibition cases at the end of the last century, but the government has had to continue paying space rental for them. A proposal now being considered is to have a commission appointed to sort out the models that might prove of historic interest, and perhaps sell the others at public auction.

The general requirement of having the inventor submit a model with his patent application was discontinued about 1880. Today the law directs that the commissioner of patents in his discretion may require a model furnished.

RUMANIA'S CONTROL OF MINORITY SECTS IS UNDER INQUIRY

BUCHAREST, Aug. 29.—(Associated Press).—Considerable interest is being displayed in the present visit to Rumania of the Anglo-American delegation for the study of the condition of the minority churches of Transylvania. The delegation is composed of four members, and includes Dr. L. C. Cornish, of Boston, secretary of the American Unitarian Association; Dr. Charles Schaeffer, of Philadelphia, of the Reformed Churches of the United States; Dr. Sylvester Beach, of Princeton, of the Association of Presbyterian Churches; and the Rev. Dr. A. S. Hurn, of Leicester, England, of the British and Foreign Unitarian Association.

The members of the delegation, after such preparatory study as was possible in Bucharest, have traveled more than 1,000 miles in Transylvania, and held conferences in different parts of the province, going freely and unaccompanied from place to place in pursuit of their investigation, and sparing no effort to arrive at the true condition of affairs in respect to the attitude of the Rumanian Government towards the so-called minority churches.

In an address a few days ago, returning thanks to the officials of the Rumanian Government for their readiness in answering questions and in supplying such data as the delegates asked for in order to give them an insight into the Government's attitude and policies towards the religious minorities, Dr. Hurn said:

"We are of the opinion that conditions have improved during the past two years. We understand the enormous difficulties of this problem, a problem complex of religion and race. I cannot say that we are fully satisfied with the conditions —as we found them—of the minority churches, but it seems to us that the Rumanian Government wants to satisfy all reasonable and just demands."

The commission has announced that it will prepare a joint and complete preliminary report of its investigations, in which will be set forth in detail all cases of alleged abuses that were brought to its attention. The Government will then be given ample opportunity to refute or explain any charges that may be brought and, following this, the final report of the commission will be published in Great Britain and the United States.

This report should be extremely valuable from two angles. It will probably lead, or at least help in leading, to the redress of such abuses of power as may at present exist, and at the same time, provide the outside world with a complete and unbiased report on the condition of the minority races and religions in the province of Transylvania.

GERMAN LAD DETERMINED TO ENTER UNITED STATES

BREMERHAVEN, Aug. 29. — Paul Krupp, 18 years old, is now in jail here for ten weeks because of his persistent endeavors to reach the United States as a stowaway. Each one of 11 endeavors has resulted in failure.

But Paul is not discouraged. He says he will next try from Hamburg where he is not so well known. He prefers American ships for his ventures because the officers are easier on stowaways than men of other nationality. He is striving to reach Springfield, Ohio, where he claims to have friends.

Young Krupp is typical of scores of German youngsters who haunt the docks at Bremerhaven and seek an opportunity to slip into ships bound for the United States. Paul has been trying for three years, and is well known to the emigration authorities at New York. They promptly send him back on the ship that brought him over. During his last trip back on the President Roosevelt, he painted all the machinery on the main deck.

CACTUS PLANTED AS NOVELTY BECOMES A NUISANCE IN AUSTRALIA

TUCSON, Ariz., Aug. 29.—(Associated Press).—Forty years ago species of southwestern cacti were introduced in Australia as a novelty, but now they have become such a nuisance that every effort is being made to get rid of them, reported C. F. Dodd, an Australian agriculturist, who has been here looking for cactus-eating insects which might be transferred to Australia.

Mr. Dodd conferred with experts at the University of Arizona. Several vicious types of insects were suggested, and the visitor began experimenting with their power of destruction. The few cactus plants transplanted in Australia came from Arizona.

NEWS FROM MADOC

Funeral of Mrs. D. E. K. Stewart Was Largely Attended.

MADOC, Aug. 29.—The funeral of the late Mrs. Stewart, wife of D. E. K. Stewart, took place yesterday afternoon at three o'clock at the church of St. John the Baptist, thence to Lakeview Cemetery. The church was filled with friends who had known and admired Mrs. Stewart, and whose sympathy for the bereaved family is very keen.

Rev. Mr. Strother conducted the impressive service, and preached from the thirteenth chapter of St. John, seventh verse: "Jesus do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt know hereafter." Mr. Strother spoke of the great shock Mrs. Stewart's sudden death was to the town. He, in company with other citizens, had hardly had time yet to recover and realize that God's dear servant had passed on to grace and glory, to that land of hope and promise that had been prepared for us. Sudden death, the speaker said, was not to be dreaded by those who live a prepared life, such as had been lived by Mrs. Stewart. He wished to take this opportunity of saying that those who are making a mistake and if any present were failing in this particular he would earnestly invite them on this occasion to consider well the life they were living and to strive earnestly to live as the Father of all mercies would have us do.

Mr. Strother expressed his deep sympathy for the partner who had been permitted to share with Mrs. Stewart fifty-six years of wedded life, and for all the other members of the family. He himself had found Mrs. Stewart gentle, kind, patient, forgiving, unassuming; a splendid and noble type of womanhood. She had been a consistent christian and faithful member of St. John's church which she had dearly loved. For forty years she had occupied a seat in this church, and was like the Psalmist who said: "I was glad when they said unto me, 'Let us go into the house of the Lord'."

Mrs. Stewart had been present at service on Sunday evening, when the address had been on that beautiful and preparatory hymn: Jesus, Lover of my Soul. How appropriate it was that the singing of this hymn should have been the last words that sounded in her ears in this church; what a most glorious way to be ushered into the presence of the King. Mrs. Stewart had spoken to a number of people after the service, of her appreciation and love of this hymn and of the address given on it.

On the eve of her birthday she had passed out of this life to that other life which is full, free and complete. We often say: "Could not the cup have been a little less bitter?" But God says: "You see only dreams unfulfilled, plans not matured, but shall not the judge of all the earth know these dreams and plans shall be completed?" We should teach our tongues to say, "I do not know." for our lives are too infinite, our understanding too narrow to grasp the plans of Almighty God. We must have supreme faith in the creed that God Is, and knows what is best.

Life is like a motto which has been worked on perforated paper. On the wrong side there is nothing to be seen but tangled stitches. This illustrates the first part of the text: "What I do, thou knowest not now." But turn over the motto and on the right side the words, "God Is Love," which have been worked on it, stand out bright and clear. Here is the second part, "Thou shalt know hereafter." In this life we see only the wrong side of the work, the tangled stitches, but in the world to come we shall understand the meaning of things we cannot grasp now, and see the fulfillment of God's plans and love for us.

Rev. Mr. McCormick of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church was present, and took part in the service.

Many beautiful flowers testified to the love and esteem in which Mrs. Stewart was held.

The pall-bearers were: Mr. McGhee, Mr. McBain, Mr. Jewell, Mr. Curry, Mr. McKenzie and Mr. Wallbridge.

Last Half Holiday.

This week marks the last half-holiday of the season, and true to its record the rain descended again. It is a peculiar fact that it has rained nearly every Wednesday this summer, sometimes just a shower, but more often a heavy enough downpour to spoil the picnics and other outings.

Merrymakers were given a some what better chance as the shower which came about one o'clock lasted for only a comparatively short time.

Mr. David Whytock returned to Boston today.

Mrs. Sinclair and family of Belleville spent the holiday with Mr. and Mrs. George Wright at Moira Lake. Miss Alice Sinclair and Miss Jennie Wright, who have returned from their motor trip to Montreal, were of the party.

The marriage of Dr. William Dafoe of Toronto, son of Dr. W. A. Dafoe, Madoc and Miss Helen Gibson of Toronto, took place today. Dr. and Mrs. Dafoe are sailing for England, where Dr. Dafoe will take a post-graduate course.

Mrs. Hart and family who have been spending the month of August at Salmon Lake are returning to town on Thursday.

Mrs. David Mawson and little son, Max, leave for St. Ola on Saturday, after a lengthy visit in town.

Last week's heavy storm damaged the crops to a certain extent. Some fields were pretty flat, but farmers report that grain is straightening up a little bit. Oats suffered the most.

Mrs. D. Haslip left for a visit in Toronto and Detroit.

RUSSIAN HOUSE SERVANTS FARE BEST AMONG WORKERS

MOSCOW, Aug. 29.—American housewives who think their servant problem a difficult one should turn to Bolshevist Russia where housemaids, cooks and pantry workers demand many more privileges than do servants in the United States. In addition to an eight-hour day and one day off each week, servants here have a month's vacation during the year, full insurance, the right to attend trade union meetings whenever they desire, and other liberties.

In Moscow employers must supply their domestics with two dresses a year, two pair of shoes, four pairs of stockings, half a dozen aprons and numerous other articles.

As a class, Russian servants are now better off than any other category of worker. They draw more salary than skilled workmen, enjoy greater freedom, better food, and superior living accommodation. Their position in present-day life is so strong that special courts have been established by the government to hear their grievances.

COBOURG AND THE DISTRICT

Man Crushed at the Ferry Dock—A Golden Wedding.

COBOURG, Aug. 29.—(Special).—Tom Meeson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Meeson, Division Street North, met with a bad accident at the Jerry dock here. He is a deck hand on Ontario No 1, and was engaged scrubbing the side of the steamer, when the motion of the boat jammed him between the steamer and the Jerry dock. He was badly crushed, and a bone in his hip was broken. He was taken to the hospital and is reported to be doing as well as can be expected.

Oshawa Out $2,500.

Old Home Weeks are good things from a social and civic point of view, but on the financial basis they appear to be falling down. There was a considerable deficit in connection with Lindsay's Old Home Week and now comes the announcement that Oshawa is out $2,500 on the gathering recently held in that city.

The Late Mrs. John Sleeman.

Adeline Holden, wife of Mr. John Sleeman, entered into rest at Cobourg on Thursday morning. She had been ill for several months. The funeral took place at Port Hope on Saturday at 4 p.m. from the residence of her sister, Mrs. Geo. Lowe. Interment was in the Union Cemetery.

The Late Miss Annie Benson.

Miss Annie Benson passed away on Thursday at her home near Bewdley. She was born at the old homestead, but entered the nursing profession, and was a nurse for the past thirty years at Brooklyn, N.Y. Last July she came home, her health having failed, and gradually grew worse, until her death. Miss Benson was a lady who was held in high esteem. She is survived by two brothers, William and John, on the homestead, and by four sisters: Mrs. Henderson, Chicago; Mrs. Leon Howard, Misses Susannah and Clara Benson, at Bewdley. With all much sympathy is felt. The funeral took place on Saturday. Interment was in the Baptist Cemetery at Bewdley.

A Golden Wedding.

A happy event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Rumbelow, esteemed citizens, on Friday last, when they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary by a family gathering, at which all of the sons and daughters were present.

Mrs. Rumbelow, before her marriage, was Miss Emily Peachey, and she and Mr. Rumbelow were both born in England, where they were married at Wicken, in August, 1874. They came to Canada on their honeymoon, and settled in Cobourg, which has since been their home, and where they have won the esteem and loving regard of many citizens and friends. The best of it is that both are well and vigorous for their years and we hope that they may live to celebrate their diamond wedding anniversary.

The family home on Stewart Street was en fete on Friday for the happy occasion. The rooms were charmingly decorated with yellow and gold in honor of the event. Mr. and Mrs. Rumbelow have a family of ten children, all of whom married and set up homes of their own, being widely separated by distance, and it is a significant event that all were able to come home for their parents' golden wedding. There were present: Geo. Rumbelow, Stafford Springs, Conn.; Mrs and Mrs. Hartley Simpson, Clinton, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rumbelow, Moose Jaw; Mr. and Mrs. Best Feir, Winnipeg; Mr. and Mrs. Don. Hare, Moose Jaw; Mr. and Mrs. Robt. A. Boyd, Clinton, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. James Anderson, Peterboro; Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Anderson, Toronto; Mrs. J. S. Walker, Cobourg; Mr. Albert Rumbelow, Cobourg.

There were present also thirteen grandchildren of this worthy couple: George S. Walker, Cobourg; Walter and Ethel Simpson, Clinton, Mich.; Allan Rumbelow, Moose Jaw; Jack Rumbelow, Stafford Springs, Mich.; Helen Feir, Winnipeg; Helen and Thelma Anderson, Toronto; Isabel and Melville Anderson, Peterboro; George, Harold and Dorothy Rumbelow, Cobourg. The children presented their parents with a substantial purse of gold.

The address was read by the oldest son, George, and the youngest daughter, Mrs. Boyd, presented the token of love on behalf of the family.

Mr. Rumbelow made an appropriate and feeling reply on behalf of himself and wife.

In the evening a number of friends and neighbors from Factory Hill called and made the bride and groom of fifty years the recipients of another purse of gold. Mrs. Richardson read an appropriate address, expressing the kindly regard in which they were held among a large circle of friends, tendering congratulations upon having enjoyed fifty years of wedded happiness, and wishing for both many additional happy years.

Mr. Rumbelow made fitting reply.

A four-piece orchestra, composed of some of the grandchildren, rendered a much appreciated musical programme, opening with "Home, Sweet Home."

At the conclusion of a very happy day they played "Blest be the tie that binds."

Social and Personal.

Rev. Mr. Wolfriam and Mrs. Wolfriam, Corsecon, Prince Edward County, have been visiting at Orono with Mr. A. H. Kean. Mr Wolfriam preached at Leskard and Orono during his visit.

Rev. J. J. Rae and Mrs. Rae have motored from Richmond, Ind., to visit friends in the district. Mr. Rae is a former Methodist pastor at Bowmanville, Oshawa and other Quinte Conference stations. He is supplying the work at Simcoe Street, Oshawa, for a few Sundays.

HOP POSTPONED UNTIL SATURDAY

Storm Raging on Atlantic for Several Days Reaches Greenland Shore.

SCHEDULE UPSET

ON BOARD U. S. S. RICHMOND, at Ice Tickle, Labrador, Aug. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Postponement of the flight of the United States army world fliers from Ivigtut, Greenland, to Indian Harbor, Labrador, until Saturday was definitely decided yesterday on account of the continuing stormy weather.

The gale which had raged throughout Wednesday night off Ice Tickle had died down Thursday and the rising barometer seemed to promise a possibility of the fliers continuing their air voyage from Ivigtut to Labrador today, in accordance with the pre-arranged schedule.

During the day, however, the cruiser Milwaukee, which is stationed off Ivigtut, where Lieutenants Lowell H. Smith and Erik Nelson are waiting to make their last overseas jump, reported that the storm which had been moving up the coast for several days, affecting the Labrador side of Davis Straits, had reached the Greenland shore.

PROMOTE EFFICIENT

Civil Service Commission Makes Appointments From Staff.

OTTAWA Aug. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Following out the principle laid down in the Senate Committee reporting upon efficiency in the Civil Service of Canada, the Civil Service Commission has been substituting promotion of efficient employes in the case of a dozen odd vacancies which would ordinarily have been filled by examination after advertisement.

The commission has cancelled the advertisement in certain cases and directed that the positions be filled by qualified employes surplus to the requirements of over-staffed departments. In effect, the new policy means to a large extent the sealing of the doors of entry to the Civil Service against new appointments until it has been demonstrated that no permanent employee now on the public payroll can be dismissed without danger to the general efficiency of the service.

A CAR IN DITCH.

Several Passengers Received Various Injuries

LINDSAY, August 29.—A serious automobile accident occurred on the Fenelon road, on the outskirts of the town, when a sedan, driven by Mr. Bradley Mowry, took to the ditch and overturned.

Mrs. A. Jackson, one of the occupants, had her arm broken at the wrist; Miss Minnie Grey received quite a gash in the left arm, and her mother received a number of severe bruises on the body and a cut in the back of the neck.

Mr. Mowry also received a shaking up and a gash in the arm.

The sedan was badly wrecked.

MAN WAS ARRESTED.

Formerly Resided in Peterborough and Now Said To Be Insane.

LINDSAY, August 29. — A man named Tweedie, until recently a resident of Peterborough, has been placed under arrest by Chief Umphrey.

He has been acting strangely of late, and on Wednesday afternoon attempted to commit a serious offence on a couple of children near the Ops swing bridge.

A charge of insanity and of being too dangerous to be at large will be preferred against him.

JEWISH SYNAGOGUE DESTROYED BY BOMB JUST BEFORE SERVICE

BUCHAREST, Aug. 29.— The Jewish synagogue in the village of Zapesti near Arat, recently was destroyed by the explosion of what authorities said was an infernal machine. Owing to the fact that the explosion occurred an hour before the time for service there were no casualties, none of the worshippers having entered the place.

From an investigation made it was assumed that the bomb went off prematurely.

There is a large Jewish population in Zapesti and Arat and the placing of the bomb in the synagogue is believed to have been an act of anti-Jewish agitation.

STONEY LAKE IS TOURISTS' MECCA

STONEY LAKE NEWS

STONEY LAKE, Aug. 29.—There has been a persistent rumor that half the cottages at Stoney Lake are closed and that the resorts are, with one or two exceptions, nearly empty. These reports are circulated and repeated too often by people in Lakefield, Peterborough and intervening country who derive, either directly or indirectly, benefit in solid cash from the summer colony at our own lakes. The principle is the same as the man who knocks his own town and must expect as a natural result that his own property will decrease in value. Probably on the entire lake, with its dozens of cottages, one dozen were never opened during the season. This proportion is very small, and in most cases due to family bereavements or causes beyond human control. This statement is fact and not fiction. As for the resorts, there are a good list of registrations in practically all the hotels in spite of the fact that this has been a poor season for summer resorts all over Ontario; returns from Muskoka, Lake of Bays, Georgian Bay, etc. all show a light season. Reasons are numerous; for Americans the presidential elections always mean an unsettled condition, and in Canada the industrial depression has had its effect. These reasons, combined with the unseasonable weather which prevailed nearly all summer, make one realize that the season has been very good under the circumstances.

There has been a more marked interest shown in sailing this year than for a number of years—in fact, since before the war. Open sailing and dinghy sailing are more popular than ever, and not only are the number of entries greater, but there is a greater amount of enthusiasm among the onlookers, even those who are not interested in any special boat. The season, with a good deal of wind, has been ideal for the sport, and there is a lot of fun in it. Several new boats are on the waters—Jim Pierdon of Kawartha Park won the Ardiel Cup with his boat "Alameda"; "Bill" Willoughby of Hurricane Point, with his new boat "Loon," was a winner in several races. The "Loon" was built by the Lakefield Canoe Co. and replaced the "B.V.D.," which was the Willoughby dinghy in several well-contested races, and while the "B.V.D." was good, the "Loon" is better. Contestants in sailing came from Chemong not only for the Juniper races but also for Crowe's Landing, McCracken's and the Kawartha Park sailing races, and several boats from Stoney Lake entered at Sturgeon Point and Chemong sailing races. At Juniper a boat from Sturgeon Point took a leading place in the open sailing at Juniper. The value of this reciprocity is very great and has built up a good feeling between the different centres on the Kawartha Lakes. Sailing is the sport of kings and has a fascination all its own, which is growing stronger in this district every year and promises to rival the joys of motor boating.

The fog on Friday night was a very heavy one, the heaviest in the experience of many of the old-timers, and many people wandered round the lake for hours in their boats vaguely seeking some landmark to guide them home. The steamer tied up at Juniper believing firmly in the policy of "safety first" as even nearby islands were invisible and the risk in travelling was considerable. No fatalities resulted from the marooned parties in small boats, so the fog of August 22nd can go into history as a record-breaker and many interesting stories will be related by those who were caught by it at a distance from home.

The rain unfortunately prevented a large number of the "originals" among the Stoney Lake campers from attending the reunion. This was a matter for deep regret as the anecdotes of early days which the reunion would bring out would have been very interesting. The first cottage on the lake was built on the point where Mr. J. H. Sherin's cottage stands and was built by Dr. Alex. Bell of Lakefield, now a resident of Toronto. Dr. and Mrs. Bell are still annual visitors to the lake and are as enthusiastic as when they made their first trip in a canoe long before the days of steamers. The first cottage built on an island was the smaller cottage on Grassy Island owned and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. J. MacAllister Sym, but built by late William and James Graham of Lakefield. The longest record on the lake is that of Mr. J. D. Collins of Peterborough, who for sixty-six years has been a member of the summer colony. The pioneer of upper Stoney Lake was Mr. Robert Craig, and at the present time the Craig families are an important factor in the Crowe's Landing district as there are several islands and cottages owned by the family. Mr. R. B. Rogers is the original settler in the Kawartha Park colony, which in a few years grew into a miniature, well-organized village. The collected reminiscences of some of these old settlers would make a remarkably entertaining book.

A New Flag.

Some patriotic fairy has supplied a new Union Jack to the flag staff on Ship Island, and now the "flag that braved a thousand years" is floating triumphantly. The new flag was sorely needed as last year's bit of bunting was merely a rag. The flag of our country should be displayed on every flag-pole on the lake, and the beauty of the scenery would be enhanced by it. While we Canadians have never indulged in the flag-waving jingoism, falsely called patriotism, which is in common use among our southern neighbors, still we can err on the other side, and the sight of the Union Jack waving proclaims to all and sundry who may see it that this is a free country and that British fair play may be expected.

There has been a noted increase in the number of motor campers at the lake this season. Tourists pass through the various centres to the upper lakes every day with their full camp equipment aboard. This mode of independent travel is growing in popularity and has its advantages in spite of many disadvantages, especially this wet season. In spite of all the rain, there has been a larger number of campers than at any other season. The spirit of optimism was noticeable everywhere, as everyone seemed happy, even when drying their bedding after a night's rain.

Mr. Geo. McLeod, the present owner of "Minnewawa," which he purchased from Miss Traill four years ago, has put up a very attractive rustic sign with the name of the island on it in rustic work. It is attracting many admiring remarks from the passers-by. Mr. McLeod rebuilt the cottage and has cleared the island and made many other improvements in the property.

The Payne-Burrows-Wagar party of Lakefield who are occupying "Idleside" for a few weeks have had splendid luck fishing. On Friday evening last they brought in a large catch and on Monday morning they secured a beautiful 'lunge. A box of fish was sent down on Saturday as a present to Mr. J. W. Ridpath of Lakefield, which contained some splendid specimens.

Mr. George G. Hendren of "Rockridge" caught a 20-lb. 'lunge on Friday last. The fish measured 43 inches in length.

AT LAKEFIELD AND DISTRICT

Meeting Held To Form a Bowling Club—Seats on on Market Suare.

LAKEFIELD, Aug. 29.—A meeting was held to organize a Lawn Bowling Club at which a number of men interested in the sport attended About thirty members have already signed up and more are expected to join. The grounds which are kindly loaned by Mr. A. G. Lawless will be lighted and schedule games will be played on Tuesday and Friday evenings. These officers were elected:

President—Rev. Walter Cox.

1st vice president—Mr. E. A. Tanner.

Secretary-treasurer Mr. S. W. Sutton.

Executive committee —Rev. J. J. Garvey, Messrs. J. W. Ridpath, Chas. Thomson, W. G. Morrison and Theo Crawford.

It is expected that a great deal of local enthusiasm will be shown in the sport as the men are very keen already and lawn bowling may rival soft ball in the masculine affections.

Seats on Square

An interested citizen has suggested that a few seats on the market square would be an improvement to the village. The grounds are shaded with fine maples and a few park benches would give accommodation to visitors in the village who have no place to sit and rest. A party of ladies, having searched in vain for a park to rest in were discovered sitting on the cement walk near Mr. Crawford's butcher shop. If we want tourists we must provide for their needs.

Mr. F. S. Brown has taken down the house on the corner of King and Water streets and is building a pretty bungalow on the lot. Mr. and Mrs. Brown and daughter will reside there as soon as the house is completed.

Mrs. L. H. Grahame entertained a number of her lady friends at bridge on Wednesday afternoon at her residence on Queen street.

LABOR DAY OUTING

380 GEORGE STREET

BREAD SELLERS PICNIC ON RIVER

WINNERS OF RACES

The last Thursday half-holiday in August is, to all intents, the last half-holiday of this short summer season. For as Gray, in his immortal elegy, writes:—

so surely does the last half-holiday in August seem to sound the knell of parting summer. There may be a few odd trips to follow this last Thursday, one such, as for example, on Labour Day, which is only a few days ahead, when, by a general concensus of opinion, the summer season has ended.

We may, perchance, get a delightful September, and, judging from the lack of real hot summer weather so far, it is not by any means unlikely; yet the season for water trips comes to an end, the steamers go into their winter quarters to hibernate, and there is nothing but the winter—a long, dreary one usually—to look forward to. Coal to be provided and houses to be kept warm until next May.

The Last Industrial Trip.

The event that marked the last industrial water excursion of the season was organized by the "Breadsellers" of this city. This aggregation had chartered the well-known, sturdy little steamer, Stoney Lake, together with its kindly, able and obliging crew, for a voyage to Wallace's Point, which locality has become quite a favorite spot for marine picnics.

It is conveniently situated; has plenty of facilities, swings, see-saws and suchlike, for the kiddies; plenty of shade and nice resting-places for the elders.

The day was simply delightful. From early morn the sun was shining from a cloudless sky—a light, gentle breeze tempered the sun's warm rays. About the starting time a few large white clouds were to be seen, but these served as shelter from the hot sun. They, however, quickly blew over with the light, pleasant, agreeable breeze, and the rest of the day was simply ideal.

The Start.

This was effected at 1.40 p.m., having been delayed fifteen minutes to see the procession, or parade, go past to the Exhibition grounds. A goodly number were already on board, and this was added to by those picked up at the Mark Street and Street Railway wharves. In glorious sunshine we steamed down the pretty meandering river to Wallace's Point, which was reached at about 3.30 p.m. Meanwhile Brown's jazz dance orchestra had been supplying the necessary for those bent on enjoying dancing. It being too early on arrival for supper, the sports took place. There were a goodly number of events for young and old for useful and worth-while prizes.

Tug-of-War (A and B teams), men—Won by B team.

Tug-of-War (A and B teams), ladies—Won by B team.

For the largest family on board (prize, 100 lbs, of flour)—Tie between Mrs. Herron McDonnel Street) and Mrs. Griffin (Rubidge Street), each winning 50 lbs. flour for nine in number, including parents.

The Aftermath.

Then came the supper, and due justice was done to the plentifully supplied hampers in all directions. The writer was very cordially invited to partake of Mr. Veiss and his family's hospitality, and right well he enjoyed it.

The competent committee, who had arranged the pleasant outing, passed a hearty vote of thanks to those of their customers and friends who had provided the really substantial prizes.

The Homeward Journey.

At 7.30 the return voyage was commenced, and a very pleasant sail up river followed, the George Street Wharf being reached at 8 p.m., thus giving time, to those so disposed, to adjourn to the Exhibition Ground for a couple of hours or so at the Community picnic.

By this time one was reminded of the late Rev. S. Baring Gould's lovely little hymn:

"Now the day is over,
Night is drawing nigh;
Shadows of the evening
Steal across the sky.
Now the darkness gathers,
Stars begin to peep;
Birds and beasts and flowers
Soon will be asleep."

The whole outing was a great success in every way, reflecting much credit on the energetic committee of management. Every one seemed to thoroughly enjoy themselves—if the sparkling of many eyes might be taken as any criterion. The children, of whom there were many, were happy and well-behaved.

Every care and attention was as usual given by the genial Captain Scollard and his obliging and competent crew.

And so, on arrival at the George Street Wharf, ended the last Thursday half-holiday trip of the season; While on Labour Day (Monday), a whole-day trip up the Lakes terminates the present summer's programme of the sturdy little pleasure steamer, Stoney Lake, on which the writer has spent many happy hours.

DOLLAR DAY RESULTS

The August Dollar Day went off right on schedule, and its special features were appreciated and enjoyed by the army of shoppers who thronged the stores and streets all through a hot summer day. The elusive Miss Dollar, for whose capture a $10.00 prize was offered, succeeded in concealing her identity till evening, when Mrs. Stephens, of McDonnel Street, made the identification, according to regulations, and received the $10.00.

The Rangers Band gave a lively, popular programme and filled the streets early for the two hours of evening shopping. The estimating blanks came to the Dollar Day box at The Examiner Office in a steady stream, but the number failed to reach that of 1923 August Dollar Day. When they were counted it was found that 14,234 had been dropped in and three people had estimated the exact amount. They divide the three first prizes, giving each of them $31.66, a nice pick-up, thanks to the merchants who support the bonus fund. Three other lots of ties used up the remaining thirteen prizes, with no prize estimate farther from the mark than three. Following is the list. The money will be paid at The Examiner Office on Tuesday, September 2nd:

AERIAL GAS CARRIERS KILL ARMIES

By ERNEST JONES.

From gas by airplane for the protection of our cotton and sugar plantations, forests and fruit orchards in time of peace, develops the logical step of aerial gas warfare, added to the other defensive and offensive powers of aircraft.

Chemical agents by airplane or airship figuratively put the breech of a gun in London and the muzzle in Berlin. They lengthen the naval rifle barrel from some point hundreds of miles at sea to the capital of the United States or the metropolis of New York.

Gas realizes a figurative gun with a range limited only by that of any given aircraft. Though gas has been an established weapon of warfare since before Chirst, its possibilities can scarcely be imagined.

What may be expected from carbon monoxide, the gas that one finds in the garbage—odorless, tasteless, colorless and extremely poisonous?

Will some morning find an entire army dead without a wound or mark—gone quietly to sleep; an entire service of supply made completely helpless and the non-combatants in a frenzy of broken morale?

Under certain circumstances, gas has a greater effect than high explosive shells. Weight for weight, it is even more effective against personnel than high explosives.

Direct hits are not necessary. Buildings, dugouts, cellars offer no protection. Gas may be used against trenches, headquarters, roads or other lines of communications, artillery positions, shops, munition plants, fortifications, naval craft, coast defenses—it has an unlimited range of possibilities.

a comparatively small amount at the objective. It may not be possible to bring quantities of it to the point of attack by terrestrial means when most needed. And the range of shells is limited. Here enter the airplane and the airship.

A larger amount of gas can be carried a longer distance into enemy territory by aircraft than by gunfire, obviously.

The commercial airplane of to-day, as operated on the airways of Europe—a machine like the United States Army's foreign-designed Fokker, which made some of the non-stop transcontinental and duration and distance world records last year—can carry pilot, fuel and a ton of gas with its container of equal weight 450 or 500 miles to an objective and return, or 900 to 1,000 miles without return. The amount of gas shells which may be carried varies directly with the distance to be flown, for the possible load must be either fuel or gas. A rigid airship, like the Shenandoah, could carry twenty or thirty tons of gas in bombs or containers for longer distance work.

It takes from one to thirty tons of gas in bombs or other containers to make a square mile uninhabitable, according to the kind of gas used. A square mile of lower Manhattan, the business centres of Philadelphia, Boston or Washington reduced to tears, forced to the wearing of masks or evacuation, by one or two airplanes only. A sudden strike, within a few hours of the declaration of war, by the organized air service, reducing an entire city to the harmless but helpless wiping of eyes, blinded to the profitable use of faculties, would probably have a startling effect on morale. That's a humane side of aerial warfare.

We are accustomed to the roar of the airplane's exhaust, but we must not let that argue against the possibility of surprise attacks. The present aircraft engine, airplane or airship, can be muffled with the same perfection with which we muffle that of the automobile. But that is not the end. We are looking to steam and electric drives with mercury vapor power plants to permit these silent, long-range aerial "guns" to reach the objective unheralded.

Against surprise attack by aircraft, whether with high explosives, bombs, or gas, there has not, as yet, been developed an adequate defense, if any defense at all. Forewarned, some defense can be put up by air alone.

Attacks on lines of communication can be made quickly by aircraft with a persistent type of gas, like mustard. Railheads, terminals and concentration camps would be made untenable. Troops entering the territory would suffer casualties, even if the gas penetrated merely the uniform; for the uniforms cannot, as yet, be permanently neutralized against gas. This gas would not be used if friendly troops were to occupy a position or operate on the lines of communication, for its effect lasts a week or so and affects those who follow.

Striking at the lines of communication would be the first duty of the air force of either side. It might be necessary to use friendly troops along the enemy lines of communication the moment opportunity were made. Here enter the non-persistent gases, like phosgene, put down by aircraft in a heavy, lethal concentration where troops are massed. There would be many casualties before gas masks could be [illegible]. The effect would last but a few hours, and entire enemy works might fall into the hands of attacking forces for immediate operation.

In a troop centre the effect of gas would be greater, even, than on lines of communication. The effect of the high explosive is completed in a few seconds. Personnel are killed, craters are made and filled up and the movement goes on. Gas causes casualties, enemy works are unharmed and may either be almost immediately utilized or made untenable for a week or more. The only defense is evacuation.

Combat in the air between airplanes has a new significance. Developments in offense are followed by studies of defense against the new improvement. Chemical warfare service expects the use of gas masks by aviators in combat. Even in 1917 the possibilities of the omission of deleterious gases from airplanes were realized by a Philadelphia manufacturer, and President of the local aero club, Joseph A. Steinmetz, who patented a system for discharging volumes of gas from the rear of a pursued airplane. A Ukrainian war-time resident of the United States asked Uncle Sam to grant a patent on a smoke-screen device to obscure the airplane. And still another had a similar idea.

The pilot of any type of airplane, fighting, observation or bombing, jumped by the enemy, can launch his toxic smoke or gas defense and force his pursuers to don masks or lose him in a cloud of vapor. Where anti-aircraft fire becomes too close for comfort, the ariplane may use a heavy smoke concentration to obscure the plane and escape.

Airplanes have a field of their own in the launching of incendiary bombs for the creation of fires at railheads, storehouses, camps, barracks, munition plants, etc. The possibilities in this direction were developed during the late war. Airplanes may, on occasion, take the place of the destroyer in screening the fleet with smoke, or they may be used to cover movements of army forces along a road. How can a fortified area in the rear, where the defenders are all below ground, be reached safe by airplane or airship? The combination of gas and aircraft for such an operation offers the only and every chance of success.

Many chemical agents may be handled advantageously from the airplane lachrymatory gas, incendiary and screening smoke, toxic smoke, phosgene and mustard gases. Bombs of the slow-burning type may be dropped, giving out smoke while floating on the water. Another type of bomb, using phosphorus, scatters the burning chemical, causes casualties among personnel, and obtains incendiary effects.

In an attack on war vessels, it is probable that burning phosphorus would be borne along by the movement of the vessel. For defense, smoke bombs would be used to produce a cloud above the ship to obscure her from an approaching plane, or the plane might use them to hide its exact location from the ship.

Chemical agents from airplanes may be launched in a number of ways—by bombs of sizes from a few ounces up to two tons, according to the gas used and the effects to be secured; by introducing the gas into the engine exhaust, or by using pressure. The method depends on the situation as well. In bombs there is a small bursting charge, varying in strength.

In use, these chemical agents are carried in liquid or solid form. When released to the atmosphere they become gas. The solid form has an advantage in that the effects are not destroyed by the detonation of the explosive which may be combined with it for securing demolition.

The amount of gas required in airplane distribution to obtain the desired effect varies. Thirty tons of mustard gas to the square mile, delivered by airplane, makes the area uninhabitable immediately. Ten tons to the square mile would make life extremely uncomfortable, would still cause casualties and ultimate evacuation. There would be probably a half hour of grace after release before the gas would begin taking effect. Sprayed, these intensive and harassing effects could be obtained with half the amounts above mentioned, respectively.

Backed by the land and sea forces, the key to national security lies in the air. But this security depends on the maintenance of an industry. England, France and Germany persist in having an aeronautical industry, first for national security, and, secondly, because they find that the increase in passenger and goods traffic indicates an economic demand from business for faster travel.

America needs the airplane for both reasons.

RESTORES FLAVOR.

Boiling expels air from water and purifies it, but also makes it taste flat. Boiled water should be poured back and forth several times from one pitcher to another, or shaken in a large bottle, to restore its flavor.

THREATS OF A CIVIL WAR IS NOW REPORTED

Rival Chinese Leaders Grew To Serious Proportions Early To-day.

NO FIGHTING YET.

Chinese General Has Hired Squadron of British and U. S. Airplanes.

SHANGHAI, August 29 (United Press). — Threats of civil war between the rival Chinese leaders grew to serious proportions to-day.

General Wu Pei Fu, leading one of the factions, announced that he has employed a squadron of airplanes, piloted by American and British aviators, and that the machines will leave Shanghai for the front during the day.

Meantime General Lu, rival War Lord, was doing his utmost to recruit the British and American pilots, and it was generally believed acceptance may prove a decisive factor in the fighting believed to be imminent.

A fourth American warship arrived in the harbour to-day to protect American interests.

There has been no actual fighting between the rival armies up to this morning, but travellers from Quinsan, where the troops are separated only by a narrow line along the railway said that hostilities could not long be stopped.

The actual battle line, it was indicated, will be within 30 miles of Shanghai, and both leaders will make every effort to gain control of the city.

It is not believed the foreign colony is in danger, however, as a number of British and American and Japanese warships are in the harbour.

One thousand Russians, most of them world war veterans, have been enlisted in the Shanghai-Chekiang army.

The foreign and Chinese Chambers of Commerce both have brought all pressure to bear to restore peace, and to-day sent envoys to the rival War Lords, urging them again to attempt to reach an agreement.

American steamers have been warned by the Chinese forts that the outbreak of hostilities is imminent.

Martial law was proclaimed yesterday, and a censorship has been established.

Additional American and British warships have been summoned from Che-foo, as it is considered almost certain there will be fighting in the city.

There are more than 60,000 troops in the Quinsan district, 30 miles out of Shanghai.

The foreign nd Chinese Chambers of Commerce met together for the first time in history yesterday to plan the protection of the city and devise a scheme for the creation of a neutral zone.

Thousands of Chinese already are fleeing into the country.

The fleets of the rival leaders both are steaming toward Shanghai, one from Foo-Chow and one from Nanking.

It is believed there may be a naval engagement during the day.

WILL HEAR PETES' PROTEST TO-MORROW

The protest of the Peterboro Club against Players Kelly and Rickman of Kingston will be heard by the Central Ontario League Sub-Committee at Oshawa to-morrow afternoon.

Bethany and Mackey's have been ordered to play their play-off game at Riverside Park at 2.30 o'clock on Monday.

The winner of to-night's Juvenile final, Curlers or Maple Leafs, will clash with Lindsay in a Juvenile O.B.A.A. fixture on Monday at 4.30 p.m. at the Exhibition Grounds.

If it gets much hotter we are going to sweat instead of perspire.

CANADIANS OUT OF WEMBLEY PAGEANT

Scenes of Dominion Presented For Last Time on Thursday.

LONDON, Aug. 29.— (Canadian Press Cable.)—Canadian scenes of the Empire pageant were presented for the last time last night at Wembley and many visiting Canadians viewed the performance from the royal box.

While some Canadian residents in London took their places regularly throughout the run of the show in depicting the foremost figures in the Dominion's history it is declared that a good few of the others "with one consent began to make excuses" for doubtless excellent reasons. However, as one connected with the enterprise remarked, a Londoner born and bred can look as impressive in 18th century costume as one who is proud to talk of his Empire loyalist descent. He added that the thanks of Canada were due to many hundreds of young citizens of old London who worked so willingly to create a pretty picture when the pages of Dominion history were turned back.

Referring to the statements that the pageant had resulted in a loss of £60,000, William Lunn,, secretary to the overseas trade department, said £100,000 had been expended on the pageant. Part of this money had been furnished through the generosity of Sir Harold Bowden (prominent British manufacturer) and part by the British government. The total receipts, said Mr. Lunn, were far below that figure but it was never expected that the pageant would be a financial success. Its object was not merely to entertain but to educate and inspire the British public especially the youth. The pageant from that point of view was most successful and attracted record crowds despite bad weather.

PETERBORO MAN REPORTED DEAD

Redmond Hogan, Old Resident of This City, Met His Death in Philadelphia.

Redmond Hogan, aged 43 years, a former resident of this city about twelve or fourteen years ago, met his death this morning in Philadelphia, where he was employed at the shipyards as an electrician. He was an electrician by trade, and was employed in the Canadian General Electric Company here before going to Philadelphia.

A message was received this morning by his sister, Mrs. M. Scott, of 552 Harvey Street, stating that he had died suddenly, but as the telegram was sent by the chief coroner of Philadelphia, it is believed that he was electrocuted, as this was the work he was doing when he was last heard from a short time ago.

He was badly burned about fourteen years ago while working on a power plant for a mining company in Cobalt.

The telegram was received this morning about 12 o'clock, and it was a severe shock to his sister who had kept in constant touch with him while he was in Philadelphia.

He was born in this city, and lived here all his life until he went to Philadelphia.

His body will be shipped to this city, and the funeral will be held from the residence of his sister, Mrs. Scott, 552 Harvey Street.

Funeral announcement will be made later.

NATIONS LEAGUE MET EARLY TO-DAY

Most Important Question Is That of the League Assuming Control of Germany.

GENEVA, August 29 (United Press). — The Council of the League of Nations met here to-day for its thirtieth session to smooth the way for important questions to come before the fifth annual assembly of the League itself, which convenes on Monday.

Most important on its programme is the question of the League assuming military control of Germany, Austria, Hungary, and Bulgaria.

While present plans contemplate only the taking over of the moment of control of Austria, Hungary, and Bulgaria, it is understood the basis of which it is done will be the precedent for the eventual military domination of Germany.

The result of the international jurists on the question of admitting the lesser Central European states bordering on these whose armament control is considered, temporary representation of the Council will be presented.

Complete plans for the military supervision of the nations in question have been worked out by the permanent military, naval, and aerial Advisory Commission, and will be submitted to the Council.

It is expected that this commission will be challenged by the League with the execution of the proposed armament control.

JAIL PLOT BARED.

Delivery of Four From Montreal Prison Was Planned.

MONTREAL, August 28. — Liberation from Bordeaux jail, of four of the six bandits who held up the Hochelaga Bank collection car in April last looted it of $142,288, and killed its chauffeur, Henri Cleroux, was the real aim of the plot which was broked up when Giuseppe Serafini was detected making his way out of the prison early on Monday morning.

The ramifications of the plot have been laid bare by the investigation ordered by the provincial government. Reliable information is to the effect that, had the get-away plans succeeded, Louis Morel, Frank Gambino, and Leo Davis would have followed Serafini to freedom from "death row," where they are awaiting execution October 24.

The trio, it is understood, have been confined with Serafini in adjoining cells of one wing of the prison.

GENERALS WIN AT OSHAWA IN FREE-FOR-ALL

Peterborough Crew Get 14 Hits While Oshawa Motors Nick Hardill For 13.

SCORE WAS 12 8.

Hardill Fanned Thirteen Men But Grounds Were Mystery To Vistiors.

A real slugging match took place at Oshawa yesterday when the Canadian General Electric team of this city clashed with the General Motor nine of Oshawa, the former winning by the score of 12 to 8, after eight innings of heavy hitting on the part of both teams and poor fielding on the part of the Oshawa boys.

The game got away to a good start when Herbie Wolfe, first man up in the first inning, drove the ball into deep centre field for a home run. It was a nice hit, but the best part of it was, it was a grounder from the infield that he got his four bases on, the ball never leaving the ground, but fairly burning up the grass in front of it as it skimmed along. McCarney followed with a double and Ross with a single, but the next three batters went out in order before Webster, the speed ball artist.

Everything looked favorable for the Peterboro crew, and they figured on piling up a big score and fattening up their batting averages a little, but when Hall, the first man up for Oshawa in the first, drove the ball into deep centre for a home run, the Generals came to themselves and got down to business.

The C.G.E. came back full of life in the second and walloped Webster for a home run, Rose doing the trick, a double, a single and five runs, making the score 6 to 1. Oshawa fans gave up hope now and started razzing their players, but when they came to bat in the second and went out in order the fans went wild and called for a whole new team for Oshawa. The Generals went scoreless in the third and fourth, while the Motors collected two in the third and two in the fourth, making the game much closer, at 6 to 5. The Generals were not to be monkeyed with, so they went in and laid the wood to Webster, getting two runs in each of the next three innings and seven hits and two errors. The fans once more cut loose on Manager Hipwell's boys but when they scored two runs in the seventh, making the score a little closer, the faithful rooters thought that their team might have a chance to come through with a victory so they turned their foghorns in favor of their home talent. Oshawa scored one in the eighth inning, after which the game was called on account of darkness.

Jeff Hardill did the gunning for the Peterborough crew, and although he was nicked for thirteen hits he pitched a nice game. He had lots of stuff on the ball, and fairly good control, only passing one man while his opponent Webster issued six walks. Hardill fanned thirteen batsmen in the eight innings.

Webster, who did the twirling for the Oshawa team, struck the same kind of luck as Hardill. Hits that would have been fielded on any other diamond and turned into put outs, went for doubles, triples, and home runs in vesterday's fixture.

Webster is a big boy, and has speed to burn — well as a great array of curves. He was a trifle wild, passing six batsmen and hitting one while he fanned seven of the Electrics.

Herbie Wolfe led the C.G.E. at bat when he got a home run, a double, and a single in four times up. Ross got three singles in four times up, and Rose had a home run and a single.

Dugan turned in a nice game at first, while Scotty McPherson was the outstanding fielder on the C.G.E. roster.

Cretney, the Motors' right fielder, touched Hardill for three hits, a double, and two singles. Webster, Hall and C. Bennett also got two hits apiece.

ANOTHER YOUTH IN TENNIS FAME

HUNTER DEFEATED

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Aug. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Another young tennis star rose to heroic heights of international triumph Thursday when John Hennessey, of Indianapolis, accomplished the downfall of Jean Borota, champion of Europe and captain of the French Davis Cup forces, in a spectacular battle featuring the third day of the national singles championship.

Hennessey not only scored the most startling upset yet recorded in a tournament already marked by astonishing number of reversals among favorites, but eliminated his famous opponent, winner of this year's Wimbledon championship, in decisive fashion. The 19-year-old schoolboy played a dashing aggressive game, withstood the most fiery net attacks of Borotra and conquered the Frenchman in four sets, 8-6, 7-5, 3-6 6-2.

Third Round Climax.

Hennessey's brilliant victory, scored in the third round of the tourney, was the climax of another day of setbacks for foreign stars. At the end of the day's play, nine United States and four invaders remained in the running for the title held by William T. Tilden of Philadelphia. Of these thirteen, three had reached the fifth round, the bracket before the semi-finals, while ten others, including Jack Wright, of Montreal, were in the fourth round.

Tilden, who advanced to the fourth round by overwhelming Lucien Williams of Chicago, former intercollegiate champion, with the loss of only three games, headed the ranks of surviving United States players which also included William M. (Little Bill) Johnston, Tilden's Davis Cup partner, and Vincent Richards, young Olympic champion.

Hunter's Defeat.

An upset second only in importance to the defeat of Borotra, came in the last match of the day when Wallace Johnson, veteran Philadelphia chop-stroke artist, vanquished Francis T. Hunter, of Beckley, W. Va., fifth on the national ranking list, in a five-set struggle.

Johnston, out-steadying Hunter at critical junctures and blocking a fast desperate rally by his hard-driving opponent won by scores of 6-8, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4. The elimination of Japan's two remaining stars, M. Fukuda and S. Okamoto, was not so much of an upset as was the decisiveness with which they met defeat. Dean Mathey, veteran New Yorker, disposed of Fukuda at 6-4, 6-0, 6-1, while Elmer Griffin, of San Francisco, another "dark horse" put out Okamoto, 6-2, 6-3, 6-4.

DEMPSEY IS ON WAY EAST.

World's Champion Leaves Coast to See Firpo Meet Wills.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 29.—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight film hero, who recently turned his nose over to plastic surgeons for remodeling after successfully defending it from being reshaped by his opponents in the ring, left Tuesday for New York to see the Wills-Firpo fight. He plans to stop over at Salt Lake for a short visit with relatives, he said.

Before boarding the train the world's champion boxer modestly exhibited his new nose, to the friends who came to see him off, and had the satisfaction of hearing them cheer it to the echo.

ELEVEN VETS STILL SPARKLING ON SLAB

In Big Leagues Back in 1912 When Joe Wood Starred

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Twelve years ago Joe Wood, then with the Boston Red Sox, was turning in 16 straight victories for an American League record; 12 years ago this same Joe Wood set a modern record that still stands, by winning 34 games and losing but five; 12 years ago, Fred Snodgrass made his famous muff of a fly ball in center field in the world series between the Giants and Red Sox, the error robbing Christy Mathewson of a well-earned victory and the Giants of a championship.

And 12 years ago 11 pitchers, who are still in the big leagues, were hurling to major batters, namely, Walter Johnson and George Mogridge, Washington; Shawkey, Pennock and Bush, Yankees; George Dauss, Detroit; Marquard, Braves; Alexander, Cubs; Cooper, Pittsburg and Rixey and Benton of Cincinnati.

As noted, six of these veterans are in the American League with Johnson ranking as the dean of them all. Walter came to the Nationals in 1907, or five years before Joe Wood and the Red Sox were making baseball history. The other five all arrived in the immediate vicinity of 1912.

In the Natonal circuit Marquard holds the long service medal. The southpaw joined the Giants in 1908, at that time being called the "$11,000-beauty," which was the amount paid Indianapolis for the player, a record price in those days. Next in line come Alexander and Benton with 13 seasons to their credit, followed by Cooper and Rixey with 12.

Down through the years these 11 hurlers have been taking their turns on the mound season after season. They have seen many stars come and go; they have seen many a promising recruit flivver a "bust" in the big show.

But they still go pitching on. A dozen campaigns in the majors is quite a stretch for a gunner. And some of them have been up even longer than that.

DELORO BALL GAME.

Roseneath Had Short End of a 16 To 0 Score.

MARMORA, Aug. 29. — Deloro played Roseneath on Wednesday, August 27, in the return game of the O.B.A.A. semi-finals. Both halves of the first innings were scoreless, but from that time onward, the superiority of the home team asserted itself. F. Leal pitched with his customary ability, and J. Quinn, as catcher, was right on his job. The fifth and eight innings saw some forcible hitting by the home team. Dunnett, who pitched for Roseneath, pitched good ball, but support was lacking. Thackeray held runners to bases very well with good throwing. Of the homesters, F. Leal and A. Quinn had a busy afternoon fielding their positions. At the conclusion of the game, the victors were photographed by Mr. W. Colster.

QUARTZ USED FOR WATCH LEVERS.

EPINARD RACES ON LABOR DAY

First of International Series of Three Races for $100,000 Monday.

AT BELMONT PARK

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Epinard is safely housed at Belmont Park once more, after a period of five week's training at Saratoga Springs in preparation for the first of the international series of three races for $100,000, which will be decided at Belmont Park next Monday over a distance of six furlongs.

The French champion left Saratoga Springs in company with the horses of the Rancocas, Greentree and Cochran Stables on a special train and reached his quarters in the Jeffords barn at 12.30 yesterday. Epinard stood the journey well, and five minutes after refreshing himself with a roll in the deep bed of rye straw he was ready for a frolic with all who cared to fraternize with him. He is a splendid traveller and was as placid as a mill pond in contrast with some of his fellow voyagers, who were tucked up by the trip and showed nervousness as they were led away to their boxes.

If the interest that is being displayed in the first of the series is any guide to the attendance that may be expected on Monday next, all records for the course will be surpassed. Scheduling the race for Labor Day gives thousands that would otherwise be deprived of the pleasure an opportunity to see a contest that is attracting the attention of racing folk on two continents.

Only Few Reserved.

The selection of Labor Day, which already had a brilliant programme, was deliberate on the part of the Westchester management, the idea being that every individual with a love for the turf should have a chance to see a race of such importance. The same thought prevailed in regard to the prices of admission which are to be the same as usual with a flat charge of $3.85 for men and women with the customary increase for inclosure. The only reserved seats are 753 chairs in Sections 3 and 4 of the enclosure. These will cost $2 each. It will be a case of first come first served, with the balance of the stand, which has seating accomodations for 17,000 persons.

The charge for the infield will be $1.50, the same as on the occasion of the Zev-Papyrus international race on October 20th last.

WASHINGTON AND NEW YORK IN BIG SERIES

Washington and New York opened a three-game series and Washington grabbed off the first game by a sensational rally in the eighth inning which netted them eight runs after two were out. This series is the most important in the American League and will have a big effect on the race for the pennant. Washington will likely hold their ace, Walter Johnson till Saturday's game. The Big Swift is going good right now, having just pitched a no-hit, no-run game against St. Louis. He should turn New York back Saturday, although Johnson never had much luck against the Yanks and they usually hit his offerings freely. However, the fans all have their eyes on this series and pulling for Washington to take three games.

KEENE BASEBALL TEAM WON TROPHY

Presented With Silver Cup By Hon. Duncan Marshall at Community Picnic.

In his whimsically attractive way, Hon. Duncan Marshall last night said he was glad that the country girls and boys had come to Peterboro to carry off the honors of the softball and baseball tournaments. To his lot fell the honor of distributing the prizes to the triumphant Sixth Line girls and the speedy baseball aggregation from Keene.

"It is a gratifying thing that all the girls and boys who were victorious in these tournaments were born and raised on farms," he said. "It is quite appropriate that one who has spent all his life in farming and in breeding livestock, as I have, should have the honor of presenting these cups. The girls had no difficulty in walking away with the Peterboro team, who had the misfortune to be born in a city. The winning girls had the good fortune to be born in the country."

Digressing to elaborate on the advantages of farm life, the speaker said the great thing about Canada is the extent of land available for agriculture and the large percentage of the population that lives on the land. "The greatest of the Dominion depends on agriculture," he declared, "and city people are beginning to realize that the success of industry depends upon the success of agriculture." He expressed the hope that these boys and girls, winners of the prizes, would not forsake the soil, but would follow the most highly scientific business in the world—farming.

The winners of the softball tournament, each of whom received a miniature cup, were: Annie Reid, Lillian Chapman, Ethel Reynolds, Louise Donaldson, Jean Wood, Eileen Donaldson, Jean Donaldson, Dorothy Chapman, Mary Hall and Lila Hall.

Pole Vaulting.

Jack Sturgeon was the sensation of the pole vault when he won his own class without competition by clearing the bar in a neat vault of seven feet one inch. Young Sturgeon is only 13, and gave a remarkable exhibition of form and execution.

Not satisfied with his success in the "under 14" class, the youngster entered the "under 18" class, and reached the final before being ousted by Allan Gray, who cleared seven feet five inches. As the bar was moved up to seven feet, then seven feet one inch, then seven feet three inches, and the tiny competitor kept in the running with beautiful vaults, the spectators applauded again and again. He faced the seven foot five mark as smilingly as he had the lowest try, but on his third attempt, when he cleared nicely, his hand struck the bar as he released his pole, and he was disqualified. His brother Robert took second place, and Jack succeeded in winning third prize in a competition with boys five years his senior. Others entered in the competition and disqualified in the order in which they appeared were Lloyd Pugh and Jack Hope. It is believed that young Sturgeon, with his vault of seven feet three inches, set a record for Ontario for boys of his age.

ORLAND STILL ON BALL STAGE

Defeated Brighton in League Fixture—Good Pitching.

BRIGHTON, Aug. 28. — With Archie Zufelt holding the local team to three scattered scratchy hits, Orland won here yesterday, 8 to 7. The southpaw had a world of stuff and although a trifle wild, he had the Brighton sluggers badly baffled, striking out twelve. The six bases on balls and Orland's errors were what enabled Brighton to make the score so close. In fact they only earned one run. Errors presented Orland with three of their eight counters, so that the correct score should have been 5-1 in earned runs. Shannon pitched an average game for Brighton and showed lots of courage in the face of uncertain support.

Mike Dawson led the batters with three singles. Mulhall had the best hit of the game, a beautiful triple to right. He also had a single, and Way had two of them. Thee other extra base hit was a double by Archer, who made second by fast sprinting when Belford misjudged his line drive, running in under it.

The rival third basemen, Samis and Scriver, played their positions brilliantly. Mulhall was good on second. Everett Watt made a fine throw from centre field to the plate and got a runner sliding in. Archer made the nicest play of the game in the fifth. Wilson was on third and Moran on first when the latter started for second. Archer faked a throw to Solomon and lined it down to Scriver, catching Wilson six feet off the bag. McKee picked Dawson off first with a snap throw in the first innings. Box score:

PREFERENCE DEBATE.

Abolition of British Preference Discussed in Australian Senate.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Aug. 29 — (Canadian Press Cable, via Reuter's).—The Senate yesterday debated a motion introduced by the Nationalist, Duncan, calling for the abolition of the British preference as a reprisal for Britain's failure to ratify the recently suggested preferences in favor of the Dominions, although she had entered trade agreements with foreign countries.

Senator Wilson, who recently visited Great Britain, asked Duncan to withdraw his motion, because "Britain is becoming more educated to the advantages of preference." Duncan protested vigorously and declared it was unfair for Britain to give a preference to Russia and not to Australia. He, however, withdrew his motion.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

The general accepted belief in baseball that pitchers cannot hit is being soundly disproved.

The modern day pitchers are helping their game by being able to insert a timely bingle here and there.

As a matter of fact there never was a logical reason for the belief that pitchers could not hit.

A glance over the batting averages of the major leagues shows any number of pitchers with a rating of .300 or better.

Several American League managers often use one of their star pitchers in the role of pinch hitter. This gives some idea as to the real batting ability of certain ptchers.

The great Walter Johnson pitcher extraordinary, is also a most dangerous batsman. Johnson has always insisted there was no good reason why a pitcher shouldn't be able to hit as well as any other player. He offers his work at the bat as proof of such a belief.

Joe Bush of New York is a consistently good hitter. Fred Heimach of Philadelphia often gets the pinch call from Connie Mack. Joe Shaute and George Uhle of Cleveland are much feared by opposing pitchers Wingard, the sensational rookie of the St. Louis Browns, takes a healthy cut at the ball. Cooper of Pittsburg, Sheehan of Cincinnati and Yde of Pittsburgh take a mean cut at the ball.

Many of the oldtime pitchers labored under the belief that the pitcher was doing his bit if he twirled effectively, even though he never made a base hit.

As a result, a great many pitchers never took the batting end of the games seriously and thus were greatly handicapped in this respect.

No doubt the lively ball and the deeds of Babe Ruth inspired many pitchers to greater batting feats.

The last five or six years in baseball have been featured by slugging. Taking a healthy swing has been the keynote of batting success. The pitchers joined in the movement and have profited thereby.

The pitcher who can hit, incidentally field, adds much to the strength of his club, likewise his chances of victory. Realizing this, a majorty of twirlers are taking their batting seriously.

Most pitchers now indulge in batting practice with as much zest as the champion batsman. Once upon a time they merely swung at the ball in a haphazard manner; often took little or no batting practice prior to the game.

Those days are over. Many pitchers are as fussy about their batting average as games won.

Ability to hit is largely a matter of confidence plus a certain amount of anatural ability.

For years pitchers stepped to the plate with but one thought, getting out as quickly as possible. Now things are different.

In these days, if you miss a strike on a pitcehr while he is at bat, or call him out on a doubtful third one, he can be as critical as the star batter.

OSHAWA HERE TO MEET LAKEVIEWS

Junior Fixture Takes Place at Riverside Park To-morrow Afternoon.

Oshawa Juniors must win tomorrow to stay in the running for the Ontario championship which the Lakeviews expect to bring to the city of Peterboro, as they did with practically the same team last year. The Oshawa boys will give everything they have to try and come through with a victory, so they can have another crack at the Peterboro Juniors, but Lou LeBarr's boys will be out there to stop Oshawa from winning, and they expect to win the right to meet the Circle Six team of Kingston tomorrow afternoon. A win for the Lakeviews to-morrow will hand them the verdict over St. George's of Oshawa and also give them the right to meet the Circle Six team, which they put out of the running last year, and expect to do the same again this season.

Oshawa has a very smart team, and with young Claus pitching they will make the young Petes go the limit to come through with a win, as he is a pitcher of no small means. He is but a kid, but has the makings of a fine twirler. Whitehouse will do the twirling for the Lakeviews to-morrow, and the game is called at 3 o'clock sharp at Riverside Park.

SOCCER NOTES.

No soccer games are scheduled for the week-end and the holiday. Nearly all the players are going on a vacation.

The G.W.V.A. will not travel to Ottawa to play in the First Round of the Ontario Cup. When arrangements were being made by the local team ,their opponents would not guarantee any expenses therefore, the Peterboro boys had no alternative but to default the game. Ottawa now meet Oshawa in second round in the Capital.

A great number of soccer fans were disappointed by the Vets not turning up last evening to play aginst the chosen Plenty Cup team.

Dawson, the local Thistle centre half was selected as a player in the Ontario All Star team, but he did not give his personal sanction to go to Toronto which resulted in another being chosen. At any rate, the local Ontario representative, Mr. Fred Sutcliffe, expects official communication this evening because the local player had agreed to play and may take part in the game against the Corinthians who are touring Canada.

The Ontario Football Association meet in Toronto on Saturday. Mr. Sutcliffe, the local council member, is going to attend and expects that Plenty Cup draw will be completed.

P. and D.F.A. meet in Chamber of Commerce Rooms on Tuesday evening next.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Boiler In New High School Springs a Leak—To Keep Bridge Open.

CAMPBELLFORD, August 29.—At the August meeting of the Board of Education last night, Secretary Wesley Stephens was authorised to insure the boilers in the new High School for $25,000. This will provide in case of an explosion ,for damages to the boilers or building or for the loss of life up to that amount. The boilers will be inspected by the insurance company at regular intervals every year at no expense to the Board the company doing this work for their own protection. They will also instruct the engineer in his duties so far as the care of the boilers are concerned.

The schools in Peterborough, Cobourg, Colborne, and other places in the district are insured on the same basis, the annual premium paid being little more than the cost of the Government inspection that would be necessary if there was no insurance carried.

A Boiler Leaking.

One of the new boilers in the High School has already sprung a leak, and as they were accepted with a year's guarantee Architect Brown will be notified by Secretary Stephens to make the necessary repairs. The attention of Architect Coons will also be called to the matter.

To Drill Well.

A well will be drilled to secure a supply of drinking water for the High School, the pipes and fountains required for distribution throughout the building being already installed. As the drilling must be done through rock ,the estimated cost is $3.25 per foot.

Public School Changes.

The seats in Principal Haig's room in the Public School have been rearranged so that the light falls over the left shoulders of the pupils instead of coming from windows directly behind them. This change was made on the recommendation of P.S. Inspector Boyes.

To Keep Bridge Open.

Secretary Stephens will, by authority of a resolution introduced by Trustees Stephens and Jeffs, write the Bridge Committee of the County Council, asking that, if possible, the bridge here be kept open for foot passengers while the work of repairing it is in progress. This request is preferred for the benefit of the school children on the west side who will require some means of crossing the river when school begins next week.

The passing of the usual budget of accounts brought a short session to a close.

Attended Peterboro Meeting.

D. J. Lynch, J. A. Burke, George E. Morrison, H. C. Coveney, Matt. Mulhearn and Sam. Covert went to Peterboro to attend the Premier King meeting. Of the six, all were seasoned Liberals, with one exception, and the latter's political faith was supposed to be waning for some time. On the way home he informed his companions that his conversion was complete, the eloquence of the speakers clearing his mind of the last shadow of doubt.

SAVINKOFF WILL SUPPORT SOVIET

Stay of Execution Has Been Ordered To Allow An Appeal For Pardon.

MOSCOW, August 29. — General Boris Savinkoff, the anti-Bolshevik leader, former military governor of Petrograd, and assistant Minister of War, in the Kerensky government, was sentenced to death yesterday. He was arrested last week on his arrival in Moscow from Paris. He had long been a fugitive from the Soviet authorities.

A stay of execution has been ordered to allow an appeal to the executive committee for pardon, as Savinkoff acknowledged his guilt, and expressed a desire to support the Soviet government.

Savinkoff, himself a revolutionary, organized the assassination of Prime Minister Plehve, and Grand Duke Sergius, which gave the first signal for the Russian revolution.

"I know your decision beforehand" he said to the court. "I don't value my life, and am not afraid to die. I recognize all my guilts, but they were involuntary, and I never sought anything for myself."

It is generally believed that the death sentence will not be carried out.

STYLES GRACEFUL.

Simplicity Common To Those of the Thirteenth Century.

EDINBURGH, Scot., Aug. 29. — The feminine fashions of to-day are going back to the graceful styles of the Thirteenth century, "the best dressed age of the world," says Prof. W. Hughes Jones, the Edinburgh University historian.

Expounding before an audience his theory on the abilities of the fashion designers of an earlier age, Prof. Jones asserted that styles worn to-day were neither outrageous nor startling, as commonly alleged, but that there was instead grace of form and simlicity common to the fashionable thirteenth century.

BOY CRUSHED TO DEATH.

MIX AND TONY DEFY DEATH IN WESTERN STAR'S NEW FILM

Versatile star of Fox pictures has new and thrilling role in "The Trouble Shooter," with support of clever cast and the personal close attendance of his wonder horse.

Admirers of "Tony," famous Tom Mix cow pony, will be delighted with the animal's cleverness and new adroitness in "The Trouble Shooter," which opened last night at the Capitol theatre.

Perhaps the most daring run which Tony has ever made with Tom astride his back is in the present picture wherein the famous pony travels at break-neckspeed over a high railway bridge, which spans a deep chasm, in the gorges of Yosemite Valley, California. The runway over which Tony carries his master is but a foot-wide plank between the rails Immediately behind the horse and rider thunders a big locomotive and heavy train. Tony wins by less than a couple of seconds. The distance covered is approximately half a mile. A slip would throw horse anod rider over the unguarded edge of the bridge to the gorge below, a sheer drop of five hundred feet.

"That may be an easy way to earn money, and I understand Tom Mix gets a salary of $10,000 a week," commented the engineer of the big locomotive which followed horse and rider over a bridge, "but I wouldn't ride a horse over that even on a walk for all the Southern Pacific Railway."

With Mix in the cast are Kathleen Key, Earl Fox, J. Gunnis Davis Howard Truesdale, Frank Currier, Mike Donlin, one time big league ball player Dolores Rousse, Charles McHugh, and Al Freemont. The picture was directed by John Conway and Mix unquestionably does the best work of his career, although the role is entirely new to him. He portrays a western "trouble shooter" in the employ of a power company which has strung wires through the snow-capped peaks of the Sierra Nevada mountains.

There is a thrill a minute and the story by Frederick and Fanny Hatton is one of the finest they have done for William Fox, which is to say the finest of their collaboration.

Jack Dempsey, in "A Society Knockout". The second of the "Fight and Win," series provides both laughs and thrills. This series, one of the best seen for sometime, resembles the "Leatherpushers".

AT THE ROYAL.

"THE MAN FROM WYOMING" A STRONG HOXIE PICTURE

A bitter hatred that extends back through the years of the settling of the West from the first moment that large bands of sheep began straying across the range previously known only to buffalo and cattle, is woven into the Universal picture starring Jack Hoxie, which opened last night at the Royal theatre, titled "The Man from Wyoming."

It is the story of the feuds of the cattlemen and sheep men, feuds which have echoed across the western plains with the same dull menace which characterizes the feuds of Kentucky mountaineers. The story doesn't generalize, however, but takes a specific instance of a sheep man who deliberately tries to steal a cattleman's range and presents pictorially the trouble which the incident aroused.

The sympathy has been fairly evenly divided between the sheep and the cattle, although a lonely sheepherder, who is tied by circumstance to a job he detests bears the blunt of the grief —and the honey of the afterglow, when the feud is ended. He wins the heart and hand of the girl who has been his natural enemy, the proprietoress of the cattle ranch.

The picture is a version of William MacLeod Raine's popular novel "Wyoming,' and is a graphic presentation of action aroused by the bitterness among cattlemen of the western country at the invasion of the open range by the sheepmen, whose "woolies" ate the grass to the roots.

Hoxie does capable work in the role of sheepman and there is plenty of fast action to suit the audience Lillian Rich is pretty and capable as the little owner of the big cattle ranch and Claude Payton makes one hate him as the owner of the sheep which Hoxie herds. As a land-shark he tries every means of winning the girl and acquiring her ranch. The rest of the cast is entirely adequate Photographically the picture is beautiful.

MANY BEAUTIFUL GOWNS IN "FOR SALE"

In "For Sale," First National picture, which comes Monday to the Royal Theatre, Claire Windsor appears as a daughter of the Four Hundred which requires an extravagant display of gowns and finery. MISS PICKFORD WINS ROTARIAN APPLAUSE

Five Thousand Cheer Her as She Greets Them in the Costume of "Tess."

On the occasion of the thirteenth international convention of Rotarians held at Los Angeles, the Pickford-Fairbanks studios were thrown open to them and as a consequence thousands of the members of this great organization swarmed to this favored spot of Filmland. Mary Pickford was in the midst of the task of re-filming "Tess of the Storm Country," her great triumph of eight years ago and which is now playing at the Regent Theatre, Friday and Saturday, under a United Artists release. Due to the necessity of sticking close to her work on the enclosed stage, Miss Pickford intended to leave most of the entertaining of the guests to her husband, Douglas Fairbanks. She had a good reason for this—she was living the life of Tess, the waif of a lowly fishermen's villaga and not only was she attired in rags, but her ankles and feet were bare. Modesty forbade her parading before strangers in such a make-up.

However, when something like five thousand visitors had succeeded in getting inside the grounds there was started a very decided clamor for Miss Pickford. This clamor soon developed into a collective demand, good-natured, but none the less insistent, and when it became apparent there would be no let-up in it, Mr. Fairbanks ordered a recess in his own work and disappeared.

Upon confronting Miss Pickford on her "set" and enlightening her as to the state of affairs precipitated by the numerous Rotarians, she demurred. He laughingly insisted that she accompany him for at least one "bow." She begged for enough time to change costume, but he dissuaded her from this idea with a lot of fast talking.

Thus it came to pass that in less than five minutes he had "America's Sweetheart," rigged out as the humble Tess, in the presence of the guests, and, leading her by the hand escorted her the full length of the "set" between two dense lines of cheering humanity.

NAMELESS SHIP CARRIES BOOZE

Reporter Boarded Craft With Large Cargo For the United States.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., August 29.—Futher revelations of rum running on a large scale along the shores of Lake Ontario were contained to-day in a copyrighted story printed by the Rochester Journal and Post Express.

According to the story the reporter for the newspaper boarded a large liquor running craft last night between Pullneyville and Sodus Bay, and witnessed the activities of the smaller rum craft that came out for their cargoes.

From the captain, says the story, the reporter learned that he pays nightly visits to the New York shore from Canada, always landing a full cargo of ale and whiskey.

The reporter declares that the boat was equipped with a large search-light, and had engines capable of making 30 knots an hour. It had no name.

SIDELIGHTS ON PREMIER'S VISIT

Premier King had a swim in the Otonabee River through the medium of the bathtub. This was about the only relaxation the Premier had during the course of a busy day.

The Premier, accompanied by the Hon. George P. Graham, called on Mr. Richard Hall, Sr., while in the city yesterday. Mr. Hall is an old friend of Mr. Graham.

George Young, 569 Park Street, claimed to be the oldest man on the grounds yesterday afternoon. He was introduced to Premier King by his nephew, W. Ira Goodfellow, and presented with a five-dollar gold piece by Mr. G. N. Gordon. Mr. Young was 94 years of age last May.

The Premier was impressed with the decorations in the Cressman department store windows, and requested that a photograph be taken.

Liberals made a good impression with Magistrate Langley. "No drunks or disorderlies to-day," said His Worship, as if surprised that the aftermaths of the great demonstration did not pack the Police Court with celebrities.

Only one accident was recorded yesterday, and that a very slight one. About 6.50 p.m. Alfred Fielder, after coming west on Simcoe Street, struck a car driven by Dr. E. A. Hammond as he tried to turn south on George Street. The two big parades went off without a hitch. The lone accident occurred about twenty minutes before the evening parade.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, ex-M.P., was tendered a hearty ovation as he shook hands with Premier King in front of the speakers' stand yesterday afternoon.

The Premier observed in his afternoon speech that there was in Peterborough a growing interest in politics and the principles of Government.

Witnessing the warm greeting received by little Isabel Duffus, some of the grown-up young ladies wished they could have acted in the capacity of flower girl to Canada's bachelor Premier.

Mapor urner grasped the opportunity Mayor Turner grasped the opportunity to appraise the Prime Minister of the city's need for a new post office.

Strictly informal, plug hats and evening dress were absent yesterday. Even Alderman Joseph Crowe, chairman of the Legal and Reception Committee, failed to wear his topper.

During the afternoon the Premier and his party were driven out to the floating bridge at Chemong, where members of the County Council and others emphasised the need for a Government grant towards the reconstruction of the bridge.

Senator McHugh of Lindsay, was among those on the speakers' stand. The principles and conduct of the Upper House were flayed yesterday, but each of the speakers announced that Senator McHugh was among the white sheep, before launching their onslaught on the Upper Chamber.

Hon. George P. Graham recalled the most enthusiastic political meeting he ever attended. It took place in Victoria County away back in the nineties. Senator McHugh did the speaking, I held the lantern and the five around the stove constituted the audience."

President J. J. Hartley the dean of Liberalism in Peterborough, again welcomed a Liberal Premier.

Honourable George P. Graham declared that Mr. Gordon carries weight wherever he goes.

WEDDING BELLS

LAVIS—LANE

A very pretty house wedding took place at half-past three o'clock yesterday afternoon, at 226 Brock street the residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Lane, when their only daughter, Ada Marion, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Donald Oliver Lavis, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Lavis of Oshawa. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. J. Langford, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, in the presence of the immediate relatives and friends of the contracting parties including a group of the young men members of the bride's Sunday School class, who were also members of the Tuxis Square group conducted by the bride groom. The officers of the C.G.I.T. group headed by the bride were also present.

The bride was escorted by her father to the drawing-room, where the ceremony was performed under an arch of woodland blossoms. The same wild flowers with quantities of cosmos and asters decorated the rooms.

The bride wore a gown of old rose velvet, with silver ornaments and large white leghorn hat, and carried a bouquet of asters.

The wedding march was played by Miss Pearl Rehill and Miss Alma Blanchard sang very sweetly "O Promise Me".

Following the ceremony, a buffet wedding breakfast was served to the assembled guests. The bride's table was effectively decorated in a color scheme of rose and white, with cosmos and asters and smilax, a large basket of white hydrangea being suspended above.

Mr. and Mrs. Lavis left on the 5.30 C.N.R. train for a honeymoon in Muskoka. Later, they will reside in New Toronto. The bride's travelling costume was a handsome outfit of dark brown canton crepe with cape, sleeves and sash lined with burnt orange crepe. The dress was strikingly decorated with a painted design of a bird of paradise, and the bride carried a blue beaded mesh bag, the gift of her aunt, Mrs. W. R. Alcombrack of Long Branch, California. A brown velvet hat complete the going-away costume.

Mr. and Mrs. Lavis received a number of very pretty gifts from a large circle of friends, also several substantial cheques.

Among the out-of-town guests present at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Lavis and Mr. and Mrs. Allan Lavis of Oshawa, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Peters anad Miss Ada Langdon of Port Hope, Mr. J. Manning and Miss Alberta Manning of Toronto, and Mrs. H. K. Wilson and Master Herman Wilson of Janetville.

A telegram of congratulation to the bride and bridegroom was received from the former's uncle, Mr. John T. Lane of San Francisco.

TORONTO, Aug. 29.— (Canadian Press.) — Audrey Taylor, a young Toronto girl, is dead as a result of eating poisonous fungi in mistake for mushrooms last Sunday. Four other members of the family who ate the fungi are seriously ill, but their recovery is expected. After the meal was finished Mr. Taylor, her father, remarked that the mushrooms had a bitter taste. He laughingly predicted they would all be ill on Monday.

THE DAWES-YOUNG DEBATE RESUMED

A Vote Will Not Be Made Until This Afternoon, It Is Expected.

BERLIN, Aug. 29. — (United Press).—The debate on the Dawes-Young reparations laws was resumed as the Reichstag reconvened this morning, but it did not appear a vote could be made before this afternoon.

Prospects of a Government victory appeared brighter, however, and it was believed that Chancellor Marx and Foreign Minister Stresemann may be able to get the two-thirds majority necessary to obtain Parliamentary support of their programme in signing the London agreement.

Both the Chancellor and the Foreign Minister were in conference with lieutenants before this morning's session, hearing reports on overnight negotiations with the Nationalists, who seem to be wavering in their heretofore implacible opposition. Dissolution of the Reichstag, decided on by the Government in event the Nationalists insist in their obstructionary tactics, now appears much less probable.

Efforts Are Being Made To Have Wales Stop at Baltimore.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—(Canadian Press).—The popularity of the Prince of Wales is illustrated by the great interest being taken in his visit in towns on the route from Long Island to Washington. Efforts are being made to have him stop at Baltimore to receive a welcome.

Secretary of State Hughes will meet the Prince at the station. Under official etiquette, the President receives callers, no matter how high their rank, in the White House.

VOL. LV., No. 51 PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, AUGUST 30, 1924 PRICE THREE CENTS

DRAMATIC PLEA FOR HELP STIRS PUBLIC NOTICE

Woman Refused To Send Husband's Clothes To the Hospital For Home-Coming.

FORTITUDE ENDS.

Husband Hurt in 1920—Unable To Work—Compensation Needed.

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 30.—As a protest against what she considers unjust treatment at the hands of the Workmen's Compensation Board, under the regime of the late Farmer-Labor Government in Ontario, Mrs. John Renshaw, of 139 Wellington street, refused to accept her husband from Victoria Hospital, whose arm, broken in a fall from his bedroom window on the night of August 21, has now passed through the primary stages of healing.

While she refused to send her husband's clothes to Victoria Hospital when demanded by officials of that institution, he was sent to his home in a taxi-cab, ,wrapped in blankets. She coupled that dramatic form of protest with an appeal to Mayor Wenige, who promises to use his influence towards re-opening her case.

"I want my husband home," she said yesterday, "but I also want justice, if such remains on the earth for a woman, myself, who for four long years has had to support an invalid husband following injuries received at the building of Westminster Hospital in April, 1920.

"He fell while at work there and ever since then he has had what the doctors call epileptic seizures. It was during one, just a week ago, that he fell from his bedroom window and miraculously escaped any further injury than a broken arm.

"The compensation board awarded my husband $550 for his injuries, but he has not been able to earn $20 in the past four years."

Victoria hospital officials, who discharged Mr. Henshaw from the city's free ward, did so on the advice of staff physicians and in line with the usual custom in such cases. The broken arm, they found on examination, had healed sufficiently to permit his being cared for at home.

TRIAL OF FRANKS' SLAYERS WAS SPEEDY JUDGE SAYS IN DEFENSE OF HIS COURT

Refers To Criticisms In Final Scene—Hearing of Mitigation Evidence Was Mandatory—Cranks Threaten Cavverly.

CHICAGO, August 30. — Judge Caverly's statement from the bench, at the close of the trial of Leopold and Loeb, slayers of young Robert Franks, fixing the date for the sentence, was in part:

"There has been a great deal of criticism about the conduct of this case; some of it from well-meaning people who knew no better; others from those who know better.

"We have been criticised about delays in justice. This court has been criticized because after a plea of guilty, he permitted evidence to be heard, and we have been criticized because of the length of time it takes for an execution after the court passes judgment.

"Permit me to say with reference to the delays of justice, that this trial is one of the speediest trials of a criminal case ever heard in Cook County in which the State asks the death penalty.

"And this could not have been done had it not been for the able manner in which the State's attorney of this county prepared the case and was ready to go to trial when called.

"The defense is to be commended because it made no attempt to delay the trial.

"The murder was committed on May 21, exactly two months before the trial started. The defendants were arrested on May 31, ten days after the murder, indicted within a short time thereafter, and within six weeks of the day of the indictment this case was on trial.

"So that it cannot be truthfully said that their wealth or property had anything to do with the delay in this case, because there was no delay. There were thirty-four murder indictments returned for murders committed in 1924, between January 1st and May 21st, that have not yet been tried; and twenty of them are held without bail in the County Jail of Cook County.

"To those who criticize the Court for listening to testimony, after the defendants pleaded guilty, permit me to call their attention to a section of the statute and to the ruling of the Supreme Court thereon. The Supreme Court has said:

PASSENGERS AND FURNITURE OF "ARABIC" TOSSED ABOUT IN TONS OF WATER THAT FLOODED CABINS

White Star Liner Listed Forty Degrees Under Blow of Giant Waves.

SCORES INJURED AND SHIP NEARLY UPSET

AN EPIC OF THE SEA.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—The violence of the hurricane whose impact almost capsized the White Star liner "Arabic" battered the vessel and injured dozens of the passengers and also struck her sister ship the Homeric with almost as extensive and serious results may be imagined from the stories of those who count themselves lucky to have come through the experience alive.

Hit by pyramidal waves, many feet higher than were before seen by the Arabic's officers, caused by a wind which blew over 120 miles an hour, the big ship careened over to its side. Hardly had it righted itself when went over again and again.

The cargo shifted, the bunker coal shifted. The Arabic took a list of more than forty degres. Had she gone over to 45 degrees she might have turned turtle. But just then the wind slacked a bit and fell to 100 miles an hour.

As the tons of water hit the ship, lifeboats were smashed like the proverbial kindling wood. Fifty and sixty feet sections of the rail were ripped and flung about the upper deck. Scores of porthole lights, made of glass almost an inch and a half thick, were smashed as though they had been made of paper.

In the first cabin were 393 passengers; in the second 224, and in the third cabin were 616.

All Hurled About.

When the great ship careened under the constant smashes of the terrific seas, every single one of them was flung about. About eighty to a hundred women and children,, with a few men, were in the after-lounge of the ship, nearly every one of them praying, when suddenly the greatest wave of all hit the ship.

Its force was so terrific that it flung the Arabic almost around. It sent the ship over to the port side with such suddenness that every table in the place was ripped from its fastenings. In an instant the hundred passengers were lying in an inextricable mass on the port side, entangled in chairs, bureaus, and whatever else the room contained.

Several of the port holes on the starboard side gave way and in poured tons of water on the struggling, shrieking mass. There were two feet of water in the great room, when the ship righted itself slightly.

Stewards Prove Heroes.

It was here that two lounge stewards proved themselves heroes. They lunged into the struggling mass, some of whom had broken limbs, broken ribs, and fractured noses. As best they could, the stewards dragged them out and into the alley ways leading of the lounge.

At least half of the women and children were so badly cut that the swashing two feet of water in the room, took on a crimson color.

At the time this wave struck, T. H. Owens, salon deckman and a typical British sailor, was on the starboard side of "B" deck, attempting to fasten a section of the rail which had been ripped away.

The great rush of water caught him and carried him off the ship. He was drowned, those who saw him go thought. An instant later, however, another wave hit him and carried him back to "C" deck, about sixty feet aft of where he had been swept ovreboard. He dug himself out of some wreckage and went back to work. He was hurt, but he would not admit it.

Women Narrowly Escape

Aft, on the boat deck, were a party of young women, including Miss Mary M. McCague and Miss Claire Hirst of this city. They had taken chairs and were watching the storm from the upper deck. The great wave which caused most of the trouble suddenly appeared from nowhere, and hit the starboard side of the ship, just where they were sitting.

Two lifeboats just under them were crashed like match sticks. A more complete wreck of them could not have been made with a bomb.

Scores of tons of water dropped in the midst of the group. An instant later the twenty odd women chairs and all, were hurled across the deck to the port side. The port lifeboats, fastened to chocks on the deck level, caught them and prevented them being washed overboard.

Frank Warburton, an engineer, who had been on deck watching that the steering engines were kept in operation, pitched himself into the struggling, screaming mass of women. As they came floating past him, in two or three feet of water, he grabbed them with one hand and pulled them in through a door, while he held to the jambe with his other hand. Then came another wave, and it ripped the door he was holding from its fastenings, and it went into the sea.

Wounded Girl Brave.

When Warburton had hauled the injured girls from their precarious positions, it was found that Miss McCague had a broken leg, and Miss Hirst had seventy-four distinct wounds, mostly cuts.

Miss Hirst had been dragged to safety. When she discovered that her friend, Miss McCague was still on deck, it was necessary to overpower her to keep her within the deckhouse while her chum was being rescued.

While all this was going on for the six hours that the ship was in the grip of the typhoon, the "black gang" in the stoke hole, and the engine room crew and their wipers were doing everything possible to keep the steam going, so that the ship could keep up the fight for its existence.

Their shovels ripped from their hands by the tons of coal which was shifting constantly, the twenty-six stokers fought the battle with death, by tossing coal into the furnaces with their hands.

Flung about like so much driftwood and unable to stand, these brave members of the "black gang" sat on their haunches, to keep the fires burning.

Engineers Faced Death.

Not less heroic were the seventeen engineers and the six oilers. With barrels of paint tossed out of their receptacles, floating about the floor of the engine room, and iron castings flying about like so much shrapnel, this brave crew kept at their stations.

Frank Mainson, a junior engineer was tossed from a ladder over one of the engines. He grabbed one of the bearings, broke his nose, slid down the grating and resumed his work at assisting in saving the ship from complete disaster.

As an illustration of the intense forces which combatted the Arabic, Captain Hickson showed a porcelain bathtub in his room which

PEGGY JOYCE, FAMOUS DIVORCEE, HAS LEAD ON HER FATHER IN MATRIMONIAL RACE, CHIP OFF OLD BLOCK TIRED OF HER COUNT

On this side you have Peggy Joyce, who has become one of the most famous women of the world through her startling experiences in matrimony. Many men of great wealth have been attracted by her. What is her peculiar charm for them?

By way of contrast you see on this side Lucille Upton. Peggy's 20-year-old sister and her constant companion. They were photographed at Atlantic City. Lucille is many years younger than her famous sister. To date she is little known, but insists she will go on the stage. Has the fame of Peggy changed the plans of her little sister, who started out to be school teacher?

BY STEPHEN HANNAGAN

FARMVILLE, Va., Aug. 30.—Peggy Joyce has been married four times (or is it five?), but her father runs her a close second. George Upton, the Barber of Farmville, has been married three times.

And Peggy looks much like her father. At 61, he has a small mouth, bright blue eyes and skin of baby pink.

Upton's first wife and her baby died. Then came Peggy's mother. Peggy was the only child of that union which was dissolved by divorce. Peggy's mother had married again and is living in Virginia. Old residents of Farmville say she was a very pretty woman.

The Uptons live in a three-story, 12-room frame house surrounded by trees and shrubs. There are three children, Lucille, 20 Cecil, 11, and a five-year-old boy.

Lucille was educated to teach at the state normal school here, but she has aspirations to follow Peggy on the stage. At present she is with her sister at Atlantic City.

"I don't want her to go on the stage," her father told me, "and I made her promise that she wouldn't."

Lucille toured the country with Peggy last year, but her sister has tried to dissuade her, offering her two years' schooling in Europe if she would give up her ambition for the footlights.

"I don't want her to go on the stage, but if she insists I shall help her all I can," Peggy says.

Both attended a party recently. "Offer her a cigaret—she won't smoke it," was Peggy's challenge to other guests. "Offer her a drink—she won't take it."

Here in Farmville, Lucille is immensely popular. She stood high in her classes. Her father enrolled her for a post-graduate course and deposited $40 for her tuition. "It looks as though I've lost that money," he says. "I don't think she'll return to school."

Many here recall the childhood of Peggy.

"She was just an ugly little kid with a pug nose when she came here," one of her youthful admirers told me, "but she was likeable and attractive.

"She knew more of the world and its ways at 10 than most women do at 40," another told me.

"We used to play house together," another young man told me. "She was sweet and had a beautiful singing voice. There was something different about her, but I can't define it."

Peggy left here when she was 16 to 17 to make her home with her maternal grandmother. Shortly after that she began to make matrimonial history.

Just before her marriage to Count Morner she returned to Farmville for the first time in 14 years. All the girls from the state normal school and the fellows from Hamden-Sidney Boys College came to town to get a glimpse of her.

One of Peggy's boyhood beaux is a strapping big fellow and wears Fifth Avenue styles on Main Street, where he is successful in business.

But neither he nor her other youthful admirers met her at the station.

They are married now.

FOURTH GUARD UNDER ARREST

Two More of Prison Staff at Montreal Charged With Criminal Negligence.

BIG PLOT FAILED.

MONTREAL, Aug. 30.— Francois Joly and Ernest Gervais, two Bordeaux Jail guards, were arraigned Friday afternoon before Judge Enright and bail refused on charges connected with the attempted escape of Giueseppi Serafini and his partners in the Hochelaga Bank collection car hold-up from the jail last Monday.

Preliminary hearing was fixed for Sept. 3.

This makes four Bordeaux Jail guards in all so far who have been arrested in connection with the affair.

The greatest jail delivery in the history of the continent in which friends of the prisoner are to have been willing to spend $100,000 to secure the escape of six murderers as the prize of the jail delivery was frustrated an hour after midnight last Monday, by a mere chance.

This is the conclusion which the investigators,, who for three days have been testing every avenue of information are gradually being forced to accept. The jail authorities and the investigators are doing their utmost to withhold all information from the newspapers and enquirers, but the seriousness of their investigation cannot be hidden. Charles Lancetot, assistant attorney-general of the province and regarded as one of the shrewdest lawyers in Quebec has come up from the ancient capitol to take a hand personally in the investigation.

Car Failed to Arrive.

After three days' investigation it is becoming more and more apparent that the only thing which occurred to mar this sensational delivery which had been pondered over and plotted hour after hour by these master criminal minds was the non-arrival of a car at the schedule time. Serafini, caught in a pig stye, was to be the forerunner of Louis Morel, Tony Frank, Frank Gabino Leo Davis and Frank Valentino.

Officials allowed reports of bars saws and doors opened to be spread far and wide without any attempt to discredit them. Evidence drawn from hostile guards whose connection with the escape was so close that eight of them are under suspension while two are actually under arrest for aiding and abetting has gradually filtered through beyond the prison walls.

It now transpires that Serafini was not in murderer's row when he made his unsuccessful attempt. Fears of renewed attempt to end his own life have been entertained by the officials ever since he was found one day leaning his head against the walls of his cell.

Was In Basement.

For many days previous to last Monday he has been in a sub-basement of the jail under close guard and with special attention paid to his conduct in the cell. It was from this cell that he made his getaway through a small window ten feet high.

That he did not saw any bars and that there was collusion with men waiting outside seem to be two facts established by the investigators.

The escape was to take five minutes. The second man to break the bonds was to guess as nearly as possible the passing of this period and in order that there might not be any lost moments the time was to be kept by pulse beats. The whole plan was arranged to the minute and in 25 minutes all six were to be free.

The last two to make the break were inmates of cells in "murderers' row," double guarded and double-locked. They were to overcome the guards and seize their rifles. Escape was always to be by way of the window in Serafini's cell and a rope ladder is said to have been found in place.

Desperate measures to get the escaped men out of the city were planned by the gang "outside" who are believed to have had Packard cars at their disposal. One car, around which considerable mystery exists, was discovered last night and the police are looking for the owner.

Says Old Cost of Living Will Never Come Back

WILLIAMSTOWN, MASS., Aug. 30.—The cost of living will never go back to where it was before the war, Professor Allyn A. Young, of Harvard, told a conference at the Institute of Politics. He said:

"It is not desirable that this prospect should be changed. Lower price would increase the burden of debts which oppress the world."

All the costs in the case must be paid by the boys and they are to earn the amount of the stolen money spent in connection with their journey to the West.

The party of British aviators are expected to arrive in the city either Monday or Tuesday morning and will be here for several days.

The luncheon being given in their honor has been arranged by the Engineering Institute of Canada, Ottawa Branch, who have invited the members of the Canadian Club to join with them in honoring the world fliers.

VILLAGE BLAZE DAMAGE $50,000

Glenarm, West of Lindsay, Loses Two Shops, Garage and Residence.

NO PROTECTION.

LINDSAY, August 30. — The little village of Glenarm, in Eldon Township, Victoria County, about fifteen miles west of this town, was scorched by a comparatively disastrous fire on Friday, leaving in its ashes and its blackened ruins a loss estimated at approximately $50,000.

The blaze broke out in the spacious geenral store owned by Dougald Sinclair at 4.30 p.m., and defied the feeble efforts of the villagers to check it.

The store and its contents were totally destroyed, together with Rabey's blacksmith shop, and the Rabey residence, with practically all their contents.

It spread to the big stable owned by Mr. Sinclair and used as a garage.

There are no good wells in Glenarm, and the hamlet has no fire-fighting equipment.

The people were powerless to check the fire, and appealed for help to Woodville, whose chemical engine was immediately sent to the relief of the endangered neighbouring municipality.

This apparatus prevented further spreading of the fire and effectively halted its progress.

SERIOUS OUTBREAK.

School Opening Delayed On Account of Infantile Paralysis.

DETROIT, Aug. 30. —(Canadian Press).—Due to nearly 100 cases of infantile paralysis in city, opening of Detroit schools, scheduled for September 2, has been postponed for two weeks. Health Commissioner Vaughn urged delay on ground that while there was no serious epidemic of disease, conditions were ripe for one and would continue so until cool weather began, if it is quickly detected.

Infantile paralysis, which has been prevalent in Syracuse since real early in July, has now reached total of 115 cases, with about 20 fatalities. There are 100 more cases in nearby Central New York, places, including Oswego, Oneida, Utica and Seneca Falls.

BIG TIMBER DEAL.

Nearly Three Million Dollars Involved In Transaction.

TORONTO, August 30. — Announcement of the completion of the largest timber transaction yet achieved by Premier Fergusons government was made yesterday at the Parliament buildings when it was stated that four timber limits in Mississauga forest reserve, having a total area of 144 square miles, had been sold by tender for a consideration of upwards of $2,750,000.

The limits concerned consist principally of pine timber of a very high grade and the successful tenderer was the Bishop Lumber Co., Ltd., of Nesterville, Ont.

PRINCE ARRIVES HAPPY TO VISIT UNITED STATES

No Pomp or Ceremonial As Heir To British Throne Was Welcomed.

PLEA TO THE PRESS.

Asks Swarm of Reporters To Make Matters Easy For Him.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—(Canadian Press) — Edward, Prince of Wales, arrived Friday.

Three airplanes hovered over his ship while thousands of persons ashore and on small boats around the Berengaria strained their eyes for a sight of the distinguished young Englishman who is making his second visit to the United States. The Prince was completely surrounded by newspaper correspondents and reception committees. Smiling and slightly diffident, such was the warmth and enthusiasm of his reception, His Royal Highness spoke to the seventy-five reporters gathered on the starboard side of the deck. He shook hands with a few of them and in response to a few formal questions made a hasty search through his pockets for his written statement. Finally turnng to Major Oscar N. Solbert, his American aide, he said:

"I've got a written statement somewhere, where is it?"

Likes United States.

While the statement was being found more queries came from the journalistic group and the Prince replying said:

"I'm happy to be in America. I like your country very much. The fact that I came over here for a holiday is the best I can say in that direction."

A young woman pressed forward and put in the inevitable question as to the Prince's possible marriage.

"No. I am not engaged," replied His Royal Highness, smiling tolerantly.

"Would you marry an American girl if you fell in love with one?" said the redoubtable lady.

The Prince smiled again but did not reply. He explained that inasmuch as he had crossed the seas on a holiday he hoped the newspaper men would make matters as easy as possible for him. Then he gave out his written statement saying that he was glad to renew acquaintances in the United States and predicting that the polo match between the British and United States would be "the finest exhibition of a great game which the world can produce today."

Visit to President.

Shortly after that he climbed down a ladder to a private yacht which took him to Glen Cove on the north shore of Long Island whence he journeyed by motor to the home of James A. Burden of Syosett. He departs today for Washington to be the guest of President Coolidge at luncheon. Returning to Syosett he will stay there for about two weeks.

There was no pomp or circumstance about the arrival of the Prince The heir to the British throne was dressed in holiday attire a grey sack suit with a blue shirt and collar to match, and at his own request there was nothing military or naval about the reception.

The only display of any sort was the airplane escort, which circles around the Berengaria as she steamed into the bay.

TWO BOYS DROWNED.

Bodies Recovered From the Treacherous Waters of the Thames.

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 30.—Allan Ryan, 8 year old son of John Ryan, and Harry Whitehead, London, were victims of double drowning in Thames River, two miles east of City limits.

Boys, with Ryan's elder brother Earl, had gone fishing to place in which there are a number of treacherous holes. Earl Ryan states that he was seated on the bank when he heard the boys cry out and both almost immediately disappeared. He rushed to their aid and had ,with great difficulty brought his brother within reach of shore when Whitehead boy clutched him. Exhausted by his struggle he was able to shake others off and fall into shallow water. He secured assistance as quickly as possible but both children had been dead for some time when the bodies were recovered.

CONSTABLE ARRESTED.

CANADA SHORT OF DOMESTICS

Demand For "Cook-Generals" Fails To Overtake the Supply Since War

MANY FROM BRITAIN.

OTTAWA, Aug. 30. — (Canadian Press).—Though 47,466 women have entered Canada as domestic servants since the war, the demand for house hold workers in the Dominion continues to exceed the supply. A "cook general" can always find work in Canada according to immigration officials in touch with the domestic service situation.

Under the Empire Settlement Scheme, signed in March, 1923, women in Great Britain who have had experience in household service can secure loans for the entire amount of their passage provided they are prepared to enter domestic service in Canada. Under this scheme, up to June 30, 1924, 2,114 household workers have come to Canada. Loans to those entering as domestic servants up to June 30 totalled $164,316.04. The loans are repaid through the Federal Department of Immigration in sums varying from $5.00 to $10.00 per month. Prior to June 30 of this year $26,038.68 had been repaid on the loans to women who came to Canada as domestics.

13,284 Last Year

More domestics entered Canada during the fiscal year ending March 1924 than in any year since the Armistice. In those twelve months, 13,284 entered but only 292 of these came under the Empire Settlement Act. The present year promises to see even a larger immigration among women household workers as 6,111 came to the country during the months of April, May, June and July. More than one-fifth of the immigration from Great Britain in the past four months has been domestics.

Prove Experience

Women in Great Britain seeking to secure loans under the Empire Settlement agreement must satisfy women officials in the British offices of the immigration department of their experience in household work, before they receive assistance. In coming to this country they are in parties. On the ships and on the trains there are conductresses who accompany the parties and give general supervision. There are Canadian women's hostels at Halifax, St. John, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg Regina, Calgary and Vancouver, all under the supervision of the Department of immigration. In all of these hostels the first twenty-four hours' accommodation is free of charge for houseworkers who are seeking engagements. In the western hostels, forty-eight hours is allowed.

cracked in two pieces from the strain.

When the great crash took place Wiliam Taylor, 'celilst of the ship's orchestra was in his cabin on "C" deck. The terrific force of the wave smashed through the port-hole, flung him in the path of tons of water which rushed through the open port and through the partition of the adjoining cabin.

With him went a bureau. Everything in both rooms floated about in three feet of water. There were still six inches of water in the room when the steamer docked.

Scene in Lounge.

In the forward lounge at the time, were seated a group consisting of Charles Dickens, coach of the Argentine-Chile Olympic team, his five-year-old son Charles, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Baldwin, of No. 1140 Fifth avenue, and about fifteen other persons, mostly women.

The ship gave a terrific lurch as the tremendous wave hit it. In through half a dozen broken port holes came a great rush of water. Every article of furniture, including tables, desks, chairs and a piano, together with the passengers and stewards, went against the post side in one screaming, hysterical mass.

Out of the twenty-one people in the room, Mr. Baldwin said, at least fifteen were injured.

Dickens, clinging tightly to his five-year-old boy, was caught by the great inrush of water and swept out of the great double door on the port side. The two, limp, were flung against a rail and covered by two feet of water.

Hansen Saves Child.

Howard Hansen, the composer, dove through the debris and yanked the child to safety, just as another wave came through the open passage from the starboard side. A second later and the child would have been swept into the sea.

Eye Witness Story.

Harry Gill, of No. 386 Central Park West, who has been in the Near East for two and a half years for the American Joint Distribution Committee, was one of the returning passengers. Of the wreckage and injuries sustained by the typhoon he said:

"I thought I had witnessed terrible sights in the Near East, but they cannot compare with what I saw on this ship during the last 24 hours.

"And through it all the women behaved like the true heroes that they are. A large number of them were injured sufficiently to require the services of a physician. But they cared not for themselves. They disdained aid, bandaged their own wounds, bleeding profusely and then busied themselves trying to give aid and succor to those who were more badly hurt.

"No one will ever know how many were hurt. Of the four hundred 1st class passengers on board, one out of every three was hurt.

Tribute to Crew.

Every one of the passengers, injured and uninjured, paid the highest tribute to the crew. Not a single word was heard in condemnation of a single member.

From the time that the storm commenced about noon on Tuesday until when the Aarabic docked not a wink of sleep had the crew taken and not a bit of food had they eaten.

Instead they went about all Tuesday evening, all night, and all Wednesday, bringing tea and brandy to the stricken and injured passengers.

Probably the most seriously injured of all is Patrick Carney, one of the ship's firemen. He suffered a fractured spine when he was tossed about in the stoke hole.

Despite their own injuries the passengers of the ship in recognition of the heoic work done by the engine room crew in saving them all from death took up a collection for Carney. It amounted to $200. It will go to his wife and two children in Liverpool who may never see their husband and father again.

LONDON PEACE TERMS SIGNED THIS MORNING

Way Now Paved For Settlement of Conditions in Europe.

SIGNALS NEW ERA.

Reparations Officials Are Jubilant Over the Result —A Loan Coming.

LONDON, August 30 (United Press). — The protocals of the pact of London were signed by the diplomatic representatives of Britain, France, Belgium, Germany, and other interested Powers shortly after noon to-day.

Europe is ready now to proceed with the enforcement of the Dawes reparations settlement, secure in the knowledge that Germany has given the official approval of the Reichstag.

After a peace arrangement had been made at the last moment between the Government of Chancellor Marx and the Nationalist Party, the Reichstag ratified the pact of London yesterday.

Considerably to the surprise of many political observers the ratification received the necessary two-thirds majority.

This majority was granted on the Railway Bill which the Nationalists supported. The vote was 314 to 127.

The position of Chancellor Marx and the prospects for fulfillment of the Dawes plan were further strengthened when the Reichstag rejected by a vote of 251 to 49 a lack of confidence motion which had been introduced by the People's Party.

With the Dawes settlement having won victory in the two quarters in which opposition to it was most pronounced—Berlin and Paris—the machinery will be started soon for the application of the new plan whereby Germany is to pay reparations

The two-thirds majority was obtained by fifty Nationalists voting for acceptances of the vital Railway Bill, although previously they had voted against the other measures which did not require a two-thirds support.

The price of the Nationalist adherence, it is understood, was a promise by the Marx Government to re-organise the Cabinet and award four posts to Nationalists.

Starts New Era.

Signaling a new era in European affairs, the Reparations Commission Monday will start the machinery which is to put the Dawes plan into operation.

Action to makes Dawes settlement effective was begun immediately after the receipt of advices that the German Reichstag had approved the pact of London.

At an official meeting Monday the committee will actually launch the Dawes agreement.

Young will carry on only for a few months owing to the pressure of his own business responsibilities in the United States so the Reparation Commission may also announce Saturday the name of the permanent Agent General.

Reparations officials are jubilant because delay has been avoided in the application of the Dawes plan. The promise of German cooperation is accepted as demonstrating the strength of the new policy.

Every one recognizes that the success of the Dawes scheme rests now on Young but he is looked upon as perhaps the one man who will be able to put through the plan, because of his business acumen and the non-partisan spirit he showed in helping frame the experts report.

There will fall to him the enormous task of installing the administration which is to begin to the Dawes machinery and avoiding complication in intricate mechanism.

Young plans to leave for Berlin in a few days to begin wrestling with his new job.

Cemented the Pact

The formal signatures to-day cemented the pact which was agreed up on and initiated on the last date of the London conference August 16th.

Official signatures on the pact were with held until the Parliaments of both Germany and France had agreed to the Pact. Germany's acceptance came yesterday after a stormy debate in the Reichstag.

Ambassador Kellogg of the United States was present at the conference to-day when the protocoles were signed as the guarantee to the European Nations. The United States did not sign the pact as America was represented at the Inter Allied conference only as an unofficial observation. In the absence of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, Sir Eyre Crow signed the pact on behalf of Great Britain.

The sigaing was without ceremony and was a mere formality among the provisions of the pact is one whereby Germany is to receive a $200,000,000 loan.

Concluded a Loan

American Bankers concluded a $125,000,000 credit for Germany industrialists on condition of the Reich stag enacting the Dawes laws, an Amsterdam dispatch of the Exchange telegraph service says. This is believed to be one of the reasons that fifty German nationalists decided to vote for the Dawes laws, there by assuring enactment.

Second To None.

It is claimed on behalf of the Campbellford School that the stand taken by the students in the above examination is second to none in Ontario. Over 90 per cent of the candidates were successful and this is the best record in the history of the school.

Cecil Longmuir, who has at every examination brought distinction to his school has this time done even better than usual, winning first class honors in four and second class honors in thre subjects.

Another student who from the begining has had a brilliant record throughout her High Schol career, is Dorothy Ackerman who has passed in all subjects with a high average.

The members of the Board of Education as well as the parents of the students are highly gratified over the result, as it cannot fail to prove an excellent advertisement and to draw more students from the surrounding district. Students in the country who are planning a high school course cannot do better than to come to Campbellford where the accomodation as well as the teaching staff are of a high standard. Principal Greig and his efficient staff of five assistants are being highly congratulated on the success that has crowned there labors.

Results Delayed.

The results of the examinations are somewhat belated but for the delay no person of this end of the line is to blame. Principal Greig returned from his holidays Thursday evening and one of the first things he did on his arrival was to call at the postoffice for his mail. The examination returns were not there and it was not until Friday morning that Mr. Greig received them. He made them public at once by posting them in the store of J. A. Loucks, chairman of the Board of Education.

The results of the Middle School examination have not yet been received from the Department.

CHILEAN WON ON CLEAN KNOCKOUT

Jack Sharkey, Champion of American Navy, Took the Count.

BOSTON, Aug. 30.— (Canadian Press.) — Quentin Romero Rojas, Chilean heavyweight turned the battle that was going against him into a victory last night by knocking out Jack Sharkey of this city, until a few months ago the heavyweight pride of Uncle Sam's navy.

The blow that sent Sharkey down was delivered from a swinging right hook to the jaw in the closing seconds of the eighth round. The bell rang with Sharkey sprawled on the floor. He came up for the ninth round, but fell across the ring in a futile effort to stand up.

Romero had found Sharkey a shifty opponent, and a man who, notwithstanding that he lacked seven pounds of the giant Chilean's 195, could send home stiff punches with right or left. Sharkey had outscored Romero in at least five of the eight rounds.

POSTAL STRIKERS GET BLUE TICKET

Fifty Postmen in Toronto Who Went on Strike, Lose Their Jobs.

TORONTO, August 30. — Some 50 or more postal workers, the majority of whom participated in the strike of June last, received an unpleasant surprise yesterday, when opening their semi-monthly pay envelopes, they discovered they contained a notice signed by Postmaster W. E. Lemon, stating that their services would not be required after Sept. 30. The men say they had expected to be reinstated in their former positions in accordance with the terms of the settlement arranged by Hon. James Murdock, Minister of Labor, following the intervention of certain prominent citizens in behalf of the strikers. The discharge of the men has aroused indignation in postal circles and is accentuated by the fact that a number of the strikers have not been restored to higher positions as expected. The whole proceedings are regarded as a deliberate breach of faith on the part of the Minister of Labor and his colleagues or as it was expressed by a number of the workers last night as a breach of what was considered a

LOCUST PLAGUE IN GERMANY USED AS SOURCE OF OIL AND FERTILIZER

BOCHOLT, Germany, Aug. 29.—A plague of locusts has brought a new industry to this region where the insects have been gathered by the ton and oil extracted from their bodies. The locusts came over the frontier from Holland, by countless billions, and were caught by women and boys with great baskets.

The oil is intended for airplane motors and is said to be particularly adaptable for winter flying because it does not congeal in low temperatures. Good, fat locusts retailed at about one-fourth of a cent a pound. After the insects passed through the oil extraction process the refuse was used as fertilizer.

LABOUR DAY.

Monday is the one holiday in the year devoted to the cause of labour, and dedicated to the toilers of the Continent.

Locally there is nothing to suggest the significance of the occasion, although in some centres Labour Day is marked by appropriate demonstrations, concentrating attention upon the men and women of the world who earn their bread by the sweat of their brow.

Labour Day 1924 finds labour in Canada, organized or otherwise, in fairly good condition.

There are few industrial disputes, strikes have not been frequent and conditions apparently are better than ever before in this country.

Unfortunately, there is a certain amount of unemployment that bids fair to continue throughout the winter.

The solution of this problem is one to which labour leaders, as well as politicians and employers, should, especially on Labour Day, give some thought.

An unemployment conference is to be held shortly.

Labour will be represented at the gathering, and should have suggestions to offer that will be of help in arriving at a policy that will mitigate the effects of the present situation.

Meanwhile may Labour Day 1924 prove a pleasant holiday for every citizen of Peterborough, is the cordial wish of the Examiner.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

In spite of the many harsh things that are said about the Senate, the members of the Upper Chamber are evidently able to evolve occasionally an idea that is of public service.

Thus we are told from Ottawa that the principle laid down by the Senate Committee reporting upon the efficiency of the Civil Service that promotion of efficient employees be substituted for the appointment of new civil servants is being followed by the Civil Service Commission.

It sounds like good business.

Where there are departments that are overstaffed it is a sensible policy to use the surplus, who are qualified employees, to fill vacancies instead of following the old system of engaging new employees wherever there are openings.

Entry into Civil Service positions has been too easy—that is, too easy for the welfare of the public purse.

It is an axiom of Government service that once a man gets upon the payroll it is almost impossible to get him out again.

Officials are appointed more or less temporarily when there is a heavy pressure of work upon one department or the other, and they remain there long after the rush is over.

Thus departments get overmanned and clogged up with more workers than there are duties for them to perform.

The new plan of shifting some of the surplus into vacancies that may occur instead of immediately drafting newcomers as under the old system is a return to business principles, and if carried out faithfully should bring into effect a noticeable saving.

SEEING STARS BY DAY.

Since that auspicious occasion upon which the morning stars sang together and the little hills rejoiced and the mountains danced, there have been several authentic instances of rare vision catching sight of stars by day. Properly speaking, a star has no right to be seen in the daytime. It belongs to the night. Its obvious place is in a dark sky. But if some adventurous fragment of whirling energy thinks fit to make itself visible despite the overlordship of the sun, there is clearly a difficulty in ordering its conduct otherwise. The keen-eyed gentlemen in Kitchener, Ont., and Winnipeg, Man., who have seen a daylight star during the past few days have evidently been vouchsafed such vision as is rarely given to mortals. It is by no means an uncommon thing in places where they fight, such as New York and Pittsburgh, Pa., for men of rough habits and careless tongue to see stars by day, occasionally; but the circumstances under which they effect this triumph of penetrative vision are no generally such as fill them with a desire to repeat the experience.

Of course, no such conditions could possibly have affected the eyesight of the worthy citizens of Kitchener, Ont., and Winnipeg, Man., who have caught glimpses of this silver orb meandering around in a sunlit sky all by itself. Both Ontario and Manitoba order their citizens in such wise as guarantees that they can have none but proper and law-abiding vision. We are therefore reduced to the painful necessity of seeking some explanation extraordinary of an occurrence that under ordinary circumstances would fill us with renewed pessimism. It may be that the sunlight of Ontario and Manitoba, like the sunshine of Virginia and the Californian skies and a few other little things that contribute to the gaiety of life in the adjoining Republic, has developed some rare quality that enables even a watery little starlet to make its presence felt. Whether the air has become more rare or the visibility greater, or the color values of the sky different, it is impossible to say without careful and scientific investigation, which ought to commend itself at once to the British scientists now touring the prairie spaces of this Dominion.

But when ordinary Canadians can spend time during their working hours in gazing heavenwards without any pietistic intent and claim they have been granted a fugitive vision of a silver celestial orb in sunlight, it is high time to take stock of the national intelligence and to pause for consideration as to western conditions in general. This we, in a Province that knows no stars by day, can easily afford to do. —Montreal Star.

The round-the-world flyers have succeeded in proving that if anybody wants to make the circuit in a hurry he had better stick to older methods of transportation.

KNOWING CANADA.

The statement of the Scottish editors who recently toured Canada to the effect that "the trouble with the Maritime Provinces is that we do not hear enough of them in Scotland," might be taken to heart by the people of Central and Western Canada.

How little the majority of Ontario people really know about their fellow Canadians down by the sea!

It is an unfortunate situation that, due to the immense distances which separate the different sections of Canada, there is not that intimate knowledge of each that is essential to a complete understanding of the various problems with which they have to deal.

The Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior has had vision enough to realize this situation and has helped to bridge the gap by issuing too well-printed and informative handbooks on the Maritime Provinces, one dealing with New Brunswick and the other with Nova Scotia.

These publications contain concise descriptions of the individual Provinces, with an outline of the progress each is making and the possibilities awaiting the development of the many resources with which the Maritime Provinces have been so richly endowed.

It would be a good thing for Canada generally were these hand-books to attain a wide circulation in Ontario.

We should know enough about the Maritimes to be able to visualize their problems and appreciate their viewpoint upon national affairs.

Copies of the publication, the Examiner understands, will be supplied on application to the Director of the Natural Resources Intelligence Service at Ottawa.

TINSELED BUNKUM.

The trial of Dicky Loeb and Nathan Leopold, pampered 19-year-old sons of Chicago multi-millionaires, on a charge of fiendishly murdering little Benny Franks, draws to a conclusion, says the Hamilton Spectator. The last word has been said by counsel for the defense and the state prosecutor. The fate of these boys now rests in the hands of Judge John R. Caverly. In many respects it has been the strangest murder trial in the annals of the United States' criminal court. It has been more of a theatrical spectacle than a court trial. The perpetrators of this brutal crime, of which there is no parallel on record, have played but an insignificant part. The star of the piece has been Clarence Darrow, 71-year-old criminal lawyer, chief counsel for the defense. To this spinner of fairy tales goes the distinction of making "bedtime stories," told to children by their nurses, admissible in a court of law as an argument against the infliction of capital punishment. Had these been poor boys whom Darrow was defending and he a raw recruit at the bar he would have been laughed out of court and his clients led away to await the coming of the hangman. But riches beyond the dreams of avarice are at the disposal of the defense and Darrow is not a raw recruit, but a wily lawyer who places more confidence in psychology than in custom. Because he is a big man and because the prisoners whom he defends are the sons of money-kings he has been permitted to indulge in fantasy rather than in fact. If Loeb and Leopold do not hang, it will not be because they do not deserve to swing by the neck until dead, but because the presiding judge has been won over to the strange and dangerous philosophy which Darrow has expounded—a philosophy that, once permitted to gain a foothold, would be an invitation to morons to make a slaughter-house of the United States. The Leopold-Loeb trial has been well worth while. Its justification is that it has demonstrated just how much "bunk" our cousins can assimilate, without exploding. It has been a great show. And experience teaches that an encore will be demanded.

EXPORTS AND IMPORTS.

Hon. T. A. Low, Minister of Trade and Commerce, just back from Europe, is optimistic over the prospect of an increase in the export trade of Canada to Great Britain and the European Continent, says the Hamilton Spectator. Mr. Low speaks particularly of the possibility of "tremendous" development in the meat trade, but it is necessary, he warns, to make a careful study of the "highly specialized demand." Canada is increasing her exports to a gratifying extent; but what would be still more satisfactory would be to know that these exports were more of the manufactured variety. Government supporters point with pride to the fact that in the past four months the value of our exports has increased by the sum of nearly 21 million dollars, to a grand total of $327,309,594. In the same period imports decreased by $42,864 854 as compared with the previous year, the total values of imports in the last four months being $371,288,586.

Taking the figures for the whole of last year, up to July 31, the increase in exports amounts to $71,752,896, reaching a total for the twelve months of $1,066,305,260. In the same period imports declined to the extent of $29,988,095, the total value being $850,502,013. There was an increase of over $20,000,000 in the exports to the United States and a decrease in imports from that country of nearly thirty million. A reduction of some two and a half million dollars is noted in the volume of both imports and exports to the United Kingdom.

These statistics are matter for congratulation in many respects. It is undoubtedly a cheering fact that the national trade balance remains so favorable. The reduced imports may be a sign, as alleged, that Canadians are heeding the advice to buy more at home, and it is to be hoped that it is. It may also be an indication that Canadians have less money with which to purchase not merely imported goods, but commodities of home manufacture also. With greater prosperity the volume of imports would in all probability rise. The circumstance that Canada is increasing her exports, however, and is seeking markets for still further expansion, is one which is cause for legitimate satisfaction. Efforts should be concentrated on the conversion of our rich stores of raw material into the finished product, and then the cause for rejoicing would be greater still.

Just to take a little joy out of the occasion, it may be pointed out that Monday is the last summer holiday of the year.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, August 30. — The run of cattle at the Union Stock Yards this week was over 9,250, and by far the largest for the season. The result has been to lower quotations for all grades except the baby beeves from 25 to 50 cents a cwt., with the latter amount more general than the other. Even at the decline it was impossible to clear the yards, and on Thursday it was expected that upwards of 800 head would be carried over till next Tuesday.

For the choice heavy steers, Monday's prices were steady at $7.75 to $7.85 for tops, but on Tuesday and Wednesday there was a cut of fully 50 cents a cwt., and some loads of good steers were bought at and below $6.50 a cwt. Very few heifers were bought for export and only a few bulls were taken at $3.40 to $4.25 a cwt.

Butcher's cattle were depressed from the beginning of the week and buyers took advantage of Monday's heavy run. For choice 1,100 pound steers it was difficult to get $6.75 a cwt., and the best handyweights went at $6.50. Good butchers sold at $6.00 and sometimes lower and good mediums seldom made much over $5.00. Common butchers brought anywhere from $3.50 to $4.25 and would have been lower but for the number taken as stockers.

Butchers' cows and bulls were equally as easy as others and good cows sold around $4.00 a cwt. and good mediums at $3.50. Not many bulls are coming in. Bolognas are down to $2.50 a cwt., and choice heavy exports $4.25 a cwt.

The trade in stockers and feeders has been larger this week and is likely to increase from now on for a while. Specialists bought at lower prices during the week and were carrying several strings on Thursday.

There will be no market until Tnesday next week, and this week's heavy supply of cattle will scarcely be repeated. Rogers & Maybee will buy up 1,000 head for export.

Over 700 calves were shipped from here to the Buffalo market this week. This made a strong market and the choice calves sold all week at 10 to 11 cents a pound. Good and medium calves followed the strength of the tops, and these grades are up about 50 cents a cwt.

Lambs have dropped a dollar a cwt. this week with a close of about 12 cents a pound for choice ewes.

Sheep are holding firm and choice handyweights are bringing 7 and 7¼ cents a pound.

EGG MARKETS.

OTTAWA, August 30 (Canadian Press). — Reports from producing centres state that receipts of eggs show some increase during the past few days, but not sufficient to meet the current demand, and in order to fill the deficiency storage eggs continue to be drawn from the coolers.

Export trade continues slow, as British cable offers are not satisfactory to the exporters.

Toronto firm: unchanged. Retailing specials 52 to 55, extras 45 to 48, firsts 38 to 43, seconds 32 to 35.

Montreal market firm, retailing specials 50 to 55, extras 45 to 50, firsts 38 to 40, seconds 30 to 35.

Ottawa market firm, jobbing extras 42, firsts 37, seconds 30.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL ,August 30 (Canadian Press). — Export trade in grain was reported quiet yesterday, with little demand for foreign trade at prices acceptable to exporters. The trade in cash grain in the domestic market was very slow and the tone of the market for spot supplies of oats was easier, with prices reduced by half a cent a bushel.

There was more inquiry from the United Kingdom and Continental buyers for supplies of spring wheat flour yesterday, and sales of fair-sized lots were made for September shipments. The tone of the local market was steady, but there was no increase in volume of new business passing.

A moderate business is passing in new crop winter wheat flour, and the prices rule steady. Demand for white corn flour is good and prices ruled firm at $7.00 to $7.20 per barrel.

There is no change in the millfeed market, prices for all lines being maintained with a moderate business passing for domestic account. Demand for standard grades of rolled oats is quiet without price change. A fair trade continues in baled hay, and as supplies are none too large to meet requirements the tone of the market remains firm. A fair business is passing in eggs, and a firm feeling prevails since supplies barely meet the demand.

Trade in butter on spot continues very quiet owing to lack of demand from British importers. The tone of the market is about steady and the prices were unchanged.

There is no improvement in the tone of cable advices respecting cheese, and little new business was done to-day. The tone of the spot market is again easier, and an early shading of prices is anticipated.

STERLING RATES.

MONTREAL ,August 30 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here yesterday:

WINNIPEG LIVE STOCK.

WINNIPEG, August 30 (Canadian Press). — Arrivals: 893 cattle, 150 calves, 517 hogs, 77 sheep and lambs.

Trading on cattle market showed greater activity yesterday morning, with bidding steady around Thursday's close. Butcher cows sold firm with the best kinds bringing from $2.50 to $3.00. More activity was in evidence on the stocker and feeder market with the best classes selling generally steady and strong.

The hog market opened with thick smooths at $9.00 and the trend inclined upwards.

The sheep and lamb market remained unchanged.

Life is a mixture of sunshine and shadow; there's always trouble somewhere, as there is always joy somewhere. Why not keep the laughter for the fun and good times, but meet the troubles with brave courage without repining, but with the grave earnestness that they demand? Let's give the serious times a serene face and be careful not to jest at them, for such jesting is the keynote of insincerity.

It was Oliver Goldsmith who wrote "The loud laugh that spoke the vacant mind." We have all heard it, far too often, alas! On the other hand we have the more optimistic creed of Ella Wheeler Wilcox, who sings:

Laugh and the world laughs with you.
Weep, and you weep alone;
For this brave old earth must borrow its mirth,
But has trouble enough of its own.

FABLES ON HEALTH

RULES FOR SUMMER.

For summer, as for winter or any other season of the year, certain hygienic rules have been outlined which, if followed, would make for better health to all the family.

These may be briefly summarized as follows:

Keep the room you occupy well ventilated.

Sleep out of doors whenever and wherever possible.

Wear loose fitting, light and somewhat porous clothing.

Breathe deeply, not once in a while, but regularly.

Eat slowly and chew well.

Avoid overweight and overeating.

Stand erect when walking.

Keep a serene mind.

Don't play too hard any more than you would work too hard and, on the same theory, don't rest too much, or sleep too much.

Keep the teeth, gums and mouth clean.

Don't allow poisons to gather in the body.

Do these things and the long hot days should seem pleasanter and the cold winter days less disagreeable.

"A friend in need is a friend indeed—"

WHEN a financial emergency arises—no friend will be quite so sure to help you as a Bank of Toronto Savings Account.

It is one friend you will be sure of—why not begin to cultivate this friend now?

NEWS OF MARMORA.

MARMORA, Aug. 30.—Flower gardens of this locality are very attractive at the present time. Those of Mr. F. A. Bapty and Mr. W. L. Rigg at Deloro claim especial attention with their wide range of late summer blooms. A fine display of white phlox ornaments the garden of Mr. Dan. Campion in Marmora. Few are the gardens not beautified in some way or other.

While selecting stone to be crushed for the county road, Mr. William McCoy discovered a huge puff ball. It weighed 6 lbs. 7 oz., and the circumference at the centre measured thirty-eight inches. A specimen even larger was smashed.

Mr. and Mrs. John Burkitt, of St. Ola, called on Mrs. John Bateman on Wednesday.

Messrs. E. and A. Shannon, M. Feeney and P. Murphy took a motor trip to Kingston on Wednesday.

Mr. K. B. Patterson journeyed to Belleville on Wednesday.

Miss Edith McWilliams visited her sisters in Havelock on Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Richard O'Connor is having the telephone installed. The necessary pole work has been performed by members of the family.

CROWE'S LANDING TEA.

Mrs. R. J. Knox Surprised By Gift From Cottagers.

CROWE'S LANDING, Stoney Lake, Aug. 29.—One of the most delightful events of the season was held in the pavilion at Crowe's Landing on Saturday afternoon last, (August 23rd.).. Mrs. Geo. Williamson of Brantford and Mrs. Mary MacIntyre of Toronto were the hostesses of an afternoon tea which was attended by more than fifty of the cottagers in the vicinity. The afternoon was spent in social intercourse as this will be the last large gathering before breaking up for the season. During the course of the afternoon Mr. John Davidson of Peterboro presented Mrs. R. J. Knox (nee Stella Lennox) with a generous sum of money as a token of appreciation from the cottagers of the Crowe's Landing district. Mrs. Knox who has been very popular among the summer colony was quietly married at "Belvidere" in early July and has been receiving good wishes all the season, was completely taken by surprise but made a graceful reply expressing her thanks to her friends for their kind rememberance and assuring them of the many happy memories which are associated with her summers on the lake.

Among those present were: Mrs. Logan Craig, Mrs. W. A. F. Campbell and party of friends, Mrs. W. P. Rogers, Mrs. Simpson, Mrs. A. J. Mitchell, Mrs. H. Mitchell, Mrs. Patterson, Mrs. Pakenham, Mrs. J. E. Roxborough, Mrs. McCormack, Mrs. G. D. Carlisle, Mrs. Howson, Mr. and Mrs. John Davidson, Mr. B. M. Chapman (president of the Upper Stoney Lake Cottager's Association), Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Waddell and many others.

POLICE DEPARTMENT ARE ECONOMIZING

Chief Newhall Scraping and Scratching To Buy a New Car.

At a session of the Police Commission, Chief Newhall stated that the Police Department are keeping well within their estimates. Slightly over $16,000 has been spent, with four months to go, which leaves about $9,000 for the balance of the year.

"I am scraping and scratching so as to get enough to buy a new car before the end of the year, even if it is just a small car," remarked the Chief. "Couldn't take the police car out yesterday, and had to do all the work on foot."

Chief Newhall's recommendation to increase Constable Joseph Wheeler's salary to $1,400 was approved of by the Commission. He has had two years' service, and the increase is in accordance with the regular schedule of salaries.

Magistrate Langley thought that the members should have a statement of the expenditures of the Police Department placed before them every month, in order to see if they are in accord with the appropriations.

A resolution to this effect carried.

A communication from the City Trust was received. The letter stated that a Quebec heater would provide the heat for the police garage this coming winter. It further stated that by advice, obtained from a heating engineer, it was learned that it would not be feasible to arrange to heat the garage from the municipal system.

Monthly accounts were presented, and payment of the same was authorised.

TO PICTURE WORK OF MISSIONARIES

History of Catholic Missions Through All Ages and All Races.

ROME, Aug. 30. United Press.—The complete picture of the history of Catholic missions through all the ages amongst all the races of the world will be given in the missionary exhibit to be held in the Vatican courtyards and gardens in connection with the celebration of Holy year in 1925.

America will be represented from the 16th century to the 19th. Her exhibition will portray the work carried on by the various missionaries from the countries which settled the two continents and will deal chiefly with the efforts amongst the American Indians.

The retrospect of the civilizing influence of Cotholic missions will be divided into four periods. The first will deal with the sacrifices and travail of the first Christians, the martyrs and apostles, until the fifth century; the second will portray the spread of Christianity through Europe from the fifth to the 12th centuries; the third will cover the work of the minor brethren, and monks who traversed central and eastern Asia from the 13th century to the close of the 15th; while the fourth will show the widespread missionary work of the Catholic church in America, Asia and Africa from the 15th century until the Pontificate of Pius IX. in 1846.

Many Exhibits.

Six large pavilions are to be built to house all the multiplicity of exhibits There will be models of houses and huts and tents used by all the missionaries through the centuries. There will be maps which some of the missionaries drew themselves to help the brethren following them through many untrodden paths to carry Christianity to the heathen. There will be a veritable museum of the vestments used in the missionary field, the altars and the vessels used in the celebration of the holy services.

By the expressed wish of Pope XI. there will be a special section set apart for the medical activities of the missionaries. This will depict the heroism of the missionaries who do not fear the grave diseases which prevail in numerous countries where the work of Christianity is still in its infancy. It will show what efforts have been put forth to combat these diseases and the help that medical missionaries can give suffering peoples.

Great Care in Collecting.

Great care has been exercised in collecting the objects which demonstrate the ignorance of numerous races. Much will be devoted to point out the superstitions existing in some lands and the practice of witchcraft and sorcery.

Portraits of all the great missionaries of the Catholic church will be hung in a special gallery. Their vestments have also been preserved and will be shown.

The Pontiff has manifested the greatest interest in the collecting of the exhibition and often inquires of the executive committee how the work is progressing.

BRITISHER LOOKS FOR BEST SCHOOL

Where Is America's Finest School Building.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—(United Press).—What is the finest school building in the United States?

The great London County Council, which supervises the educational facilities of seven million people, is sending its Chief Architect, Topham Forrest, to the United States to discover, if he can, America's finest school building and absorb its ideas.

Forrest plans to land in Boston with an open mind.

He will study the best that Boston has, and will then proceed to New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago.

In Chicago he will pause so to speak, and listen; if he hears authentic voices calling from the Farther West he will go on. Otherwise he will return to England.

Incidentally they want him to pick up American ideas on municipal building codes as the London County Council wants to revise its Building Act.

But nobody need show him any skyscrappers.

London won't have them at any price, and Topham Forrest is "absolutely not interested."

TRIAL OF FRANKS' SLAYER WAS SPEEDY

"That part of Section 4 of Division 13 of the Criminal Code making it the duty of the Court to examine witnesses as to the aggravation and mitigation of the offense in cases where the party pleads guilty is mandatory and not discretionary, and it is necessary for the Court to make such examination when requested or desired, either on the part of the people or of the defendant. It would be reversible error not to do so."

"As to those who criticize our courts for the delay in execution after judgment this is because they have been reciting here that in England or some other place they have executed them within ten days. I would respectfully call their attention to section 749, chapter 38, of our Revised Statutes, which says:

Quotes Law on Executions.

"'When a defendant is sentenced to death the date set shall not occur before the tenth day of the term of the Supreme Court occurring after the producing of the judgent.'

"So that any defendant who was sentenced to death in this county since the date of the indictment of the two defendants in this case could not be executed before the seventeenth day of October next, which is the tenth day of the next term of the Supreme Court following the June term. A person sentenced to death in the middle of June could not be legally executed sooner than a person sentenced to death between then and October 2nd.

"I am going to take this case under advisement, gentlemen. I have 1950-odd pages of exhibits."

The Closing Scene.

Crowe's objectionable statement was as follows:

"I do not know whether your Honor believes that officer or not, but if you have observed the conduct of the two defendants and the conduct of their attorneys and the members of their families, with one honorable exception—and he is the old man who sits in sackcloth and ashes, old Mr. Leopold, who is entitled to the sympathy of all—with that one honorable exception, everyone connected with the case has laughed and sneered and jeered. If the defendant Leopold did not say he would plead guilty before a friendly judge, his actions demonstrate that he thinks he has one."

Mr. Darrow objected to this statement at once and the eyes of the Justice blazed, but he ordered the court reporters to write the words into the record. Not until the State had formally rested and defense and prosecution had agreed on the brief formalities which were used to put the kidnapping case into the official record did Justice Caverly speak.

Mr. Crowe—The State rests.

The Court—Before the State rests in the other case, the Court will order stricken from the record the closing remarks of the State's attorney as being a cowardly and dastardly assault upon the integrity of this court

Mr. Crowe—It was not so intended, your honor.

The Court—And it could not be used for any other purpose except to incite a mob and to try and intimidate this Court. It will be stricken from the record.

Mr. Crowe—If your honor please, the State's Attorney had no such intention.

The Court—We will go on——

Mr. Crowe—I merely want to put my personal feeling plainly before the Court. It was not the intention of the State's Atorney——

The Court—The State's Attorney knew that it would be heralded all through this country and all over the world, and he knows that the Court has not an opportunity except to do what he did. It was not the proper thing to do.

Mr. Crowe—It was not the intention——

The Court—This court will not be intimidated by anybody at any time or place as long as he occupies this position.

Leopold and Loeb were vastly amused by the court's rebuke to the State's Attorney, for his instnuation that the accused regarded the court as friendly. They keenly enjoyed Crowe's red faced discomfiture.

Both slayers were in high good humor as they left the court room, where they have sat for weeks and heard themselves excorcitated and denounced. They had more the appearance and demeanor of boys let out of school than anything else.

Within ten minutes after court adjourned Loeb was singing lustily in his cell, "Oh, go way and let me eat," as he atacked a heaping plateful of food. His song was directed at those who sought to question him concerning the outcome of the trial. He was in high good spirits for the court tedium irked him more than it did his companion.

Caverly's Life Threatened.

Threats against Justice Caverly have become so numerous that extra precautions will be taken to safeguard him on September 10. The entire building will be closed on that day to all except those immediately concerned in the case. The sentence is to be passed at 9.30 a.m., and other judges in the building will be asked to defer opening their courts until 11 o'clock.

The threats have come from advocates of both death and life imprisonment penalties. One crank wrote he would kill the justice and both defendants if a hanging decision were returned. Another said he would blow up the building unless the criminals were sent to the scaffold.

AGRICULTURALISTS FELL DOWN TO-DAY

Failed To Make Any Progress At Their Meeting This Morning.

TORONTO, Aug. 29.—(Canadian Press).—The Agricultural Inquiry Committee which has been holding sessions at the Legislature here during the past few days, failed this morning, for the first time, to make any appreciable progress. This session was set aside for the appearance of freight and express traffic men of various railways to obtain from them the explanation of the high freight and express rates on certain commodities in Ontario of which complaints had been received.

Apparently believing that the committee was exceedingly its authority and without information as to the definite status of the committee, railway officials were slow in giving information, and the session developed into a more or less informal conversation. "We have to justify our rates before the Board of Railway Commissioners," it was remarked by one of the railway traffic men, and this indicated the attitude taken by that body.

Realizing that little progress in the matter was probable, it was decided that the committee would forward to various companies copies of complaints that had been received for their consideration and a written reply.

WADE'S PLANE NEEDS A PROPELLER FOR FLIGHT FROM PICTON WITH U.S. AIRMEN

PICTOU, N.S., Aug. 30.—(By Canadian Press Staff Correspondent)—Lieutenant Wade and Lieutenant Ogden ,the American world fliers who lost their plane on the flight from the Hebrides to Iceland and who arrived here Friday on the seaplane Boston II. awaiting them here for the remainder of the flight and decided that a new propeller was needed. It is hoped that the Bay of Islands with mail for the conveying fleet will be able to supply the deficiency on her return to this ports Sunday. The band of the Pictou Highlanders encamped here serenaded the intrepid airmen at their hotel Friday afternoon.

FOURTH BIG SEASON OPENS AT CAPITOL ON MONDAY MATINEE

"Capitol Entertainment" Celebrates Fourth Birthday in Peterboro—Promise Excellent Programmes.

Monday marks the commencement of the Fourth season of "Capitol Entertainment" at the Capitol Theatre. Some four years ago, N. L. Nathanson, now Managing Director of the Famous Players Canadian Corporation Ltd., who operates the Capitol, was making a small circuit of picture theatres. Mr. Nathanson felt that something more than just a good picture was required to distinguish the theatres under his direction from others. He devoted a great deal of attention to building up the idea of service to patrons and to improving and perfecting the theatres under his control. The success of this idea has been proven conclusively in the fact that in the past few years Mr. Nathanson's circuit of theatres has expanded until now the Famous Players control theatres from the Atlantic to the Pacific, there being hardly a city in Canada where the banner of "Capitol Entertainment" is not known to the public.

The Famous Players Canadian Corporation, through its many affiliations has secured the pick of the pictures for 1924-5. Patrons of the Capitol, here, will see the cream of the higher class productions of the coming season. Metro-Goldwyn, First National, Warner Brothers, Paramount, Fox, Educational, Universal and other big producing organizations are straining every nerve to make pictures of higher entertainment value than ever before, and already the Capitol has arranged to play over 175 of the best of these. In order to offer so many attractions to the public a change in policy has been found necessary, and, commencing on Monday the Capitol will offer theree complete changes of program every week. Programs will change every Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Peterboro theatre-goers realize that "Capitol Entertainment" means a great deal more than a satisfactory picture-entertainment. It means that the service from the box-office to the screen has been arranged especially for the comfort of the patron and that courtesy is made the watchword of every employee. It means that the projection of the picture is carefully watched to prevent eye-strain; that the projectionists are specially selected men of long experience and high-training and that the projection equipment is the best and most complete that can be obtained; that the musical settings for the picture are given as much attention in arranging as was the actual selection of the picture itself.

Commencing Monday, the Capitol orchestra under the direction of Miss Florence Gladman, will play each evening and Saturday matinees.

Contrary of the opinion of some people, Canadian capital is largely behind the Famous Players Canadian Corporation. Approximately 1700 shareholders have stock in the Company, about 95 per cent of which are Canadian citizens. $10,000,000 of Canadian capital is invested in the many theatres and associate companies controlled by Famous Players.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

Hans Johnson Charged With the Murder of Hugh McDermott.

SASKATOON Sask., Aug. 29.—(Canadian Press.) — Because he yodelled when he laughed, Hans Johnson has been arrested at Battleford, charged with the brutal murder of Hugh McDermott, 59, a placer gold miner, who had lived in a shack near Fort Saskatchewan, Alta., for thirty years. Johnson's weird cachinnation is said by police to have been the distinguishing feature which led to his arrest. The accused is in the Fort Saskatchewan jail awaiting preliminary trial.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, August 30 (Canadian Press). — Dry weather in Argentine and the firmness of the market in Liverpool were chiefly responsible for a higher average in the wheat values here yesterday.

At the finish wheat was up 1 3-8c to 2 cents with September $1.24 1-8 to $1.24 1-2, and December $1.29 1-2 to $1.29 5-8.

Corn underwent a setback of 1-2c to 1 3-4c.

Oats declined 3-8c to 3-4c.

Provisions were unchanged to 17 1-2 cents off.

The firmness in Liverpool, reflecting yesterday's advance at Winnipeg and Buenos Ayres was given additional firmness yesterday because of heavy rains in England and reports of deterioration in Northern Argentina, where it was said the country was in urgent need of rain.

The market here was quick to respond to the action abroad, and the buyers rushed into the pit, making it easy to maintain higher levels. On the bulge, however, a good class of selling was brought out which caused a moderate break.

Later, predictions of cold weather in the Canadian North-West brought some good buying into the market, and again sent the values up.

Requests for wheat for shipment to Vladivostok were taken as confirming recent reports of crop failures over a wide territory in Russia.

SHIP BOOTLEG ARMS.

American Ships Have Turned To Different Source of Smuggling.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—(United Press).—Bootlegging in arms by Americans on the China coast is giving the Government almost as much trouble as rum running here.

The State Department has ordered American Consuls in China to tighten their lines, following seizure by Chinese custom officials of the two American schooners Talbot and Alcola, at Shanghai with cargoes of arms. Consul General Cunningham authorized the seizure.

Rifles which bring $200 in the interior were being smuggled by the craft to the counter-revolutionists who seek to overthrow the Sun Yat Sen Government in South China.

The cargo of the Talbot was valued at $50,000. Arms on the Alcola totalled thousands of rifles and a quantity of ammunition.

Milk Is a Perfect Food

Milk is the best food we have. There is no substitute. Save on other things if you must, but not on milk. You cannot afford to do without it—growing children especially need plenty. Buy at least half a pint of milk a day for each person in the household. No other food can take its place. Use it all; do not waste a drop. Milk looks like a simple fluid, but really it is very complex. A glass of milk contains a mixture of all the important things that make up a mixed diet. One can get the same nourishment from milk as from a meal made up of meat and eggs, sugar and cereals, oils and fats, with salt and water.

2 large eggs
1 large serving of lean meat
2 moderate-sized potatoes
5 tablespoonfuls of cooked cereal
3 tablespoonfuls of boiled rice, or
2 slices of bread

Drink more milk—and be sure it is PASTEURIED, which destroys any harmful bacteria. Pasteurization is a public health safeguard.

AN EARLY HOLIDAY PUBLIC OBSERVANCE

How the People Were Amused and Held at Home and Viewed a Community Success.

From time to time, especially at the annual and recurring statutory and municipal holidays, The Examiner has urged that public effort be made, as a community, to provide some sort of attractive demonstration, with sports, displays, etc., with the object of citizens staying at home instead of flocking abroad.

Of course we blame this recurring out-flitting on the automobile. And the outing by car has its opportunity and its justification in the cases of those who own or control cars. But what about the thousands who cannot, from force of circumstances, make their exits, but must stay at home? And the children, they are deprived of seeing something or anything that amuses and delights a child. In spite of the established fact that those things which most amuse and enthrall a child cost the least. A sturdy boy will get more fun and excitement out of a couple of barrel staves nailed to a cross-board and applied on a snow-covered hill, than he can extract from a factory-made hand sleigh. 'Twas ever thus. A vigorous and lively game of 'shinny" knocks hockey sky high.

A friend has thoughtfully and kindly sent to me a small hand-bill, printed in The Examiner office, and dated 21st May, 1869. Just fifty-five years ago, and a few months longer. It tells of a distinct community effort to amuse the people. And it was a howling success. The performance held the elements of novelty, collisions, tumbles, speed (as much as might be developed), blood-curdling yells a frantic waving of tomahawks, Indians in war paint, and prizes to be competed for. What more could spectators ask?

Involved in the event was that thing which came into our lives so long ago so long past that the first examples are now only a memory. For the contrivance was the bicycle, only that it was not so termed in those days. And to appreciate the singularity of the performance, outlined on the handbill, reproduced in these columns, one has to go back and tell of the incoming of the two-wheeled contrivance that was deemed at the time a physical impossibility for man to stay on, let alone make progress.

The first, or as they were termed "high wheel," machines, were evolved in England, a large wheel in front and a small, trailing wheel behind. Samples of such are are now preserved as curiosities. There is one in the local museum, at the Public Library. These machines began to make appearance in Peterborough, early in the eighties, and were known as "Rudge-Whitworths," the name of the builders. The pedals were attached to the large and front wheel. It was often of a diameter of five feet and each revolution carried the rider over fifteen feet of the street. Getting on was a feat of extreme dexterity. Getting off was a simpler proceeding. One just fell off and reclined in the roadway.

In Peterborough, during June of 1883, was organised the first Bicycle Club, with John Green as President, Frank Hilliard as Captain, Sub-Captain Andrew Mercer, Frank Kingan Secretary-Treasurer, and a committee of C. McClelland, W. Taylor, and H. Rogers. All rode the high wheels, and races were put on in the old cricket grounds in Ashburnham. But the contraptions ridden in the event to be described following antedated the high wheels by fifteen years.

In 1868 a man named Shattuck, came over from Tonawanda, New York, with the father of all low wheel bicycles.

Shattuck gave a public display of his dexterity and speed on the sidewalk on George street, west side, and all the people marvelled. How could the man stick on the contrivance was the general question? Both wheels were of same size. Built all of wood, with iron tyres, in fact small carriage wheels. The cranks were attached to the front wheel, both wheels about 36 inches in diameter. No springs, no chains nor anything to ease the bumps. "Bone-shakers" they were termed, and lived up to the definition. The front wheels swerved from right to left, as is the case with the wheels of present day. Shattuck stayed in town for a spell, and formed up a partnership with E. C. Hill, a local carriage maker and bill-poster, Hill had previously leased from the Council the upper storey of the old market house, and fitted it up as a public hall going by the name of Hill's Music Hall, and where entertainments, concerts, shows, etc., were held. The pair opened a "Riding Academy," and with Professor Shattuck as instructor gave instruction in the art of riding on two wheels, placed one after the other.

The thing caught on, and for some months it was great fun to climb the stairs to the hall and see scholars twisting, tumbling and cavorting over the floor in endless confusion. A few cheerful souls stuck at it and learned to keep going. Of course a man with a three-foot leg had all the advantage, for he could save falling by placing his hoofs on the floor, but those shorter in limb had many a tumble. Eventually Shattuck left town, having sold out his interest to Mr. Hill.

These machines, as the boys say, never cut much ice on the streets. Riders were so unmercifully guyed when they did appear, and the efforts resulted in much pain and personal contusion and bruises that the game was not worth the candle. And this brings us to the observance of Queen's Birthday, May 24th, 1869.

The day was one of public observance. There had just come in Dominion Day, (the first anniversary was not at all paid attention to when it came along, because people were not quite sure that it was to be a really and truly holiday. The great day was ever the 24th. Morning of the day brought out one of the time-renowned Kalathumpian processions, with its array of grotesque floats take-offs on the town council, broken-down buggies with loving couples in close grip, burlesques on Calcutt's line of steamers, an immense wooden cannon on a pair of gigantic wheels, used in carrying square timber, and a funeral cortgee of the "last of the Fenians," a placard proclaiming that the inmate of the rudely made coffin had died from "Too Many British Bayonets." That he was good and dead was quite evident, for the coffin being short for the alleged inmate, the end had been knocked out and the boots of the party inside projected through the opening. About a score of wild Indians, tore up and down the streets, heralding the procession. Small kids stood on the sidewalks and crept behind mother and shivered with delicious thrills of anticipation, as the Indians appeared. All tore around with only a trifle of clothing and large applications of red paint, feathers, horse tails and other trappings. And it was these same make-believe Indians that furnished the back-bone of the evening entertainment.

The old drill shed had been prepared specially for the occasion. By the munificence of James Stevenson, Esq., as was importantly announced, the entire floor space of the shed had been paced with blocks of cedar, a rather expensive undertaking. A liberal coating of sawdust kept down the dust and made a fairly even surface on which to propel the machines. It will be noticed according to the announcement, that word bicycle is not used. "Velocipede" was the approved name, and so remained until the "safety" wheel, as they were termed, came into use.

The evening was a whale of a success. Standing room in the drill shed was at a premium. About twenty of the wheels were for public use during the hour of the masquerade, and these were supplemented by several others owned privately. Then quite a number had been made, contrived and put together by individuals, displaying a variety of tast and workmanship. The front wheels of superannuated buggies were pressed into service, and as the hub of the wheel placed the cranks rather apart the rider cut quite neat figure as he straddled the contrivance and got under weigh. The advantage was entirely with those bow-legged.

The entry of the Pawnee Tribe, in war paint created a sensation. Paint was not expensive and made up for lack of raiment. Recovered from the fatigues of the morning's procession the coterie of choice spirits were on hand, Harry Winch, (always a ringleader in such stunts), Jim English, Jim Henthorne, Bill Wrighton, Tom Darcy, Ned Boddy and others equally versatile, were of the howling party, and when these began to cavort around the track laid out on the shed floor there was high cheering. Many others in masquerade came on the floor and the scene was striking, if not spectacular. Many of the stunts were failures, for want of seating capacity on the velocipedes, but impromptu evolutions made up for such lapses.

The entire volunteer Fire Brigade came on the scene in red shirts and ponderous and shiny black hats, such as work when on parade. The Hose Company introduced the hose cart and unreeled and re-wound lengths of hose, to the bewilderment of those on the floor. Not to be outdone the Hook and Ladder Company, (jocularly known as the ladder hooking company), brought in a big and massive hook and accompanying ropes and disorganized the proceedings by snaking folks off the floor with energy and amidst uproarious cheering. The Scalp Dance was a revelation in the antics of the contortionist. Each man did what he conceived the most striking thing as indicating Indian ferocity, while man after man, of the masqueraders, (specially prepared for the operation) had his hair lifted, to the consternation of the multitude. When the performance closed down about ten o'clock all hands voted that it was just such a spectacle as finished off a perfect day.

The moral of all this is, if people are to be induced to stay at home, that is in the city, on holidays, they will do so if there is something worth while to stay for. Get together and reproduce the exhibit, as a community extravaganza. Let the participants make use of the modern bicycle, if they choose, and at the close of the interesting and wholly unusual proceedings there will be no perceptible complaining that the city has been empty all day, and the flower of the population have gone out of town to find amusement. Is there enough of community spirit in the city to put the thing on. Possibly so, but certainly not if the usual and always hampering enquiry is to be pushed forward, "who's going to pay us?"

WHEN THE BABIES ARE CUTTING TEETH
THE MOTHER SHOULD USE

During baby's teething time, especially in the hot summer months, the bowels become loose and diarrhoea, dysentery, colic, cramps, etc. manifest themselves; the gums become swollen, and cankers form in the mouth.

This is the time when the mother should use "Dr. Fowler's," and, perhaps, save the baby's life.

PRISONER RE-CAPTURED.

Harry Whalley, Escaped Convict From Kingston Jail, Caught.

KINGSTON, August 29. — Harry Whalley of Perth Road, who on Aug. 9th escaped from the county jail here by climbing the prison wall, was last night captured about 5 miles north of Sydenham, not far from his home. He was taken from under a bed having crawled there when he heard Governor Hawkey of the jail, Sheriff Vair and Constable Clarke of Sydenham, coming. The capture was made about midnight.

DISEASED.

Disease costs America 3000 million dollars a year and other civilized countries accordingly, claims Sir David C. Bruce. He's figuring only the loss through people being "laid up" from work by illness.

About seven years at this rate would balance the national debt. Unfortunately, there seems no big-scale relief. As fast as we conquer one disease, nature sends new ones. Nerve maladies are replacing conquered fevers.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

WEENY ON AN ICEBERG

There was Weeny, the elephant.

"Let's go and visit Mister and Mrs. Seal," said Weeny, the elephant. "The weather is getting warm here, and besides I hear that it's all the style to spend your vacation in the cold north."

"Do seals live in the north?" asked Nick.

"I should say so," said Weeny. "On icebergs or some place like that."

"Then let's go there," said Nancy. "That would be a lot of fun."

So Weeny fixed the things in his satchel and Nancy and Nick got up on his back and away they went toward the cold, cold north.

After while they came to a place where there was a lot of ice, and sure enough, there was a little house with a sign on it which said, "Mister and Mrs. Seal—Their House."

Mrs. Seal opened the door with one of her flippers and looked out.

"Why, how do y' do!" she said pleasantly. "If it isn't Weeny, the old circus elephant! Come here, Solomon, and say how do y' do to the company."

Out came Mister Seal at that and said how nice it was to meet an old friend 'n' everything, and then he said how do y' do to the Twins, and everybody was happy.

"We've come to spend part of our vacation if it's all the same to you," said Weeny.

"Sure, come right in," said Mrs. Seal hospitably.

Weeny looked at the tiny doorway and shook his head. "I guess I'll stay outside if you don't mind" he said, "but Nancy and Nick may go in if they wish. I'll go and take a snooze as I've come pretty far and I'm pretty tired."

"All right," said Mrs. Seal. "Come right in, children, and I'll show you some circus posters of us doing our ball-playing act and our tight-rope-walking act and our brass-band act, and our fish-catching act."

"Hurrah!" cried Nick. "I'm glad I came."

So in went Nancy and Nick to see the circus posters in Mister and Mrs. Seal's house while Weeny slipped on his nighty and went to take a snooze.

Weeny was very tired and soon he was snoring like old Whizzy Tornado on a rampage.

He slept and slept and slept and all the time he was sleeping Nancy and Nick were looking at circus posters in Mister and Mrs. Seal's house.

Pretty soon, or I mean pretty late, Mrs. Seal folded up all the posters and put them away in the cupboard, where they kept all the things for their circus acts.

"Now I'll see about lunch," said she. "Solomon, go and see if the elephant is comfortable, and ask him if he eats fish."

Out went Mister Seal.

In about two seconds, in came Mister Seal in a hurry.

"He's gone!" he cried. "The place he was standing on was ice and it broke off and now it's floating away in the ocean."

They all rushed out at that, and there was Weeny, the elephant, away out in the ocean on an iceberg—still sound asleep, for you could hear him snoring.

"We're sorry but we can't stay a week, or even for lunch," said Nancy. "Goodby, Mister and Mrs. Seal. Nick bring the satchel and we'll follow poor Weeny on his travels."

I think the iceberg had reached Greenland before they caught up to him.

TRIALS OF INDIGESTION.

Common Errors About This Trouble Into Which People Fall.

Many people so far misunderstand the digestive system as to treat it like a machine; neglecting it until it works sluggishly, then irritating it into work again by the use of purgatives. The stomach needs help at all times, but a study of the process of digestion will show that purgatives as commonly taken, are seldom necessary and often harmful.

To safeguard your digestion the diet must be controlled. Over-eating is always harmful, but one must assimilate enough food to supply the needs of the blood. Remember, the blood has to carry nourishment to all parts of the body and find fuel for its energy. Hence when the blood becomes weak and fails to do its work indigestion arises. Therefore the sure remedy for indigestion is to build up the blood. If you suffer from any form of indigestion choose your diet carefully and take wholesome nourishment. Above all, start building up your blood by taking a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Then under the influence of the new blood supply your digestive system will respond naturally, your appetite improve, and your food will do you good. So begin to improve your digestion by starting to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills now.

You can get these pills from your druggist or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CABINET POSITION FOR G. N. GORDON

Premier Assures Electors of Early Promotion For Local Member.

Of all the tokens of esteem accorded to the Prime Minister on Thursday, no less were the tributes showered upon Peterborough's own representative.

When Mayor Turner predicted that Mr. Gordon would be the next Premier of Canada, after paying his respects to the ability of the local member, his encomium was not considered as a flow of eloquence by Mr. King and his colleagues.

Those who took the prophecy lightly, realized the early possibilities of a Cabinet position for Peterboro's representative, after hearing the Premier, the Ontario leader, Hon. W. E. N. Sinclair and the Hon. G. P. Graham speak.

Speaking at the noon luncheon given by the ladies of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club the Premier said, in referring to Mr. Gordon's career, that he never knew a man to rise to a greater place of distinction in so short a time.

Later, in his afternoon address, touching upon Mayor Turner's comment, Mr. King declared that he could promise His Worship anything for the local member, short of the Premiership, and that before very long. "I could not begin to tell you of all the qualities of heart and mind exhibited by Mr. Gordon in Parliament. You can appreciate that nothing can prevent a man from rising, who possesses his good qualities."

BUSINESS SLOW AND PRICE LOW TODAY'S MARKET

Butter Down To 35 Cents, With Some Selling at 33 This Morning

MANY VEGETABLES.

Squash and Pumpkin Add Fall Color To Mountain of Vegetables.

Business was slack on Peterborough's market to-day, most of the rigs on the market square appearing to have a surfeit of garden truck at noon. In the butter and egg section a clearance had been effected, however, only a few of the usual throng remaining at twelve o'clock.

Butter was generally 37 cents, but towards the end of the trading period several lots were offered at 35 cents and even 33. Eggs had the biggest spread of the season, starting at 45 cents and dropping to 33. Only one lot sold at lower than 33 cents, and some two dozen were cleared off at 30 cents. Cream sold generally at 30 cents a pint. Chickens were 35 cents a pound for spring birds and graded down to 25 cents with the latter price asked for hens.

Potatoes survived the slump of last week when the price dropped to a dollar a bag, and this morning sold for $1.25 a bag or 25 cents a peck. Other prices were: Onions, 25 cents a half peck; pickling onions 20 cents a quart; table turnips 25 cents a peck; carrots and beets 5 cents a bunch; cucumbers 50 cents for eleven quarts; beans 5 cents a quart; poll beans 3 quarts for 25 cents; cauliflower 15 and 25 cents each; peas 10 cents a quart; peppers 40 and 50 cents a dozen; and bantam corn 25 cents a dozen.

New arrivals were squash at 15 and 20 cents; crook neck squash at 5, 10 and 15 cents each, and pumpkins at 20 and 25 cents each. Thimbleberries were 25 cents a box with only a few offered. Tomatoes ranged from 50 to 60 cents for 11 quart baskets, and were generally priced at 30 cents for six quarts.

Harvest apples were offered at 25 cents a peck; Duchess were 20 and 30 cents a peck; and Red Astrachans 40 cents a peck.

In the fruit section there were mixed baskets offered, each containing peaches, plums, pears, oranges and bananas. The price was 35 cents. Bananas sold for 20 and 25 and up to 40 cents a dozen; plums were 75 cents for an eleven quart basket number two grade and $1.00 for first grade. Peaches made their debut at $1.25 for 11 quarts.

Clear honey was offered at 90 cents for 5 pounds and light amber honey at 80 cents for 5 pounds. The weather last week helped the buckwheat crop a lot, and the yield of honey will be correspondingly increased, although there will be no record.

FIFTY CHINESE STORES BURNED

Dr. Sun Yat Sen's Troops and Volunteer Forces at Canton To-day.

LONDON, Aug. 30. — (United Press).—Troops of Dr. Sun Yat Sen clashed with volunteer forces at Canton to-day, and set fire to the city, destroying fifty shops, according to a Central News Dispatch from Hong Kong.

Sun Yat Sen now threatens to bombard the city and has warned all foreigners in the city to remain indoors.

The trouble was the direct outcome of Sen's seizure of a consignment of 4,800 rifles, 400 machine guns and half a million rounds of ammunition. Consigned to the volunteer army which Canton merchants had recently organized to protect their lives and property.

The war lord permitted the munitions to be landed but then immediately seized them alleging the mobilization of the volunteers corps threatened his existence as president of south China.

Reports from Soochow Chinkiang Nanking and other cities state that both troops and workers are being drafted by wholesale, regardless of sex.

Four United States destroyers steamed up the river and dropped anchor opposite the city to-day, to reinforce the other American warships here to protect American lives and interests in the impending civil war. The river is now filled with foreign men of war whose commanders have announced a strict neutrality would be maintained but that their several countries interests would be protected at any cost.

Six of a squadron of General Lu's airplanes were damaged last night by spies of General Wu Pei Fu who crept up on the field and escaped after their work was finished.

Six Lives Lost When Tank of Gasoline Exploded.

PITTSBURG, August 30 (Canadian Press).—An explosion of gasoline, late yesterday, in the garage of the People's Natural Gas Company, took a toll of six lives, three of them boys, and caused probable fatal injuries to seven persons and less serious injuries to seven others.

The explosion occurred when a 1,500-gallon tank of gasoline was being drained into the storage tank at the garage.

They have just finished their tour of the Old Country, where they were received by the King and Queen at Buckingham Palace.

They met the Prince of Wales, and have paid a visit to practically every city and district of importance in the British Isles.

They will stay four days in Toronto.

NEW YORK, August 30.—Edward Prince of Wales, left at 6.30 p.m. this morning, on a special train for Washington, to lunch with President Coolidge, following a night's rest at Burden estate Syosset.

Because of the early hour of departure, the Prince went on board the train, which was run in on a siding near his headquarters, shortly after 11 o'clock last night, and retired almost immediately. During the night special guards stood watch over the train.

The Prince's train arrived at the Manhattan transfer at 8.10 this morning and left five minutes later. The Prince was sleeping at the time. It is expected that the train will reach Washington shortly after one o'clock standard time, and luncheon will be served thirty minutes later.

Patching on George street is almost completed and the repairing has eliminated the bad holes and given the main thoroughfares a new lease of life for a few years.

His Worship, Mayor Turner, is highly leased with the results. The construction is costing $2250, and the improvement merits the expenditure, remarked the Mayor. For this sum some patching was done on Aylmer, Charlotte and Water streets.

George street is in a fair condition now but the appropriation for the work did not allow all the necessary repairing to be done on Aylmer St.

FARM NEWS

ONE FIELD HAD 46 BUSHELS TO ACRE OF WHEAT

W. M. Stephens Threshed Grain That Lived Up to Expectations.

FAIR IS GROWING

New Horse Barn Will Be Built With Proceeds of Street Fair.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 30.—W. M. Stephens, on Thursday, finished threshing his crop of fall wheat which, while growing, made one of the finest stands in the district, and there was considerable speculation among the neighbors as to the yield of grain per acre. There was nine acres in the field that produced the wheat, and of this one-half acre of low land was under grass. There was over two acres of the wheat so badly lodged that the yield on this plot would be not more than half of what was threshed from the remainder of the field.

As the wheat left the machine it was loaded on trucks belonging to the Cereal Company and taken direct to the mill, the total quantity so purchased being 10 pounds short of 316 bushels. Mr. Stephens reserved 51 bushels for his own use, so that the total yield was 367, or over 46 bushels to the acre. Where the wheat stood up the yield must have been at least 50 bushels to the acre.

The wheat is of excellent quality, the boxes used to measure it as it came from the machine, and which are supposed to hold a bushel, measuring 77 pounds.

Mr. Stephens also threshed 10 acres of oats, the total turnout being 400 bushels.

Build New Stable.

The Seymour Agricultural Society, under whose auspices the fair was held here last week, received $355 as their percentage of the profits of the entertainment.

The directors have decided to use this money in building a horse stable on the Fair Grounds, something the need of which has been realized at every exhibition. This structure will be 50 by 24 feet. Some of the directors were in favor of making a grant of $100 out of the profits of the midway to the I.O.D.E. for their memorial fund, but the majority called attention to the fact that the organization has a considerable fund on hand and have already received from the town two grants of $500 each.

Crowds Visit Toronto.

Fred. Wilcher, town agent for the C.N.R., had up to last night disposed of 55 tickets to the Toronto Exhibition, and about an equal number had been sold by Major Bygott, agent at the depot. This road offers a special rate of $5.40 return, the tickets good until the last day of the big Fair.

Some residents have gone by way of the C.P.R. by way of Havelock, and others go to Toronto by auto.

Harvesters Disappointed.

The announcement that all harvesters excursions for this year have been called off has caused disappointment to a number who had planned to secure a cheap trip to the West. There had been several inquiries as to dates and tickets. The local agents of the two railway systems have received no official notice that the excursions have been cancelled, the only information to that effect being what has appeared in the daily papers.

Real Wild West Thrill as Buffaloes Are Stampeded

Condemned to die because the herd had grown too large, 1000 buffaloes were stirred into a stampede so that moving picture men might catch them in action. HARVEST OVER IN WEEK MORE Omemee Visited by a Gale on Thursday That Hindered Cutting.

PRODUCE PRICES

OMEMEE, August 30. — Ideal harvest weather has prevailed in this district all week until Thursday, when the wind blew a terrific gale all day, making it very difficult for cutting or drawing in, but nevertheless many fields are being made bare and another week should finish most of the harvesting. Sweet clover is ripening fast and will be ready to cut this week.

Vegetables and other garden stuff are very plentiful. Tomatoes are selling at 3 lbs. for 25c, and promise a good yield.

Butter and eggs remain about the same as last week, the former retailing at 36c a lb, while eggs are 30c per dozen.

Young ducks are bringing 25c a lb. alive, and have been plentiful.

BREEDING HOGS IS HARD WORK

Thousands of Hogs Arrive on Market Bruised—Results in Loss.

CARE NEEDED

The breeding and feeding of bacon hogs involve a great deal of skill and hard work, and among breeds and types of swine, the bacon hog represents by far the most successful effort yet made to meet market requirements both at home and abroad.

The hog is not a hardy animal and probably is injured more easily than either cattle or sheep. Despite this fact, he is often the subject of much more abuse than are other classes of meat animals.

Unfortunately as regards hogs, the effects of rough handling are very pronounced, and the losses resulting much more severe than in other stock.

Every year thousands of hogs arrive on the market in a more or less badly bruised condition, due to causes largely avoidable. In this way, the producer's six months of effort to meet market needs with a high-class product is more or less effectively defeated in the space of a few hours.

Quality determines the relative selling price of live stock. A bruised carcass sells at a discount, and the producer ultimately bears part of the financial loss involved as a result of a depreciation of value in the dressed animal, due to damage in the live animal.

Bruising is rarely the result of intentional abuse, but rather of the use of unsatisfactory equipment and unwise handling on the part of those through whose hands the live stock passes on its way from farm to the killing floor.

BRITISH BOYS LEAVE AUSTRALIAN FARMS

The Australian Minister of Immigration created an unpleasant surprise in Parliament in regard to the British farm apprentice scheme, by stating that of 1,444 who arrived, 88 absconded, 75 were released, 17 were expelled, 9 died, 406 were transferred from original situations, leaving 1,255 still connected with the scheme. Most of the abscondings are recent and are attributed largely to an unsympathetic Government, which declined to make retrospective concessions as to financially assisting the lads upon the completion of their apprenticeship, although Sir Henry Barwell, the late Premier asserts that this was the intention of the act, which contains a technical flaw.

ED. TUFFT'S FARM Philosophy.

Ruff Grickle's horse, old Dappled Dick, the other day was taken sick and lay down in the field, while poor old Grickle, bless his heart, stood by with gaping jaws apart, like one with mind congealed.

By sheerest luck I saw his plight and speeding up with all my might, I soon was on the scene.

'If you will watch beside this nag," said he, "I'll get old Dr. Bragg; 'twill take an hour, I ween. Old Doc has medicines and junk prescribed for horses feeling punk, I always send for him, when any beast curls up and groans lies down with sharp unwieldly moans, or seems all out of trim."

"A doctor? Why, you helpless jay this horse needs comfort right away! We must be doctors here! Quick, strip the harness from the beast, then scoot and bring some liquid yeast or anything that's near! Bring nitre, quick, and sassafras, some spoons, a bottle and a glass, some water and some lard; bring alcohol and rubbing gins, a blanket and some safety pins,—the horse is breathing hard.

Ruff did as he was told to do and in another hour or two the horse was eating hay. The doses that I gave to him had put his inner works in trim and shooed his pains away.

"Now, Ruff", said I. "don't grab your hat when any horse cuts up like that and run for Dr. Bragg; try first-aid methods first, my man; give all the comfort that you can to any fallen nag. The hour you waste may tell the tale, and pills and poultices may fail if you delay to act! A farmer worth his span and pelf must be some doctor now himself, and first-rate nurse, in fact!"

LEARNING TO BE BETTER FARMERS

Agriculture Is a Science That Can Only Be Mastered Through Education.

One of the most hopeful signs of the present period is the desire of rural parents to make better farmers of their children.

Thirty years ago going to college to learn farming required quite a stretch of the imagination with most farmers. Colleges had always been associated with the professions.

Farmers' sons had gone to college for generations to become ministers, doctors of medicine and lawyers; but until recently, as times go, none had gone to college to learn farming.

But times change. Ontario farmers are now sending their boys to university with the intention of making them better farmers. And they are succeeding.

The agricultural college sends the boys home again with a knowledge of both "how" and "why" which extends right into the basic love of the land which permeates all good farmers.

Investigations on a wide scale in the United States have proven that farm boys who have had the advantage of a good agricultural education later make the most successful farmers having an annual productive and earning capacity much greater than their less fortunate brothers.

BUMPER YIELD MARMORA CROPS

Corn Over 12 Feet Tall — Wheat Runs 50 Bushels to the Acre.

SECOND TIMOTHY

MARMORA, August 30. — The report of harvesting and kindred operations in the Marmora district for the current week is very gratifying. Farmers in general are delighted with the greater hours of sunshin. Hay and grain in large quantities have been taken in. In the case of oats, sprouting out was detected here and there.

In an interview with a prominent farmer John Moffatt, it was learned, that whilst his crops are splendid all round, the oat stalk is rather short growth yet heavy laden.

John Bateman has in his garden some corn which soars tremendously high. Measuring the highest stalk, it was found to be 12 feet 6 inches in height.

The sound of the thresher is at last heard. William Flynn has threshed 1,400 bushels of oats, and expects to thresh 1,00 bushels more. So far, the yield on his farm has been 50 bushels to the acre.

Root crops everywhere are thriving. A second growth of Timothy is to be recorded in the case of fields usually backward.

HEAVY GRAINS SLOW HARVEST

Threshing Machines Cannot Handle Victoria County Wheat at Speed.

POTATOES GOOD

In these days when farmers are so busy that they hardly have time to leave their fields and barns, it is interesting to learn that the harvest in Victoria County, and, indeed, throughout the county, is going to be a very bountiful one. Crops are good and weather conditions are favourable.

W. J. Beatty, of Beatty & Stroud, implement dealers, of Kent Street, Lindsay, has been through the surrounding country during the past week and reports that the crop is going to be the best in thirteen years.

Speaking of threshing, Mr. Beatty states that he ran across one thresher who had been threshing seven years and never had to slow down his machine on account of the separation being so heavy until this week. The yield was so heavy that the capacity of the thresher was overloaded and the machine had to be slowed down. This is particularly true regarding oats and fall wheat and barley which are in proportion.

Mr. Beatty reports also that the farmers in this section use nothing but the best cleaners and mills.

Speaking of buckwheat he said: "It is a wonderful crop, so heavy that there is hardly a kernel left unfilled."

Potatoes, he states, are bulging out of the ground, especially in Manvers Township, where the yield is going to be very large.

Corn is coming along well. In one field the corn was six feet high and still in tassle, with four weeks more to grow.

Last spring many farmers had to buy feed for the first time in their lives, but prospects are very bright for the future.

POTATO ACREAGE LESS.

Approximately 632,000 acres of land are under cultivation in Canada for potatoes this year, as compared with 655,900 acres last year, according to estimated figures issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

HALF DROP IN MELONS.

North Carolina's production of cantaloupes will be reduced one-half below that of last year, due to the damage caused by heavy rains.

WHEAT AND CHAFF

The millers and wheat exporters of Canada have a big trade opportunity in Italy, where the wheat shortage is so serious that the Government has warned the people to economize in bread eating as well as announcing that they will have to make bread of inferior materials. Prices of wheat and flour have already jumped 50 per cent., which, of course, has been followed by a corresponding advance in all bakery products.

While chasing ducks across a slough on his father's farm near Bunnichy, Sask., Tony Kator, 11 years, fell into a hole and was drowned.

Hon. Duncan Marshall told the Keene girls who won the softball tournament on Thursday they should stay on the farm.

The bumper crops in this district this year may encourage them as much as this veteran farmer's inspiring speech.

"Some day the world will need a man. I stand beside his cot at night
And wonder if I'm teaching his, as best I can, to know the right.
I am the mother of a boy—his life is mine to make or mar,
And he no better can become than what my daily teachings are.
There will need for some one great—I dare not falter from the line,
The man that is to serve the world, may be your little boy or mine."

WOOL SHORTAGE MAKES MARKET

Young Farmers Should Exercise Caution and Know the Business.

PRODUCTION LOW

By AMOS BRADFORD.

Wool is one of the products on the farm that now sells at a price above the general average of all commodities, farm and urban. Furthermore, world production is below consumption requirements, a condition that is favorable to sheep growers. It is unlikely that the balance will be restored for years to come. One veteran sheep man, W. W. Reynolds of Ohio, believes that sheep offer the best opportunities for young farmers that now exist. "But learn the business," he cautions; "don't guess about the way to handle sheep."

Another sheep veteran is Harley Sherman of New York. All his life he has raised these animals of the "Golden Hoof." Starting as a dairyman, he switched to sheep because of rheumatism in his hands. Mr. Sherman claims that "stomach worms have killed more sheep than anything else, dogs and all." In 50 years his total loss from dogs has been only $25. In preparing his hay he prefers for it to heat somewhat when put in the mow, which means it is stored rather green. It is his custom to sprinkle about four quarts of salt to the ton as the hay is put in the mow.

Fresh Pasture Constantly.

Mr. Sherman makes it a practice to pasture his sheep in small temporary enclosures. He uses steel posts that are driven in the ground, on which woven wire is strung. As fast as the grass or forage crops are grazed down the fence is shifted to a new area, thus affording fresh pasture continuously. For winter feeding he uses hay, corn fodder which is fed in the open on the snow, oat chaff and turnips.

Turnips are a main crop in Mr. Sherman's scheme of farming. "They are my main feed," he says. "I believe I raise rutabaga turnips for 5 cents a bushel." His method of feeding them is to cut the turnips in a root cutter and feed to the sheep in flat bottom troughs. A little linseed meal is sprinkled on the cut turnips.

Mineral Matter in Soil Particles.

He practices another thing—he gives the sheep soil. He calculates that the turnips provide about four quarts for 50 sheep. In addition he keeps before the sheep all the time a mixture consisting of salt, sulphur and charcoal, equal parts of each material. In weaning the lambs, a little grain is fed so that no setback occurs. The weaned ewes are taken from grass and fed only hay for four days. The udders are examined the last day. Any milk is milked out, which usually means no injury to the udders will follow weaning of the lambs.

CUT IN WHEAT ACREAGE

Wheat acreage in the northern hemisphere, including Russia, this year is placed at 179,325,000 acres, based on official estimates from countries having 80 per cent of the total area. his is almost 9,000,000 acres less than last year. The harvest is expected to be more than 10 per cent less than last year's.

WARM WEATHER BRINGS GROWTH BACKWARD CORN

Last Week Saw Crops Pick Up Well in Cavan District.

THRESHING STARTS

Wilfrid Elson's Wheat Ran 35 Bushels to the Acre —Alsike Good.

CAVAN, Aug. 30.— The corn is growing very fast. In fact it made more growth during the past week than it had in three previous weeks.

The weather man who prophesied that the last warm day for the season was past, made a mistake. The corn is telling a different story.

The late grain is ripening quickly this week on account of the warm weather and the rust on the stem.

There is quite a lot of grain yet to cut, and it promises to be a good crop, if the rust does not become too bad.

A drive up and down the concession lines shows many fields being ploughed indicating that the farmers are using all spare time in preparing the ground for fall wheat and doing first ploughing to kill weeds.

Threshing Started

The sound of the threshing whistle is heard again. Mr. A. Fisher is threshing on the ninth line Cavan with his grain outfit.

Mr. Wm. McMaster expects soon to be on the job again in Manvers near the Cavan boundary. Mr. McMaster recently lost his mill in the Chalice fire, but has a new one ordered.

Wheat Yields 35 bushels

Mr. Wilfred Elson, 6th line, east of the middle road threshed five acres of alsike and a quantity of wheat this week. There were 14 bags of alsike seed, about thirty bushels. The wheat turned out well also, yielding 35 bushels to the acre. All wheat this year appears to be a good sample with large kernels.

Mr. J. Breckenridge is threshing on the sixth line.

LARGE LITTERS NOT UNCOMMON

MANY INSTANCES

The capacity of outstanding mothers among the different classes of livestock for reproducing themselves is always a matter of interest to the stock raiser, and whenever a new case arises it is widely published. The following instances reported in a U.S. paper indicate how much above the normal production for their species certain individuals are capable of.

There is recorded the case of a three-year-old Chester White sow, farrowing ninety-six pigs in six litters. A Poland-China sow during a period of twelve months, produced thirty-four living pigs. There is on record the case of a sow that gave birth to twenty-one pigs in a litter, and of another sow dropping twenty-three pigs in one litter. All but two of the latter were born alive. The same sow gave birth to eighty-five pigs in five litters.

But the most remarkable instance in the case of swine is that of a farmer in Missouri, who had a Poland-China sow, said to have farrowed twenty-five pigs in one litter.

The normal number of young in the horse and cow is one at a birth, and exceptional fertility is rather to be found in a long and fertile life than in multiple births. A breeder in Illinois reports a mare owned by him, twenty-five years old, that was suckling her twentieth colt. Fanny Cook, a thoroughbred mare, produced fifteen foals and dropped twins at twenty-two years of age. A. Clydesdale mare belonging to G. W. Henry of Burlington, Iowa was the mother of nineteen foals, and was in foal again. One of the most remarkable cases reported is of a seven-year-old Shorthorn cow dropping seven calves at one birth from a Holstein bull. There are many cases of cows producing three, four five and even six perfectly developed calves.

HATCHED MARCH 19; FIRST EGG JULY 28

Claims of early laying pullets has induced Mrs. J. Coupland of Kelowna to announce this year's record of her Barred Rock strain. A pullet hatched on March 19 commenced to lay on July 28, and has only missed one day without producing an egg.

DROUGHT IN WEST.

Drought has brought a lack of good feed on the ranges of the western states, especially those west of the Rockies. Ranges showed the effects of lack of rain as far east as the western third of Kansas and Oklahoma.

CATTLE JUDGES.

Among the world champs returning from Europe are these farm boys who won first honors in judging dairy cattle. They are, top to bottom: Harold Gaulrapp, Donald Will iams and Elwyn Folkers, all of Whiteside county, Ill., and all 18 or under.

LIVE STOCK NEED CARE IN AUTUMN

Attention Now Is Important Factor in Live Stock Husbandry.

The care of live stock during the stormy weather of autumn, and when pastures are bare or dry, is an important factor in successful live stock husbandry. There are many farmes who feed well during the winter and spring, but allow their stock to receive a severe set back in the autumn; due largely to thoughtlessness for the comfort and food supply of the animals. The cause of the setback is the deterioration in the quality of the pastures as the summer advances, and the greater need of shelter in autumn than during the summer.

On rich, succulent grass of June which acts as a tonic as well as a food, the cattle quickly make gains, and the changed conditions come so gradually as summer passes, that one is apt to be caught unawares, particularly when the pasture gets ahead of the stock early in the season and appears so much better than it really is. The dry woody stalks of the grasses and clovers require the addition of succulent food to keep the cattle in condition to make profits for their owners. The most valuable of these succulent fodders are mixed grain (when cut in the milk stage), corn and sunflowers, when fed as soiling crops. Roots should be added in the late autumn when the above-mentioned fodders near maturity. It is very important in feeding, that all changes be made gradually, so that the digestive tract of the animal may not be disturbed unduly. Late autumn feeding should thus merge gradually into early winter ration.

Need Shelter.

The shelter and protection of the animals from storms and cold are quite as important as the feeding during this period of the year. The clump of trees or windbreak that was of great value to the cattle during the hot days of summer, is of little value during the chill, driving rain or cold storms of autumn. It requires more food than the animal can eat to supply sufficient body heat during a cold wet storm and the animal has to fall back on its reserve supply of fat to maintain its body heat. This results in a more or less serious loss of weight. Cattle should not be allowed to lie on water soaked ground, or when it is covered with hoar frost. They should always be protected from rain storms and heavy winds that might chill them from about Sept. 1 until they are permanently stabled. Frequently cattle that are in good condition at the close of summer go into winter quarters in poor shape, with their vitality greatly impaired due to lack of ordinary care on the part of their owners.

Just as soon as the flies disappear, the horned animals that are going to be fed for beef should be dehorned. This adds much to comfort; they feed better and can be marketed with less loss from bruises. The teeth of young animals should be extracted. The teeth of old cows should also be looked over, to determine how their feed can best be prepared for them.

All the stock should be carefully examined for lice, ringworm, or other parasites and diseases. They should be treated for all these pests and diseases, which multiply and injure the animals much more quickly in confinement than in the open. The stable should be cleaned, disinfected and whitewashed, ready for the animals in the early autumn.

LAKEFIELD HAS SPLENDID CROP OF FALL WHEAT

Warm Weather Brought Along All Grains—Douro Harvest In.

SOME RECORDS

Cephas Payne Had 120 Bushels of Oats From Three Loads.

LAKEFIELD, Aug. 30. — The warm, dry weather prevailing this week has brought joy to the hearts of the farmers, who were wishing to get their grain dried and in the barns. Messrs. Albert Darling and H. J. Abbott, of Douro,, finished getting their crops in on Wednesday and their neighbor, Mr. Harry Dunford, was a day ahead of them. Grain, especially the fall wheat, is good, but the straw is short. Roots are excellent and corn is doing very well indeed.

Mr. Cephas Payne had 120 bushels of oats out of three loads, which is considered an excellent yield.

Mr. B. Q. Dench, of Douro, reports good crops, especially in the fall wheat, although the straw is short. The heads of grain ripened, but the wet weather started is growing again and the hot weather is needed to dry it out. Most of the farmers in his section have their crops nearly all in, but there is no threshing done yet. The pasture is exceptionally good this year and is green and good yet which is unusual at this stage of the season. The hay crop was good, but owing to wet season was hard to save and much of it will be unsaleable.

Mr. T. J. Wood, of Douro, threshed his fall wheat last week and the yield was very good.

Mr. John Darling of Smith, reports better results from fall wheat than spring wheat this season; the straw is better on the latter, but there is a suggestion of rust on the grain itself.

A few farmers in his locality have threshed but as yet the threshing is not general in the country surrounding Lakefield.

Mr. Stanley Reseborough threshed last week and had a good crop.

Prospects for fruit are not specially good for the later varieties of apples, but the harvest apples are fair, many orchards yielding well.

DIRECT TO RETAILERS

Potatoes will be sold direct to retailers, getting rid of the middleman, this year through plans just devised by the Federated Fruit & Vegetable Growers of United States. Twenty thousand car loads of potatoes are to be sold to chain stores, elevators, farm bureaus and other organizations not usually reached directly by growers' associations.

Maple Leafs Win Juvenile Group-Walter Johnston Beats New York-Tilden Defeats Canadian

CURTIS' LEAFS GROUP WINNERS

SCORE WAS 3-2.

Charlie Curtis and his Maple Leafs won the Juvenile City League championship for the third year in sucession when they defeated Curlers in the final game at the Exhibition Grounds last evening by the close score of 3 to 2.

The game was a pitchers' battle and both hurlers had a big edge on the opposing batters. Both got in tight places but were able to get the third strike past the hitter. Bradley received a little better support from his help. Woods kept Leafs' hits scattered in three different inings but each hit came after a slip by his teammates. The Curlers bunched all their hits in one inning but were held to two runs.

Jack Baird provided the fielding sensation of the game when he raced across second base and picked off Corbett's hot liner with one hand and threw the batter out at first. Hall, Franks and Delahave all pulled in some difficult flies and all the fielding on both sides was all that could be desired.

The six hits were evenly divided, no batter getting an extra one and Hilliard got the only extra base hit, a double into left field.

In the fifth Bradley retired the side on strikes and in the third, fourth and seventh he got two of the three putouts by the same route. Woods' share of the strikeouts was more scattered but on three occasions he fanned the last batter with men on the paths.

MACKEY'S AND BETHANY MONDAY

Big Game Labor Day At 2.30—Large Crowd Expected.

HOLIDAY FIXTURE.

The big game is to be pulled off at last. After many postponements due to the O.B.A.A. representative changing the dates Mackey's and Bethany will meet Monday afternoon at 2.30 sharp at Riverside Park. Both teams are raring to go and a great game is expected. With a good rest Riley, the Bethany speed ball artist should be in great shape. He made a great showing in his last start against Mackeys when he turned thirteen of them back by strikeouts. Mackeys claim they will have their murdere's row in action for the big game and will give Riley an awful pasting. The eBthany team can't see it that way at all and claim that with Riley going fair their infield and outfield will hold him up.

Mackeys possess a couple of nice pitcher in Connors and Clarke the former being a southpaw and the latter a right hander. Mackeys infield is one of the fastest in the city. They have got an aggregation of infielders who can field and peg the ball right and they use their brains.

Monday's game will provide the fans with a good holiday program of ball. If the first two games betwen these two teams are any indication Monday's fixture sure be a real one. The game is scheduled to star at 2.30 sharp and will be played at Riverside Park. It is the deciding game of the series.

TRAPSHOOTING

The Peterboro Gun Club held a shoot last evening with some visitors from Lakefield and Indian River and some very good scores were turned in.

E. V. Eldridge proved to be high man with 46 out 50, with Mr. Bradley of Indian River a good second with 44. The scores were very good as the darkness came on quickly and the last 20 birds were shot in semi-darkness. Dr. McClelland was a visitor and apparently the South has not affected his eye in any way.

Among those present were Messrs Sutton and Tanner of Lakefield, H. Bradley of Indian River, Dr. McClelland of Los Anglese, E .V. Eldridge Geo. Edwards, Roy Hutchison, Chris Wood and Chris Graham.

So powerful was the speech of the visitor that the dignified eastern conference rose to its feet and sang a hymn for him as he proclaimed evangelism to be "the beginning and the secret of all social and moral reform."

GALLOPING GOLF.

Galloping golf is exclusive form of pastime featuring aristocratic indolence in advanced stages.

To be galloping golfer you must own stable in Newport, office in Wall Street and mansion in Riverside Drive.

It's nobby sport for scions of wealth, commuting members of royalty, haughtly head waiters and others who can order demi tasse without blushing.

You use horses instead of caddies in mounted golf, except you don't use them so hard .....A full-grown horse will stand only so much cussing.

England and America cross infuriated mallets for polo horrors next month, with U.S.G.A. rules prevailing ....This means all fashionable drinking must be done on clubhouse veranda.

Outcome of international match will settle definitely and beyond gray flicker of doubt whether infants brought up on canned okra soup are superior to those who chew plug cut by instinct.

Polo is gently reminiscent of biped golf in that proficiency entitles players to dress up like a cross between commander of Holly Springs, Miss., home guards and pancacke chauffeur at Child's.

Etiquette demands you stop play and apologize if your head inadvertently comes in contact with downward swish of opponent's mallet .....Real good mallets can't be picked up every day.

Polo horses are picked for alertness ....Some are said to be almost human in their intelligence.

To us, however, this sounds like going out of your way to take a knock at a defenseless quadruped.

WRIGHT FORCED THE CHAMPION

Canadian Tennis Entry Surprised Gallery In Davis Cup Match.

SETS WERE CLOSE.

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., August 30 (Canadian Press). — Although not a match for the four-times singles champion of the United States, Jack Wright of Montreal, Canadian Davis Cup star, astounded the five thousand spectators at the national men's singles championship matches yesterday by forcing William T. Tilden through three very close and hard-fought sets before he was eliminated.

The scores were 6-4, 8-6, 6-4.

Wright, leading at 5-1 on games in the second set, was within a point of victory in the seventh game and led again in the final set 3-0.

Tilden had to loose the full battery of his dazzling strokes to check his opponent's rush. Under an attack that fairly smothered him the young Canadian displayed the coolness and steadiness of a veteran.

Wright's service was effective. He covered the court diligently and sustained many sparkling rallies with a well-placed chop stroke that frequently bothered the champion.

The other feature match of the day was the defeat of Briar Norton of St. Louis, former South African ace, by the young Frenchman, Rene La Coste. The French Davis Cup star downed Norton 1-6, 6-3, 6-0, 6-1.

Yesterday's thrills were confined to the victories of Tilden and La Coste, but three other matches, all decided in straight sets, were played to complete the fourth round.

In these "Little Bill" Johnston, who again looms as Tilden's strongest title rival, disposed of his fellow-townsman, Elmer Griffin, of San Francisco, 6-2, 6-1, 6-1.

The other survivors, who gained their fifth round brackets yesterday, were idle.

Peggy Joyce goes to all the fights in New York. That is what comes of giving so much publicity to million-dollar purses.

ARRIVES FOR RACES.

Owner of "Epinard" Optimistic of French Four Year Old's Chances.

NEW YORK, August 30.—Pierre Wertheimer owner of the French four year old Epinard, arrived Friday on the Berengaria from Paris to witness the series of three international races the first over six furlongs at Belmont Park Monday, in which his champion will meet America's best thoroughbreds.

The youthful sportsman did not predict a victory for his colors but was obviously optimistic.

Epinard, in his first trial was caught at 1:42 1-5 for the mile today over a good track. Jockey Everett Haynes did not push his mount, acting under orders from Trainer Eugene Leigh.

The owner of Epinard is 36 years old and a millionaire manufacturer of perfume. He fought in the battle of the Marne as a corporal of infantry, was invalided but later returned to service as chauffeur to General Joffre.

1. With a runner on third, pitcher starts to wind up, and while so doing strikes his arm against his side, causing the ball to drop from his pitching hand, rolling several yards away. A contends it is a balk and the runner on third is entitled to score. B says it is treated as an accident, play being immediately suspended by the umpire. C insists the ball is in play and runners advance at their peril. Who is right?—E. T.

2. Manager of home team sends in a left-handed pinch-hitter to bat against right hander, pitching for visitors. Manager of visiting club takes out right hander and sends in a southpaw. Manager of home team then elects to remove left-handed pinch-hitter and put in a right hander. No balls have been pitched to the pinch-hitter. Can this be done?—O. C. L.

3. Is the spitball barred in all minor leagues? Are there 20 spitball pitchers in the two major leagues?—D. C.

Answers:

1. A is correct. Once the pitcher starts to deliver the ball to the batsman he must complete the play, otherwise it is a balk. A is correct in his contention. Runner on third is entitled to score.

2. A pinch-hitter can be removed at any time. A pinch-pitcher, when announced, must pitch until one man has been retired or reaches first.

3. As I understand it, certain minor leagues do not bar the use of the spitball. There are about a dozen major leaguers using the spitter.

DOMINION GOLF FINALS STAGED IN QUEEN CITY

Many Women Exponents Will Invade Toronto To Take Part in Play-Offs.

ONE AT ANCASTER.

Players Finishing With Honours Will Find Prizes Awaiting Them.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 30.—(By Canadian Press).—Toronto will be invaded by squadrons of golfers, especially the women exponents of the game, during the month of September. Three of the four Dominion championships to be decided this fall will take place on Toronto courses, and the fourth at Ancaster near Hamilton. The Canadian Senior will be played at the Toronto Golf Club Sept. 3-5. Ancaster will be the scene of the 19th annual Canadian Ladies' Open championship, from Sept. 15 to 20, and the third annual Canadians Ladies' Closed Championship follows the week after at the Mississauga Club, Toronto, Sept. 22-27. The Canadian Women's Senior Championship takes place at Mississauga Sept. 25 and 26.

Will Lyon Repeat?

That veteran of Canadian golf history, George S. Lyon, of the Lambton Golf Club, Toronto, has won the Senior championship every year since it was inaugurated in 1918, but whether he will win the seventh annual this year or not is a question. The championship is awarded after two morning rounds of 18 holes medal play, with putting competitions in the afternoons, and an 18 hole foursome on the concluding day.

Canada's team for the international match with seniors of the United States at Rye, N.Y., Sept. 11 and 12 will be selected at this tournament. George S. Lyon also took the international individual championship last year, returning it to Canada after it had been held for a long period by American players.

Open Event Is International

Last year's Canadian Ladies' Open Championship was an international affair, with several entrants from the United States and Mrs. Gavin, of Huntercombe, England, present to defend her title. Miss Glenna Collett of Province, R.I., fought her way from the bottom and defeated Mrs. Gavin in the championship final.

This year's championship, to be decided over the Ancaster Golf Club course near Hamilton, should not be below the 1923 event in good golfing. The rules call for a qualifying round on the opening day of 18 holes medal play. The 32 players returning the best gross scores will form the championship flight and will play through for the final by match plays of 18 holes each succeeding day, the final of 36 holes taking place on Saturday, Sept. 20. Any ties in match play are decided by the first additional hole won. The 16 players defeated in the first round of the championship flight will form the championship consolation, the final of which is played on Saturday morning.

Numerous Prizes.

Those players finishing with honors in this championship find many prizes awaiting them. The winner holds the Duchess of Connaught Gold Cup for the year following, and becomes the permanent possessor of a replica of the cup. She also receives the Royal Canadian Golf Association Gold Medal and the Shield presented by the Canadian Women's Golf Union.

The best gross scorer in the qualifying round receives a gold medal and a silver cup has been put up for the best net score. In addition there will be the usual consolation and driving competition.

No Canadian player has won the Canadian Ladies' Open Championship since Miss Ada MacKenzie of the Mississauga Club took it in 1919.

The Closed Championship.

Most of the prominent competitors in the Open event will figure in the Ladies' Closed Championship at Mississauga the week following Sept. 22-27. This event, held at Montreal last year, was productive of one of the most thrilling golf battles ever witnessed, Miss Sidney Pepler of the Toronto Golf Club finally wresting the championship from Miss Ada Mackenzie of Mississauga.

The rules governing this competition are practically the same as those for the Open championship, except that all matches including the championship final, are of 18 holes. Play in all the flights will be in the mornings, with the exception of Friday and Saturday, when the championship semi-finals and final will be played.

The winner of the Closed championship final will be the holder of the trophy presented by the Canadian Ladies' Golf Union and will win outright the replica of the cup. The runner-up also will receive a cup. A number of other prizes are open for competition.

Senior Women Battle.

The remaining championship will be Canadian Women's Senior championship ove rthe Mississauga course Sept. 25 and 26, concluding the day before the Closed championship final. The C.W.S.G.A. has been steadily growing, and in time will be rivalling the senior mens' association for number of members.

The conditions of this championship are two rounds of 18 holes medal play on Thursday and Friday, lowest gross score deciding the winner, while the hunner-up receives a cup. As in all the other championships, a number of prizes are awarded for various "side" competitions.

MONTREAL HAS RUGBY WEALTH

Strong Squad of Candidates Who Will Be Certain For the Team.

McGILL GRADUATES.

MONTREAL, August 30 (Canadian Press).—Starting late on Tuesday afternoon the Montreal rugby football players will settle down to the serious business of preparing for the opening of the league season, and it is expected that there will be practically a complete turnout of the men who are expected to be first string candidates for the inter-provincial squad.

At least by the end of next week the committee hopes to have the contingent at full strength and a definite understanding as to who will be available among those at present more or less uncertain quantities.

Despite the start of holiday weekend there was good turnout of prospective grid-men for the last of the limbering-up practices last night at the Westmount field.

The club is a good week ahead in training over previous seasons, and the men are almost ready for hard scrimmage work ,though it is not likely that Coach Greenwood will resort to the toughening up process at this early stage.

It is some years since the Winged Wheelers have been definitely able to show a fairly strong squad of certainties by the end of August, but last night the list of those who had turned out up to the present included the following experienced footballers:

Among the back division—Jeff Russell, Boo Anderson, Clary Booth, Feldstein, Bennett, Jack Gardner, Weir Wright and Lanthier.

And on the line—Tommy Hall, Clary Foran, Bert Ryan, McDonnell, Hamie Hamilton, and Andy Starke, Bob Holt, and a host of other likely looking front rank material, including O'Brien, Watkins, a high school boy from the United States, Clendenning, Tobin ,and others.

"The Frenchman is nothing but an actor," hardened critics declare. But give him credit, he was a bad actor with the right in his day.

It's getting so you can't be too sure of anything any more. Imagine Chick Evans losing in the western golf championship.

JOHN BARRYMORE STARRING IN "BEAU BRUMMEL."

One of the greatest announcements yet made to film patrons of this city is the engagement of "Beau Brummel" at the Capitol Theatre, next Monday and Tuesday.

What gives curiosity and expectation a spur is the fact that John Barrymore, America's greatest dramatic actor, has the starring part, and that the screen version is from the Clyde Fitch play, immortalised by Richard Mansfield.

Barrymore is always Barrymore, which means that he can be depended on to give his audiences unfailing dramatic entertainment. But Barrymore in the adaptation of a play that is one of the best in this country means something spectatcular and unique.

As "Beau Brummel," the prince of dandies and intimate friend of the Prince of Wales, Barrymore has a role exactly suited to his personality. Impersonating the most vivid personality that ever strode through the social history of England, he gives an unforgettable performance.

The three angles underlying the theme of "Beau Brummel" are the fickleness of fortune, the test of friendship, and the instability of popularity. Because of his intimacy with the Prince of Wales, Beau Brummel is able to influence his creditors and make himself the arbiter of English society. Women flock to his rooms in the vain effort to pick up the fragments of a heart hiding its ache behind the fripperies of clothes. At the height of his popularity his salient wit makes an undiplomatic remark, which precipitates him into a deluge of misfortune.

The brilliant supporting cast consists of Mary Astor, Willard Louis, Irene Rich, Alec B. Francis, Carmel Myers, and others. The direction is by Harry Beaumont, the adaptation by Dorothy Farnum.

It is a Warner Brothers' Classic of the screen.

THREE CHANGES OF PROGRAMME WEEKLY IS NEW POLICY OF CAPITOL

Commencing next Monday, the Capitol Theatre announces that it will offer three complete changes of programme each week. The programme will change Monday, Wednesday and Friday, shows being presented Monday and Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, and Friday and Saturday. The Famous Players Canadian Corporation Ltd., operating the Capitol have secured over 175 productions for the coming season and to give adequate presentation to as many of these as possible, the change from two shows to three shows wekely at the Capitol, was decided upon.

POLA NEGRI AT CAPITOL NEXT WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY

The exotic Polish star, Pola Negri, will be seen in her latest offering, "Children of the Dust," at the Capitol, next Wednesday and Thursday.

JACK HOLT MAKES PICTURE, "EMPTY HANDS," IN CANADIAN ROCKIES

"Empty Hands," starring Jack Holt and Norma Shearer, which comes to the Capitol next Friday and Saturday was made in the Canadian Rockies. It is vivid drama of out-door life and was written by a Canadian author, Arthur Stringer.

AT THE ROYAL.

MANY FINE PRODUCTIONS BOOKED FOR THE ROYAL

Patrons of the Royal can look forward to many pleasant evenings. We have just had a look at contracts recently signed which include many of the season's biggest photoproductions.

"The Marriage Circle" with Florence Vidor, Marie Prevost, Monte Blue, Adolphe Menjou, Harry Myers, etc., is a new daringly different departure from the usual screen entertainment, a domestic dissension flavored with a tinge of wit.

Mae Murray in "Mlle. Midnight" has in support, Otis Harlan, Monte Blue, Robert Edeson, etc. This is her most elaborate to date in gowns settings and dances.

"The Rejected Woman" with Conrad Nagel and Alma Rubens, has youth, pep, beauty, jazz, action and luxury. A picture for young people and for all people who know the joy of living.

"Reno" by Rupert Hughes. Do the divirce laws have to be Renovoted. A whirlwind of action, thrills wisdom as only Rupert Hughes can write.

"Secnd Youth," a leap year comedy of women who pursue and men who dodge.

"Daddies" David Belasco's famous stage comedy with May Marsh and Harry Myers. A delightful comedy which proves it takes a MAN to be a daddy.

Wesley (Freckles) Barry in George M. Cohan's "Washington Junior." A story of what happens when you tell the truth about other people. This is only few of the many productions booked for Royal Others will be announced during the coming week.

ROYAL GETS BIG SPECIAL PRODUCTION FOR MONDAY "FOR SALE", GREAT CAST

Fine Drama of High Society. Social Splendor of New York and Paris Depicted in 'For Sale."

The return of the society draam is eloquently evidenced by the First National production, "For Sale," which is scheduled to open at the Royal Theatre on Monday a lavish photodrama of life in the upper strata.

"For Sale" is an original screen story by Earl Hudson, author of "Sundown," an epic of the cattle country. It was adapted to the screen by Fred Stanley, and directed by George Archainbaud.

Aside from the magnificent sets, "For Sale" has an all-star cast of exceptional calibre. The story deals with Eleanor Bates, daugher of the New York Four Hundredth whose father has embezzled a large sum of money from Joseph Hudley, a nouveau riche, and because of his obligations forcres his daughter to accept the attentions of Hudley.

The story is laid in New York and Paris, contrasting the scenes of social splendor in the former city, with scenes in the Montmarte district of Paris.

Claire Windsor, who plays the role of Eleanor, is said to have the greatest role of her brilliant career. Eleanir runs full gamut of emotions, and gives the stately Claire ample opportunity to wear some stuning gowns especially designed for her.

Adolphe Men jou as Joseph Hudley, a climber, whose wealth does not serve him in winning the love of Eleanor, has, perhaps, a part that best reflects that splendid actor's debonair and suave personality. His role is not the hackeneyed villain.

Robert Elis as Allan Penfield, in loce with and loved by Eleanor, is destined to another splendid characterization to his long list of successes. Mary Carr, the celebrated 'mother" in "Over the Hill," portrays a role differing widely from anything she heretofore played. She is no longer seen in rags and the atmosphere of poverty. Tully Marshall, already accepted as the screen's greatest character actor, will be seen as Harrison Bates, who is crushed by his own weakness and obligations.

The excitement-seeking flapper in "Shadows of Paris," Vera Reynolds, will be one of the bright spots of "For Sale." John Patrick, Lou Payne, Jule Power, Phillips Smalley, Christine Mayo, Jean Vachon, George Irving, Frank Elliott, Finch Smiles and Marga La Rubia make up the balance of the remarkable cast.

An Announcement To Capitol Patrons

FAMOUS Players Canadian Corporation, operating the Capitol Theatre, has secured over 175 pictures, each of which has been found worthy of presentation under the banner of "CAPITOL ENTERTAINMENT."

TO Give as many of these, as possible, adequate presentation in Peterboro, necessitates a change of policy at the Capitol and so, commencing September 1st., three changes of program weekly, will be the rule.

FEATURES will be shown MONDAY and TUESDAY—WEDNESDAY and THURSDAY—FRIDAY and SATURDAY. Three complete changes of program weekly.

WHEN a special attraction such as THE COVERED WAGGON is being offered, the Capitol will have only two changes of program during that week.

PATRONS are asked to bear in mind that shows will change three times weekly at the Capitol after September 1st.

SEPTEMBER marks the advent of the Fourth Season of "CAPITOL ENTERTAINMENT" in Canada. Appreciation of the encouragement and support given in the past to those who have made "CAPITOL ENTERTAINMENT" a Canadian institution, will be shown by the still higher standard of entertainment planned for the season of 1924-25.

Spanning the vast territory of the Dominion of Canada, from East to West—from Montreal to Vancouver—like the mighty superstructure of a giant bridge, the Famous Players Canadian Corporation, Limited, has in the past three years extended its chain of motion picture theatres, until now there are few cities or towns in this great domain where the banner of "CAPITOL ENTERTAINMENT" is not flung to the breeze.

This company, which has sought to provide the public with the very best in motion picture entertainment, is proud to proclaim itself a CANADIAN CORPORATION, A HOME ENTERPRISE, fostered, owned and operated by and for Canadians; keeping always in mind the needs of its people for wholesome, clean amusement.

Canadian capital invested in "CAPITOL ENTERTAINMENT" theatres throughout Canada exceeds $10,000,000, with approximately 1,700 Canadian shareholders, of which upwards of 95 per cent. are resident Canadians, representing every Province of the Dominion. A total of more than 70 theatres are now operated by the company in Canada.

"Capitol Entertainment"

IN MEMORIAM.

FROST—In loving memory of Pte. Arthur Frost killed in action Aug. 30th, 1918; also his brother, Pte. Tom Frost, died in England, 1916.

Far and oft our thoughts do wander
To those graves so far away,
Where they laid our dear boys
Six long years ago today.

Do not ask us if we miss them,
There is such a vacant place;
Can we ever forget their footsteps
And their dear familiar face.

Popularity of Essex Coach.

"It is the issue of closed car comforts at open car costs which has brought such exceptional success to the Essex Six Coach this year," said Mr. Brewer, distributor for Hudson and Essex Cars.

Mr. Brewer continued:

"Already 25 per cent. more Essex Sixes have been manufactured and sold this year than were produced of the popular Essex Fours in all of 1923. That is doubly amazing because 1923 was itself a record-breaking year and because nearly every other maker of cars has been forced this year to cut down his volume.

"But the Essex Six Coach, offering six-cylinder advantages and closed car comforts at an extraordinarily moderate price, has arisen above all trade conditions and difficulties and has been the outstanding success of the year.

"Let me recite a few facts about this Essex Coach. First, it is larger and roomier than any previous model. Second, it is equipped with genuine full size balloon tires, which give it a riding ease which cannot be adequately described—it must be experienced. Third, it will out-perform the highest expectations of its owners—in smoothness, quietness, marvellous pick-up and climbing ability.

"All these advantages are offered in a six-cylinder enclosed car which sells at just about the price of an open 'four.'

"The public's answer to such a value has been a capacity demand all year long.

"Now, with balloon tires added, and with a design which easily handles all the operating conditions which these tires bring about, the Coach is more popular than ever. When you consider that the especial closed car seasons of the year—fall and winter—are almost on us, you can see why we are so optimistic about the Essex Coach.

"Especially we invite all former Essex owners to inspect this present car. We know that they all regard their cars with the highest pride, but we are sure we can show them something better in the Essex Six Coach."

WAGE REDUCTION NOT SOLUTION OF UNEMPLOYMENT, SAYS MOORE

PUT UNEMPLOYED ON THE LAND

OTTAWA, September 2 (Canadian Press). — With a splendid parade and a huge throng gathering on Cartier Square to listen to stirring addresses made by prominent labour leaders, Labour Day was fittingly celebrated in Ottawa yesterday.

Constructive criticism was given by Tom Moore, president of the Allied Trades and Labour Congress of Canada, the chief speaker, who warned his hearers that the solution of the unemployment problem did not lie in a general wage reduction of workers.

Mr. Moore reviewed what labour had accomplished in the last thirty years, and declared that he refused to be pessimistic.

Touching on the unemployment problem he asserted that what was now needed was not empty declarations, but a reasonable view of the situation. He said that the time was near when the people would take control of their own affairs so that the prosperity shared at the present time by a few would be enjoyed by all.

Canadians First.

Mr. Moore discussed the immigration question, and declared that the colonisation of land by the Canadian Government to British settlers was in itself quite admirable, but the could see no reason why the Federal Government should not extend the same opportunities to the unemployed in Canadian cities who would be glad to go back to the land if they received financial assistance.

That the Federal Government was sidestepping the eight-hour day issue, which was a vital question, was charged by Mr. Moore. He further charged that the Government was following the dictates of the employers. He said that at the Government unemployment conference Wednesday he expected to be bombarded with suggestions to reduce the wages as a means of solving the unemployment problem.

"The solution of the unemployment does not lie in a wage reduction," said Mr. Moore, and he warned his hearers to steel their minds against insidious propaganda of the employers, who, he charged, had started the movement to create unemployment as a means of reducing the wages of the workers.

Ranks Divided.

P. M. Draper, secretary-treasurer of the Trades and Labour Congress of Canada, made a stirring plea for unity and support. There existed a decided apathy towards the cause of Labour both among non-members and members of the unions, he declared, and this apathy must be shaken.

There was a great deal too much division in the ranks of the Labour movement, and the leaders when they attempted to appeal to a Government, found themselves weakened and handicapped through lack of unified support.

Until the ranks were solidified into one solid whole, people could not expect any Government to place the legislation on its statute books that would be in the interests of the masses rather than the classes. The workers would have to look to their laurels, he declared, and pay a little attention to what their representatives were doing.

TERROR BROODS OVER HERRIN IN KU KLUX STRIFE

Six Men Killed and Seventh Will Die in Gun Fight Saturday.

TROOPS PATROLING

"Bloody Herrin" Scene of Another Outrage—Men Suspect One Another.

HERRIN, Ill., Sept. 2.—A city of fear.

That is Herrin.

Fear of the neighbor next door. Fear of the man across the way. Fear of the fellow one passes on the street. Fear of the business man, of the worker, of the farmer, of the doctor, of the lawyer.

Fear begotten of fear.

That is why six men were shot to death Saturday afternoon and as many more wounded, one so that he will die.

That is why other men may die in battle with their fellow townsmen to-day, to-morrow or next week.

Disaster of Terror.

On the surface, the tragedy of Herrin Saturday is the result of a conflict between the Ku Klux Klan and those opposed to the organization. Fundamentally, the disaster of hatred that has divided the town originates in plain terror.

Troops are again parading the streets of Herrin. They were summoned by the sheriff, George Galligan, and when they arrived Saturday night their first duty was to serve as bodyguard for the sheriff and twenty-six of his deputies, who had sought sanctuary—again from the unknown "other side" —in the Herrin hospital.

In a statement Sheriff Galligan said that the shooting resulted from an attempt of the Klan forces to "gang" him. The trouble occurred at the garage of John Smith, who is said to be a Klan sympathizer, where the Sheriff and his deputies had gone to take possession of an automobile which, the Sheriff contends, had been used by the assailants of S. Glenn Young, Klan liquor raider, and his wife, near Okawville, Ill. May 23. State's Attorney Delos Duty had ordered him to seize the car, Galligan declared.

"Smith was not at the garage," the Sheriff explained, "and we were going to take the car, but found that it had a flat tire. This delayed us and in a moment a fellow slipped up to me and whispered, "Look out, they're going to gang you."

"I saw several cars out in front, and to be on the safe side started to search the occupants. I found four revolvers and a shotgun in the first car and was just going to search the next when a man in it opened fire. A whole volley of shots came from a grape arbor across the street.

"My two deputies—Ora Thomas, who was wounded in the head in the fighting, and Allison, who was killed—returned the fire.

Sheriff's Young Son Joins Fight.

At this point, the Sheriff said, his son, George Jr., who was in the party, ran up beside his father and took part in the firing. He was armed with a small pistol.

"When we went into the place," he continued, "I saw Green Dunning, who was killed, sitting there with four guns strapped to him. This man who is known about this town as 'Glenn Young the Second,' had an hour before declared that the only way to handle this is to chase them like we did Walton down in Oklahoma.' We took Herman Phemister, another of my men who was wounded, to the hospital and then I called the troops. I am determined to preserve law and order in Herrin if I can, and I didn't want to run the chance of another shooting breaking out over night."

The dead are all of Herrin. They are Green Deeming, Chester Reed, Dewey Newbolt and Charles Willard, J. H. Allison and Otto Roland. Roland was a bystander and was hit by a stray bullet, dying in the Herrin City Hospital, the same building that the Klan riddled with bullets the night of the February riot led by S. Glenn Young.

Harry Phemister, a bailiff in the Herrin City Court, was also shot and was reported at 3 o'clock to be dying. Carl Shelton was shot through the hand. Harry Herrin and Charles Denham were injured, but not seriously.

Dr. J. T. Black, owner of the Herrin Hospital, where Galligan and his men took refuge and, therefore, supposedly on the sheriff's side, was hauled from his automobile in front of the City Hall and a friend, Claude Craig, who

IDEAL RIPENING CONDITIONS FOR PRAIRIE CROPS

Local Rains During Week-End Failed to Delay Work of Harvesting.

MANITOBA FROST

Grain Fields of Saskatchewan Improve With Fine Weather.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Local rains in scattered districts throughout the three Prairie Provinces failed to retard harvesting operations where work had already commenced, according to the weekly crop report of the Agricultural Department of the Canadian Pacific Railway, issued Monday.

Ideal ripening conditions now exist and the report states that cutting is fast becoming general. Rye cutting is practically completed, and with considerable threshing done, the yield on the whole is better than anticipated.

Yield Above Average.

Crops in Manitoba, the report says, are favorable and all but very late cereals are reaching maturity and without danger from rust damage. The yield promises well above the average and the sample is reported to be good. Wheat cutting is practically general throughout the Province, although rains have retarded operations in some districts.

In Saskatchewan the appearance of grain fields has greatly improved during the past week, the weather being exceptionally favorable for ripening of the crops.

In the southern parts of the Province, wheat cutting is well under way but will shortly be general. Wheat stem saw-fly has caused minor damage in scattered districts and some loss has been attributable to rust infection.

Ripening in Alberta.

Ripening of grain has advanced rapidly in Alberta, and with continued favorable weather, wheat cutting will be fairly general during the coming week.

On the Edmonton, Dunvegan and British Columbia Railway harvesting has been delayed at all points owing to wet weather. Green feed and pastures, however, benefitted greatly by the precipitation. Cutting is expected to be resumed early this week.

British Columbia Warm.

Extremely warm weather has prevailed in British Columbia during the past week and fruit trees are making favorable progress. Prunes, plums, peaches, pears and apples are moving in good volume. The crops throughout the Province generally, according to the report, is much better than expected.

Wind Shells Oats.

BRANDON, Man., Sept. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Twenty per cent. of the oat crop northeast of Justice, was shelled out and is likely to be a total loss as the result of the windstorm which occurred in Brandon and district during the week-end. Some oats and a little wheat was also shelled out or broken in some parts of the Brandon district, but the damage was not very serious.

Though the lowest temperature registered last night was 32, slight frost damage was done the corn in Beresford district and tender garden stuff in the city was also touched.

LABOR PARADE AT MONTREAL

Eighty-Three Organizations in Column of More Than Two Miles.

NUMEROUS FLOATS

MONTREAL, Sept. 2.—(Canadian Press).—With Mayor Duquette, accompanying executives of the Montreal Trades and Labor Council, and ex-Mayor Mederic Martin walking with officers of Cigarmakers' Union No. 58, the annual Labor Day parade attracted a record turnout of trade unionists. The column was more than two miles long.

Colorful floats, multi-hued banners and flags, bands galore and a squad of pipers all lured the crowds which lined the route of the procession and cheered the marchers.

Eighty-three organizations lined up for the march each with a highly representation. Clothing workers of all kinds led the parade, then came the transportation section, miscellaneous unions followed, then the railway federation, the building trades, municipal employees, professional and theatrical workers, foodstuff workers and finally members of the allied printing trades.

Notable among the floats were those of the painters and decorators, the boot and shoe makers, and the chefs and restaurant employees. The tramways union had an unique exhibit comprising one of the old horse busses that ran over the Mount Royal Vale route several decades ago and it was placed in striking contrast with a duplex car of the latest model.

MEDERIC APPLAUDED

MONTREAL, Sept. 2.—(Canadian Press)—Mederic Martin, ex-mayor of Montreal and members of Cigarmakers' Union No. 58 came back to Montreal yesterday for the first time since he was defeated in the mayoral elections last May, and marched in the Labor Day parade. His ex-worship hinted that the last had not been heard of him as a mayoral candidate. "This is my first time in Montreal during the summer," he said. "I am resting, but wait another twenty months—wait." Mederic was given a great reception as he walked in the Labor Day procession.

CHILD DROWNED WHILE AT PLAY

BODY RECOVERED

HASTINGS, Sept. 1. — A sad drowning accident occurred on Saturday evening when Edgar, the little four year old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Stove, was drowned.

The little fellow had been playing with his other brother and sister and little playfellow and was missed by his parents about seven o'clock in the evening.

One little companion said that they were playing near the water and Edgar fell in. He did not realize the danger that their playmate had been in and never gave any alarm, but told the mother that he saw him kicking and shaking his arms around in the water. Thinking that this might be a fact, the race waters were dragged and about eleven o'clock in the evening the body was found at the foot of the race way near the tannery power house.

The parents have only been residing in Hastings about eight months and many do not know the little boy whose life was taken so suddenly. Much sympathy is expressed for the parents and brothers and sister.

WEDDING BROKEN UP.

Husband Was Killed in Accident Night After the Wedding.

NYACK, N.Y., Sept. 2—(Canadian Press).—West Shore Albany Express turned joyous wedding party into tragedy when two were killed, and two seriously injured at a dangerous crossing at Tappan, this side of Nyack, only one of the five men in the automobile, driven by Morris Goldstein Sr., was uninjured after the collision with the express train.

Of the two dead, Mr. Goldstein junior, had been married only the night before. He and Philip Falk, in the rear seat of the Goldstein car, were killed instantly. Young Goldstein was manager of Spring Valley Atlanta and Pacific Gracey Co. His bride, formerly Miss Edith Slezacoff had not been notified of the tragedy last night. CITY TENANTS MUST PAY RENT OR MOVE OUT

PRAISE CONCERTS

Alderman Phelan Denied Any Connection With Ball Park Finances.

At Saturday night's meeting of the Parks Committee it was decided to take legal action if necessary, to enforce payment of rent due to the City from city tenants. No longer will the municipal corporation in the role of a landlord do business in a haphazard way.

"They are only joking with us," said Chairman M. E. Turner. "Looks as though they are working the City to the limit."

"We can't fight with our tenants" declared Mayor Turner. "It would be better to have the City buildings empty. So long as I'm here, they will have to do business with the City in a business like way or get out."

At the present time no arrangement for leases with either of the above parties has been negotiated, the former leases having expired.

Unless rent due is paid before Sept. 4, the City Solicitor will enforce collection by legal proceedings and unless each party enters into satisfactory arrangements, in regard to releasing their premises by the same date, the City Solicitor will serve notice to vacate.

A resolution was passed recommending that the City build a con-

U. S. ARMY FLIERS REACH AMERICA AFTER FIRST WESTERLY CROSSING OF ATLANTIC

ON BOARD THE U. S. S. RICHMOND, at Ice Tickle, Labrador, Sept. 2.— The United States army fliers, Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith and Lieutenant Eric Nelson, came overseas Sunday from Greenland to Labrador, closing up another long and perilous gap in their round the world flight. They completed the air journey from the old world to the new, speeding across that dangerous and ice bound stretch of water from Ivigtut to Ice Tickle, a land-locked bay behind lofty ridges, two miles north of Indian Harbor.

Back to America

Just five months and fourteen days after beginning their world girdling tour the fliers landed in the waters of continental North America. They took the air at Ivigtut at 6:29 a.m. eastern standard time, and arrived at Ice Tickle at 1:18 p.m. eastern stand ard time. They completed the difficult crossing of the North Atlantic beset with mishaps and delays in the early stages, covering the last stretch of 570 miles— next to the Iceland-Greenland flight the most difficult of the entire Atlantic journey—in six hours and 49 minutes. They flew in a northwest wind which blew from twenty to forty miles an hour, and speeded their machines at times as high as 126 miles an hour.

First Western Crossing

The fliers brought to a successful termination the first continuous aerial circumnavigatidn of the earth, excluding the north American continent Their's was the first westbound crossing of the Atlantic Ocean by airplane.

The planes swept in from the ocean like huge gray gulls, and, flying low over the broad expanse of water, circled until they dropped to their bright yellow buoys and floated lightly in the green water under the shelter of lofty ridges of rocks.

This cove was chosen because of the comparatively safe landing conditions it affords and for the additional reason that it is situated on a promontory putting towards Greenland providing the shortest route across the arm of the Atlantic, which extends north northwest into Davis Strait.

Newspaper Men There

On shore near where the planes were moored were a group of newspapermen and camera men who had lived on the destroyers here since August 2, a few fisherfolk and a detail of sailors from the St. Lawrence.

The coming of the fliers was signalled to those at Ice Tickle by signal men from the Lawrence stationed on Rodney Mundy Hills close by, and then to the wireless station several miles away. Offshore, near White Cockade Island, was the Lawrence acting as guardship to the planes, after the aviators had picked up through the coastal haze the most extreme among the outlying islands.

The planes in their journey over the turbulent North Atlantic, strewn with ice and spattered with fog, had passed over the Milwaukee, off Southern Greenland, the Coughlan and the Charles Ausburn, which has been on patrol and which flashed ahead each in turn the passage of the planes overhead.

After a brief halt to replenish their fuel, the aviators plan to continue forty miles southward along the coast of Cartwright Bay, a much larger and more sheltered anchoring place, where a base has been established for the next take off. From Cartwright Bay brief stops are contemplated at Hawke Bay and Pictou Harbor N.S.

Warmly Welcomed

Despite the desolate aspect of the barren Labrador coast, empty of people except for the few fishermen and traders, the fliers met with a warm welcome on returning to the mainland. When the planes appeared above the rock islets outside the harbor, the Richmond, belching black smoke, as a guide to the pilots greeted them with ear splitting blasts of her siren.

Rear Admiral Magruder and Captain Colton went ashore to welcome the men home. All four, wearied with the physical strain of the journey and the suspense of long days since they left Kirkwall early in August expressed keenest joy. They declared that their world journey was virtually ended.

WOMAN WRITER DEAD.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Sept. 1.—The death occurred to-day of Mrs. F. S. Ruttan, wife of Dr. F. S. Ruttan at her home here. For 20 years under the pen name of Dorothy Dale, she had conducted the Mirror a department in the Woodstock Sentinel Review and was widely known as a woman journalist and a member of the Canadian Women's Press Club.

THE WEATHER.

The thermometer was up to 89 on Saturday, 91 on Sunday and 83 degrees on Monday. Sunday's temperature was the highest this summer, and probably will now stand as the record for 1924.—W.P.

CHARLES PEAKER WILL OPEN A PIANOFORTE STUDIO ON OR ABOUT SEPTEMBER 15, IN PETERBORO. FURTHER ANNOUNCEMENT WILL BE MADE LATER.

JINX MEETING AT CITY HALL

Four Members of City Council Observe Watch Night Service on Saturday.

Four members of the City Council observed watch night service on Saturday evening.

Alderman M. E. Turner called a meeting of the Parks Committee for 9 p.m. At 8.45 the Chief Magistrate was on deck, who with City Solicitor Wearing secured entry to the darkened committee room shortly after nine, by way of the City Treasurer's office. At 9.10 Alderman M. E. Turner and Stocker made an appearance, but yet one was required to make a quorum.

Despatches and phone messages failed to secure a quorum. The Aldermen summoned were out of the city. A black cat must have crossed the path of Chairman "Mel" Turner on his way to the City Hall. Something had thrown a jinx into the meeting.

By some good fortune, Alderman Phelan who had been in Oshawa, upon returning to the City at 10.30 came directly to the assistance of the forsaken three. When he loomed in sight, long sighs of relief indicated that the coast was now clear for sailing. A quorum had been reached. Without his vote, the efforts of the other three would have been constitutionally futile.

OTTAWA, Sept. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Right Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance, accompanied by Mrs. Fielding returned last evening from a visit to the Maritime Provinces. They were met at the station by members of their family. The condition of the veteran Finance Minister appeared about the same as when he left Ottawa. FIGHT FOR WRANGEL.

SEATTLE, Aug. 30. — (Canadian Press.)—A vessel named 'Red October,' flying the Russian flag, and armed with a six pound cannon and carrying a company of infantry, is bound through the ice from Petropavlovsk, Kamchatka Peninsula, for Wrangel Island, off the northern shore of Siberia, with orders to take all its inhabitants prisoners, seize all shipping and establish Russian ownership of the island in the name of the Soviet government, Lieutenant Colonel L. E. Broome, flight advancement officer for the abandoned British world encircling expedition, declared here to-day.

He gave this information to the United States' naval officers in command of the battle fleet here.

SIXTH RE-UNION OF COMRADES OF 21ST

Kingston Unit Prepares For Warm Welcome in Their City.

Once again ex-members of the 21st Canadian Infantry Battalion will gather together in happy reunion of that comradeship which found its inception in the great world war. This will be the units' sixth annual get-together, and the gathering is to meet at Kingston on Friday, September 19th, when the 21st Battalion Club of that city will undoubtedly play hosts to their visiting buddies with that unstinted generosity which always characterizes similar occasions in the Limestone City. Extensive preparations are under way for the event and all who accept the cordial invitation to be present are assured of a real jolly time with their former brothers-in-arms in France and Flanders.

This loyal brotherhood, engendered by the exigencies of a common danger to Canada and the British Empire, will wind up with a dinner at 8.15 p.m. At the banquet board, no doubt, many an incident of battle field, trench and camp will be recalled in an atmosphere reminiscent of those trying days so fraught with menace to life and limb and health, when Canada's arms fought and died for that liberty which is a Britisher's heritage.

Held during Kingston's Exhibition week, the re-union will commemorate the first trench relief the 21st carried out on the Messines front after their arrival in France. And like preceding and future assemblies of its nature, it must have a tendency to keep forever green the memory, not only of those comrades who fell in that engagement, but also of all who made the great sacrifice. If for the latter reason alone this sixth annual event should witness as complete a roll call as practicable.

Peterboro also has a 21st Battalion club with a present membership of 65. Oliver White is the president, and he urges that as many of his overseas comrades as possible attend the coming re-union at Kingston. The boys met in Aylmer, Quebec, last year, and both hosts and guests retain the happiest of happy memories of that fitting and altogether enjoyable function, at which some 36 comrades from this city gathered. Next year the re-union is to be held in Peterborough.

All ex-members of the unit who served at any time during the period November 3, 1914, to May 31, 1919, are cordially invited to attend this year's gathering at Kingston, where a warm brotherly welcome will await them. For further information communicate with E. Cockburn, 32 York street, Kingston, Ont.

crete sidewalk, running diagonally on the northwest corner of the Riverside Park property, from Hunter to Burnham streets.

This is the first official step towards the remedying of the East City eye-sore, so termed by residents of the old village. It has already been intimated that when the sidewalk is built, the trangular plot formed as a result will be grassed and lighted.

Toboggan Slide.

Alderman M. Turner introducing the matter of erecting a toboggan slide at Riverside Park recalling that last year the proposal was considered too late in the season. Following a short discussion a resolution carried, recommending the construction of a municipal toboggan slide and instructing the City Engineer to estimate the cost of the work.

Mayor Turner explained that by opening the gates and directing the course through the park, the slope of the land would prove a great advantage, decreasing the cost of the expenditure, which he stated had been estimatd at $500.00 last winter.

His Worship also mentioned the advisability of choosing the locations and planning for the city rinks in the near future.

Ball Parks Lease.

Alderman Phelan denied that he had anything to do with the park finances, after Chairman Turner read a communication from Messrs. W. J. Oke and Frank Convery, advising the Council that they had severed their connection with the City Peterboro Baseball Club or Association, pointing out that Alderman Phelan could adjust the financial end of the ball park lease with the City.

Concerts Appreciated.

"We have just completed our season of band concerts," said Mayor Turner, "and I think we should go on record, in an expression of our appreciation to the local organizatoins, that have been so generous, giving extra concerts without charge. Would like to thank the Salvation Army who recently gave a concert gratuitously. They have certainly tried to please everyone."

The concerts have attracted greater attendances this season than they have for years remarked Chairman Turner.

In accordance with the foregoing, a resolution was passed thanking the Peterboro Rangers Symphony Orchestra, Caledonian Pipe Band, Male Voice Choir and Salvation Army.

FINAL MESSAGE BY REV. BENNETT

Pastor of Campbellford Baptist Church Delivers Farewell Sermon.

HOLIDAY QUIET

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 2. — Rev. H. S. Bennett, who for the past five years has been pastor of the Baptist Church here, preached his farewell sermon Sunday night prior to his departure for his new field at Springford, near Brantford, for which place he leaves today. Mr. Bennett will be pastor of the united charges of Springford and Otterville, which are only three miles apart.

At his final service here Sunday he read to his congregation the farewell message of Paul to the Epheseans as told in the twentieth chapter of Acts, and selected as his text part of the thirty-second verse: "And now, brethern, I commend you to God and to the word of His grace," reaffirming the message that he has preached so earnestly since his coming to Campbellford.

Mr. Bennett has been called to a wider field of labor, and his new charge is located in one of the best districts of Western Ontario. While pastor here he has been loyally assisted by Mrs. Bennett, who was one of the most efficient members of the choir and a tireless worker among the young people of the congregation.

Closed to Traffic.

The bridge was closed to vehicular traffic Monday morning, and now the only place at which the river can be crossed by autos and wagons is at the paper mill, a long detour. The sidewalk on the north side of the bridge is still open to foot passengers, and one or other of the walks will be available until repairs are completed. It may, however, be necessary to keep both closed at certain hours of the day, but the school children are likely to be accommodated all the time.

Residents on the west side sending in orders to the merchants on the east side, or vice versa, are asked to do so early in the day, as the long detour is certain to cause delay in delivery.

Goes to Bracebridge.

Rev. R. Bloye, pastor of the Free Methodist Church for the past three years, returned Monday from the Eastern Ontario Conference that was held last week in Harrowsmith, near Kingston. He was accompanied by Mrs. Annie Ayrhart, who attended the conference as a lay delegate, and by Rev. Frank Soft and Lay Delegate Floyd Steenburgh of Cordova Mines.

Mr. Bloye has been appointed to the church at Bracebridge, the field being one of the best in the district. There is a large membership and a fine church building and parsonage, the property being entirely free of debt. Mr. Bloye will preach his farewell sermon Sunday evening and will leave for his new home next week.

Changes in Conference.

Rev. Frank Soft, who has served three years in the united charges of Cordova Mines, Havelock and Victoria, has been appointed to Verona and the associated charges. This field is the one in which the first Free Methodist Church in Canada was planted, and now contains the largest membership in the conference. Before entering the ministry Mr. Soft resided in Warkworth and Campbellford, and is now regarded as one of the leading preachers of the denomination.

Rev. W. H. Gregory of Warkworth goes to Toronto, and will be succeeded by Rev. C. Cronan of Kingston.

Rev. W. H. Ball of Frankford has been appointed to Kingston. His successor at Frankford will be Rev. R. Roebuck of Harrowsmith.

Rev. I. M. Loucks of Perth is the new appointed to Cordova Mines

Rev. John King of Brown Hill was appointed to the North Marmora church, succeeding Rev. G. A. Mitchell, who has been transferred to Newmarket.

Rev. R. Burnham, presiding elder of the district, has been superannuated and Rev. E. J. Lee of Huntsville succeeds him.

A Quiet Holiday.

All work, except that on the bridge, was suspended Monday, but the day passed quietly in town. Fishing parties were popular, and the scholars of the Salvation Army Sunday School had a picnic outing to Percy Boom.

AND HENRY PLAYED "LEAD"

President Coolidge knows how movies are made now. Thomas Edison, who with Henry Ford and Harvey Firestone dropped down to the president's father's farm near Plym-outh, Vt., the other day, showed him all about it. The flivver king played the leading role in the one-reel comedy the electrical wizard shot. But there's little likelihood it ever will be shown in your neighborhood theatre.

FELL OFF ROOF

Bert Dulmage of Dartford Escaped Injury on Gravel Pile.

ROSENEATH, Sept. 2.—Mr. Bert Dulmage of Dartford, while laying shingles on the roof of Mr. Chidleigh's barn at his summer home on Rice Lake, backed into a hole and fell about twenty-five feet into the cellar. He was lucky enough to fall on his hands and feet in a fresh pile of gravel, and except for a little shaking up, was none the worse of his fall.

Mr. Chas. Grigg has turned in his old car on a new sedan.

Messrs. Jas. Leslie and Lewis Dawn, Mr. Thomas Ingham and Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Braithwaite, Messrs. H. Brown and John Nichol and Mrs. Dr. Armstrong accompanied the local baseball team to Delora on Wednesday.

A lady visitor of Mrs. Dr. Armstrong had the good luck to land a twenty-eight-pound lunge recently. It measured forty-nine inches in length and seventeen in circumference. It was caught in Rice Lake near You Hero Lodge, Margaret's Island.

We regret that Miss Annie Brown is still confined to the hospital.

GERMANY'S BOSS BEGINS DUTIES

Owen D. Young Appointed Agent of Reparations And Takes Charge Wednesday.

FIRST PAYMENT

PARIS, Sept. 2.— Owen D. Young, of New York, Agent General for Reparations Payments, has informed the German Treasury that his office will be prepared to-day to receive the first 20,000,000 gold marks as called for under the London agreement. Mr. Young's office was opened in Berlin to-day, although he himself will not leave Paris until Wednesday.

The 20,000,000 gold marks will be the first payment on the 83 000,000 gold marks which will be placed at Mr. Young's disposal during September by the German and the Allied Governments. The French, Belgian and Italian Governments, beginning to-day, will turn over to the Agent General the proceeds from their administration of the Ruhr. These sums probably will amount during September to from 35,000,000 to 50,000,000 gold marks.

Germany will pay in September another sum of 20,000,000 gold marks, and if at the end of the transitional period of five weeks the entire 83,000,000 marks have not been made up Germany will supply the balance.

Mr. Young has conferred in Paris with the French and Belgian administrator of the so-called "Micum" agreements in the Ruhr, which expire to-day. He has asked them to see if they cannot be prolonged throughout September. If so the Agent General will immediately take over paying for coal and other deliveries in kind.

G. P. Auld, the expert American accountant attached to the Reparation Commission, accompanied by three assistants, has gone to the Ruhr to assist in the work at the request of Mr. Young.

WEDDING BELLS.

PEEL—SANDERSON

On Thursday afternoon, Aug. 28 at 2.30 o'clock at Springville Presbyterian Church in a beautiful setting of gladioli and ferns, Margaret Janet, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Sanderson of Cavan, became the bride of Albert Ronald Peel, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Peel of Port Perry. The Rev. Geo. J. Craw officiated. The bride, who was given away by her father looked charming, wearing a gown of ivory charmeuse having side pleating of flat crepe with pearl trimmings and a long flowing veil caught around her head by a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of ophelia roses, lily of the valley, baby's breath and ferns. Miss Helen Sanderson, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. She was dressed in a pretty frock of coral pink flat crepe and a large leghorn hat. Her bouquet was of gladiola, asters and baby's breath. Mr. Harry Peel, brother of the groom, was best man. Miss Daisy Murray played the wedding music, and during the signing of the register, Miss Marion Clarke, cousin of the bride sang 'Beloved It Is Morn.'

Immediately after the ceremony the bridal party and guests proceeded to the home of the bride, where a reception and dainty wedding dinner was held. Hooper's of Peterboro catered for the occasion. About thirty-five guests were present. Later Mr. and Mrs. Peel left amid a shower of confetti and good wishes on a motor trip to Montreal, Quebec and other Eastern points. The bride's travelling suit was of stone grey French tricotine, with hat and shoes to match. The gift of the groom to the bride was a beautiful Hudson seal coat with sable trimmings to the bridesmaid a rope of pearls, to the best man a white gold stick pin with a diamond set in onyx and to the organist and soloist white gold bar pins with pearl settings. The bride received many beautiful gifts, including a cabinet of silver from her father and a piano the gift of the groom's father and mother.

HARRISON—ARKILS.

A wedding of widespread interest took place at Castleton on Wednesday, August 27th, when Maude, second daughter of Mr. Jas. A. Arkils, became the bride of Harry Harrison, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Harrison of Plainfield. Rev. H. C. Wolfraim of Consecon conducted the ceremony in the presence of the contracting parties immediate relatives. To the strains of the wedding music rendered by Miss Velma Arkils the bride entered the drawing room on the arm of her brother, Mr. Jas. Arkils and looked charming in a dress of ivory canton crepe with lace trimming. Her filmy tulle veil was fastened with a wreath of orange blossoms and draped over the shoulders. She wore a string of pearls and carried a bouquet of roses. The bridesmaid was Miss Laurel Arkils, sister of the bride, wearing a dainty dress of peach silk jersey tricolette. The groom was supported by Mr. Donald Spencer of Belleville. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served to the guests. Mr. and Mrs. Harrison received many beautiful gifts of cut glass, silver and linen, among them forty-five pieces of silver given by her uncle, Mr. Geo. Murr of Sault Ste. Marie. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold brooch set with pearls and emeralds to the bridesmaid and pianist brooches set with pearls. The groom's gift to the best man was a set of white gold cuff links.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison left by motor for Toronto, Niagara Falls, Detroit and Buffalo, the bride travelling in a sand tricontine suit with hat to match. On their return they will reside at Plainfield.

FALL KILLS "HUMAN FLY."

George Oakley Drops From Fourth Story of Chambersburg Building

CHAMBERSBURG Pa., Sept. 2.—George Oakley, "human fly," of Pasadena, Cal., died here Saturday of injuries received last night in a fall from the fourth story of a bank.

Oakley had climbed up the outside of the building, steadying himself by clinging with a cane to an automobile inner tube which his wife held down to him from the windows above. The tube broke and Oakley plunged to the sidewalk, narrowly missing spectators.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1924.

THE CONCERT SEASON.

The Examiner is sure that the people of Peterborough generally will cordially endorse the resolution passed the other night by the Parks Committee of the City Council thanking the various musical organizations for their services during the park concert season.

In no other summer has there been such a varied programme of meritorious concerts or such a large average attendance as during the present season, which closed with a fine programme on Friday night by the band of the Peterborough Rangers.

During the summer there have been concerts by the Peterborough Symphony Orchestra, the Rangers' Band, the Male Voice Choir and the Caledonia Pipe Band, all of which organizations received civic grants, and by the Temple Band of the Salvation Army, which contributed a concert gratuitously, having not been included in the division of band grants.

Whether it will be possible to arrange another such series next summer is a question that will have to be dealt with later.

Certainly public support will be strongly in favour of such an arrangement, for this summer's concert series has proven most popular with the citizens.

The Parks Committee, in passing a formal resolution of thanks, has but made vocal the feeling of the thousands of people who have enjoyed the programmes of the various organizations during the last three months.

Incidentally, the patrons themselves are to be congratulated upon maintaining much better order than formerly, and the many motorists who kept their cars silent during the concerts may also be included in this halting word of praise.

MOTOR LICENSES.

There is an intimation that the Ontario Government is contemplating a new plan of issuing automobile licenses by which the Provincial Motor Vehicles Department will have complete charge of this work.

Financially the change would undoubtedly be a good one inasmuch as it is estimated the new plan would represent a saving to the Province of $40,000 a year.

On the other hand, there are valid objections.

At present the Ontario Motor League is in charge of the issuing of licenses and receives twenty-five cents for each license given out.

Naturally the Motor League objects to a change, and the motoring fraternity who appreciate what the Motor League has been able to accomplish on behalf of automobilists is undoubtedly of the same opinion.

The Motor League's activities are too generally recognized to need any elaboration in an article of this nature.

The Minister of Highways apparently is not yet committed to the principle of having the Province issue all motor licenses, and it is a matter that deserves more than passing consideration.

On one side of the argument there is an annual saving of $40,000 a year; on the other hand, the depriving of the Ontario Motor League of funds used for the general benefit of motorists and the fact that the present method of issuing licenses at a number of centres is much more convenient to the average automobilist.

PETERBOROUGH'S EXHIBITION.

"Stagnation" is a word that has no meaning so far as the directors of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition are concerned.

They count that year lost that does not see a substantial addition made to the Exhibition plant and new features added to the programme.

Thus 1924 has brought a new cattle barn and a substantial addition to the grandstand.

The latter structure will now provide accommodation for 4,000 people, each one of which will have an uninterrupted view of the race-track and the grounds generally.

No Fair in Eastern Ontario has so much accommodation for spectators, nor are there any exhibition grounds so well equipped with buildings or so neatly and attractively laid out, as Peterborough's Exhibition Park.

As for the Exhibition itself, which opens a week from tomorrow, there is every reason to expect an unrivalled entry list in almost every department.

Exhibitors, assured of fair treatment and adequate shelter, will flock to Peterborough next week, and in quality and number of exhibits a new high level is confidently anticipated.

Manufacturers and merchants likewise are more than usually keen to arrange for space for exhibits, and the special displays this year are expected to surpass the best showing of any previous Exhibition.

The amusement features ,it is promised, will show the same improvement indicated in other departments.

Money is being spent lavishly to secure attractions of a high order of merit, and Peterborough people can look orward to the Exhibition with confidence as likely to excel all similar efforts in the history of the big local Fair.

FACILITIES FOR RECREATION.

After devoting one of the hottest nights of the summer to discussing the construction of a civic toboggan slide at Riverside Park, the members of the city's Parks Committee can never again be accused of lack of vision or of failure to take time by the forelock.

The very thought of a toboggan slide on a humid August night must have had a cooling effect upon the city fathers.

Seriously, however, the committee may rest assured that the announcement in regard to the Riverside Park slide will be heard with pleasure by a large number of citizens.

There will be a general hope that they will succeed in impressing other members of the Council with the desirability of endorsing the plan, and that during the coming winter a start will be made toward providing the young people of Peterborough with an opportunity to safely indulge in the exhilirating cold weather pastime of tobogganing.

The Examiner has frequently expressed the opinion that it is the duty of the civic government to furnish facilities for healthful outdoor recreation, believing that more general indulgence in such sports will be reflected in a general toning up of the health and stamina of the community.

Peterborough needs more recreation fields, more bathing facilities, more civic skating and hockey rinks and provision for tobogganing and coasting.

A splendid start has been made along these lines, and if future Councils will recognize the wisdom of extending this policy from year to year, Peterborough's reputation as a fine city in which to live will be broadcasted from one end of the country to the other.

STORMY DAYS FOR THE KLAN.

The Ku Klux Klan, which at one time threatened to dominate American politics, and which split the Democratic Convention in New York into twain, has fallen upon evil days, says the Ottawa Journal. Last week it was openly and vigorously denounced by La Follette and Davis, Independent and Democratic candidates for the Presidency respectively, and now comes word that it has been castigated by Charles G. Dawes, Republican candidate for Vice-President, and that it has been hopelessly beaten in one of its citadels, Texas. Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, anti-Klan candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, has carried that State by a majority over her Klan opponent of 100,000. In a ringing statement she declares that her victory sounds the death knell of the Klan throughout the United States, adding that all Klan office holders will be ousted from their positions following her election.

The Klan had in its own body the seeds of its death. Exalting itself above the law, corrupting police, officials and judges, intimidating Governors and politicians, seeking to blackmail political parties, it adopted the slogan "Jew, Jug and Jesuit," warred on negroes, Jews, Catholics and people of foreign extraction, declared that it represented unadulterated 100 per cent. Americanism, made hatred and religious prejudice its foundation, and resorted to crimes and other forms of lawlessness of a revolting character.

In England the Klan would have been either laughed into extinction or policemanned into jail. For with its "invisible Empire" and its "Great Imperial Wizard," its "dragons" and "kleagles," its fiery crosses and white bed-sheets, it was as ludicrous as it was lawless. In America, however, which lacks the wisdom which England's age has brought her in dealing with such things, the Klan was taken seriously. Within a few years it swept over the South, and rolled up to the Canadian border, captured political power in numerous States, invaded Congress, and threatened the White House itself.

Democracies, however, no matter how wayward or how emotional at times, can always be depended upon in the end; and just as the voice of Lincoln and of reason destroyed the Know Nothing movement of 60 years ago, so the good sense and the fairness and tolerance of the American people have now risen up against the Klan. It still has power for mischief, can still make itself heard and felt in the election campaign now proceeding, but its doom has been clearly sounded.

DO WE LIVE TOO QUICKLY?

Carlyle wrote a pamphlet on democracy about sixty years ago to prove that, though there were ballot boxes at every street corner, this would not save individual or nation from the Divine nemesis that now and again strikes a balance and calls for a reckoning.

A Carlylean of the present day is telling us that this continent is leading the rest of the world in a race which may possibly force it first into the discard. Too much rush, he says, and too much hurry and hyper-enthusiasm, and a too scornful contempt for the old divisions of time and space are the means.

The letter has given way to the telephone; the horse to the automobile; the home-cooked meal to the quick-lunch counter, and the books of our parents to the movies of our children. We rush where we used to walk; we read while we run; we have no time but for the elementals and the high spots.

James M. Beck, Solicitor-General of the United States, the modern Carlylean, calls it the age of hippodrome. "The inventions of twenty-five years," he says, "challenge the mind to think and act with a rapidity until then unknown. Everything moves in high gear—mind and matter, body and brain." He looks with regret on the superficial speed of the times, when less than half the people take the trouble to vote, and only business and personal pleasure find response from the majority.

But Mr. Beck is a lawyer of the old school. He was brought up in the time of slower movement, of more thoughtful appraisal of things, and of ignorance of the speed inventions of this generation. His views are entirely different from those of Charles P. Steinmetz, the electrical wizard, who died lately, and who regards our reaction to our surroundings in the light of relativity.

"With our perceptions hastened one hundred thousand times, all things would appear slower," he says. "This would be a stationary world. The only motion we would see would be that of a bullet, which would crawl across our field of vision. With our perceptions a hundred thousand times slower, all things in nature would appear that much slower. We would see stones and plants move, and day and night would be alternate seconds of light and darkness."

This is an extreme view, and somewhere in between the slow motion camera speed of the last generation and the visionary theories of Steinmetz, the human mind will accommodate itself to its environment and cope with its difficulties as it grows and keeps pace with its discoveries.—London Advertiser.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Now for the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition. And then some thought about the empty coal-bin.

Peterborough's big Fair is little more than a week away. Time to talk it up in your letters to your friends.

"And then the schoolboy—creeping like a snail, unwillingly to school."

Nineteen twenty-four will be remembered as the year when summer weather arrived at the end of August.

The Toronto Star says that the providing of a larger tent for lost children at the Canadian National Exhibition is a crying need. This unintentional play on words is better than the Star's paragrapher's usual sample.

Cutting Alfalfa.

The second cutting of alfalfa will soon be over for the season, and in a few local places some is found, but not so plentiful as in previous years. Sweet clover, which was grown so extensively last year, has this year taken a back seat, as very little is seen on the farms.

Plenty of pasture is in the meadows for the stock, which is of great benefit to cattle especially. Plenty of rain during the summer has made splendid pasture, so that the milk supply has kept up far above the average of other years.

CIVIL WAR SHOTS EXPECTED TO-DAY

Thousands of Refugees Are Beginning To Pour Into Shanghai For Protection.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 2. — (United Press).—Battle lines are drawn on the outskirts of Shanghai to-day and the first shots of a civil war which is expected to assume proportions greater than the Chinese revolution are expected momentarily. Thousands of refugees are beginning to pour into Shanghai. Troops are expected at any moment. Every attempt is being made to placate the hostile war lords but so far all efforts have been futile and war seems imminent.

While the armies are not drawn up thirty miles from Shanghai it is believed that when the fighting starts it will start northward to Manchuria, and that the canny old leader, Chang Tso Lin, will thrust his army into the fray.

He has been carrying out extensive military preparations due to be completed in 1925, but it seems certain that the outbreak of the fighting will speed up the war plans and Chang will start a strong offensive.

Chang Tso Lin, militarist, will not stand by and see his friend and political mate, General Lu Yung Nsiang, leader of the Chekiang forces, meet humiliation at the hands of the Chili party.

The Chekiang troops are now reported to be moving along the Shanghai-Nanking Railway and have reached Nunangdoor. The left wing has also advanced to Liuho, on the Yantze River. Their objective is the Woo Sung forts commanding the port entrance at Shanghai. These forts are in command of General Ho Feng Lin, a friend of General Lu Yung Hsiang.

The right wing of the invading Chekiang forces have reached Tsingpu and their objective is the Shanghai - Hangchow Railroad, which is controlled by General Wu Fei Fu, leader of the Kiangsu forces.

A GASOLINE TAX IS NOT FAVORED

The Motor League Represents Car Owners Before Advisory Highway Board.

Prospective changes in the apportionment of road costs gave zest to the argument before the Advisory Board to the Department of Public Highways on the occasion of its recent public sitting in Toronto. The motorists of the province, as a class of road users were reresented before the board by officers of the Ontario Motor League.

Speaking for the owners of motor cars, W. G. Robertson, secretary-treasurer of the Motor League, pointed out that the position of the individual motorist was that of a tenant of the highways rather than owner or proprietor. This fact should be kept in mind in assessing highway costs, and the annual contributions of car owners as users of the roads should be measured in relation to the annual cost of maintenance rather than in relation to the year's total expenditure, the larger percentage of which with the present construction, went towards permanent improvements. The owner of a car this year might not be a car owner next year, or ever again, so why expect him to pay the capital cost of work, the benefit of which will be extended over a period of many years. It would not be unreasonable however to ask the motorist to pay each year a fair proportion of the maintenance costs occasioned by the wear and tear of vehicular traffic.

The principle that the road user should mainly pay for the roads, advanced by some representatives of the municipalities, Mr. Robertson contended, was one that was scarcely logical. Was it to be argued, for instance, that only the parents of children using the public schools should mainly pay for the schools? The principle was the same in each case. Public schools and Public highways were both national assets, and the costs mainly should be borne by the people at large. The value of good roads as an aid to agriculture, manufacture and to the general economic and social well-being of the entire country, was not to be gainsaid.

The representative of the Motor League also took exception to the argument that motorists should be made to pay heavily because they were wealthy as a class and could afford to pay. The average owner of a car to-day used his car for business rather than pleasure. This was evidenced by the fact that eighty thousand farmers in Ontario were now automobile owners, besides fifty-five thousand tradesmen and merchants, nine thousand commercial travellers, and fourteen thousand professional men.

Eighty per cent. of all passenger cars owned in Ontario were inexpensive cars of less than 22.5 horsepower, paying the minimum license fee of $14. The income of the average motorist to-day was in fact not sufficient to bring him within the income-paying class as the number of income tax payers in Ontario, according to statistics, issued from Ottawa, was considerably less than half the number of car owners. The automobile with most owners was an aid in making their living — a means to increased production. To tax transportation, therefore, was the same thing as taxing production, for every increase in the cost of transportation must of necessity find its way back to the ultimate consumer.

The League was not opposed to the principle of a gasoline tax, but did object to the imposition of a gas tax on top of existing taxes, or registration fees, which were sufficiently high. The gasoline tax had some good features, but its introduction should be accompanied by a scaling down of the present license fees. In the State of California, for instance, when a gasoline tax of two cents per gallon was put into effect, the car registration fee was cut down to a flat three dollars on each car. In the Province of Quebec, which recently adopted the gas tax, the basis for the registration fee was changed from horsepower to weight, with a resultant reduction in the license fee averaging several dollars per car. If the Ontario license fee were reduced to the point where the average car owner would pay no more with the gasoline tax than at present, the League would offer no objection to the tax.

The amount of revenue which a tax on gasoline would produce in Ontario was estimated by the Motor League representatives at approximately one million dollars for each cent per gallon.

As over a million cars owned in the United States make use of Ontario's highways annually for touring purposes, a gasoline tax would yield a big additional revenue to the Province from this source without the net paid by the average Ontario explained.

20% MORE POWER - 50% LESS UPKEEP - NO VALVE GRINDING - NO CARBON CLEANING

1,2,3,4,5 Years — Still a Young Car

THINK of the pleasure of owning a car whose engine literally is even quieter and smoother at 15,000 miles than when new!

While the majority of automobile owners keep changing from one car to another, Willys-Knight owners keep right on with their Willys-Knight.

The Knight-type engine is the only engine in the world that actually improves with use. Simply because it has silent sliding sleeve-valves instead of pounding, noisy tappets.

The Willys-Knight has the most powerful engine of its size ever built—and the quietest.

Here is a car with all the thrill of 42 horsepower—a car you can drive hour after hour—without overheating—without loss of power—without engine trouble—without carbon cleaning—without ever needing valve grinding.

It is common for Willys-Knight owners to report 50,000 miles and more without spending a cent for repairs on the engine. Think of the economy and satisfaction of that!

If you want a car of beauty and distinction—a car whose power is smooth as silk—a car that makes driving an everlasting pleasure —turn to the Knight!

SHOULD FINISH THE WATERWAY SAYS PRESIDENT

Mr. Gordon K. Fraser Urges Completion of Locks in Severn District.

TALKS TO ROTARY.

Says People Should Not Look Upon Trent System as a Ditch.

An interesting description of the Trent Waterway and an eloquent plea for general support for that organisation and on behalf of the completion of the locks in the the Severn section, featured the address of Mr. Gordon K. Fraser, president of the Trent Waterway Association at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club to-day.

Rotarian A. L. Killaly occupied the chair.

Mr. Fraser described the gradual construction of the Trent Canal, beginning in 1833. He hoped, he said, that by the time the one hundred years were passed the waterway would be completed.

Rotary Clubs and other organisations and the community generally in the district through which the Trent Waterway ran, should unite in urging upon the Government the construction of the locks at Big Chute and Swift Rapids, thus opening the waterway to many boats at present unable to complete the route.

The construction of these locks, Mr. Fraser said, would be of direct benefit to the people of every municipality along the waterway.

The speaker urged his hearers not to regard the Trent system as a ditch. It was a waterway offering some of the finest river and lake scenery in the world, and it was developing valuable power at nearly every dam along the route.

Speaking of the Trent Waterway Association, Mr. Fraser said that it was composed of representatives of the municipalities along the waterway, had made an annual exhibit at the New York Motor Show, attracting numerous tourists, had been instrumental in having many charts prepared and had issued nearly 100,000 booklets advertising the Trent.

The appeal was not made solely to motor boat owners, but also to tourists who came by car or boat.

Chairman Killaly remarked that the Association had been wise in describing the system as a waterway rather than a canal inasmuch as only 32 miles of the whole route was of artificial construction. Declaring that the total number of lockages this year would probably reach 15,000 as compared with 14,000 in 1923, Rotarian Killaly said that the advertising done by the Trent Waterway Association was responsible for the increase in traffic.

Rotarion Leon Frazer, who is secretary of the Association, thought that Ontario should have a Provincial-wide organisation to advertise its advantages from a tourist viewpoint. The Waterway Association might be the nucleus of such an organisation.

It was announced that the District Governor would visit the local Rotary Club on 22nd September.

Duck Season Opened Unsuccessfully For Many Who Shouldered Their Guns Yesterday Morning.

Some duck hunters who returned to the city yesterday evening after a long day in the marshes, had not a good word to say about the sport, and declared their firm intention to hunt something more plentiful next year. As usual, there were more hunters than ducks, and while Paudash Point and Jubilee yielded a small tribute to the guns of the hunters, the most heavily sweatered and booted citizens returned crestfallen, with empty sacks. Some had contented themselves with mud-hens, which seemed plentiful.

A Toronto party, returning from some mysterious location on the Otonabee, at 2 o'clock this morning, boasted that between them they had secured one man's quota for the day, 25 ducks. The bags they displayed were heavy, but as they ravenously attacked a meal in a George street restaurant there was a suspicious reticence that discredited the story that all the bag contained was ducks. Charles Scott, apparently leader of the party, refused to divulge the exact location of the place where the Peteboro ducks celebrated Labor Day.

According to local reports, the ducks do not believe in supporting home industry, when they leave the places Peterboro men have decided to hunt over, and give themselves away to visitors from Toronto.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 2—(Canadian Press)—Canadian bride of Prince Erick of Denmark, formerly Miss Frances Lois Booth of Ottawa, is seriously ill of blood poisoning at the hospital near here. Prince Erick is said to be constantly at her bedstide.

BAIL FOR MATTHEWS.

Thirty Thousand Dollars Is Asked For Release Of Accused.

TORONTO, Sept. 2. —(Canadian Press)—Justice Fisher at Osgoode Hall this morning approved application for bail of Chas. A. Matthews, Jr., former deputy provincial treasurer, who week ago was committed for trial at next sitting of general sessions court on charges arising out of the sale of provincial bonds. Magistrate Jones in committing Matthews for trial refused to accept bail and in consequence application was made to higher court. Bail was fixed this morning at $30,000 in securities to be approved by Crown Attorney.

Former Deputy Provincial treasurer was released at two this afternoon when securing of bonds was completed. When application for bail was made, Crown Attorney McRuer declared that Matthews should be looked upon as a fugitive from justice and bail was refused. His Lordship maintained that case was one for substantial bail.

PRINCE RESTING UP.

Crowds Will Not Leave Him Alone—Won Polo Game.

SYOSSET, N.Y., Sept. 2.—Canadian Press).—Prince of Wales began his day this afternoon having retired at 6 this morning after an evening spent at home of one of his Long Island neighbours. It is the second time since his landing here, when he left Burden home to spend an evening in the company of only his equerry and one or two American friends.

Inspector Charlton of Scotland Yard, who guards the Prince stated that the Prince was thrilled by his experience at the race track yesterday and remarked that 'twas "Rather good fun."

Fatigued after morning spent on Polo grounds and an afternoon at the Belmont race track during which a large crowd closed about him at every opportunity, Prince of Wales planned more secluded day of exercise to-day. Yesterday morning in a Polo match, the Prince was on team which won team 7 to 5 and to-day he expected to ride his Polo ponies again in scratch game and to attend dinner party at night at home of Major H. R. Winthrop in Westbury.

As result of his experiences since arriving in States it is expected that the heir to the British throne may try to avoid the public here as he is likely to be recognized. At the race track he was delayed at all times by friendly milling crowd and by a barrage laid down by camera men.

RUSSIA NOT ALONE.

LONDON, Sept. 2. — "Russia has been described as a huge slum," declares James Stewart, the under-secretary of health for Scotland, "but if you go to the Hebrides you will find thousands of homes not excelled for squalor anywhere. There are habitations in the Hebrides without windows or chimneys, and there are habitations there in which human beings and cattle are living under the one roof."

CHILDREN'S DAY NEXT WEDNESDAY

The Peterborough Exhibition Throws Its Gates Wide Open—Absolutely Free.

Children will be admitted free to the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition next Wednesday, and the most thrilling things ever seen in Peterborough will be on exhibition especially for them.

All exhibits will be in their places in the dozens of buildings and tents, and here they may see everything from huge motor tractors to the insides of watches and clocks. There will be competitions they may enter and hundreds of little books they may take home.

The midway will be in full swing and the hot-dog men will chase away nothing but hunger.

The big vaudeville show will be given in front of the grandstand, and at night every boy and girl in the city can be on the grounds to see the fireworks display.

G. H. Roper and D. A. Loomis, who are known by every boy in the city, will run off races specially for children, and a fine list of prizes has been prepared.

And the best part of the whole thing is that everything is free for the children from one o'clock on. Exhibitions in the buildings, band concerts, vaudeville, clowns, grandstand seats, races and fireworks are all wide open. No tickets, invitations or money are required. When the gates open at one o'clock on Wednesday next week every boy and girl in the city may walk right in and make himself at home, through the kindness of the Exhibition Board, of which Roland Denne is president.

A FATAL ACCIDENT.

WINDSOR, Sept. 2. — When an automobile, in which she was driving with relatives was struck by a Windsor, Essex and Lake Shore electric car early this morning, Miss Adelaide Siebert, of Kitchener, received injuries from which she died some ninety minutes afterward. The accident occurred near Cottam, about twenty miles from here when the party was returning to Detroit from Kitchener. Miss Dorothy Hahn of Detroit is the most seriously injured of the survivors, sustaining a fractured skull. The other occupants of the car were J. Wilfred Mistel, Detroit, who was driving his wife, and four year old daughter. They were cut and bruised.

WILL PASS BELLEVILLE.

Prince Will Not Accept Invitation To Visit Town.

BELLEVILLE, Sept. 2.—(Canadian Press).—His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales will be in the United States until after September 8th, and regrets that he cannot accept the invitation of Mayor Mikel of Belleville to unveil the U. E. L. Log Cabin Memorial here, according to a telegram to-day from Captain Lascelles, the Prince's personal aide.

WEDDING BELLS.

CROWE—GOODIER.

MONTREAL, Sept. 2. — (Special.)—The marriage is taking place quietly at half past five o'clock this afternoon of Miss Florence Mary Goodier and Mr. Cyril Holsworth Crowe, of Peterborough Ont., at the residence of the bride's brother, Mr. Wm. N. Goodier, 5346 Park avenue. The ceremony will be conducted by the Rev. G. A. McIntosh, pastor of St. James' Methodist church. The bride will be given away by her brother and wear a gown of powder blue faced canton, carrying a bouquet of ophelia roses. Her only attendant will be Miss Winifred Bray, wearing a gown of biscuit colored satin faced canton, with overskirt of old gold Spanish lace. Mr. G. S. Parlour, of Peterborough, will act as best man. A reception will be held after the ceremony, after which the bride and groom will leave for a trip to the Eastern States and Nova Scotia. On their return Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Crowe will reside in Peterborough, Ont.

LEWIS—BULLOCK.

VANCOUVER, Aug. 23.—Under a floral arch of white carnations, Miss Winifred Amy Bullock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred E. Bullock, and Mr. Edward Dewart Lewis, head of the Department of English, State Normal School, Lewiston, Idaho, son of Rev. and Mrs. J. G. Lewis, were united in marriage by Rev. J. G. Lewis, at the home of the bride's parents, 2525 Second Avenue West, on Friday evening.

To the strains of the wedding march, played by Mrs. George B. McLellan, the bride entered the room with her father, who gave her in marriage. Her wedding gown was of white crepe back charmeuse, fashioned along simple girlish lines, relieved with two knife-pleated georgette panels, and finished around the neck and sleeves with tiny pearls. Her flowing veil of hand-embroidered silk net was held in place with a spray of orange blossom and she carried a bridal bouquet of ophelia roses. Miss Doris Bullock and Miss Marguerite Bullock, sisters of the bride, as bridesmaids, were prettily dressed in mauve and shell pink brocaded flat crepe frocks, with dainty knife-pleated georgette frills, and hats to match, trimmed with osprey. The former carried pink sweet peas and the latter the same flowers in mauve. Mr. Hunter Lewis, brother of the groom, acted as best man. During the signing of the register Miss Marion Saunders sang 'Dawn.'

The bride's mother looked charming in midnight blue corded satin, relieved with touches of fawn georgette, and caught at the side with flowers in draped effect, while the groom's mother wore heavy sand colored satin, also in draped style, and pearls.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held, pink, mauve and white sweet peas, asters and carnations in profusion being used throughout the rooms, and a color scheme of white and mauve being carried out in the dining-room and on the tea table.

Mrs. Burton Lewis poured tea and Mrs. Claude Yuill coffee, while Mrs. F. N. Bullock served ice cream. Assisting in serving were Miss Marguerite Clark, Miss Doris Fulton, Miss Jessie Casselman, Miss Marion Wilcox, Miss Louise Campbell, and Miss Muriel Aylard of Victoria.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis left by motor on a three weeks' trip in the south, the bride travelling in a smart grey French cloth coat, with fur trimmings, and a small powder blue hat. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis will reside at Lewiston, Idaho.—Vancouver Daily Province.

PARIS, Sept. 2.—(United Press). —Professor MacCurdy of Yale University, who is making excavations for traces of men at the Cro-Magnon period in Northern France, has discovered what he believes is mute evidence of a prehistoric duel between the giant cave men of the era.

The professor has unearthed a number of ancient skeletons, one of them with a flint sticking in the ribs, indicating the man was stabbed. From what is known of the habits of the men of the ancient period, the professor believes that a duel is not improbable, possibly over possession of a woman.

CHINA.

In Chinese movies, instead of passing ice water, patrons are handed steaming hot towels by ushers, for wiping faces and hands. An interpreter, standing near the screen, explains the captions and situation in Chinese. Returned travelers say the Chinks like comics and action pictures, especially Wild West. They are bored by love scenes, triangle plots, sex entanglements.

As we come increasingly into economic contact with the Orient, we'll observe that the yellow race has about as much emotion as a pail of putty. China is an old man, America a youth.

TERROR BROODS

was riding with him, also was dragged to the street. Some one sent a bullet past the doctor's ear. He and Craig were rushed to jail — not against their will, as each feared lynching.

Accused of Murder.

To-day they find themselves charged with the murder of three of the six men who died Saturday. The complaining witness is T. H. Ford, brother of John Ford, one of Herrin's two acting—and conflicting —chiefs of police.

The underlying reason for the arrest of Dr. Black, in whose hospital for two years the wounded of Herrin's shootings have found refuge, is said to be that the Klan element has suspected that the institution has been used as a fortress for Sheriff Galligan and his deputies.

Coroner Postpones Action.

The Klansmen insist that the Sheriff and his force, hurried to the hospital immediately after Saturday's shooting, were welcomed within its protecting walls by the doctor, and one rumor was to the effect that three men, presumably deputies,, were seen lugging a machine gun into the hospital with them.

Dr. Black, who when released on bail Sunday, was escorted to the hospital by two Guardsmen, said that the Sheriff and his deputies have frequently visited the hospital. But he insisted that he is neutral in this civil strife, and dismissed as ridiculous the charge that the institution has been utilized as a fortress or that machine guns were there.

The release of the physician, generally regarded in Herrin as one of the most peaceable of citizens, was effected through his wife, who is a sister of Chester Reid, one of the men slain in the battle.

The Klan Version.

According to the Klan version, the shooting was precipitated when Deputy Allison struck Charles Denham, seated in a car outside the garage, with the butt of his revolver.

Denham fell back unconscious as Allison and Dunning, who was in the street, clinched, according to the story, and as the two men rolled over and over, Ora Thomas shot Denham in the back of the head. Charles Willard, another Klansman, also in the car, leaped out and ran across to the grape arbor. He was shot to death. Otto Roland was struck and killed by a stray bullet.

Reports vary as to the manner of Chester Reid's slaying. The Klansmen say that Reid, who had driven up to the garage next door with his wife and six-month-old son, stepped within the Smith garage upon hearing the disturbance and was shot down by the Galligan forces. The other version is that he was struck by a stray bullet as he sat in the car in the street.

Those of the Klan forces besides Smith for whom warrants have been issued are Harold Crane, former Herrin policeman; Charles Denham, Harry Herrin, Thomas Thornton, Sam. Childers and John Whiteside.

Carl Shelton was shot through the hand by a stray bullet. Sheriff Galligan said he believed that Dewey Newbolt, one of the Klansmen seated in Denham's car, fired the shot. Newbolt was slain.

JEWS DISREGARD OWN COMMITTEE

Resolution to Remain Away From Unofficial Meetings in Montreal

SCHOOL ENQUIRY

MONTREAL, Sept. 2—(Canadian Press.)—Representatives of thirty-eight Jewish organizations have decided to boycott the three Hebrew Commissioners named as part of the committee of nine appointed by the Provincial Government to study the Montreal school problem.

By a vote of 38 to 19, the Jewish community council and the United Synagogues have adopted the following resolution:

"It is resolved that the congregations societies, Talmud Torah (Hebrew Schools) and other organizations shall not send delegates to the unofficial sittings of the three Jewish commissioners but should send delegates only to the official sittings of the school commission of nine."

The action is taken, it is stated, because it is not thought that the three Jewish members named to the commission are representative of the majority of Montreal Jews.

TWO O. T. A. OFFENDERS

Tweed and Marmora Men Prefer Jail to Fines.

MARMORA, Sept. 2.—Magistrate German of Bancroft had before him here on Friday two young men charged with infringement of the O.T.A. The night previous Constable G. O'Neill of Deloro found them in possession of six bottles of liquor. One was a local man but the other hailed from Tweed.

The former was fined $200 and costs with the alternative of three months in jail while the other who was more implicated was fined $400 or four months' imprisonment. Both chose jail and were taken to Belleville the same evening by Constable H. Gillen of Marmora.

MONTREAL, Sept. 2. —(Canadian Press.)—Four more guards at Bordeaux Jail were suspended Saturday as a result of information obtained by the Government Commissioner probing into the plot of last week, when Giuseppi Serafini attempted to escape and secret arrangements had been made for the get-away of three more of the robbers awaiting execution for the murder of Henri Cleroux, bank chauffeur in the Hochelaga Bank hold-up of last April. Up to the present 12 guards are in the toils. Four are awaiting trial on charges of complicity in the liberation plot while eight others are suspended from their functions.

MIDDLE SCHOOL EXAM RESULTS

Winnietta Saunders Awarded Medal for Highest General Standing.

AT CAMPBELLFORD

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 2.—The students at the Campbellford High School have been as successful at the Middle as at the Upper School examinations. There was a general complaint throughout the province that the Department tests were unusually severe this year, but the Campbellford students did not find them so apparently.

The medal won by Winnietta Saunders is awarded every year by Dr. H. S. Peake, a former student, who is now located in St. Louis, Mo., to the candidate making the highest general stand at the middle school examination. Miss Saunders made a phenomenal record taking first class honors in five, second in one, and third in one of the eight subjects.

One of the I.O.D.E. Scholarships is awarded for the best stand in English and the other for the highest marks obtained in British history.

The result of the candidate's examination is indicated by papers as follows:

SMP Enameled Ware has the smooth surface and polish of fine crockery—without the breakage. And it is so very easy to clean—just like china, and therefore makes light work of pot washing.

Try this test. Take an SMP Enameled Ware sauce pan and an all-metal sauce pan of equal size. Into each pour a quart of cold water. Put on the fire at the same time. The SMP sauce pan will be boiling merrily when the water in the other is just beginning to simmer.

CAMP-FIRE DANCE AT BIG JAMBOREE ATTRACTS PRINCE

Wembley Stadium is Scene of Great Empire Gathering of Boys — Memorable Scenes Enacted

Seated on a platform of pine logs before a camp fire, smoking his pipe and wearing a blanket around his shoulders, the Prince of Wales joined in the songs and choruses of the Boy Scouts from all parts of the Empire who took part in the Jamboree at the Wembley Stadium.

It was the end of a strenuous day during which the Prince had played a leading part, and the informal sing-song around the fire at the camp near the Stadium obviously appealed to him. Behind were the bell tents of the Scouts glowing softly with welcome lights.

The Prince lit his pipe and, turning to the Chief Scout, Sir Robert Baden-Powell, he asked: "What about a song?" And the songs came. Led by the sweet-voiced Welsh choir, who thrilled with their national songs, other groups took up the choral challenge. There, in the darkness, were sung the songs of the open air.

"BOM—BOM—BOMBAY."

Scouts from India rivalled the Welsh lads with a stirring song, "Oh, What a Happy Land is India!" with the catchy chorus, "Bom—bom—bom—Bombay." But when some silver-voiced English boys sang "My Nut-brown Maiden," the Prince, beating time with his pipe, joined in the chorus; and when "Widdicombe Fair" was sung by the Wessex contingent he led the singing, leaving Lord Glanusk and Sir Robert Baden-Powell to join in the chorus.

Tee lap she bah,
Tee lah she basha,
Cora bella, cora bella, ching, ching a ching,
A Cora (louder), a Cora (yell it), a Cora, Serama, Serama, Serah!

It was a surprise and a delight when the Prince left his seat just before the end of the concert and joined in a wild Highland reel in the light of the leaping flames.

Then, at the call of the bugle, there was a trail to the tents.

THE PRINCE'S TENT.

The Prince, who was one of the last to leave the camp fire, walked to his quarters, consisting of a small oblong tent, one section containing a table, six wicker chairs, and a hanging oil lamp. Partitioned off was the bed-room, with an iron bedstead, a tin washstand, two cane chairs, a small table with a shaving glass, and an oil lamp.

Reveille at six o'clock found the Prince up with the earliest. The camp was gay with healthy youngsters splashing at their toilet, while the Prince, in shirt sleeves and shorts, enjoyed a morning pipe.

Every Scout was keen on putting a final polish to his equipment in anticipation of the great Sunday morning service in the Stadium, attended by the Prince and 15,000 boys, conducted by the Archbishop of York.

STADIUM SERVICE

The congregation was spread out like a great khaki carpet, the gaudy neckerchiefs of the boys making a brilliant pattern, while the vivid patterns made a canopy of color.

By means of loud speakers, the service was heard distinctly in all parts of the Stadium, particularly the address of the Prince of Wales.

The Prince said:

You are the future Empire men, and it is up to you to carry out your Scout Law and be prepared for these great possibilities which, at the same time, will offer you a great opportunity. The best way to prepare yourselves is to go on with your scouting and gain all you can in health and strength both of body and mind.

If you go forward in the spirit that has brought you here today, you will not only find many of the difficulties of your life less formidable than they might appear, but, what is more important, you will also be setting an example in unselfishness that cannot fail to be a blessing to the community in which you reside and to the Empire as a whole.

LADY CREWE IS ROBBED OF JEWELS

Gems Valued at $8,500 Taken in Daylight Theft at Cowes

The Marchioness of Crewe, wife of the British Ambassador to France, who is among the guests of Sir Godfrey and Lady Baring at Nubia House, Cowes, had about $8,500 worth of jewellery stolen from her bedroom.

Lady Baring saw a stranger in the hall, who asked for Sir Godfrey Baring. Lady Baring said he would shortly be there. Without waiting, the man apologized and said he must be going.

He went out by a door leading into the garden where other members of the house party were, and then ran down the garden path and out of a gate into Cliff-road.

Shortly afterwards Lady Crewe's maid reported that she had found Lady Crewe's bedroom in disorder and a jewel case, which was left in a drawer of the dressing-table, open and many articles of jewellery missing.

The list of the missing articles is as follows:

Gold ring set with six large rubies.
Gold ring set with large diamonds.
Gold ring set with emeralds and diamonds.
Gold ring set with two diamonds and large pearls.
Gold ring set with diamonds and rubies.

ELECTRIC CABLE FAULT DISASTER

An explosion caused by a fault in a main electric cable at Manchester, blew up the pavement in three places at the junction at Deansgate and King's-road, Manchester, and wrecked the premises of an optician.

A woman on the pavement at the corner of King-street West, was hurled some distance away but was uninjured, and a woman cyclist fell from her machine and suffered from shock.

Adam and Eve Tale Is Myth Says Canon Barnes, Now Bishop

"There was no special creation of Adam and Eve . . . probably a gradual evolution of a tribal group of monkeys, who slowly began to show a brain development characteristic of humanity," was the assertion to the London Evening News of Canon Barnes, of Westminster, who has been appointed Bishop of Birmingham.

The time had come, he added, when the biological doctrine of evolution must be accepted by all churches. According to biologists, an animal in whom human characteristics could be discerned probably appeared not less than about a million years ago.

Since then there has been a gradual development of that humanoid being, which has finally led to civilized man as we now know him. In this picture of the past there is no room for the garden of Eden.

C. P. Hall, who has been chief land agent to the Duke of Bedford since 1896, has resigned owing to ill-health.

Overseas Welsh On Visit to Eisteddfod Greeted By Audience

Nearly 200 Welshmen and women from overseas were introduced to an audience of about 16,000 at the Eisteddfod at Pontypool.

The "conductor," whose function it is to control these assemblies, called out the name of an overseas country. The visitors from that country stood up and bowed, while 10,000 voices cheered them.

Welsh people from the United States, Patagonia, India, Australia, and New Zealand were acclaimed in this way.

The Bard, who was chaired turned out to be last year's crown Bard, the Rev. Albert Jones, of Penmaenmawr.

Sir Richard Terry created a surprise among an audience reared musically on "Messiah," by appealing to them to leave alone for a time the "Bow-wow choruses of the classic oratorio, while they learnt something of the beauties of Handel's operas and songs."

CONRAD'S FUNERAL QUIET CEREMONY

Great Author Buried Under Trees in Canterbury Cemetery

Joseph Conrad, the novelist, was buried in a quiet corner of Canterbury Cemetery, in a coffin of plain yellow oak.

A few people came from London—his publishers, his solicitors, half a dozen friends. Mr. Cunninghame Graham and Mr. Edward Garnett, with Mr. W. W. Jacobs, were the outstanding writers present. Count Racznyski represented the Polish Minister, and a representative of the Polish newspapers attended. The Dean of Canterbury was there, but did not officiate, and also Canon Ashton Gwatkin, of Bishopsbourne, where Conrad had his home.

About sixty people, many of them Canterbury townsfolk, gathered under the trees at the entrance to Canterbury Cemetery. Conrad was a Roman Catholic, and at twelve o'clock a Requiem Mass was held in St. Thomas' Roman Catholic Church.

Dr. J. C. Carlyle represented the Royal Society of Literature. The floral tributes were comparatively few—not more than a dozen wreaths adorned the grave. These were personal, and contained words of intense sympathy.

Many Apply For Police Jobs, But Very Few Chosen

Chief constables and police authorities throughout England are concerned by the difficulty in securing recruits for the police, says the Daily Mail.

Nottinghamshire Constabulary requires ten men; no fewer than 380 candidates have applied, but only four have proved suitable. The Bristol force needs men, but of 600 applicants only three have passed the medical examination and satisfied other requirements.

Candidates for the police force must be of irreproachable character, between 18 and 30 years of age, at least 5ft. 9 ins. in height and of sound education. The lowest rate of pay is £182 per annum and the highest £2,000, each with allowances, followed after 25 years' service by a pension equal to half pay of the rank attained, or two-thirds pay if another five years are served. Pensions are based on a 5 per cent. contributory scheme.

Police training is now organized scientifically and big towns like Birmingham, Manchester and Liverpool have training colleges where recruits are taken through a course of police duties.

TRAVELLERS WHO FORGET CLOTHING

London Hotel Managers Faced With Big Problem

VAST SHOPPING

New York Banker Left Fifteen Suits Behind

At this time of the year when wealthy visitors to London are filling their trunks with new treasures, one of the biggest problems that hotel managers have to face is to identify, and if possible restore to their owners, all the property that is left behind by departing visitors.

One type of visitor who is a familiar figure in the international hotels de luxe of the world, deliberately abandons great quantities of clothing and personal belongings with which he does not wish to be burdened, and often laughingly resents being reminded of them.

"This year people, particularly men, are leaving behind more things than ever," it is stated at the Savoy Hotel. "It is probably due to the vast amount of shopping that they are doing in London. They replace so many of their things while here that they do not worry about some of the things they brought with them. At the same time they all have to be informed of their 'forgetfulness.'"

An example of the nonchalance with which the wealthy traveller regards his wardrobes occurred at the beginning of the season when an English banker arrived at an hotel with five trunks and suitcases and two dressing-cases. He left for Paris by air, taking only one dressing-case and a suitcase, and from Paris went to New York from Cherbourg, never giving another thought to his other possessions in London.

He sent no reply to a letter which awaited him at his New York bankers reminding him of his luggage, which included 15 suits, and when he returned to his suite a month ago, he was surprised and almost embarrassed to find his abandoned clothes waiting for him.

Women, as a rule, do not leave behind so much as men.

KESWICK ESTATE SOLD FOR SONG

Bassenfell, a large house overlooking Bassenthwaite Lake, realized only £2,150, the price including a 28 acre farm and woodland, with about £500 worth of timber.

It had been sold to wind up the estate of the late Colonel Wheatley. The auctioneer said the property "would be a gift for £5,000." The house has 21 bedrooms.

SEASIDE ROMAN VILLA UNEARTHED

More discoveries at the Roman site on the east cliff at Folkestone, which is being excavated, have led S. E. Winbolt, the archaeologist in charge, to believe that it was the site of a villa with grounds sloping gently to the sea. Everything was lavish in the house, and there were at least three hypocausts or warming chambers for heating a house or a bath.

One of the most important of the discoveries is the remains of a cold plunge bath, which was probably filled in with earth more than 1,000 years ago. Both the inlet and the outlet drains have been found; there is pink cement on the walls, and on the bottom are big red tiles about 3 ft. square. The bath is 21 ft. by 15 ft.

A hypocaust found to the south of the site is 20 ft. square, and had 16 solid stone piers of unusual size, according to Mr. Winbolt.

"Within four working weeks we have laid bare 500 yards of Roman wall," Mr. Winbolt said. "Two corridors which each extend to 120 ft. at present may be found to continue to much greater lengths, and I think it very probable that the most interesting discoveries here are yet to come."

STORM DERAILS SCOTTISH TRAIN

Following a cloudburst, a mass of boulders, silt and sand, weighing nearly 100 tons, was swept down the hillside on to the railway line about a mile north of Invergarry Station.

A passenger train was approaching, and before the driver could pull up the engine had dashed into the accumulated debris. The engine was derailed, but neither the driver nor the fireman was injured.

The passengers, numbering about a dozen, suffered slightly from shock. They were conveyed to Fort William by motor char-a-banc.

PRINCE OF WALES ASSISTS FARMERS

TESTS SEEDS

Information Passed to the Neighbors as to Results Obtained

On his Home Farm at the head of the Tamar Valley in Cornwall the Prince of Wales has established a new breed of sheep. It is a cross between the Kerry Hill and Dartmoor breeds, and is claimed to be the ideal sheep for this part of the country.

The Prince could give points to many farmers in his knowledge of scientific farming. He realized that his tenants, from one cause or another, were not getting the best out of their farms, and he determined some years ago to take over two or three farms as they fell vacant, work them according to the latest methods, and experiment with cattle and crops until he discovered the very best of everything for the soil, climate, and conditions in Cornwall.

It has been a difficult task, for the farmers of Cornwall are a conservative race. But although some still regard with diffidence the modern appliances employed on the Prince's farms, they do appreciate very keenly the results obtained.

Take crops. David Annand, the Prince's manager, makes a point of securing every kind of new seed produced and testing it on the Home Farm. If it is a failure the farmers of Cornwall are told all about it and they have the advantage of profiting by the failure at the Prince's expense. Should the trial prove successful, the same generous information is given.

CATTLE AND PIGS.

With regard to cattle, the Prince has established three pedigree herds—two of Shorthorns and one North Devons. Thousands of pounds have been spent on securing the best pedigree stock, the use of which is available to Cornish farmers at a very nominal fee. The Home Farm herds have won more than 200 prizes at cattle shows throughout the country.

Pig breeding in the county has recently received a large impetus by the registrations of the Large Lop-ear White, a breed which does remarkably well in Cornwall, but was not "fancied" until a little while ago when the Prince's manager, in conjunction with other experts, secured the opening of a Herd Book.

One thing in which the Prince has so far failed is the improvement of the horses in the county. The internal combustion engine has beaten him. He went to great expense in providing pedigree horses—Clydesdale, Hackney, and blood—at the Home Farm, but the motor age, with its tractors and other farm machines, has defeated his purpose. Farmers do not even want hacks; all of them have motor-cars. But this is not allowed to interfere with the work of the Stud Farm at Tor Royal. There the Prince breeds his own hunters, and by crossing Arabs with the Moorland ponies is trying to breed a new polo pony. So far success has not smiled on him.

The Prince is also trying to bring home to farmers the possibilities of scientific poultry keeping. An old monastic building long used for farm purposes at Landulp has been set aside for poultry keeping under the care of an ex-South African officer, Mr. Adrian Duplessis. Here "utility" chickens are bred from prize strains and birds and sittings sold to farmers at reasonable rates.

The public will have an opportunity of seeing some of the Prince's prize stock at the Utility Poultry show at the British Empire Exhibition next month.

ASTOR PORTRAIT DEFACED BY MARKS

The painting of Lady Astor, on the staircase at the House of Commons, which has been the subject of much controversy, has been defaced by a visitor to the House of Commons, who made pencil marks across one of the hands.

It is not a serious injury, but will need attention from the painter.

Mr. Rhys Hopkin Morris, M.P., first noticed the scratches while he was showing the painting to visitors.

He at once called the attention of the Speaker to the matter, emphasizing that objects of art should be protected by glass.

Woman Helpless In Motor Boat; Husband Overboard

Afloat with her three children in a motor-boat, which she did not know how to control, was the nerve-racking experience of a Brixham woman.

She had accompanied her husband on a trip from one side of Torbay to the other, and on the return journey her husband fell overboard. He saved himself by clinging to another boat.

His wife was left in a dangerous position. The boat was dashing for Torquay harbor mouth, and she could not stop it; the children were crying for help.

Fortunately the motor boat ran into a yacht, and the engine was stopped by the impact. The woman and her children were taken ashore in a state of nervous prostration.

Eyebrow Plucking Is Mode Of Developing The Egyptian Face

Fashionable women are now plucking their eyebrows in such a way that the face becomes Egyptian in appearance. The line of the eyebrow is made to tilt upwards the temple, making the eyes look slightly oblique.

There is a way of plucking the eyebrows to suit each face. The present fashion is to have rather thick, but not bushy, eyebrows. A famous beauty expert said to a "Daily Express" representative:—

"Fair eyebrows and eyelashes are not pretty—a golden-haired girl looks much nicer if here are brown. The color and thickness of eyelashes are as important as the color and thickness of eyebrows. Eyelashes need constant combing and greasing to make them thick and glossy."

While Cyril Stockwell, aged 17, of Winchester was cycling, a fly, entering his eye, caused him to relax his grip on the handle-bars. He was pitched off and killed, his skull being fractured.

SCOTTISH PEER TO SELL ESTATE IN FAMILY 700 YEARS

The prophecy of Thomas the Rhymer that—

"As long as a cock crows i' the North, there will be a Fraser in Philorth"—may yet be broken, for Lord Saltoun, descendant of the long line of Fighting Frasers, has sold the greater part of the Philorth estates, which lie in the north-east of Aberdeenshire, to a syndicate which will take possession next Whitsun. More than 10,000 acres, mostly agricultural land, will change hands, and Lord Saltoun, in a letter to his tenants, regrets that high taxation and other burdens force him to part with estates held by his family for more than 700 years.

Lord Saltoun's heir, the Master of Saltoun, has decided to sell the estate of Vaughton Hill, Rathen, and has given similar reasons to his tenants.

Lord Haig Trying To Recover Money For Ex-Officers From P.E.I.

Correspondence is passing between Earl Haig, President of the Officers' Association, and J. D. Stewart, Prime Minister of Prince Edward Island, with reference to the fox farm fraud in which Andrew Fraser Mitchell, a former emigration agent for the island, was found guilty at London Sessions last March of obtaining £1,191 in all from three ex-officers by false pretenses.

When he postponed sentence, Sir Robert Wallace, K.C., said he hoped the Government of the island would be able to help in repaying the money lost by the ex-officers.

Mr. J. D. Stewart, in a reply to Lord Haig, dated June 4, said "the whole question of reimbursement is under discussion between the Federal and Provincial Governments." Lord Haig, writing on June 17, expressed the hope that a decision would be arrived at promptly. No reply has yet been received to that letter. Lord Haig is sending a further letter.

It is stated that the Government of the Island already knows of six officers stranded there. The amount involved in the cases that have been brought to the notice of the Officers' Association is £2,500. In some cases ex-officers commuted their pensions to raise money to hand over to Mitchell.

MEN NEVER GROW OLD IN SUFFOLK

Dashing Cavalier Marries at 88 and Cycles at 94

Live in Suffolk and grow young!

At Woodbridge, Suffolk, on Bank Holiday, a resident of 97 took part in the sports, and entered for the tricycle race.

Nor is he alone in his youth, for in Suffolk, it would would seem, men renew their boyhood at 50, take up cycling at 70, and never, ever, think of growing old!

One "young man of 94," Mr. Mace, of Rookery Cottages, Ekye, cycles to Woodbridge, four miles away, every Saturday to do the shopping, and dodges the traffic as gaily as though he were only 14.

Six years ago Mr. Mace got married. But he did not hire a carriage. Instead he mounted his bicycle with an air—as befitted a handsome, dashing cavalier of 84—and rode swiftly to church to claim his bride.

Who would not live in Suffolk?

Resurrection of Body Is "Impossible" Idea Declares Bishop

"The idea that the resurrection of the dead means the re-collection of the material atoms of the body at the end of the world is impossible and unintelligent," said Bishop Gore at a conference of cremation authorities held at the British Empire Exhibition.

"Such a reconstitution is impossible if we reflect on what actually becomes in the lapse of years of the particles of the body. It has no reference to the question of cremation as opposed to burial, because cremation only does more rapidly what in any case ultimately occurs."

Bishop Gore added that he was glad to tell people haunted with theological scruples on the question of cremation that the idea of a material resurrection of the body received no sanction in the early days of Christianity, when people were, in many respects, more intelligent than the people of today.

CHURCH BARREL ORGAN.

The ancient barrel organ at Trottiscliffe Parish Church, near Wrotham, Kent, has been restored and is in regular use again.

It plays 60 hymn tunes, and the sexton usually turns the handle.

HOUSES OF STEEL AND WOOD LIKELY

British Investigate Plan to Eliminate Bricklayers And Plasterers

EASILY BUILT

Minister of Health Looks Into Plans of Eminent Business Men

Are we approaching the era of the brickless house, the type of dwelling that will eliminate the bricklayer, the plasterer, and other craftsmen? asks the Daily Express.

Mr. Wheatley, the Minister of Health, hinted at a possible revolution of building methods when he once more piloted his famous Housing Bill—or what remains of the original measure—through the House of Commons last night.

All through the protracted debates the sharpest criticism has come on the admitted inadequacy of labor.

Mr. Wheatley was once more assailed for his failure to obtain a sure guarantee of a sufficient supply both of workmen and materials, and one of his answers was a suggestion of schemes from which—if they are practicable—many of the men whose organizations have fought so furiously against "dilution" or "augmentation" will be eliminated.

"There is," he said, "a possibility of entirely new methods of construction and new materials in the building industry. I read in the newspapers that Sir William Joynson-Hicks the other day was able to lay six bricks in a minute.

"That meant something like 2,500 or 3,000 bricks a day, or approximately ten times the number which, it is said, the bricklayer lays. If we discover tomorrow some new method by which a bricklayer can do ten men's work at bricklaying it would be unreasonable to say that we must recruit the bricklaying industry at the rate we would have to do if the present output were maintained."

ALTERNATIVES.

Mr. Wheatley, however, was also concerned with the possibility of an alternative to bricks and bricklayers.

"Tomorrow morning," he said, "I am to inspect a system of building houses largely by steel and timber, which is the product of one of our eminent business men.

"He is not a dreamer, but a man who has made his reputation in the business world. I have also had submitted to me within the past few days material for erecting a house coming from one of the best-known business men of the country.

"He claims that it would give us more substantial houses, more beautiful houses, give us houses in a tithe of the time, give them to us more cheaply, and give them to us without the service of either the bricklayer or plasterer.

"Taking it on its face value, it seems promising, and there is no reason why it should not succeed."

The Minister of Health is the most thorough-paced Socialist in the Government. It is common knowledge that he has been unable to get all he wanted from the building trade unions.

So last night he metaphorically told them to keep their bricklayers and he would get on with the houses.

SUGGESTS "DUG-OUTS" TO EASE TRAFFIC

Grahame White Plan Calls for Garages Under Squares

An interesting scheme for underground motor parks, which, it is contended, would go far towards solving London's problem of congested streets, is put forward by Claude Grahame-White in a letter to the "Daily Express."

He suggests the construction of two-storeyed garages under the London squares, and points out the value of such subterranean shelters in the case of air raids arising out of any future war.

"The traffic congestion," writes Mr. Grahame-White, "is aggravated by the dearth of garage and parking accommodation throughout the metropolitan area. A large number of private owners have, since the war, been unable to afford the luxury of a chauffeur, and are forced to leave their cars in the streets unattended.

SLOPES.

"My proposals entail the provision of garages, having separate entrances and exits by means of inclined planes, under all the principal squares in the congested areas of the City and West London. Such a scheme would require the sanction and approval of the State, who could either build these garages and shelters, or could grant concessions to private companies.

"While undoubtedly the initial cost would be considerable, the trading should show a substantial profit revenue, and in view of the national benefit of these shelters under war conditions I suggest that the State should make a nominal annual charge for the concession. It should be granted for a term of, say, ninety-nine years, at a peppercorn rental, or, where building costs might not show a commercial return, a State subsidy might be paid.

"A garage would be constructed on at least two levels, on the most modern principles, such as the Automobile Club garage at Detroit, where no elevators whatsoever are used, and where every car has immediate access to the slipways without being blocked by other vehicles.

"On the floor nearest the ground level would be housed cars for short period garage. The first sub-basement would be reserved for longer periods, with car wash and work shops, and on the lower sub-basement would be chauffeurs' quarters and a restaurant.

COUNTY PRISON SOLD FOR $15,000

Flint County Gaol, near Mold, which cost $300,000 to build, was sold by auction to Richard Hughes, a Liverpool shipper, for $15,000.

The old gaol, which was used as a military detention barracks during the war, was for 18 years occupied by the Jesuits as a college, and later as a convent.

LAUGHING JACKASS IN ZOO CONCERT

Listeners-In Hear Chuckle Of Australian Kingfisher

SEA-LION CHORUS

Hyena Too Full to Perform But Comes Through Later

After broadcasting the Surrey nightingale the laughing jackass at the London Zoo naturally came next.

In preparing to give the country a Zoo concert by wireless, the British Broadcasting Company carried out some strange and novel experiments in the Gardens after visitors had left.

The whole test centred round an extraordinary new device which has been christened "The Wireless Perambulator." Packed inside a gadget which looks like a portable refreshment barrow from a big railway station is a transmitting apparatus which has two-thirds of the power of a relay broadcasting station such as Plymouth. Above it rise two wireless aerial masts ten feet high. The microphone is carried at the end of several yards of flex.

The "wireless perambulator" first visited the laughing jackasses (Great Australian Kingfishers they prefer to be called). It was getting dark and the sleepy birds only emitted squeaks and flutters. A keeper disturbed them, but they scarcely smiled.

BIRDS CHUCKLE.

Then it was suggested that the whole procession should move off, and two of the birds naturally started to chuckle. Everyone joined in at the infectious sound—even the busy experts.

The birds' laughter "came through" perfectly, and the perambulator left for the laughing hyena so as to compare chuckles. On the way the seals sang their oratorio, which will also be broadcasted to the country later on.

"Punch," the star humorist among the hyenas, was full fed and refused to perform at first.

"I can hear the brute snuffling," came the report of the listener at the head-phones. Bones were waved in front of the great jaws, but the sounds made by the hyena suggested a fresh breeze and a channel steamer rather than mirth. He worked up some enthusiasm a little later and "blasted the microphone." (The language is that of the engineers.) The power was lessened, and "Punch" was also passed as perfect for broadcasting purposes.

FAMOUS VAN DYK REPORTED FOUND

Fred M. Thompson, an antique expert, of Grange Oversands, has discovered in the Furness district what is said to be the famous original picture of Anthony Van Dyk, "Our Saviour, wearing the Crown of Thorns."

The picture is valued at £60,000.

Mr. Thompson is said to have been offered $30,000, a half-share, by a cotton manufacturer, of Blackburn.

STOCK EXCHANGE SWEEP IS BANNED

Police Commissioner Warns Organisers of Intention to Prosecute

A sensation has been caused in London by an intimation from the Commissioner of Police that if the Stock Exchange Derby sweepstake, the largest in Britain, takes place next year he will consider the question of a prosecution, says the Daily Express.

Will the ban also apply to the Derby sweeps promoted by the Baltic and other exchanges—and will it spread to the West End clubs. These are the questions which are being asked. The organizers of the great annual Stock Exchange event are consulting eminent lawyers.

TWO LAWS?

Should action be taken against the Stock Exchange and not against the clubs, the ridiculous situation will arise next June that a Home Secretary, fresh from ordering a prosecution, may enter his club to find his fellow-members putting down their names on just such a list as he seeks to prohibit in the City. Is there, asks the Stock Exchange, to be one law for the City and another for the West End?

This year's Stock Exchange Derby sweepstake amounted to £100,000. The first prize was £50,000, and £10,000 went to charity. Since the sweeps were inaugurated twenty years ago (when there was the modest total of £100) charities have received £35,000 from the proceeds. No profits are made by the organizers, who give their time for nothing, and not a word of doubt has ever been cast on the fairness of the proceedings.

STREET-SWEEPER IS PHILOSOPHER

Friend of Famous People Leads Life He Chooses

TOUR OF EUROPE

Library of 2,000 Books in Pimlico Contains Many Treasures

There is something remarkable about the man who is content to be a street sweeper for twenty-three years when his talents and education fit him for the office work that is offered to him.

Daniel O'Brien, the street sweeper employed by the City of Westminster who was a guest at the wedding of Lady Ursula Grosvenor, is this remarkable man.

He lives among 2,000 books in his home at Pimlico. The walls of his rooms are covered with certificates that he has brought back from his pilgrimages and pictures of famous men who have known him for years.

There is an autographed book by Father Bernard Vaughan lying among treatises on political economy, and rare editions of almost forgotten writers. By their side are letters signed by men whose signatures on a cheque are worth unknown fortunes. Invitations to weddings that fluttered the society dovecotes keep company with letters acknowledging the receipt of a copy of the works of Mrs. Francis Meynell, which were sent as presents to the houses that cluster round Park-lane.

All are there because, as Mr. O'Brien states: "I never toadied. . . . I was content to be a street-sweeper because I liked the open-air life." He hoped that he had earned "a little respect from the world."

He is worried about the fame that has found him out.

"I did not want the notoriety," he said to a "Daily Express" representative. "I have led my life as it suited me. I have gained in education where I have missed worldly wealth. When I went to Oxford last year and walked through the colleges it was worth more to me than a great deal of money.

"I went to Lourdes on a pilgrimage of faith. It did not matter that I had to save up for months ahead, go as cheaply as I could, and then come back to start saving for my next trip. I have been to Rome twice, to Vienna—by going down the Rhine—and I have walked to Dover, and gone through the Dickens country.

"Once I landed at Santy Sebastian, in Spain, because I took the wrong train. It meant that I lost eight hours out of only a week's holiday, but it was all an education, and now, when my time comes to retire, I shall be able to teach other people. I can pass on what I have learned."

MERCHANT'S BODY FOUND IN BOGHOLE

Irish Mountain Mystery is Solve After Two Years

A grim discovery was made in a boghole near the top of a lonely mountain on South Armagh. Policemen, who were dragging the boghole with irons, brought to the surface the remains of J. M. Fraser, a merchant of Newtonhamilton, who has been missing since July 5th, 1922.

Mr. Fraser was kidnapped by a party of armed men while he was driving into Newry in a motor lorry, accompanied by one of his children. At the time armed bands were very active on the Northern border, and, despite the most extensive inquiries, no trace of Mr. Fraser could be had from the time that his child saw him drive away with his captors.

"We are satisfied, from the evidence, that the remains we have inspected are those of William John Fraser, of Newtonhamilton, and that he was foully murdered by armed men on or about the 5th July, 1922."

This verdict was returned at an inquest held in Newtonhamilton, Co. Armagh, on human remains that were found buried in a bog hole on the top of Ballard Mountain, near Camlough.

The bog hole was dragged by members of the Royal Ulster Constabulary in consequence of information that had reached Alexander Fisher, solicitor, who had acted for Mrs. Fraser in her claim for £5,000 compensation in respect of the death of her husband. The claim came before Mr. Justice Wilson at the Armagh Assizes, and was adjourned for further evidence regarding death.

Mr. Fraser was a well known Orangeman, but the police found in the bog hole along with the remains various Catholic emblems. It is believed that he was "courtmartialled" and shot, and that when the body had been placed in the bog hole stones had been placed on top of it.

Dr. Potts said that the remains consisted of a skeleton, some hair, and a piece of skin. The lower jaw was fractured, and a portion of the upper jaw was injured. Considerable violence, apparently, had been used before death.

The remains were identified by the condition of the teeth in the lower jaw and by the hair.

The circumstances in which Mr. Fraser disappeared were told by his little daughter Rita. She said that she was driving in a motor lorry with her father on July 5th, 1922, when it was stopped by three armed men, who jumped out from behind a ditch. Her father fought with the men, but eventually was taken away a prisoner.

"Daddy wanted to kiss me before he went," the child added, "but the men would not let him. I never saw him again."

RIGID ETIQUETTE BREAKING DOWN

The revolt in the medical profession against the autocratic ban on the appearance of doctors' names and photographs in the newspapers is growing rapidly. The "Lancet" declares that the time has come for a readjustment of the old-fashioned secretiveness hitherto adopted. It states;—

"We are in entire agreement with the assertion that some sort of co-operation is desirable with the lay Press. The withholding of everything but the name of the medical authority is regarded as a sort of professional snobbishness, difficult to understand and apt to annoy."

C.G.E. ELIMINATE OSHAWA MOTORS

Electricians Made It Two Straight, Harvesting 18 Hits for 17 Runs.

OSHAWA SCORED 5

Canadian General Electrics slammed the offerings of three pitchers all over the Exhibition Grounds on Saturday and finished on the right end of a 17-5 score in the second game of their series with General Motors of Oshawa in the second round of the Intermediate O.B.A.A. semi-finals.

Salter Webster and Bennett were the luckless three. Salter started the fray. He lasted slightly more than six innings and was touched for 15 hits and 11 runs. He hit one batter and struck out four. He served up a mean curve which puzzled the locals at the start, but they soon got on to it.

Webster entered the argument with two men on and nobody out in the seventh. He had lots of stuff, but was wild as a hawk, walking five and hitting one. He yielded two hits and five runs in one and two-thirds innings.

Bennett was pressed into service in the eighth. He allowed one hit and one run in his short session.

"Bun" Frost was the Electricians' mound artist. He got away to a bad start when three hits and a pair of errors sent across four runs in the first inning. From then on he kept the hits well scattered and ten of the enemy were stranded. He hit one and walked two, and was given first-class support.

Turner was the big noise with the bat. He had a triple, two singles and a sacrifice and was hit once in five trips to the plate. Rose and McCarney each had three safe swats. Belding, Cretney and Jubb led the Oshawa hitters with two apiece. Belding was the fielding star. He roamed all over the outfield and pulled in six hard flies. Rose led the local fielders. He made but one slip in ten chances and started a fast double play.

The game was featured by some daring base running. McCarney scored from second on an infield out and Wolfe scored from the same station when Cretney dropped Rose's short fly back of short.

British Alarmed At Loss Of Soccer Players To U. S.

Officials of the Association Football Association in England and Scotland are becoming somewhat alarmed over the number of players they are losing through the offering of better inducements from clubs in the United States and on the Continent. The larger teams are said to have accepted terms offered by clubs in this country, while most of those lost to the English elevens have agreed to go to the Continent, particularly to Spain. All this is taken to she rapid progress of Association football outside of England and Scotland.

RICHARDS GAVE TILDEN BATTLE

Tennis Champion Forced to Five Sets in Davis Cup Semi-Final.

MEETS JOHNSTON

FOREST HILLS, Sept. 2.—William T. Tilden was forced to five thrilling sets Monday before he conquered his youthful former pupil, Vincent Richards, in the semi-finals of the National tournament and won the right to defend his title to-day against the man who has been been his chief rival for the past five years, William M. Johnston.

But the crown that Tilden has worn for four successive seasons came perilously close to toppling from his head before he beat back the spectacular challenge of Richards, who not only took two sets from the title holder but came within a point of winning a third. Tilden, however, facing the closest call he has had since he took five sets to turn back Johnston in the 1922 title finals—the last time he was forced to that limit—rose to the greatest heights of his brilliancy to check the young Olympic champion. The scores of this epic struggle were 4-6, 6-2, 8-6, 4-6, 6-4.

Tilden's stirring victory followed a crushing triumph in the other semi-final match by Johnston who smothered Gerald L. Patterson, leader of the Australian Davis Cup forces, by the score of 6-2, 6-0, 6-0.

LAKEVIEWS WIN OSHAWA SERIES

Defeated St. George's Juniors by 9-2 Saturday—Fans Fail Smart Youngsters.

KINGSTON NEXT

Lakeviews won the right on Saturday afternoon to meet the Circle Six team of Kingston for the eastern Ontario championship, when they defeated the St. George's Juniors of Oshawa by the score of 9 to 2.

The game was played at Riverside Park and it was a small bunch of faithful fans that turned out to root for the home team. With no more support than this it is going to go hard on the manager of the Junior team from this city who is endeavoring to bring fame once more to Peterboro.

Frank Whitehouse, who has been doing practically all the heaving for the Lakeviews this summer did his stuff on Saturday and turned in a nice game, holding the Oshawa boys to two hits and no runs. His teammates played a nice game behind him and pulled off some big league plays that brightened up the game a great deal.

Oshawa Outclassed.

Oshawa boys tried hard but they were honestly out of their class and although they carry with them a little right hander he was not up to form on Saturday and was touched for a flock of hits. A great number of these hits could have been cut off had his team-mates given him any kind of support. Oshawa's errors were made at critical times and although the pitcher worked his head off his team fell down when it came to getting on the run ways and Whitehouse had an easy day of it.

The pitcher, catcher, short stop, second baseman and right and centre fielders practically composed the team, the rest might as well been on the bench as they were really dead and mussed up nearly everything that came to them, especially the left fielder.

Three In First.

Lakeviews started the scoring in the first inning when they accounted for three runs and the game looked as if it was going to be a walk away for the Peterboro boys. They added one more in the third, but the Oshawa crew gathered in two in the fourth and made it look more like a ball game. Lakeviews came back in their half of the fourth and made it 5 to 2, but from then on the Motor Town boys went scoreless while the young Petes collected two in the fifth and two in the sixth.

Williams at second base for Oshawa was dead-on and handled five red hot grounders without a sign of a slip or fumble. McInnally at short stop got away to a bad start when he mussed up the first ball hit to him. He turned around then and played a whale of a game, accepting seven chances and figuring in two double plays.

Three Double Plays.

During the game three snappy double plays were pulled off the Lakeviews having one and Oshawa two, the short stop and second baseman doing the trick in the feat for Oshawa while Whitehouse and Johnston did the trick for the Peterboro boys. Marchen was the most effective man on the Lakeviews roster. He handled five chances perfectly while he also led his team at bat with two doubles and a single. Marchen also showed lots of style behind the bat when he relieved Halliday at the end of the sixth and finished the game.

WIN FOR CORINTHIANS

MONTREAL, Sept 1.—(Canadian Press).—Staging an attack in the first half that swept their opponents off their feet, Corinthians, premier amateur footballers of England, defeated a picked eleven of Montreal this afternoon at Alexandria Park by a score of 5 to 3. The match was witnessed by a very small crowd which numbered about 1000 people.

EPINARD BEATEN BY HALF LENGTH

French Four-Year-Old Proved Himself Great Runner at Belmont Park.

ZEV WAS FIFTH

BELMONT PARK, N. Y., Sept. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Frederick A. Burton's Wise Counsellor, chestnut son of Mentor, by Rustle, at odds of 13 to 5, won the big international special from a field of nine starters at Belmont Park Monday, leading Epinard, Pierre Wertheimer's great French thoroughbred to the wire by half a length. August Belmont's Ladkin was third, three lengths astern the flying flank of Epinard.

The time for the six furlongs was 1.11 4-5. The race carried a money value of $29,000 to the victor. Sixty thousand persons, including the Prince of Wales, saw the turf classic.

Quoted with Zev at 3 1-2 to 1, the champion three-year-old of France in 1923 lost the race only after a heart-breaking drive with Wise Counsellor down the stretch.

Started Well.

Epinard got away well, running third by a head at the quarter, Baffling leading. Wise Counsellor, running easily, was fifth by a half at the quarter pole. Baffling held his lead until the field straightened out in the stretch.

At this point of the race Baffling was leading by a head, Zev was second, closely followed by Epinard. Wise Counsellor was a length behind, Epinard on the outside of the track. Frankie Keogh on Wise Counsellor, gave the Burton colt a swerve to the right, encircled the field, and with a free rein headed him straight to the wire in a driving finish. It was anybody's race here. Everet Haynes, jockey up on Epinard, applied the whip to the speeding flank of the Wertheimer colt and the chestnut son of Epine Blanche showed that he had plenty of run. His ears plastered back to his head and his trim legs digging up the turf, he matched stride for stride with Wise Counsellor for 100 yards as the colts came down the stretch neck and neck. But Wise Counsellor's lengthy stride slowly carried the American horse away from his challenger until he was half a length ahead at the wire. Epinard was three lengths ahead of Ladkin with Snob second in fourth place, half a length ahead of Zev, who pulled up in the stretch.

How Others Finished.

Wilderness was sixth, Baffling seventh, Miss Star, the only filly in the race, eighth, and Goshawak trailing the field. Rialto, Little Chief and Worthmore were scratched just before the start of the big special.

At the start it looked like a race between Zev and Epinard. Haynes was watching Fator on Zev, and appeared content to allow the "Ciucks" to set the pace, figuring that in order to find the wire first it was necessary to outrun the Rancocas star. But Zev weakened and Wise Counsellor furnished the opposition which was too great for Epinard to overcome.

BROKE OWN RECORD.

LONG BEACH, N.Y., Sept. 2.—(Canadian Press). — Miss Agnes Geraghty broke the world's record for the women's 100 yard breast stroke swimming race here today when she made the distance in 1 minute 23 2-5 seconds, taking 2-5 of a second off her previous mark made in 1923.

BETHANY'S BATS FLAIL MACKEY'S

WON BY 16 TO 10

Bethany and Mackey's put on an old time slugging bee at Riverside Park yesterday in the deciding game of their first round Intermediate O.B.A.A. series, and when the tallies had been counted Bethany had 16 to Mackey's 10.

The game contained no fielding features. Both sides could slam the old apple all over the lot but the Bethany aggregation picked out the best spots to drop it. There were 5 doubles, 2 triples and 2 home runs and "Busy" Thorndyke in left field was sure it was Labour Day as he was kept on the go chasing the long drives of the Bethany crew.

Five pitchers were used in the fray Bob Mackey used three. His moundsmen had it on the farmers in control but were unable to get the ball past for the third strike with much success.

The Doughmixers missed a bunch of third strikes but when they did connect the Bethany gang had to step to make any put-outs.

The winners will likely come up against the C.G.E. team this week.

PETES' PROTEST WAS ADJOURNED

Meet Again Wednesday When Kelly and Rickman Must Be Present.

SERTH QUESTIONED

The sub-committee of the Central Ontario League met at Oshawa on Saturday afternoon to hear the protest entered by the Peterboro Club against Players Kelly and Rickman of Kingston and adjourned without coming to a decision to allow these players an opportunity to be heard. The committee will meet again at Oshawa tomorrow morning.

The Peterboro Club was represented by G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., and Ald. N. E. Phelan while Kingston's cause was upheld by Mr. W. R. Givens and Manager Joe Daley. Second vice-president C. Anderson of Oshawa presided and Secretary J. G. Nott was also in attendance.

The three members of the subcommittee, E. Parsons of Oshawa, A. C. Kimmell of Cobourg and F. D. Craig of Peterboro were present.

The Peterboro Club, as evidence against Kelly and Rickman, submitted a report from the Deputy Minister of Immigration showing that these two players did not enter Canada from the United States until May 3. The residence rule of the Central Ontario League calls for a continuous residence from January 1st.

The Kingston Club submitted no defence other than the affadavits made by the two players when certificates were issued to them, Kelly claiming to have been born in Kingston and to have lived there all his life.

Secretary Nott reported that he had notified Business Manager Booth of Kingston to have Kelly and Rickman in attendance at the meeting but the Kingston representatives declared that Booth had not reported the matter to them. They promised to produce the players if adjournment was granted and the committee decided to give them a chance to be heard tomorrow.

Kingston entered a counter protest against Peterboro on the ground that Pitcher Charles Serth was not eligible under the residence rule and this will also be heard tomorrow.

FIRST GAME TO MAPLE LEAFS

SCORE WAS 7 TO 3.

"Lefty" Donnelly twirled the Maple Leaf to a 7 to 3 victory over Lindsay in the first game of the opening round in the O.B.A.A. semi-finals at Exhibition Park on the holiday afternoon. Donnelly fanned the side in the first frame, and was always in front; holding the visitors to scattered hits. He did not issue a pass, and fanned thirteen.

The Leafs solved the Lindsay heaver's offerings early in the game and took a commanding lead by scoring four runs in the fourth.

The visitors played well in the field, R. Forbert at short and Fox at second showing up prominently.

"Chuck" Holland besides doing good work behind the bat, collected three sngls. Jack LeBarr handled thirteen chances without a slip.

The second game will be played in Lindsay on Thursday afternoon. The scoring summary: —

CANADA'S BEST BABY.

Father is Seventy-Two Years of Age.

TORONTO, Sept. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Seventy-two years of age and father of Canada's sweepstakes baby. That is proud record of James Taylor, Toronto, whose small 17 months old son carried off cream of the prizes at Exhibition baby show, yesterday afternoon. Baby was entered in "Class E", for boys between 1 2and 18 month, and was an easy blue ribboner in that group, later, when all winners were assembled on platform. Baby Richard Taylor was prominently among those present—so prominently that the majority of the judges "fell for him". Mrs. Taylor is her husband's second wife and she has stepsons older than herself.

TWO BY-ELECTIONS.

Two Party Fight in Eastern Constituencies.

MONTREAL, Sept. 2.— (Canadian Press.)—Two by-elections are being held in the Province of Quebec to-day, one in St. Antoine Division and the other in Rimouski. Until 1921, the Montreal constituency was Conservative, when a Liberal, Hon. W. G. Mitchell, was elected by nearly four thousand majority. The division was thrown open at last session when Mr. Mitchell resigned, claiming that the King administration was forsaking the Laurier-Fielding tariff policy. William G. Birks, prominent jeweler, carries the Conservative standard and W. J. Hushion represents the Liberals.

In the Lower St. Lawrence town Major Eugene Fiset, Liberal, and Elzear Sasseville, an advocate of Rimouski, Liberals expect that they will carry the riding.

COOLER WEATHER.

Frost Reported From One Station in Ontario.

TORONTO, Sept. 2.—(Canadian Press). — Although comparatively cool weather prevails throughout Dominion to-day, frost as reported from only one station sending in thermometer readings to observatory here, White River Ontario with 26 registered during the night proved exception to general rule, temperatures west of great lakes hovering between 40 and 50 througout night while in east range was between 50 and 60, with Chatham, N.B., reporting latter.

Fair weather is promised for west to-morrow while fair and somewhat highter temperatures will probably prevail in Ontario and Western Quebec.

MADOC FLOWER SHOWS.

Two Scheduled During the Next Few Days—Visit From Scientists.

MADOC, Sept. 2.—At a meeting of the Horticultural Society held in the Public Library it was decided to hold two Flower Shows.

The first one is to be an exhibition of gladioli on Saturday, Sept. 6th. Entries are to be made and exhibits to be brought in on Friday afternoon until four o'clock at Cross & Co's store, corner of Durham and St. Lawrence streets. The flowers will be displayed in the windows of the store on Saturday. This exhibition is being held earlier than the general one as it was feared that the gladioli might be past their perfect stage by the date set for the larger show, and as a number of residents of this district have taken pains in the growing of gladioli this year it would seem a pity not to have the flowers shown when at their best.

A larger Flower Show is to be held on September 13th. The advisability of holding it in the Public Library was discussed and approved if permission to do so could be obtained. Definite announcement regarding the place will be made later.

The following rules were decided upon:

1 Exhibition to be open to any person in Madoc district.

2. Flowers must ge grown in this district by the exhibitor.

3 Notice of entry to be given with full particulars not later than Wednesday, Sept. 10th to Mrs. M. W. Connor, Secretary, at Connor and Son's Store, not later than five o'clock.

4 Exhibits to be placed in Public Library rooms not later than 5 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 12th. Proper containers must be supplied by exhibitors for all exhibits.

The exhibition will be open on Saturday afternoon and evening from 2 until 9 o'clock. Entries and admission well be free. The promoters of this enterprise hope that the public in general will express their interest in the welfare of the Horticultural Society and their love of beauty by coming to see the flowers. There will no doubt be many fine specimens exhibited as there are numerous flower-lovers in Madoc and the surrounding country who take both pride and pleasure in producing exquisite varities of all our well-known flowers. The prize list is a sample of the extensive range grown by the majority of our citizens.

Visited Madoc

Two more scientists, delegates to the British Association for the advancement of Science, visited Madoc and spent several days inspecting the mines and rocks in this district. These were Dr. A. H. Cox Professor of Geology, Carl F. F. University and Prof. S. H. Reynolds, Professor of Geology, Bristol University. They left on Tuesday for Bancroft.

Miss Agnes McIntosh has returned from a most enjoyable trip abroad

Mr. and Mrs. Hinch and family of Thessalon are guests of Mrs. S. Wellington.

Mr. Gordon Munro has rented the house on St. Lawrence west, lately occupied by Mrs. Jackson. Mrs. Jackson and family have gone to Detroit for a year.

Mrs. Caverly and Mrs. Houston of Tweed, were in town to-day.

Miss Wood is spending the weekend in Toronto.

Dr. and Mrs. Grant Fraser have gone on the Shriners' trip to Rochester, Alexandria Bay and other points.

Speaking of flowers Mrs. J. McKenzie had an impromptu exhibition for two evenings last week when a night blooming cereus plant blossomed. These flowers last for only one night, but their short life is one of beauty and fragrance. Three flowers bloomed on Wednesday evening and two more on Thursday. One remarkable fact about this plant is that the flower stem grows out of the leaf. The leaves are long and narrow, and the flowers white and waxy, faintly streaked with red on the outside petals which gradually turn backwards revealing the exquisite heart of the blossom.

ASTON VILLA IN TIE WITH BURY

Four of Six First Division Games on Monday Were Drawn.

WERE ALL CLOSE

LONDON, Sept. 2.— (Canadian Press Cable.)—The fact that four out of the six games played Monday in the first division of the English Football Association ended in draws, three of them of one goal each and also the remaining two games resulted in singleton wins for the home teams, would indicate that the battle for league honors this season is going to be a stern one. Heavy scoring was the order in the contest between Aston Villa and Bury, and it is greatly to the credit of Bury, travelling this year in senior company, that they could give as good as they got from the runners-up in the cup.

While it is early to compare the teams with reference to their position in the standing it is nevertheless of note that Arsenal now stand at the top of the table and are followed by Notts County.

Chelsea Snowed Under.

In the second division the games had a much more decisive issue, seven of the nine yielding full points. Leicester City snowed Chelsea under in no uncertain fashion. The Pensioners relegated to lowlier company this year, have begun the season inauspiciously and their four to nothing trimming to-day will not help them to get back. Derby County have started off as they did last season when for a time they looked like ousting Bury and Leeds United for promotion. Their 1 to nothing against The Wednesday, played away from home, justifies the prediction that they will be hard to beat throughout the season.

Heavy scoring teams to-day were Clapton Orient who rang up five to one against Old Ham Athletics and Crystal Palace, who, at Coventry, defeated the home team by 4 to 1. Blackpool's 3 to 1, against South Shields furnished another feat performed on foreign territory.

Results of the games played on Monday were as follows:

First Division.

Arsenal 1, Manchester City 0.
Aston Villa 3, Bury 3.
Blackburn Rovers 1, Newcastle U. 1.
Bolton Wanderers 1, West Bromwich 1.
Cardiff City 1, Sheffield United 1.
Notts County 1, Leeds United 0.

Second Division.

Barnsley 0, Wolverhampton 0.
Clapton 5 Oldham 1.
Coventry City 1, Crystal Palace 4.
Hull City 0, Bradford City 0.
Leicester 4, Chelsea 0.
The Wednesday 0, Derby County 1.
South Shields 7, Blackpool 3.
Stockport 2, Manchester United 1.
Stoke 2, Southampton 0.

Third Division—Southern Section.

Bristol City 0, Exeter 1.
Charlton 0, Northampton 0.
Luton 1, Millwall 1.
Merthyr 1, South End 0.
Swansea 2, Bristol Rovers 2.
Swindon 1, Plymouth 0.

Third Division—Northern Section.

Ashington 2, Doncaster 0.
Barrow 2, Crewe 0.
Bradford 2, Acerington 0.
Grimsby 2, Hartlepool 1.
Lincoln City 1, Wigan Borough 0.
Rotherham 2, Tranmere 0.

THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL.

A COLORFUL PICTURE OF SOCIETY LIFE

Beautiful Girl Placed on Auction Block of Marriage By Her Parents—Paris Sequences in Film—Gay Life in Cafes in Montmarte Section of French Capital Shown.

Telling the story of an American society girl who was virtually offered for sale to the highest bidder that her parents might continue to keep up their social pretenses, "For Sale," the First National production which opened last night at the Royal Theatre for a three-days' engagement, is without doubt one of the most impressive and colorful pictures of society life that have ever been shown in this city.

The picture unfolds the story of Eleanor Bates, a beautful society girl who agrees to be sold in marriage to save her parents from social oblivion. While localized for the most part in the pretentious atmosphere of wealth the picture also strikes a distinct contrasting note in its interpretation of night life in Paris.

It is to Paris that the hero of the story, played by Robert Ellis, goes to forget and drown all thoughts of his love among the cafes of the Montmarte district.

Here contrasting American society at play, as treated in the earlier sequences of the picture, is portrayed the play ground of the flotsman and jetsam of the world's gayest city.

The part of Eleanor Bates is ideally suited to Claire Windsor who handles her difficult role in a masterly manner. Robert Ellis is equally well-cast and gives an excellent performance, especially in the Paris cafe scenes.

Adolphe Menjou again is seen in a role, at which he is right at home, that of a "sympathetic heavy" whose wealth puts him in the running for the hand of the heroine. Other prominent players in the cast of this First National picture are Tully Marshall, Vera Reynolds, Jack Patrick, Phillips Smalley, Christine Mayo and Frank Elliott.

AT THE CAPITOL.

POLA'S LATEST PICTURE SAID TO BE HER BEST.

Critics who have seen Pola Negri's latest starring picture "Lily of the Dust," declare it is like the steeple of a cathedral, the crowning ornament of many years of careful building.

Produced by Dimitri Buchowetzki, who directed "Men," the star's new vehicle is at once the most dramatic and most entertaining of all the pictures in which she has appeared.

The story deals with the struggles of a girl with the world but it is not a story of generalizations. Three men only are involved and each of these three influence the girl for good or evil. While the background to the four important figures of the drama is a colorful weave of European life with its vices, its virtues and its infinite variety, the chief characters themselves stand out with the vivid strength of silhouettes.

In the cast chosen to support Pola Negri in "Lily of the Dust" are figures which have stood for genuine achievement on both screen and stage. Ben Lyon, Noah Beery and Raymond Griffith head the cast.

The picture opens at the Capitol Theatre to-morrow.

BEAU BRUMMEL."

John Barrymore, paragon of actors, and the last word in matinee idols, graces the screen Monday and Tuesday at the Capitol Theatre in the starring role of 'Beau Brummel,' the screen adaptation of the famed Clyde Fitch play. This Warner Brothers' production opened yesterday to an enthusiastic audience who thrilled to the impersonation given of the most vivid character that ever flashed through the social life of Europe.

Flair is what this role requires, and flair is just what Barrymore possesses. As the dandy par excellence, the dandy who dominated the court of the Prince Regent, the exquisite dresser and insolently superb wit, John Barrymore carries off honors. He seems made for the role, being, like the character of the Beau, the perfect flower of a gentleman.

Barrymore throws all his unique talent to interpret the gorgeousness of life, the singularity and dramatic quality of Beau Brummel, who began life obscurely, rose like a meteor to social fame, got a memorable snub and retreated to disgrace and poverty. He is splendid when he ingratiates himself into the good graces of the Prince Regent, admirable when he saves the reputation of a too impetuous young lady, enviable when he collects around him all the cream of English society to listen to his epigrams and examine his cut of clothes, and pitiful when, toward the close, he becomes a parody of his past splendor.

We follow the hectic career of the Beau with rapt interest, and regret the speed with which the picture comes to an end.

The supporting cast, which deserves high praise, consists of Mary Astor, Willard Louis, Irene Rich, Alec B. Francis, Carmel Myers, William Humphreys, Richard Tucker, Andre de Beranger and others. The able direction is by Harry Beaumont.

We recommend "Beau Brummel" as a picture pou will like.

AT THE REGENT.

THE STORY OF "NORTH OF NEVADA."

In his study in his ranch house, old Mark Ridgeway, a fine type of Westerner, sits propped up against his pillows, in a big chair by the window, very ill. He takes up his pencil and paper and writes: "To my relatives, from whom I have heard nothing in ten years, I bequeath nothing"— He hesitates slightly, looks out of the window, and sees Tom Taylor, the ranch foreman, with his cowboys standing by the flood-gates of a great irrigation ditch. Glancing in another direction he sees Jo Deerfoot, the college-bred Indian, a traitor to his own people and to the whites, a smooth polished product of civilization, but a villain, talking to two whites. At this moment Tom opens the gates, the men cheer wildly, and the water rushes into the ditch in a torrent. Tom jumps on "Silver King" and is off like a flash to tell old Ridgeway, with the pack at his heels. Jo Deerfoot is still talking to the two men: "You say this water-right turned into the adjoining valley would mean a fortune to us?". The Indian nodded grimly. Then the man continued: "Is there no way we can get possession of it?" The Indian shrugs as he growled "Not while Tom Taylor has control of the ranch, as he stands like a stone wall between the old man and the world!"

Tom rushes into the cabin as the old man gasps out: "Tom, this is the end; you have stuck to me and I'm going to leave the ranch"— He takes the pen in hand writes: "To my trusted friend, Tom Taylor I bequeath"— The pen falls from his hand and he lurches forward — Dead.

Miriam Ridgeway arrives at the ranch the following week, accompanied by her brother, Reginald both ultra modern, ultra smart products of the East—the effete East—with numerous bags and a parrot in a cage. The Indian, when he learns that Miriam and Reggie are the new owners of the ranch, becomes suave and smiling and immediately starts to worm himself into their good graces. Tom warns them to stay away from the Indian. Time goes on. Joe Deerfoot has won over both Reggie and Miriam. Complication start regardless of Tom's warnings Joe has succeeded in securing the signature of Reggie to the water right, and the manner in which he has wormed his way into the foolish Reggie's confidence has prompted Tom to counter the wiles of the Indian and set about in a manner to save the water-right and Miriam. "I've sold the water-right for ten thousand dollars," Reggie shouts the Indian dashes past him, mounts and is on his way. "There goes Joe Deerfoot now, out to the ranch to get Sis's signature to the deed." Tom does not wait for words. He rushes past Reggie, jumps on "Silver King," and is off on a dead run. The race, the fight, the start again on foot, the dive off cliffs to gain a short cut, the coming together, the terrible grinding, smashing, tearing, hand-to-hand encounter that no doubt is to the death, the motionless body of Tom as the Indian rises and starts toward the cabin.

What will the finish be? The success of Tom, or the success of the Indian? There never has been a finish to any picture that has reached the very pinnacle of suspense to the last moment as "North of Nevada," and—well, what is the use of taking up your time to tell you these things? See the picture and be convinced!!

A smashing indictment of modern society marriages and of parents who count their daughters beauty as a prize to be offered for wealth and social position

A peep behind the gilded walls of society, with its intrigues, its greed, and selfishness.

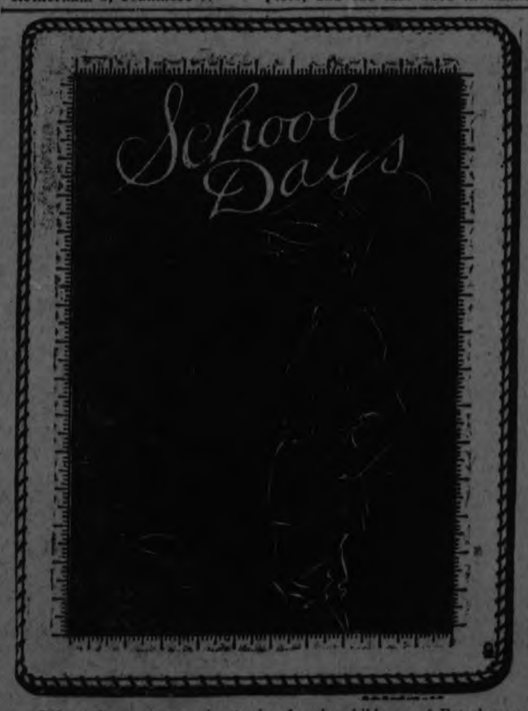
ROYAL
NOW 2.30 - 8 P.M.



Life took on a new color to-day for the children of Peterborough when school re-opened after the long summer vacation. There was a good attendance, school Inspector A. Mowat said, despite the rain that endeavoured to cast gloom over one of the great days in the history of school children. All teachers, except one, were in their places this morning.

Folk say children dread the opning of school, but mixing with happy Peterborough youths this morning revealed no spirit of depression. The finest schools in the province resounded here to salutations between pupils; salutations that had in them nothing of regret for the passing of summer and the holiday, but only curiosity as to what the future held.

This opening of the school doors admits the children to a place where the future opens in a long avenue on which they meet new experiences at every step. There are new studies, new teachers, and above all there are new problems to exercise their ingenuity. From the earliest years the child delights in achievement, and that is why this morning they boasted of the new studies that look so difficult to them. "I'm taking German" a Collegiate Institute girl told her chums as she displayed her new books. Another told of the difficulties she saw ahead by boasting that her books cost fifteen dollars. Before the end of the terms, she insinuates, she will have mastered the learning in every book.

School days are full of interest, and if the older people will look backward into their own youth they will recall that the opening day of school is the most thrilling day of the year.

DECAY.

With commercial art apparently doomed by the increasing use of photographs for advertising and fiction illustrations, a lot of half-way painters and sketchers will have to get into other lines of work. The best will, spurred by necessity, work harder and become Real Artists. Keen competition in a limited market may develop genuine artists in America. Bewail that day. Civilizations do not produce great art in their virile youth. When art comes civilization is flowering to decay.

TRAVELERS.
On a tour of the world, started in 1919, Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Richards of Los Angeles have already covered over 216,000 miles. Five more years of travel ahead.

So far they've used the auto for nearly 200,000 miles, which is a revelation in Good Roads. A century from now, trips of this length by airplane will be common. Nearly all of us miss a lot by being able to see only a small part of this world before we pass on to the next. Civilization at present has us in what amounts to penitentiary cells. Airplane will unlock the doors, 100 times more so than the auto.

NOT DEAD—JUST GONE BEFORE.

"Not dead, Oh, no! but borne beyond the shadows,
Into the full clear light,
Forever done with mist and cloud and tempest,
Where all is calm and bright.

Not even sleeping—called to glad awakening,
In Heaven's endless Day;
Not still and moveless—stepped from earth's rough places
To walk the King's Highway.

Not silent—just passed out of earthly hearing,
To sing Heaven's sweet new song;
Not lonely—dearly loved and dearly loving
Amid the white-robed throng.

No, not forgetful — keeping fond remembrance,
Of dear ones left awhile;
And looking gladly to the bright re-union,
With hand clasp and with smile.

Oh, no, not dead—but past all fear of dying,
And with all suffering o'er;
Say not that I am dead when Jesus calls me
To LIVE forevermore."

NO LOANS TO BOLSHEVIKI UNLESS THEY RATIFY DEBTS TO BRITISH

"They Surrendered To Us," Declared Premier MacDonald —Prospects of Disarmament Brighter, Premier Commented, On Leaving For Geneva.

TO ATTEND LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—"The road is clearer than ever for a real discussion of armaments and national security," Ramsay MacDonald, the British premier, is quoted by Reuters correspondent as having said to him aboard the train which took Mr. MacDonald to Geneva to attend the fifth assembly of the League of Nations.

"Nobody has yet devised a satisfactory disarmament scheme," Mr. MacDonald continued, "but we are nearer it as various obstacles are successively moved.

"A lot of nonsense has been written about the Anglo-Soviet treaty. The whole position of the Soviet negotiations was altered by their surrender to us. We in no wise altered our position. It is as clear as ever that unless a settlement of the debt negotiations is reached there will be no loans or guarantees for Russia."

Mr. MacDonald defended Great Britain's rejection of the mutual guarantees pact, which he said would only have marred the League of Nations, giving it work which it would never have been able to do; that it also would have closed the door for ever to the adherence of the United States and other countries and most likely would have led to the cession of nations now belonging to the league and probably also certain British dominions.

The premier, according to the correspondent, said he was emphatically opposed to the application of force in carrying out decisions of the League of Nations, declaring such action would only destroy the league's power.

YOUNG SLAYERS' NERVE STRAINED

Leopold Desires To Live — Loeb Says Suspense Worse Than Hell.

DON'T SLEEP MUCH.

CHICAGO, Sept. 3. — These are dark days for Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb. They are waiting for September 10, on which day Judge John R. Caverly will announce their punishment for slaying Robert Franks, schoolboy. Will the sentence be life or death?

Loeb yesterday said:

"This is the worst hell—this waiting."

Leopold said:

"I want to live, just live—that's all. I thought I didn't, but I do. I hope the judge don't give us the rope."

The slayers are not in the same cell, but they are near each other. Loeb is in No. 600 and Leopold in No. 604. Each has for a cellmate a man accused of murder.

Waiting Terrible, Says Loeb.

"This waiting is terrible. It is worse than in court. There we could see people; there was something to interest us. But now we seem to be just dead. No one comes to see us any more; no one seems interested in us."

Guards said the young slayers do not sleep much. They are much awake at night. They have no lights in their cells after hours, but they sit up and smoke cigarettes.

Allen Loeb, brother of Richard, said that he would be in court when sentence is pronounced on his brother. He will telephone to his home to give the news. If it is a life sentence he will call for his mother—if a death sentence he will break the news to some other member of the family. So, on September 10, the Loeb family will know what the sentence is as soon as the 'phone is answered, for if the voice of Allan says "let me speak to mother," it will mean he is going to tell the judge gave life.

Elder Leopold There.

Nathan Leopold, Sr., has announced that he will be in court to stand beside his son when the judge pronounces sentence. He wants to be there to reassure the boy that the fight is not ended in case the judge gives the death penalty.

And Jacob Franks, the broken father of little Robert—he doesn't want to be in court. He hopes the death penalty will not be exacted. He and the Loebs are old friends. He holds nothing against the family of the boy who killed his son.

Judge Caverly is in seclusion, going over the sheaves of testimony.

Meanwhile State's Attorney Crowe is preparing to meet an appeal from a decision which would send the boys to the gallows. If hanging is the sentence he must be prepared to fight a long battle, he said.

A death sentence would probably result in an application to the State Supreme Court for a writ of error, which would mean added months of delay and new hearings, attorneys point out.

In the same section of the jail where Leopold and Loeb are confined because of their youth—each is 19 — are two girls and two boys. They come from poor families in what is known as the "Valley section" in a west side congested district. The attorneys of the Franks boys' slayers emphasized their youth.

"Loeb and Leopold probably won't hang. They are our age. Why should we?" asked Anna Valanis, 18, in her cell. "We're too young to be hanged."

Anna, her brother, Anthony, aged 19; William Lydon, 16, and Lucille Marshall, 18, are the four, who confessed, the police say, to circumstances surrounding the strangling to death of Mrs. Bessie Gaennslen on April 17. She was robbed of $80 and two rings. The boys declared they strangled her because she "hollered."

The girls, in a soldid story, said the slain woman cheated them of money and they led the two boys to her home and persuaded the woman to let them in.

SAILORS DRIFT 5 DAYS ON RAFT

Survivors Of Schooner Battered By Hurricane Were Lashed To Float.

NEARLY STARVED.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Six sailors, lashed to a raft they had hurriedly constructed, as a hurricane-battered schooner sank in the worst storm that has swept the Atlantic in years, were rescued Sunday from almost certain death by the Munson liner Southern Cross, which docked at Hoboken from South America yesterday.

Three of their mates are missing. They also shoved off as the four-masted schooner, 'The Hattie,' Boston to Norfolk, went down in the seething sea off Cape Hatteras during the hurricane last week. The six survivors believe the three others were swept to death.

Four Masts Ripped Out.

'The Hattie' was owned by the New England Fuel and Transportation Company. As she was nearing the Virginia Coast the storm broke. One by one the four masts were ripped off. The hatches were blown away, and the schooner began to sink.

With the waves smashing 'The Hattie' one death blow after another, the crew of nine secured planking, and made their raft. As 'The Hattie' sank under them they drifted off.

The six on the raft lashed themselves to it. The hurricane continued for more than six hours, during wsich time they were mauled mercilessly by the huge combers.

Five Days Without Food.

Without food, or water, they drifted for five days. One by one they fell exhausted on the timbers of their little craft. When the watch on the 'Southern Cross' sighted them Sunday afternoon all were on the verge of death.

LARGE MATCH OUTPUT

World Output Costs $200,000,000 Each Year.

PETERBORO, N.H., Sept. 3.—(United Press)—More than a trillion and a half of matches made out of wood are used in the United States every year. The world output costs $200,000,000 and reaches a total of four trillion, six hundred seventy-five billion, six hundred and fifty million matches. Eight million tops of paper are being used in the United States every year.

These are some of the interesting statements made by Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Tree Association of Washington in a speech before the New England Forestry Conference which continues through Tuesday and Wednesday. Pack said this is the time to "sell forestry" to the people of the United States.

Pack pointed to the importance of these things in everyday life and urged the conference to get down to facts the public could readily understand. He added that the way to get the American people interested in his vital economic problem of where wood was to come from was to talk to them in terms they could grasp.

THE WEATHER.

As usually happens cooler weather followed the rain of yesterd . morning. The amount that fell was exactly ½ inch. Highest point yesterday but 69 degrees; lowest last night 41 degrees; frost was near.—W.P.

HEAT PROSTRATIONS.

FLIERS REACH NEWFOUNDLAND

Emerged From Dense Rain and Fog Above Hawkes' Bay.

TO PICTOU, N.S., TO-DAY

HAWKES BAY, Nfld., Sept. 3.—The round the world fliers arrived at Hawkes Bay at 4:05 yesterday standard time, from Labrador.

The machines, commanded by Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith and Lieutenant Erik Nelson, broke through a dense rain and fog and came safely to the water of the bay and tied up to the emergency buoys which had been set out for them.

Speed Up Schedule.

ON BOARD U.S.S. RICHMOND, AT SEA, Sept. 3. — Lieutenant Smith and Lieutenant Nelson announced yesterday, prior to their departure from Ice Tickle for Hawkes Bay, Newfoundland, that they hoped to speed up their flight toward Boston by jumping off from Hawkes Bay for Pictou, N.S., to-day and from Pictou for Boston on Thursday if they should have good flying weather.

An extra landing is to be made at St. John, N.B., for refuelling on the day of the Pictou-Boston flight.

Smith Says "Never Again."

Regarding the Greenland to Labrador flight, one of the Army fliers said:

"We left Greenland in the soupiest fog shrouding us for the first forty miles. Then clean weather came. We flew low, painfully, the rest of the day, when everything that could go wrong with our engine proceeded to go wrong.

"Near the Labrador coast we skimmed past two gigantic icebergs blocking our path. We found the coast without difficulty. The sight of the group of pigmy figures along the wind-torn hillside of Ice Tickle was the greatest sight we ever saw in all our travels."

When asked whether the round-the-world route chosen for the army flight was the best available, Lieutenant Smith remarked smiling: "I don't know. I will never make another."

The Lawrence has left for Boston with Lieutenant Locatelli and newspaper men aboard.

Lieutenant Arnold, who was Smith's assistant on the flight from Greenland, was a hero of the last ocean hop. For hours from Labrador, Smith's engine spluttered and faltered, threatening to put the flag plane out of the flight by a forced landing. The principal trouble was the failure of the fuel pump to function.

Lieutenant Arnold pumped gasoline into the engine by hand for four hours, two strokes to the minute. According to Lieutenant Smith, it was only Arnold's tenacity in pumping that kept the plane going.

Arnold's modesty told the reporters of his feat. "It was nothing at all," he said, "because after the first hour of pain in my arm and shoulder they became completely numb and insensible."

He was the first flier ashore, wading knee deep through the water while he joked with his comrades. But when he was put aboard the Richmond he was unable to lift his right hand and almost collapsed. He underwent two hours of strenuous massaging by the ship's doctors before he was able to eat.

The flight from Greenland to Labrador was made at a maximum height of 100 feet to avoid the patches of fog dotting the route.

Moderation League Of Saskatchewan Ask For Sale of Beer By Glass

REGINA, Sept. 3.—Answering a delegation from the Moderation League of Saskatchewan which waited on Premier Dunning and members of his cabinet which to-day presented the League's desires in the way of liquor legislation, the Premier said:"

"Do not believe any rumors you may hear as to legislation under consideration. The first statement will be made from the floor of the House."

The League's formal statement declared that body to be in favor of The establishment of government liquor stores or agencies in the cities, towns and villages of the province for the sale of spirituous and malt liquors in sealed packages.

The retail sale of beer to be consumed on licensed premises.

That in cases of infractions of the act the penalties be severe and include the cancellation of the license of premises for a period commensurate with the offence.

AUTO HIT POLE TWO WERE HURT

Both Were Unconscious In Brockville Hospital—Car Out of Control.

INJURIES SERIOUS.

BROCKVILLE, September 3 (Canadian Press). — Ralph McIntosh, a commercial traveller, and Russell Good, both of Kemptville, are in the General Hospital here seriously injured as the result of a motor acciden occurring yesterday afternoon on the Provincial Highway at a point two miles east of Prescott when their car got beyond control and crashe into a Hydro pole.

Brought to the hospital here McIntosh was found to have a fracture of the left thigh a compound fracture of the same leg at a lower point and cuts about the arms and legs.

He is in a semi-conscious condition.

Good is unconscious and is the more seriously injured of the two. He is badly cut about the head, and medical attendants believe that he has sustained a fracture at the base of the skull.

The accident caused a temporary suspension of Hydro-Electric power in municipalities west of the scene of the mishap.

292 CASES OF LIQUOR.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Sept. 2.—Willis Keuteher, employed by the Thunder Bay Lumber Company, pleaded guilty this morning to the charge of having liquors in the yards of the Company and was fined $500 and costs.

TWO LIBERALS WERE ELECTED

Fiset's Maority 1,500 In Rimouski and Hushion's 1,000 in Montreal.

WERE HARD FOUGHT.

MONTREAL, Sept. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Two Liberal candidates were returned in the Federal by-elections held yesterday in the Quebec Province constituencies of Rimouski and the St. Antoine division of Montreal. In the former, Major-General Sir Eugene Fiset, late deputy Minister of Defence, was elected over his Conservative opponent, Elzear Sasseville, advocate, of Rimouski, by a majority which late last night returns placed at around 1,500. In the latter, Alderman W. J. Hushion was returned by a majority of approximately 1,000 over the Conservative, W. M. Birks, of Montreal.

Major-General Fiset thus occupies the Parliamentary seat that was held by his father, J. B. R. Fiset, from 1872 to 1878, and again in 1887 and 1805. The seat is traditionally Liberal, although it was represented by a Conservatice, H. Boulay, from 1911 to 1917. The vacancy which has just been filled by the election of General Fiset was caused by the resignation of the late member, L. D'Anjou, who was appointed registrar for the county of Rimouski. The contest was hard fought, and not infrequently national issues were submerged in those that were purely local and personal. General Fiset in the course of his campaign explained his positon in the seven-year-old controversy regarding wartime conscription and disclaimed any responsibility for either the Act or the administration of it. His opponents assailed him for presenting himself for election in view of the fact that, at the age of forty-nine he had retired from the public service on a pension of $6,000 a year and that he was now offering himself for further service. The broader national issues were presented by many of the Government Ministers, notably by Hon. E. Lanointe, who fought hard for the candidate.

Montreal Election.

In the Metropolitan division the campaign was conducted with considerable vigor on both sides, and both the Prime Minister and the leader of the Opposition were heard in support of their candidates. St. Antoine was traditionally Conservative, but in the general elections of 1921 the constituency went Liberal, returning Hon. W. G. Mitchell.

Mr. Mitchell resigned his seat during the last session of Parliament as a protest against the fiscal policy of the Government. The contest, thus necessitated, was held by both parties to be an even test of the popularity of that policy, and was accepted as a "referendum" vote by Liberals and Conservatives. A schism was created in the Conservative ranks by the appearance of two candidates in the field, Leslie G. Bell and Wm. M. Birks. The breach was healed, however, by the withdrawal of Mr. Bell, and a straight fight ensued with Mr. Hushion, who had represented the St. Anne's district in the local Legislature and who was also an alderman of the city, representing the Liberal party.

WHAT QUEER BOYS!

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 3.—(United Press).—Who started this gossip about boys hating to take baths?

It's all wrong, according to Policeman Walter Coleman, who hailed four youngsters into Juvenile Court the other day.

Coleman declared the boys jimmied their way into a school building, and when he arrived they were heating water to take a bath.

COLLEGIATE IS FILLED; REJECT COUNTY PUPILS

Annual Discussion of Vexing Problem Engaged Board of Education.

MAKE A MOVE.

Committee Authorized To Call For Tenders and Prepare Specifications.

Last night's Board of Education meeting brought around the annual conference on accommodation at the Collegiate Institute, that ended this year in the appointing of a building committee to call for tenders for a combination extension that will be used for technical and academical education.

H. R. H. Kenner, principal of the Collegiate Institute, reported that here were 524 children on hand yesterday morning. The lower forms were crowded, there being 42 pupils in 1A; 42 in 1B; 42 in 1C and 39 in 1D. All of these were city pupils, and a dozen or more non-city pupils were turned away for lack of accommodation. In the commercial department there were 46 pupils in the senior class and 73 in the two junior classes.

In the absence of provision for increased attendance Mr. Kenner intimates that next September it will probably be necessary to refuse admission to city pupils.

Mr. Denne enquired if room could not be found for the twelve out-of-town pupils. "It seems too bad," he said, "Those he turned away are all just on the outskirts of the city."

Mr. McKone enquired whether it would be feasible to open a room in the South Central School, employing an extra teacher.

Mrs. Morris said one teacher does not cover the curriculum.

Mr. Mowat said about 190 pupils passed the entrance examination and on his suggestion it was left to the chairman and Mr. Kenner to confer on the matter. Mr. Kenner may be able to make arrangements in a few days.

About Next Year.

"Is the Board going to let the question of school accommodation slide until next September?" Mr. Denne asked. "It's as good as a new factory to bring these children here. Let the problem be passed on to the people and take the responsibility off the board."

The chairman personally agreed with Mr. Denne that it seems impossible for the board to decide. He would leave the question to the people.

Mrs. Morris remarked that it would be strange to expect the mass of the people to decide correctly on a plan when the Board of Education had given so much more time and discussion of it without being able to agree. This suggests, she said, that the large aggregation of voters is more intelligent than the body elected to look after the school interests. "It seems to me that we should say what we believe is needed before we put it to the people."

Mr. Denne: "I would get an estimate on both propositions and submit them to the people."

Mrs. Morris: "I have to go back to what you gentlemen have told me ever since I came on the board: that there is no use in going to the council or the people until we are united."

Mr. Denne: "It is not a question of that—we need the accommodation."

Dr. Neal expressed the opinion that the minority should fall in with the majority.

E. B. Fowler thought that steps should be taken to get the question to the people during the January election.

The majority of the Board decided in the spring in favor of a combination school as opposed to a mere enlargement of the Collegiate Institute, and A. A. Fowler suggested that the unanimous support of the Board be given this proposition now.

Mrs. Moris moved that the building committee be authorized to prepare the specifications, and obtain tenders for building the combination school. The motion carried.

Dr. Neal, Mr. Denne and A. A. Fowler refused to add their names to the committee, and as reconstituted last night the committee consists of Mrs. Morris and Messrs. McKone, Craig and E. B. Fowler, with Mr. Greene as ex-officio member.

Half-Holiday.

The Peterboro Industrial Exhibition requested a half holiday for the school children of the city on Wednesday next on the occasion of Children's Day, when all children are admitted free.

On Motion of J. A. McKone and A. A. Fowler, the request will be granted.

There were present: J. M. Greene, chairman; E. B. Fowler, Dr. J. Craig, Roland Denne, J. A. McKone, Mrs. W. R. Morris, A. A. Fowler and Dr. Neal.

NATURAL RESOURCES OF COUNTRY WARRANT COMPLETION OF HUDSON BAY RAILWAY, MOTHERWELL SAYS

Federal Minister of Agriculture Will Recommend Expenditure of Six Million To Extend Rails to Port Nelson.

WOULD ADD WEALTH TO THE WEST.

Mineral, Timber, Fish and Fur Industries Alone Justify the Project, Minister Declares, After Inspection Tour.

THE PAS, Man., Sept. 3.—The resources and industries of the North Country are alone sufficient to justify early completion of the Hudson Bay Railway, Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture declared here at an open air meeting Monday.

"After my return from a trip of inspection over the Hudson Bay Rail way as far as the end of steel, I can say without fear of contradiction that the magnitude of your four tremendously valuable local industries—Mineral, Timber, Fish and Fur— are to my mind sufficient in themselves to warrant the expenditure of remaining necessary capital investment of approximately $6,000,000 to complete the Hudson Bay Railway and place the Port of Nelson into immediate operation, the Minister declared.

"I intend to go back and tell my colleagues at Ottawa just what I have told you here to-day and you can rest assured I will not knock the early completion and operation of this western route.

Unlimited Possibilities

"This has been my first visit into the country tribuary to Hudson Bay, and my ears have not been closed to all that is going on, and I tell you I will try and put the information so gathered to good use. I am not only surprised but inspired by the vigor and resourcefulness of the people in this country, and that alone I feel certain is a guarantee of the success of this great national undertaking on the part of all Canada. It is impossible for anyone to go through this extensive country on a private car and see from it's windows the great potential wealth contained therein; nevertheless one can see the unlimited possibilities.

"In regard to the roadbed of the railway and the criticism of the eastern press stating that the rails were sunken out of sight in the muskeg, I want to say that such statements are incorrect. This so-called muskeg is not a quagmire as they would have us believe but it is simply a top sail which when drained, soon become fertile and productive. Of course, the 332 miles of road is not equal to daily-operated lines owing to its having been in disuse more or less since the contractors left it some six years ago.

"Any other railroad on the continent under similar conditions would have suffered the same. I travelled over the line behind a mixed train of some 20 cars going at a safe speed of 20 miles an hour and am convinced that the Hudson Bay Rail way can be built and kept in first-class condition at reasonable expense.

Port on Hudson Bay

"The primary object of building this railway was to secure a port on Hudson Bay as an outlet for the products of western Canada, and this is still the object for which it must be completed. Some day possibly there may be a great agricultural development between here and Hudson Bay, but that is for the future.

"If the road is what we hope it to be, and it's present terminus, Port Nelson, on Hudson Bay is developed Western Canada cannot help becoming more prosperous and wealthy very quickly."

KING'S DEPUTY AT THE SAULT

Governor General Byng Unveils War Memorial During Unofficial Visit.

MET THE VETERANS.

SAULT STE. MARIE, September 3 (Canadian Press). — Approximately 7,000 people assembled on the Court House grounds yesterday morning to welcome and pay their respects to the representative of the King.

Governor-General Lord Byng, who accompanied by Lady Byng and other members of the Viceregal party, paid an unofficial visit to the Sault, and unveiled the Sault Ste. Marie war memorial.

Following the unveiling of the monument and placing of wreaths at its base by representtives of the various organisations in the city.

Bugler George Wickenden, who served overseas with the 19th Battalion, and who blew the Last Post for practically every soldier from Sault Ste. Marie who died in the Great War, blew the Last Post and Reveille while the guard of honour presented arms.

With the conclusion of the dedication ceremony the band played "God Save the King," and while the guard was standing at ease His Lordship walked along the ranks and shook hands with the participants, asking "Who are you?" and having a short chat with each of the returned men, some of whom fought under him at the never-to-be-forgotten Battle of Vimy Ridge.

A great many of the citizens took the opportunity to shake hands with the Governor-General after the addresses of the Mayor and himself had been delivered on the Court House steps.

The party then moved to the memorial site, and the Governor-General unveiled the monument.

DEMONSTRATION FARM.

Will Be Located On Hudson Bay Railway.

THE PAS, Man., Sept. 3.— An area of approximately ten acres of crown lands situated at either Mile 137 or Mile 185 on the Hudson Bay Railway is to be placed under cultivation as a demonstration farm by the Federal Department of Agriculture stated Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture on his return after an inspection of the Railway.

The object will be to demonstrate the growth and maturity of all garden vegetables, grains and grasses which may prove commercially practicable.

GERMANY MAKES FIRST PAYMENT

Deposits Twenty Million Gold Marks For Reparations Account As Agreed.

YOUNG'S REPORT.

PARIS, Sept. 3. — (Canadian Press).—Owen D. Young, agent-general ad interim for reparation payments officially informed the reparation commission yesterday that the German government had paid into the Reichsbank in Berlin for the account of the agent-general 20,000,000 gold marks as provided in the schedule of payments elaborated at the London conference under the terms of the Dawes report. This was the first business transacted between Mr. Young's office, opened in Berlin Monday, and the government the Reich.

The commission unanimously sanctioned the measures Mr. Young has taken and the proposed further steps he outlined. He left today for Berlin accompanied by Andrew MacFayden, of Great Britain.

Mr. Young was heard at great length by a full session of the reparation commission. He laid before the commission the details of all measures he had already taken and those he intended to take to fulfill the mission entrusted to him.

Louis Barthou, president of the commission, thanked Mr. Young for his "lucid explanation" and assured him that his methods and measures had the unanimous approval of the commission.

ALBERTA SALE OF LIQUOR NOT BRISK AS EXPECTED

CALGARY, Sept. 3.—Government sale of liquor in Alberta is not proving as profitable as expected. After the first three months of control, Commissioner Dunning says business is but meagre. The first few weeks were good. Returns show that Albertans prefer beer, and it is rumored it is possible there may be an additional tax put on that commodity to make the revenue come up near the point expected.

DELAYS CAUSED BY DEPARTMENT

Experiment Made By Premier In Re-Reading Papers Held Up Results.

TORONTO, Sept. 3.— Provincial Department of Education assumes responsibility for the delay in announcing High School and Collegiate examination results throughout the province, as a result of which considerable inconvenience has been occasioned students in every collegiate town in Ontario.

In an official statement issued by Col. W. H. Price, who has been acting as Minister of Education in the absence of the Premier, it was stated to-day that the delay in announcing results was occasioned first by the fact that there were 10,000 more candidates this year than formerly that each candidate wrote upon a larger number of subjects; and, secondly, by the fact that Premier Ferguson desired by way of experiment to have a more thorough reading of examination papers by three selected examiners to obviate the necessity for so many appeals.

Lessons Learned

"Consequently," said Col. Price, "the experiment has shown that there has been more delay than there should have been. The experience has shown us that to follow this scheme a great many more examiners are needed, or else more intensive work during the paper reading period."

About one-half of the results were despatched to local schools about August 19, and the remainder were sent out as the papers were finished. The last of them left only on Saturday.

Normal Applications

Col. Price made this important announcement: "The lateness of announcing the results will not affect the applications of students for admission to the Normal schools. Provision is made for receiving those applications beyond the announced date."

Earlier Next Year

Col. Price added that the department would take every precaution to have all examination results announced next year on or before the 20th of August. He claims that this year the ultimate delay will be less because there will be fewer appeals and fewer papers to be re-read.

Premier Back

Before making his announcement in the matter Col. Price sent to Dr. Colquhoun, Deputy Monister, for a statement of the situation. He also had a conference in the matter with the Prime Minister, who is back in his office o-day for the first time in several weeks. Mr. Ferguson is completely recoverd from the indisposition which forced him to take an extended summer holiday.

CHINESE READY FOR A BIG WAR

Armed With Machine Guns, Gas Bombs, Heavy Artillery and Airplanes.

RAILROADS CLOSE.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 3. — (United Press).—The warring Chekiang and Kiangsu forces to-day were girding for major battles, following the outbreak of minor clashes on Tuesday.

There were few details of the outpost battles yesterday, which marked the opening of civil war which in some circles is regarded as being more serious than the Chinese revolution of several years ago.

General Lie Lung Psiang, commander of the Chekiang forces, hastened his army in a semi-circular position defending Shanghai. Their protected territory extends from the Yangtze River to Taihu Lake.

At every point in the semi-circular battle line drawn up by General Lu, General Chi Hsich Yuan, commanding the Kiangsu Province soldiers, has stationed his men.

Both armies are reported well equipped for modern warfare. They have machine guns, many heavy artillery pieces, gas bombs and airplanes. In some places the armies are no more than two miles apart.

Stop Rail Service.

Official notice received last night suspending indefinitely all passenger and freight traffic on the Shanghai Nanking Railroad left the entire community in a fever of expectancy, though ignorant of what might be taking place thirty miles from there. War craft in the harbor last night totalled twenty. Five more American destroyers arrived from Chefoo yesterday afternoon.

Disease Germs Doomed

Many have lost terrors for the Scientist

The progress of recent years in medical research is little short of marvellous. Daily, science kills germs by the million. Daily, new ones are being discovered, isolated and exterminated by the march of medicine.

Science is winning. What were once regarded as serious diseases are now laughed out of countenance by the doctors. Fearlessly they plunge naked hands into swarms of them, their only precaution being to rinse their hands afterwards with a reliable germicidal preparation. We are witnessing the birth of an era when the world will have little to fear from microbes.

Absorbine Jr., besides being the all-purpose liniment that removes pain and soreness, and hastens healing, is a powerful antiseptic that is death to the microbe world.

Absorbine Jr., is just what is needed in the house in case of accidents and to correct the many little household hurts that constantly occur. $1.25, at your druggist.

ASTHMA AND HAY FEVER A GUARANTEED RELIEF

MAKE GOOD FARMERS.

Wives and Children Greet Husband and Fathers on Strange Shores.

QUEBEC, Que., Sept. 3. — That residents of the British Isles not only make good farmers but have already proved highly successful in the rural and business life of the Dominion is evidenced by the arrival here over the week end of the wives and children, totalling nearly two hundred of these who had previously come to Canada under the auspices of the British Dominions immigration Society whose headquarters are in the City of London, England. The party arrived on the White Star Dominion Liner Megantic under the care of W.. Garnett, Treas. of the Society.

These families for the most part come from the midland counties of England, although a few come from Scotland from where the fathers left some months ago their physical condition and healthy appearance was commented upon their arrival at Quebec and there was no difficulty in getting by the rigid inspection of the immigration officials the party left later by a special train over the Canadian National Railway for their destinations in western Canada.

OMEMEE GARDENS IN FULL FLOWER

Rich Blooms Mark the End of Summer—Like Flower Show.

OMEMEE, Sept. 2.— Omemee might well hold a flower show this year, so beautiful and varied are the many flower gardens.

Sheltered from the northern blasts by a lofty row of pine trees, Mr. A. Laidley has a flower garden of which he is justly proud. A border of stalwart holly-hocks of various shades, forms a pretty background for the beautiful floral display, of gladioli, asters, verbena, snapdragon, petunia, salvia, cosmos, Japanese plant, garden geranium, golden glow, sweet peas and many other varieties. Mr. Laidley purposes enlarging his flower garden next year.

Miss Nettie Rutherford's flower garden has been much admired, among the many varieties being a large display of cosmos and Canterbury bells, while a rare and beautiful lily, in appearance much like an Easter lily, with yellow stripes adorning each snowy petal, grows in the front flower bed.

Specializing in geraniums of many varieties, which are heavy with bloom and buds, Mrs. Bushnell leads, in a fine display around her home.

Mrs. W. D. Stinson's flower garden, which may be seen from the front street, is one of the finest in the village, containing a wonderful display of gladioli, dahlias and many other beautiful flowers.

Surrounding the quaint bungalow belonging to Mrs. Robert McConnel, is a floral display second to none, of gladioli, sweet peas, phlox, cosmos, dahlias and many others.

To give individual mention to all would take up too much space. Suffice it to safe it would be time well spent for the flower lovers of this vicinity to visit and admire the floral displays to be enjoyed just now in Omemee.

Dug 79 Foot Well.

Mr. McLuhan, of Lindsay, who has been drilling a well for Dr. G. N. Earle, succeeded in striking clear water on Saturday, after going to a depth of 79 feet. The last 7 feet was through solid rock and was much easier to drill through than the quick sand which he reached before.

The Wednesday half holidays, which have been observed during the past three months, ceased this week, and the merchants are now looking forward to do a brisk business for the fall season.

Shooting Season.

The duck shooting season opened on Monday and long before daylight the cars were buzzing around to be in a good locality and in fact many sportsmen didn't wait until dawn before the shots were heard. However, the early bird gets the worm and it is reported that those who went early were successful in capturing at least two fine ducks.

Schools Re-open.

The High and Public schools reopened on Tuesday, with Misses Shapley of Amherstburg, as principal and G. M. Meredith of Peterborough, as assistant of the former, and Mr. J. Widdis, of Omemee, principal of the Public school, with Miss D. Anderson, of Uxbridge, as assistant. The teachers were all in their places but many scholars did not put in an appearance, possibly on account of the rain., which fell until nearly noon. A number of new scholars registered and it is hoped that the number will exceed the attendance last year.

In last week's issue we quoted the price of nut coal sold by Mr. H. Lamb at $16.50. This should have read $15.00.

Australian Wheat Pool May Have Federal Aid

MELBOURNE, Australia, Sept. 2.—(Canadian Press Cable via Reuters.)—Premier Bruce of the Commonwealth has informed four of the Australian wheat growing states that the Commonwealth government is willing to co-operate in voluntary wheat pools over a period of three years, providing there is one selling organization for overseas and one chartering agency for the control of shipping and freighting arrangements. The arrangement contemplates a guarantee to the producers, backed by the Commonwealth and state governments jointly, of 80 per cent. of the export market price.

DROWNED FROM CANOE

THE PAS, Man., Sept. 3.—When practising in a canoe Sunday evening for the Labor Day water sports, Fred Marquis, 30, an employee of The Pas Lumber Co., upset and was drowned in the Saskatchewan river.

The body was recovered yesterday by R. B. Gates, Inspectotr of Northern Manitoba provincial police, after dragging the river bottom for some hours. The drowned man leaves a widow and three children.

Sometimes the two planes flew 25 feet above the frothing icy waters where the slightest mishap meant a disaster like Locatelli's.

After the planes landed, Lieutenant Arnold worked half an hour securing his plane as freezing water washed over the pontoons.

Near To Disaster.

For the first time Smith and Nelson told to-day the story of their thrilling flight from Iceland to Ivigut, Greenland.

"We dodged around icebergs like kids around city corners," Smith declared. "While above the ice pack girdle of Greenland flying just above the water with the pontoons occasionally almost scraping icebergs, we suddenly turned a corner around a big mass of ice and lost Nelson. For an hour we flew blindly through the densest of fog in order to avoid a head-on crashing with each other. Then we finally landed.

The two-hours' flight from Fredericksdal to Ivigtut was "uneventful," according to the fliers,, although they admitted ducking head-on into a pelting storm of ice, rain and big hailstones.

The Tag That Pins Them Down

SNYDER'S Sani-Bilt guarantee pins down the manufacturers of Sani-Bilt Living-Room Furniture to certain definite statements, for which we are responsible and from which we cannot get away.

One of these statements is that Snyder's Sani-Bilt Furniture is mothproof. When we say mothproof, we mean mothproof. We don't mean mothproof for a season. We mean that absolutely every particle of attraction for moths has been removed from Sani-Bilt Furniture. There is no other process that gives you absolute immunity from moths and no other upholstered furniture manufacturers in Canada have the right to use this process.

And we are furthermore pinned down. We guarantee sound and strong construction, and fresh, new, sanitary fillings (not renovated).

They Can't Get Away From It

Snyder's Sani-Bilt guarantee also pins down the manufacturers of all other furniture claimed as "mothproof". Is their furniture mothproof, or is it not mothproof? It is no use them saying it is the same as Sani-Bilt. There is no other process like the Sani-Bilt process. There is no use them saying it is "practically" mothproof or "mothproof for a certain length of time". Is it absolutely mothproof? Will the effect of their powders and sprays last as long as the furniture? Is it poisonous? Does it dry into dust which a vacuum cleaner sucks away? Or does it evaporate into the air like gasoline and its solutions? The Sani-Bilt process is non-poisonous, does not evaporate, is non-odorous, leaves no stain, cannot be weakened by any cleaning process.

Make Sure it is Sani-Bilt

When furniture dealers show you upholstered furniture, it is only fair to pin them down, also. Is it Sani-Bilt? Demand to see the guarantee. Read this guarantee and make sure it is the Sani-Bilt guarantee, and not an imitation or a mere evasion. The Sani-Bilt guarantee tag on every Sani-Bilt piece pins imitators and their selling agents down to absolute facts, just as it pins us down.

Look, also, for the Sani-Bilt trade mark label under the Marshall Spring Cushions.

Leading dealers will show you Sani-Bilt Furniture to suit your taste, whatever the price you want to pay. If you have any difficulty, write us.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1924.

BACK TO SCHOOL.

The city's schools, after opening yesterday for organization purposes, began their work proper this morning.

To the youngsters the re-opening of school is an event of supreme importance, not always welcomed, of course, and regarded by not a small percentage as little short of a tragedy.

The long, bright, idle days of the summer vacation are gone—and next year's holidays seem so far away as to be scarcely perceptible.

Yet the youngsters, back to desks and books, would rejoice if they could only get the same angle on the matter as their elders have.

The adult sees school days as the best period in life, the halycon time when responsibilities and cares are light, when there is a happy brotherhood with kindred spirits, when friendships are made that sometimes continue throughout life.

Scarcely a grown-up but would cheerfully go back to the days when he was ten, even if it did happen to be the first day of school.

But glad or not, Peterborough's school children are embarking upon another term, a stage nearer the time when they will forsake the school for the battle of life, and the Examiner wishes them and the teachers who are to have charge of their education every success.

THE LOVE OF THE "KID."

"Kid McCoy" loves and always has loved his mother, we are told. She says he is and always has been "a good boy" to her. At 2 o'clock of the morning, after the crime of which he is accused had taken place, he went to his mother's home to tell her that he loved her. Now he is in jail and face to face with a charge that may cause his death at the hands of the law.

"Kid McCoy" no doubt loved his mother as a little child loves. She was good to turn to for solace and sympathy and affection when weariness came and hurts and troubles. But "Kid McCoy" does not and never has loved his mother as the Divine admonition contemplates. Never has his life been guided or influenced by that love. "Honor thy father and thy mother" was not laid down as a rule of conduct for babes. It does not mean simply a caress, a tender word, a bit of devotion, a gesture of loyalty. Love, big and abiding and controlling, is its perfect definition. It means that man shall so live and so conduct himself as to reflect honor upon himself not alone but upon her who went down into the valley of the shadow to bring him back, a helpless babe.

Men who give such a love as this expression in their daily walks and living do not know free and easy morals—do not find themselves confronting the gallows, as "Kid McCoy" does today and as other men have done before him. Filial affection cannot consort with crime.

THE PLEBISCITE.

Mr. Raney continues his onslaught against the O. T. A. plebiscite, and his latest contribution seeks to show that there is no justification for submitting the question to the people at the present time.

The Examiner is willing to let Premier Ferguson fight his own battles with the ex-Attorney-General.

At the same time it must confess to have some difficulty in following Mr. Raney's contention.

The very fact that since Ontario last voted upon the liquor question the Provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba have decided to substitute a system of Government control in place of prohibition, shows that over a large section of Canada there has been a striking change in the trend of public opinion on this matter.

It is a natural thing to wonder as to whether or not that change has extended into Ontario.

And there is only one sensible way of getting at the answer.

That is to let the people of this Province decide with their ballots.

Mr. Ferguson is right in submitting the issue to the electors, but he should lose no time now that September is here in enlightening the Province as to the exact form the questions will take.

The people are entitled to that information and should have it immediately.

BOOMING ONTARIO.

The suggestion made at the Rotary Club luncheon yesterday by Secretary Leon Frazer of the Trent Waterway Development Association that Ontario should have a Provincial-wide organization for the purpose of extensively advertising Ontario as a paradise for tourists, is one deserving of development and support.

This Province has a wealth of scenic charm to offer its visitors—beautiful lakes and rivers, wonderful fishing, boating, bathing and other summer pastimes.

We don't make enough of these attractions.

The Province has gone along on the theory that the charm of Ontario's resorts needed no advertising, that tourists would be bound to discover this wonderful network of rivers and lakes.

Thousands have, of course, but in the northern States of the Republic there must be hundreds of thousands of others who couldn't tell you whether the Kawartha Lakes, for example, were in Canada or South America.

Quebec has such an organization as is suggested by the Secretary of the Trent Waterway Development Association, and it has already secured good results in attracting large numbers of visitors to the sister Province.

There is no reason to doubt that were such an association to be launched in Ontario, great as it is the motor tourist travel in this Province, the present influx would seem trivial in the face of the rush of United States visitors that would follow a worth-while advertising campaign.

A CHEAP CROOK.

Two Hamilton merchants were victimized yesterday by a swindler whose stock in trade is a pleasant telephone voice, nerve, a supply of Mexican $20 bills—and an old game, says the Hamilton Spectator. Phoning for a small order to be delivered to a given address, the swindler requested that the messenger be provided with change for a $20 bill. Waiting on the sidewalk in front of the house, whose number was given, the man took the parcel and the change and tendered a worthless Mexican bill. By the time the deception was discovered he had disappeared. Three times in a week the game has been worked on local storekeepers—and it will be attempted again; if not here, in some other city. A repeat performance is as certain as the knowledge that the perpetrator of the fraud will eventually be caught. Dinky, little two-by-four crooks like this fellow always are caught. His three exploits in Hamilton have netted him less than $60. That he worked the fraud again yesterday, in the face of the publicity that had been given his inaugural operation, indicates that the man was in need of funds. The same need will force him to try again and then some day, instead of a messenger boy, a police officer will appear on the scene and the swindler, who now deludes himself it is "easy money" he is getting, will make the discovery he has been trying to beat an unbeatable game. Publcity will make it impossible for him to long escape the stern hand of the law. Impressionable youths who, reading of this chap's exploits might make the mistake of considering him "slick," are warned to think again. The jails are full of such as he.

ASQUITH TO FOLLOW GREY?

Close upon the announcement of the retirement of Lord Grey comes a despatch to the New York World that Mr. Asquith is to relinquish the British Liberal leadership. It is news which, if true, signalizes an event which may well have profound effect upon Imperial and world politics, and which, in any case, removes from the stage one who in achievement and general quality has been a great Englishman, one who has left a very definite mark upon contemporary history. Mr. Asquith has been one of the surviving links with Gladstonian Liberalism. The antithesis of his great rival and contemporary, Lloyd George, he has been a Liberal of the older dispensation, just touched with the version of Whiggism Lord Rosebery called Liberal Imperialism. He was in Mr. Gladstone's Cabinet as Home Secretary way back in 1892. In the famous Parnell suit against the Times he had established a reputation as a great lawyer; and in days when Gladstone and Chamberlain and Dilke and Balfour were at the zenith of their careers he was, though still a young man, a power in parliamentary debate. Gladstone, perhaps, could be more majestic and more moving, Balfour could be more subtle and persuasive, Lloyd George more tempestuous and passionate. But for sheer massive march of eloquence, for the use of the inevitable word, for power and incidity, Mr. Asquith had no peer. Lord Curzon, himself an orator of strength and beauty, has thus pictured him in debate:

"I have never heard Mr. Asquith upon a great occasion without there rising before me the vision of marching men. I see and hear the steady measured tread of the well disciplined units, the sun glints on the bayonets, and ever and anon there is heard the sound of the drums."

And Lord Birkenhead, whose brilliant portraits of British statesmen have added to his other achievements a high place in journalism, thus writes of him:

"He was, indeed, a very remarkable parliamentary debater. He was, without notes and without preparation, able to produce in endless succession a long series of Ciceronian sentences which recalled to an audience, which had hardly known it, the classical period of parliamentary oratory. He never lacked the just word; he never failed to improvise that subtle cadence of the sentence which is pure gold to him who has studied the qualities of spoken rhetoric. The form, indeed, was matchless. If at times the spirit was less mighty than the expression, it may be replied that it is not given to every age to produce an orator armed with every gift. Disraeli was brilliant and mordant in form, but wholly lacking in the gifts of a natural orator. Gladstone was inspired in eloquence, but turgid to a degree, so that it is now impossible to read any long speeches of his without impatience.

"And it must be remembered of Mr. Asquith that the speech at the very beginning of the war, in which he defined the conditions under which, and under which alone, we should sheathe the sword was one of the noblest, as it was one of the most courageous, of the war."

With Asquith's part in the war, history, perhaps, will deal more kindly than the times in which he lived. He met the first onset with courage and with vision, and the Empire should never lose its gratitude for the man who, in the dark days of 1914-15, kept the straight course in a crucial moment of the world's destiny. But years of compromise, coupled with other things, had left their mark on the intellect; Mr. Asquith was tired, the edge of executive keenness had been blunted, the principles of Gladstonian Liberalism were hardly adequate guides with which to meet a whole world at war. Mr. Lloyd George was designated as the instrument of salvation and proved to be so.

Yet Asquith, despite his eclipse, had assured himself a place in the history of his country and of the Empire. Lord Birkenhead, although long a political opponent, thus sums up his character and career:

"Mr. Asquith's character is a national asset. In the rotund form of his oratory and the absolute integrity of motive and conduct he recalls to a perverse generation all that was best of a bygone age. And it will be said of him, when the last criticism is weighed, that here was a statesman, honorable, generous and sagacious, who rendered great service to his country at a time when no other living Englishman could have done that which he did; and without which the State might have tottered to ruin."—Ottawa Journal.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, September 3 (Canadian Press). — Lack of buying power in the late trading yesterday caused a break in wheat values which had previously shown a tendency to rise, and the market closed weak, with all the early advance wiped out.

At the finish wheat was 1-4c to 1 1-8c down with September $1.22 3-4 to $1.23 and December $1.27 7-8 to $1.28.

Corn was 1-8c higher to 1-2c lower. Oats 3-8c to 7-8c off.

Provisions ranged from 5 cents decline to 15c advance.

Wheat was moderately active and higher at the start yesterday, due largely to firmness in the Liverpool cables and generally bullish crop reports from abroad. Frost in the Canadian North-West and parts of Montana and North Dakota also tended to lift values. Failure, however, of the official weather map to show frosts anywhere and an estimate of a heavy increase in the visible supply—one report placing the spring wheat crop at 11,000,000 bushels in excess of the Government's August figures—slowed up buying in the late trading and resulted in a reaction.

A THOUGHT

HOME AFTER ALL.

Home's always here, or home's always near, home's just a spot in the town,
Home's rather plain, just a roof from the rain, a nook when the night has come down.
Home's out of style, and we joke and we smile, many the lip that has curled;
But wander away and you'll want it some day more than the rest of the world.

Home's just a place, just a voice, just a face, father and mother and kin.
Home's where we dream, and we plan, and we scheme; home's where our journeys begin,
Home, like as not, is a flat on a cot, isn't much, but a wall;
But, when you tire, when you long for your fire, home is a lot, after all.

Home's always home though the world you may roam, seeking some fortune afar:
Home is the pole of the heart and the soul, home the unclenchable star.
Travel for miles to the farthest of aisles, sail to the east of the west,
The farther you go then the more you will know that home, after all is the best. —D.M.

FORD HOSPITAL NOT A CHARITY

Rich and Poor Pay Alike—Compared To Automobile Repair Shop.

IGNORES TRADITION.

By WILLIAM L. CHENERY.

Quite as much acrimony has been aroused in Detroit by the Henry Ford Hospital as by the industrial policies of the manufacturer who made the flivver famous.

This institution was conceived as a charity, but built as an experiment. In its construction and in its policy Henry Ford took occasion to express his contempt for medical tradition just as in the building of his motor factory he did not conceal his dissent from the cherished opinions of the industry. Naturally, therefore, the hospital has had its controversies. For all that however, it is an interesting and significant venture.

The Henry Ford Hospital occupies about twenty acres near the geographical centre of Detroit. It represents a personal investment of upward of $6,000,000 on the part of the founder and it has a large staff of surgeons and medical men trained at Johns Hopkins University and at other good medical institutions. The sharpness of the controversy arose not over the technical equipment of the hospital, which is excellent, nor over the qualifications of the surgeons and doctors, who represent a very high level of professional education and competence, but rather over the extension of Mr. Ford's theories about the consumer to the hospital.

Until very recent years the most sacred item in the business creed was to "charge what the traffic will bear." The stupid man would try to extort a little more than was tolerable, and he would lose his patronage. The wise man would estimate the load very nicely, and he would prosper. Few, however, disagreed with the principle. Henry Ford did dissent, and so did Mayor Tom Johnson of Cleveland, for that matter, and Ford was in a position to shout his opposition from the housetops. He sold his automobile for less than the traffic might have borne, and when he established a hospital he put into effect rates which are far below those customarily charged for surgical work. There lies the rub.

Ten years ago the attention of Henry Ford was attracted by a group ofdoctors who were then trying to raise money to found a new hospital in Detroit. After some months of effort the required sum was not in sight, and then Mr. Ford offered to provide the money needed and to repay those who had already contributed if he was given full responsibility. He undertook to provide "a complete and creditable hospital." He was given full responsibility, and today Henry and Edsel Ford and their respective wives compose the Board of Trustees of "a complete and creditable hospital."

No Charity Cases.

The Ford Hospital is not a charitable institution, although it does render free service to patients sent to it by the American Legion. Its policy is to supply "the best medical attention at the lowest rate consistent with the service rendered." The hospital is a closed institution; physicians not on the staff are not permitted to care for patients in the hospital. In this respect it is comparable to the Johns Hopkins Hospital and to other important institutions in the East. The Ford Hospital differs from most other institutions in the fact that the physicians and surgeons are employes of the hospital and that charges are based on cost.

The rates for medical and surgical care are relatively low. The charge for an operation varies from $25 to $150, and the richness or poverty of the patient has nothing to do with the fee asked.

A millionaire or a day laborer would pay exactly the same fee for the same kind of operation.

This one-price system, and a low price at that runs counter to professional practice today, but not to business practice. Until recently merchants had two or more prices and the best bargainer got the lowest price. In the retail trade, however, the one-price system has been generally accepted and the rich man pays no more for the commodities he buys than the poor man would be expected to pay. Henry Ford merely extended the policy of the pioneer merchants of fifty years ago to his hospital.

Many surgeons in private practice are highly critical of this experiment. A luncheon and clinic arranged last spring at the Ford Hospital for the Detroit Academy of Surgery was canceled at the last moment amid a considerable flurry of excitement. One of the critics, himself a surgeon, said: "There the fine intimate personal touch between patient and physician is lost completely. The methods resemble nothing more than a garage repair line where human machines are overhauled like automobiles. The physicians are said to punch the clock like any other Ford employee. They are merely cogs in a repair machine."

Another surgeon explained the feeling of those who were antagonistic to the Ford Hospital in part as follows:

"One difficulty is that the Ford Hospital charges a comparatively low flat rate. This reduces the chance of the rich men paying large fees, and, since the Ford Hospital declines to treat charity patients, the entire burden of their treatment falls upon the independent physician who formerly handled them and endeavored to average up by charging the larger fees to those financially able to pay."

Retains Intimate Touch.

In any event the Ford Hospital does make these low flat rates for surgical operations and millionaires among others do avail themselves of the opportunity offered. The room charges run from $4.50 a day to $8 a day for a private room. Patients in the hospital pay $21 a week for medical attendance unless they happen to be surgical cases and in that event the operative fee includes attention. The obstetrical fee is $75, and this includes all attendant care. Laboratory charges and all other special fees such as for X-ray work are proportionately moderate.

It is true that the charges are low, but so far as the layman can observe it is not true that the "fine intimate personal touch" between the patient and surgeon has been lost, or that the hospital methods in any way suggest a garage or even a factory system. The contrary is the case.

What Henry Ford has done in Detroit is exactly comparable to what the United States Government does for the men in the army and the navy. The Government builds and equips a hospital for the care of men in the navy and to that hospital are sent commissioned surgeons and physicians. They give the best care of which they are capable regardless of fees because there are no fees. The Ford physicians and surgeons are in a similar relationship to the hospital, the only difference being that their salaries are more adequate than those paid by the Government. They are sufficiently large to attract well-trained men away from private practice and from other institutional service.

The Ford building resembles many other well-considered hospitals. It is notably attractive inside, and the lobby is more suggestive of a family hotel than of a place for the sick. The familiar hospital odors have been avoided, and the patient finds his room with not more ado than is necessary in finding lodgings at a modern hostelry. In fact, "the every room with a bath," the daily free distribution of newspapers, the minor services extended every patient recall the attractions offered by up-to-date innkeepers. Superficially the hospital thus resembles a hotel and not a garage.

The attitude toward patients is exactly that of any well-equipped institution run by medical men trained in scientific methods. This is apparent from the procedure followed and from the voluntary testimony of former patients of the hospital.

Co-operative Diagnoses.

The person who enters the hospital for an examination is submitted to a very rigid scrutiny. The co-operative method of diagnosis is used, and men trained at Johns Hopkins the University of Michigan, the University of Chicago and at Harvard are in charge of the various departments. The Johns Hopkins men predominate, possibly because the original chiefs were affiliated with the university at Baltimore. The Ford Hospital did not invent the method of co-operative diagnosis. Dr. Richard Cabot of Boston was one of its first exponents. The Mayo brothers of Rochester, Minn., have long been eminent exponents of the practice.

The Detroit manufacturer merely provided the facilities and assembled a large staff of young men competent and eager to work in this scientific fashion. The result is that a number of people in Detroit have acquired the habit of going to the Ford Hospital for periodic health surveys. The charge for this may be $10 or more, depending on how much work is necessary. The procedure is exacting and a real effort is made to approach the Chinese ideal of paying doctors to keep their patients well rather than to heal those who are sick.

The physical arrangements have been well devised. It is related that when the plans were being discussed Henry Ford asked what size rooms were desirable. The physician queried had no ideal in mind and so he replied: "The rooms at the Hopkins Hospital have these dimensions. The Harvard men have adopted the following proportions. In New York this size is used" . . .

Henry Ford interrupted with:

"I don't care what somebody else is doing. What is the right size? How much space do you need?"

The medical man was compelled to admit that he did not know the precise length, width and height of an ideal hospital room and so the automobile man said: "All right, I will send you a couple of carpenters and some lumber. Let them build one room after another until you get the right size and we will make that the hospital unit."

As a result of this experimentation, which was essentially scientific in its approach, the rooms in the Ford Hospital are sixteen by ten feet. That is the space found to be desirable after the carpenters had built a number of model rooms and furniture had been placed in each of them. The same attitude was shown in furnishing the hospital. Most medical and surgical equipment is, of course, technical material on which only the experts can pass judgment, but the spirit of the institution has been favorable to change and improvements wherever possible.

Improvements in Beds.

The beds are thus fitted on large casters which differ from those in common use by the fact that they are set back under the beds. The explanation of this begins with a time when Edsel Ford was a patient in the hospital. He observed that doctors, nurses and attendants sometimes stumbled over the projective wheel casters. An order went forth and the entire equipment of the hospital was changed so that no patient need be annoyed by having someone involuntarily kick his bed or fall over it.

Many other small mechanical devices have been installed for the benefit of the patients and nurses. Beds can be lifted and bent and moved about to suit the patient's comfort and the nurse is spared the heavy lifting which is so burdensome in many.

The hospital is also provided with extensive laboratories, and while it was never designed to be a research institution, original scientific work is being done in the field of physiological chemistry and elsewhere. The research work done at the Ford Hospital will undoubtedly compare favorably with the output of other hospitals.

It is true that the Ford Hospital does not maintain free clinics. The answer made to this accusation is that Henry Ford personally is a large contributer to the maintenance of other free clinics in Detroit. His own hospital makes no pretense of being a charitable institution, although veterans are cared for. The ideal is not charity, but medical service at cost. The Ford doctors are not critical of other hospitals in which surgeons and medical men may care for the poor without charge and make the rich pay in proportion to their wealth. They merely argue their right to conduct another kind of hospital in which the cost of service is the measure of the fees charged.

The truth is that the middle class who are neither rich nor poor can get a type of attention at the Ford Hospital which they would have difficulty paying for elsewhere. The system of high fees for the rich and charity for the poor has its rough justice. In recent years, however, when diagnosis is so much the result of the co-operation of many minds, it has often been said that only the very rich and the very poor could obtain the best medical service. The consultation with many specialists is beyond the means of millions who are neither rich nor poor.

13 000 People Cared For.

At the Ford Hospital for very moderate fees—$5 or $10 or $21 a week—all the devices and methods of contemporary medicine are made available. If an outside physician desires to have a diagnosis made for one of his patients, the hospital co-operates and complete reports are made to the outside doctors. All the recognized divisions of medicine are represented at the Ford Hospital and well trained men are in charge. So within an expenditure which the middle class can afford a more thorough type of medical service than was previously available has been offered.

That the hospital meets a genuine need is proved by the numbers of patients who seek admittance and of doctors who apply for positions on the staff. At the last time of appointing internes 400 young doctors applied for the twenty-four positions which were available. The hospital has accommodations for about 600 patients and last year it cared for more than 13,000. Its out-patient department took care of a daily average of about 300. Furthermore the charges are sufficient to defray all costs except those of enlargement, which are paid for by Mr. Ford.

At the present time a school of nursing and of hygiene is being built on the grounds of the hospital. This, too, has some novel ideas and a high standard of material equipment. A nurses' home has 325 large rooms, each provided with a bath room and an ample clothes closet. Indicative of the furnishing is the cedar chest found in each room. The first class of nurses will be received on Jan. 1. The course is designed to last two years and four months; a marked abbreviation of the time commonly required to train nurses. This economy in time is obtained by eliminating much of the service ordinarily exacted of student nurses and of using the hours thus gained in giving instruction.

All told, an extraordinarily interesting experiment is being made at the Henry Ford Hospital. Well trained men and women have been supplied with the facilities required for scientific work and the public has been invited to obtain medical service at cost. The doctors who have been accorded this opportunity for thorough work and the patients who have availed themselves of the service offered approve the experiment. It will doubtless be able to survive any criticism which hitherto has been directed against it.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Work on the Bridge Is Being Pushed Night and Day—Death of Mr. George Ivey.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 3.—Wor kon the bridge is being pushed night and day and good progress has already been made although the contractor started only last week. The cement flooring has nearly all been removed, and the steel girders have been put in position ready for final placing. The bridge was closed to foot passengers a short time yesterday, but was available during the rush hours.

The Fourth Bridge.

This is the fourth bridge that has been built across the Trent River at this point but when the present structure is completed it will, it is exected, last longer than the combined life of its four predecessors.

In the pioneer days there was no bridge, and the water of the river was comparatively shallow, not having been raised by the dams which were put in later. There was a large scow used as a ferry, a short distance above where the bridge is now located. This primitive craft was polled across from one bank to the other. In the dry season when the water was low it was possible to drive teams across and it was rom this circumstance that the town of Campbellford got its name. The late Major Campbell owned nearly all the land in this vicinity and the place was first known as Campbell's Ford.

The first bridge was build about 80 years ago upon old fashioned piers made by building wooden cribs at intervals in the stream and filling these with stones. The superstructure was entirely of wood as timber was plentiful and cheap in those days.

Something like 40 years ago an archedb bridge was constructed, and there are many residents in the town to-day who helped in the building. The structure was a handsome affair but two decades of traffic wore it out, and the old bridge which is now being repaired, was begun.

Solid strone piers were put in and these are considered just as good as they ever were, according to the engineer who examined them during the past year. The steel beams used in the old bridge were put into the new one, and the old cross beams, not being considered heavy enough, were strengthened by placing smaller ones on top of them. The girders were put in about four feet apart, and over these a wire netting was placed to hold the cement flooring.

The new bridge will be filled out with heavier girders placed closer together, and the structure, when finished, will be strong enough to take care of the heaviest traffic it will be called upon to bear.

Campbellford's Share of Cost.

The three bridges referred to were put in at the counties' expense. When Campbellford was incorporated as a town an agreement was reached by which the new municipality was to bear one-quarter of the cost of a new bridge in the event of one being required, and the same proportion of the expense of maintenance. This agreement is to remain in force until the town has a population of 5,000.

Seymour Council Meets.

There is no scramble for municipal office in Seymour Township. When the Council met yesterday not a single application was received for the position of collector of taxes, which carries with it a salary of $175 a year, and which has been held for a long period of years by Henry Dunham. The Council, however, passed the necessary by-law writing into it again the name of Mr. Dunham, who, it is hoped, will continue in the office.

George Vance, while working with his team on the township road, had one of his horses injured when its foot went into a hole in a culvert. The animal was laid up for four days, and the services of a veterinary were required.

Mr. Vance asked compensation from the Council, and was promised that his claim would be investigated.

Bills to the amount of $1,567.01 were ordered paid.

Schools Re-open.

The High and Public Schools reopened yesterday after the summer holidays, but on account of the rain the attendance was not up to normal. All the six teachers in the High School were in their places. There is every prospect of a large attendance both from town and country, but it will be impossible to approximate the number from outside until next week.

The only new teacher on the Public School staff is Miss Helen M. Bygott, who succeeds Mrs. Reid, in the Primary Department.

The work of drilling a well in the High School grounds has been commenced, and the institution will soon be equipped with a complete waterworks system, including shower baths.

Death of Pioneer.

Mary Eliza, relict of the late Robert Aikens, died at her home at Stanwood on Tuesday morning, aged 84 years. Her husband predeceased her twelve years. Three children survive, William, who resides on the homestead where his mother passed away, Mrs. John Rowe, of Seymour West, and Mrs. William McLaughlin, of Havelock.

The funeral will be held at 2.30 on Wednesday afternoon to Stanwood Cemetery. Rev. D. C. Daniels, of the Seymour Circuit, will conduct the religious services.

No Band Concert.

The usual Tuesday evening band concert was cancelled last night, as the band will play at the bowling tournament on Thursday evening.

Helen Black's Record.

The standing of Helen Black was not given in the published reports of the Upper School examinations which appeared in The Examiner recently, as Principal Greig did not receive the returns in her case until yesterday.

Miss Black, always regarded as one of the best students in the school, took an exceptionally high standing, winning first-class honours in English composition, first in English literature, secong in algebra, second in geometry, second in trigonometry, second in physics, third in Latin authors, third in Latin composition, second in French authors, and second in French composition.

The death of Mr. George Ivey Sr., Booth street, occurred on Sunday night at half past nine. He has been in poor health for some time. The funeral took place Tuesday morning to Mount Pleasant Cemetery. Rev. W. Elliott, pastor of the Methodist church had the service which was held at his late residence at ten o'clock Tuesday morning.

The Bearers who were all relatives of the deceased wr as follows: — Two brothrs, John Ivey of Campbell ford and Tom Ivey, principal of one of the Collegiates in Toronto, A. J. Beavis, Thos. Free David Wood and Earl Ivey.

After having a high school education at the Campbellford High School, he took up cheese making and was in that business until about ten years ago when he became a cheese buyer. About thirty-five years ago while he was making cheese at Myersburg, he married Miss Anna Milligan of Norham.

Part of his life he made cheese at Rednersville in Prince Edward County. The last factory he had charge of was at Godolphin between Hastings and Campbellford. He with his wife and family have resided in Campbellford since. Besides his wid ow, he leaves three daughters and one son—Mrs. Milligan of town; Mrs. G. OBJECT TO LOAN.

Says Germany Will Make a Dumping Ground of Great Britain.

LONDON, Sept. 3. — (Canadian Press).—The National Union of Manufacturers of Great Britain has petitioned Parliament against the granting of the proposed loan of £40,000,000 to Germany.

The secretary of the Manufacturers' Union, J. Cheeseman, in an interview, suggests that some of the Dominions are being reluctantly forced to ban the importation of British goods in order to prevent Germany from benefitting by the preference granted the mother country. Germany dumps goods in Great Britain which subsequently find their way to the Dominions, he says.

Huge quantities of cheap leather have been imported from Germany by Great Britain, Secretary Cheeseman says, and in order to prevent what would be practically giving a preference to German leather, the Dominions have felt that they could not give a preference on boots imported from Great Britain.

FIFTY CENT BANDIT.

Local Man Charged With Attempt to Hold Up a Chinaman.

Banditry for four 'bits was the charge against a local young man in the Police Court before Harry Rush, Esq., J.P., assisted by Coroner Dr. T. W. H. Young, when the accused was remanded until to-morrow.

On Monday night, it appears, the prisoner met a Chinaman on Queen Street, begged a match, and then, pointing his index finger with thumb raised to resemble the trigger, demanded 50 cents or the Chinaman's life.

The Celestial evinced no desire to give up either, threw up his hands, took to his heels, and laid a complaint.

The new Radiola

What every one has been waiting for

Everyone has been interested in radio but few own radio sets. Many have been waiting for the set of the future—the perfected set—simple; quick to pick up any station, near or distant; quality built, yet moderate in price.

New Designs

Now, the combined resources of the Canadian Westinghouse Company and the Radio Corporation of America unite to fulfil the prophesy of radio achievement.

Remarkable Improvements

Radiolas made by Canadian Westinghouse represent new and remarkable radio achievements. They are super-selective—you can tune any station in or out at your pleasure. They are unusally sensitive so that stations 1500 to 3000 miles distant can be easily heard. They are non-radiating—you are not the bane of every other radio owner in your neighborhood. And the tone reproduction of these sets is clear and melodious in its portrayal of voice or music.

Popular Prices

Best of all, these important improvements are now obtainable at a popular price. You owe it to yourself and to your family to know what opportunities for education, information and pleasure these new Radiolas bring to your home. Any Westinghouse dealer will be glad to give you a demonstration or you can write us for our fully illustrated booklet.

ALBERTA'S WHEAT CROP BETTER THAN AVERAGE FOR TEN YEARS

Southern Saskatchewan's Grain Has Never Looked More Favorable.

OUTLOOK PROMISING.

No. 1 Northern Wheat Received at Moose Jaw—Set Back in South Manitoba.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Crop prospects in the prairie provinces are vastly more promissing than expected, in the opinion of Charles Murphy, general manager of the Canadian Pacific railway who returned to Winnipeg yesterday after a tour of inspection of Western lines.

In parts of Saskatchewan where farmers were reported earlier in the season to be plowing under their crops, are now estimated yields from 15 to 18 bushels per acre. In Southern Saskatchewan, Mr. Murphy asserted, those who had lived there for twetny years, had never seen more favorable crops.

Alberta, he said, will have a better crop than an average for the past ten years. The fields between Calgary and Innisfail were the best he had even seen, while north of this area the prospects are not so favorable, but improvement was noticeable towards Edmonton.

Elevators under construction in Vancouver, Mr. Murphy declared, will be completed in time for the grain rush. He believed that while the crop movement would be greater than last year much would depend on ocean freight rates. If these were obtained low enough it might be possible to move part of Saskatchewan's crop through the port of Vancouver.

RUST IN S. MANITOBA.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 3.—(Canadian Press)—Earlier reports of a big yield and high quality grain in the Southern parts of Manitoba have depreciated considerably during the past week, according to Fawcett Ransom, Secretary of the Manitoba wheat pool, who has just completed a tour of that district. Serious ravages from rust had been experienced and he did not think there would be any high grade wheat produced this year in the district. Mr. Hansom placed the average yield for Southern Manitoba around 17 bushels.

WHEAT AT MOOSE JAW.

MOOSE JAW, Sask., Sept. 3.—(Canadian Press).—The first wheat was delivered to the Robin Hood Mills this morning by E. Swenson, four miles south east of the city. The wheat graded number one northern and weighed 66½ pounds to the bushel.

Howard, general tourist agent, left last night by the Washingtonian for Syosset where they will confer with Captain Lascelles and General Trotter of the Prince of Wales' staff as to the final arrangements in connection with the trip of His Royal Highness from New London, Conn., to Calgary over the Canadian National Railways via Montreal, Ottawa and Winnipeg.

A CAR RAN AWAY

Accident on Dancy's Hill, Near Omemee—Passenger Hurt.

OMEMEE, Sept. 3.—What might have proved a serious accident occurred on Dancy's hill, a mile and a half west of Omemee, on Sunday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Gossie of Lindsay were proceeding to their home, but failed to have enough gasoline to take them up the hill. The driver after turning the car around to back up the hill got out to crank the car, and being in gear, the machine started off for the ditch, and soon came in contact with a telephone pole, which badly damaged the axle and front of the car. Mrs. Gossie remained in the car, but received two bad cuts in the forehead, and the owner is suffering from a bruised arm which at first was thought to be broken.

The sufferers were removed to the home of Mr. Harry Griffin, where Dr. G. N. Earle of Omemee attended them. They were later removed to their home in Lindsay by Mr. William Irwin and the car towed to the garage.

A very pretty wedding took place on Wednesday morning, August 27, in Christ Church, when Elsie Gertrude, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bannon of Emily Township, was united in marriage to Charles Edward Davis of Omemee, son of Mr. Albert Davis of Peterborough.

The bride entered the altar on the arm of her father prettily attired in her travelling suit of navy blue tricotine, trimmed with braid and buttons, and hat of navy blue velvet and pearl grey with blue feather.

Rev. A. T. Weir, rector of the church, performed the ceremony. They were unattended and only the immediate relatives were present.

The young couple left immediately after the ceremony for a trip to Toronto and other western points, and on their return home will reside on Sturgeon street, Omemee.

BIG FINANCIAL LOSS.

Corinthian Football Team Will Visit the States.

MONTREAL, Sept. 2.—(Canadian Press.)—While officers of the Dominion soccer governing body refused to be quoted as to the results of the Corinthians tour, it was generally conceded that the enterprise has proved a financial loss to the Dominion body any many of the Provincial associations.

The Corinthians will leave Montreal Wednesday for the United States, where they will play a series of games before returning to England this month.

SERVE REAL FOOD.

Make a point of serving children real food instead of unwholesome sweets. Sweets occupy an important place in a child's dietary, but wholesome kinds should be selected. Cakes, pastry, commercial sugar and candy are creatures of disease and inefficiency. Unwholesome sweets are the greatest enemies to sound tooth structures.

HIGH AND DRY.

During a heavy fog the Cross-Channel steamer Newhaven went on the rocks under the cliffs at Dieppe. No lives were lost.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Toronto, September 2, 1924.

Dear Mr. Prime Minister, — Not one Ontario elector in a hundred, I believe, appreciates the real significance of a bill which was put through the Legislature at the last session.

After the war the people of the United States wrote prohibition into their constitution, that is to say, they made it one of their fundamental laws. That is what the people of Ontario thought they were doing, when, after an experience of more than three years with the Ontario Temperance Act, they voted to make it permanent.

In his address in the House in 1916, on the second reading of the Ontario Temperance Act, Sir William Hearst said that:

"After a period of about three years, when the people have had an opportunity of judging as to the efficiency or failure of the Act as a temperance measure, the people of the Province will have an opportunity by their free vote to decide this question for themselves."

You will note that the question was to be decided by that vote. That was what the Government, of which you were a member, told the people in 1916. Then in 1919 the Government, of which you were still a member, submitted the question to the electors. This was the vote that was to settle the matter, and, as was said by Mr. Cyril Boyce, secretary of the Moderation League of Ontario, in a recent magazine article:

"The result of this referendum, taken in 1919, was a vote for permanence of 772,041, against 365,365."

Mr. Boyce is quite right. That is just what it was, a vote for permanence. Everyone thought the matter was settled. But then came your bill at the last session of the Legislature, authorizing not one more vote of the people on the subject, but votes of the people "from time to time," as many votes as may be approved by Order-in-Council, and that bill became law and the first plebiscite under that Act has been fixed for the 23rd of October next.

Your Act authorizing plebiscites by Order-in-Council was an innovation. There was no precedent for it anywhere. All previous popular votes in Canada had been under the direct legislative authority. Your new law seemed to go on the theory that what the people really want is an opportunity to vote on this question every two or three years, and that there ought to be as little fuss about it as possible. What will this law of yours authorizing plebiscites "from time to time" mean in practice?

It will mean that if the liquor men fail to bring about the defeat of the Ontario Temperance Act on the coming plebiscite, they will, as soon as they get their second wind, begin to campaign for another popular vote at or after the next general election, and you will have the liquor trade depending for their success on your success at the next election as you had at the last election.

When do we come to an end of plebiscites under your plan? The answer, of course, is, never. You have made the plebiscite a hardy biennial. And this is the great service you have rendered the liquor trade and the corresponding disservice you have rendered the rest of the people. The people get tired. Five times in thirty years, twice in the last five years, they have voted for prohibition. The liquor trade with its vast revenues and world power never tires. Nevertheless, however unequal the contest under existing conditions, if the Act is repealed, the controversy will immediately begin all over again, because, for one reason, the best thinking people of Ontario will never again submit to the domination of the liquor interests in their politics.

There is a possible way out. The people have a right to expect that when you hand out the questions to be printed on your plebiscite ballot you will avail yourself of the opportunity of telling them where you stand on the subject. If you will tell them that in your view the Ontario Temperance Act ought to be sustained and strengthened you will check the use of the Conservative organizations in leading centres of population for the purpose of the liquor trade and there will probably be such a majority rolled up for prohibition that the liquor trade will give Ontario up as hopeless and trouble you no more about plebiscites. In that way and in that way alone will you get the question out of politics.—Yours truly,

W. E. RANEY.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE.

ROSENEATH HELD COUNCIL MEETING

Story of a Car That Backed Down a Hill—Accounts Passed.

ROSENEATH, Sept. 3.—At the Council meeting on Saturday a communication was read from the Township Solicitor, F. D. Boggs, Cobourg, in regard to the complaint laid by Mr. Harry Bender of Toronto. Mr. Bender's car ran backwards down a hill and over a steep embankment. The car turned completely over and half way again, alighting on the top. The occupants of the car escaped with a few bruises, but the car was nearly a total wreck.

Mr. Bender, through his solicitor, in Toronto, laid a complaint against the township for damages, claiming that there was no railing and no sign telling of danger.

The Reeve interviewed Mr. Boggs, but he answered that he did not intend to take any step in the matter as the plaintiff had no grounds for action.

School Fair.

On resolution of Councillors Shearer and Arnold, $15 was granted towards the School Fair, which will be held in Roseneath in September.

S. S. No. 3 rate	2.3
S. S. No. 4 rate	.3

The taxes are to be paid into the Collector's hands on or before December 15th, 1924.

The only rate that the Council have any control over is the township one, and they lowered it from 5 mills to 4.3 mills.

On motion of Councillors Parker and Shearer, the following accounts were ordered paid:

TORONTO, Sept. 2.—(Canadian Press).— An inky-black starless night, a storm brewing over Lake Scugog, a mother frantic over the loss of her four-year-old child in a hundred acres of swamp and rocky pasture land—such were the conditions recently faced by the 44th Troop of Scouts from Simpson Avenue, Toronto, when called upon while at their summer camp at St. Christopher Beach to aid in the search for a child who had strayed from a nearby fresh-air camp.

The child was found on the swamp after an hour's search.

FACTORIES HERE PRODUCE WHAT CITIZENS NEED

Peterborough is Almost Self-Supporting—Cradles to Tombstones.

IDEAL CONDITION

Person Might Eat, Wear and Use Only What City Manufactures.

Following the style of the Port Hope paper that bemoans the lack of industries in the lake shore town, we will start by saying that Peterboroites are awakened by the raucous note of an alarm clock made in Peterboro by Peterborough labour, but there the resemblance ends. The Peterborough citizens may jump into a pair of trousers made by a Peterborough tailor from material made in Peterborough, and fasten them securely with braces for which the elastic was made here. His socks may be Peterborough knit with yarn woven in Peterborough; his shoes manufactured in Peterborough from hides worn until their demise by Peterborough county calves and his shirt, made in Peterborough, way bear his name on a label woven in Peterborought. This patriotic citizen will sit down to breakfast at a table made in Peterborough and eat cereal produced in Peterborough, bread bakeded here from flour milled in one of the three mills and bacon cured here after being cut from a Peterborough county hog. If he is not English by birth or nature, he may substitute honey for marmalade, and will enjoy the product of Peterborough bees, busily working within the city limits. His butter wrapped in Peterborough made paper and his condensed milk are made in Peterborough, and if he be an invalid he may dose on Peterborough made medicine.

When he unlocks his door he turns a Peterborough made key in a made in Peterborough lock. The house itself is a Peterborough ready-cut, or is built of Peterborough brick. He pretty nearly had a Peterborough made car, but that is one industry the city has not.

Arriving at his office or shop he put on his Peterborough made spectacles and dusts off his Peterborough made desk or show-case, or he may earn his wages shovelling coal into a Peterborough made boiler. If a farmer he puts Peterborough made harness on a Peterborough-grown horse and hitches it to a made in Peterborough plow; or after milking his accredited Peterborough herd of cows he turns a made in Peterborough switch that turns Peterborough made electricity through his made in Peterborough cream separator. His water is drawn from the ground by a Peterborough made pump and his silo is made in Peterborough.

In the evening this fortunate man may paddle his Peterborough made canoe with a made in Peterborough paddle and when tired he may hoist his made in Peterborough sail. On his return to his home, he admires his made in Peterborough awning and the Peterborough made reed furntirue that grace his verandah, and on special occasions hoists his made in Peterborough flag. Indoors he treads on the rich softness of a made in Peterborough carpet as he draws the made in Peterborough blinds on his Peterborough made sash. Sitting in his antique chair, also made in Peterborough, he reads a made in Peterborough newspaper while smoking a made in Peterborough cigar, or takes for his evening's amusement or edification one of the half dozen farm journals printed in Peterborough or a book bound in Peterborough. His reading lamp has a made in Peterborough shade. The paper in his books is probably made with Peterborough made pulp mill machinery. On his wall may be Peterborough artists' paintings in Peterborough made frames, and his piano will surely support made in Peterborough photographs, mounted on Peterborough made cardboard. If the evening is cool he will don his made in Peterborough sweater; if it is warm he will send to the corner store for made in Peterborough ice cream or take Peterborough made "pop" or beer from his refrigerator where the bottles have been cooled by made in Peterborough ice.

On retiring, this most blessed citizen may sleep on a Peterborough made mattress resting on a made in Peterboroug wire spring, draw over him his made in Peterborough blankets and dream of catching made in Peterborough fish with a Peterborough made hook and made in Peterborough bait.

Cherchez La Femme.

If the citizen be a woman, she may wear a made in Peterborough dress trimmed with Peterborough made braid; cook breakfast on Peterborough made gas and keep the dishes warm without danger of scorching on a Peterborough made asbestos mat. If it be winter time she may use a made in Peterborough coal stove. Munching a made in Peterborough chocolate, she will sweep the floor with a Peterborough made broom. She may throw her doors and windows wide open, knowing that no dust will blow off the streets cleaned by a made in Peterborough dustless sweeper. In winter she will don her made in Peterborough furs and can be assured of a warm house when the doors and windows are protected by made in Peterborough weatherstrip. Downdown this Peterborough woman may secure a made in Peterborough complexion and, in the same beauty parlor, a Peterborough made switch.

And, when these Peterborough citizens pass from the ideal city they will have placed at their heads made in Peterborough marble monuments, and on their graves grown in Peterborough flowers and made in Peterborough wreaths.

A Port Hope paper says: "There is nothing the matter with Port Hope except:

That too many of us get up in the morning by the alarm of a Peterboro clock, put on a pair of Lindsay suspenders to a pair of Toronto trousers, put on a pair of shoes made in Montreal, wash in a Quebec tin basin using New Brunswick soap and a cotton towel made in Detroit, sit down to a Grand Rapids table, and eat bread made from Manitoba flour, and chew Alberta bacon fried on a Kingston stove; eat fruit put up in California or New York and seasoned with Cuban spices; wear a hat made in London, and hitch a Cobourg horse, fed on Saskatchewan oats in Oshawa harness to an Ontario plow and work like - - - - all day long on a farm covered by Florida fertilizer and a Hamilton mortgage; send our Fire Insurance money to Hartford, New York and Shanghai, and at night take a night cap of Scotch made in Belleville, in a tumbler made in Guelph, crawl under a Nova Scotia blanket and be kept away by a dog and a cat—the only home products on the place—wondering all the while why ready money is not more plentiful."

ASKED POLICE CHIEF TO QUIT

Chief of Police Brown of Port Hope Receives Letter From Town.

STILL ON JOB

Port Hope, Ont.,
August 9, 1924.

To His Worship Mayor Smith and Members of the Town Council of the Town of Port Hope.

Gentlemen,—With reference to your letter of 7th instant re your honorable body asking for my resignation as Chief of Police of your town, I beg to inform you that before considering your demand I consider it only fair, as my reputation as police officer for a number of years is at stake, that I be given an opportunity of vindicating my character and would therefore request that you forward me a statement of the charges preferred against me showing the grounds for justification of such a drastic action.

Your obedient servant,
JOHN BROWN,
Chief of Police.

The Chief's Explanation.

The above is the copy of a letter which Chief of Police John Brown on August the 9th sent to the Mayor and Council. The letter was sent by registered mail and was in the hands of the Clerk two days before the last regular meeting of the Council, two weeks ago. At that meeting no mention was made of the letter having been received, and at the special meeting last night though it is known that the letter has been under discussion in private by the members, no notice has been taken publicly.

In handing this communication over to the Times for publication, Chief Brown says: "I feel that under the conditions, and particularly the fact that my letter has not been brought publicly before the Council, but as I am informed that the Council has considered it, and has decided to ignore it, I feel that in fairness to the public as well as myself that my position should be made clear.

"I have asked the Council for their reasons in asking for my resignation. I have asked them for a list, if any, of the charges that have been made against me. As a police officer with twenty-three years' experience, I feel that my character and ability as an officer cannot be so lightly trifled with, and my reasons for asking for the charges were so that I would have an opportunity to defend myself. But if such charges are not forthcoming, how can I clear myself not only before the Council but also before the public of Port Hope?

"I am not afraid to meet any member of the Council and not afraid of any charges any individual member of the Council may bring against me. I have nothing to be ashamed of. My moral character is clean and my knowledge of my duties as a police officer has been gained from twenty-three years' experience as a police officer, both in Canada and in Scotland, and surely the members of the Council will be just in giving me credit for knowing a little more about the police work than any chairman, member of committee or member of Council.

"I realize that under the bylaw on which I was appointed that the Council have been advised that they do not require to give me any list of charges, and that they have the power to dismiss me.

"It is not my intention, however, to discuss the legality of that decision at the present moment, but what I have asked the Council for is nothing else than fair play and British justice.

"I think every member of the Council, and the public of Port Hope, know that under the British flag no man is condemned before he has been tried and in every case he is given an opportunity to put in a defence. It would appear that the Council of Port Hope do not intend to give me the opportunity to defend myself. It is impossible for me to do so until I know with what I am charged, and I am now asking the Council publicly what I have asked from them privately, an opportunity that should not be denied any British subject—an opportunity to defend myself and my record as a police officer against whatever charges may have been made against me.

"I am not afraid of an investigation—in fact, I would ask for a public investigation before a competent judge, and through the columns of your paper today I am asking for such an investigation."

Since giving the above interview to the Times the Chief received the following letter, which speaks for itself:

Port Hope, Aug. 29, 1924.

Mr. John Brown,
Chief of Police, Port Hope.

Dear Sir,—In reply to your letter of the 9th inst., addressed to Mayor Smith and Council, I have been directed to write that the Council has decided that they will not give any reasons in writing at this time.

Yours very truly,
J. W. SAUNDERS,
Town Clerk.

ORLAND ROAD OPEN

Steel Bridge Repainted and Road is Fixed Up.

ORLAND, Sept. 3.—The village, which has been almost isolated for six weeks through the closing of the county highway, is again in touch with the outside world.

While it has been a great inconvenience to all concerned, it is a source of satisfaction to see the old life-menacing flumes done away with by putting a new cement one and filling in of the other.

The steel bridge has been repainted and the county officials have experimented by bringing the new covering for the bridge creosote and tar to the spot and applying them on the job.

The covering was of three-inch Norway pine and was placed in a steel vat of creosote and left for two hours and then laid in place. After all was in place the remaining creosote was brushed in at several applications and finally a coating of Tarvia, into which was placed a coating of sifted gravel about the size of hickory nuts, which was rolled by a very heavily weighted steel roller.

The whole roadway was widened about twelve feet and gravelled.

The most of the filling was secured from a very unsightly bank just north a few rods on Mr. M. J. Moran's farm, which is very much improved by the removal of the large amount of earth required.

The whole job will when completed run up to about $2000, and was money well spent as it was a very dangerous place.

Mr. A. Conner, the overseer, deserves great credit for the excellent manner in which this work was performed.

LOOPING DUTCHMAN HAS NOVEL MEANS

Set Himself Task of Turning Something Like Five Million Somersaults.

PARIS, Sept. 3.—(United Press). —The "Flying Dutchman" was a piker compared with his fellow-countryman, named Takkenberg, the "looping Dutchman."

Takkenberg has set himself the task of turning something like five million somersaults. He made a bet that he would travel from Amsterdam to Marseilles, by way of Paris, and not cover a single metre without somersaulting. He started November 12, last year, and has just arrived in Paris, still rolling strong. He estimates that he will reach his destination about February 12.

All along the route the Dutchman has been followed by amazed laughing crowds, but he is very serious about his job and remains unperturbed. He is accompanied by his "physician," who, by the way, keeps upright. When he started the tumbler was in poor health, but the exercise has done him so much good that he is now in fine shape, and the doctor has little to do except keep the police from arresting his client as an insane person.

Takkenberg explained here that he considers there is nothing extraordinary in his stunt. He considers it keen sport, and quite in his line because he has been an acrobat and tumbler all his life. He wears gloves, a leather jacket, knee breeches and a padded headdress. He claims he is not in the least susceptible to dizziness. He covers about three miles a day.

A CANADIAN NAVY.

Admiral Field Has Hopes of Larger Response From Canada.

QUEBEC, September 2 (Canadian Press). — There is a growing sentiment in Canada in favour of Canadian participation in the scheme of naval defence, and practical expression will be given to the sentiment when Canada's overseas export trade assumes larger proportions.

This, in substance, was the opinion expressed by Vice-Admiral Sir Frederick Field during the final interview granted to the press this morning on board H.M.S. Hood, prior to the leave-taking of the British Special Service Squadron from Canada this afternoon.

Sir Frederick Field based this opinion, he said, on conversations he had had with the leading Canadians from all over the Dominion. He realised that at the present time the question was the large one of expense. Canada had other difficult problems to face and until these were solved people would perhaps not realise the immediate necessity of protecting and policing the trade routes.

There were 50,000 Canadians dependent upon the sea for their living, some of them fishermen, others employed on merchant ships, and these perhaps realised already the necessity of protecting and policing the trade routes.

It was natural, however, that the people living inland did not realise the need as fully as those who made their living near the sea.

CHICAGO'S NEW CHURCH

Building When Finished Will Be the Highest in City.

CHICAGO, Sept. 3. — (United Press).—Dedication of the Chicago Temple, the skyscraper Methodist church in the heart of the downtown business section, has been set for September 28.

A golden cross topping the spire of the temple Chicago's highest building, will be illuminated at night. For miles around it will be visible, an inspiring symbol against a back ground of black sky. Lights trained on the temple will make it stand out in an imposing contrast to the drab commercial surroundings. A $50,000 organ and chimes costing an equal amount, will be heard over the roar of elevated trains, surface cars and other street traffic.

Twenty-one stories are topped by a steeple rising 556 feet above the ground. There are floors devoted to commerce, and others devoted to religious educational work, an auditorium seating 1,400 persons, gymnasiums, and study rooms with doors open day and night. Total cost of the temple is estimated at nearly $4,000,000.

At the dedication Bishop Edwin H. Hughes will officiate assisted by the pastor, Dr. John Thompson.

HE WASN'T AN ALIEN.

SARANAC LAKE, N.Y., Sept. 3. —(United Press).—So many aliens are being run in from Canada that immigration officials are right on their toes.

NUDE ROOSTER SEEN

Feathers Blown From a Rooster By Cyclone In April, 1899.

KIRKSVILLE Mo., Sept. 3.—(United Press).—This city had considerable of a cyclone in April, 1899. Old residents were reminded of it by a letter received by Mayor Az Stookey from Manchester, Vermont, asking if the stories told by a traveling man at a hotel there were true.

"Was there a windstorm that blew the feathers off the chickens?

"We're having a lot of fun over it, and wonder if it is a joke," the writer said.

The cyclone did blow the feathers off the chickens, the mayor replied after investigation.

One old-timer told of a rooster from which all feathers were blown Some of the feathers, he added, were blown into a grindstone and straws were blown into trees. The latter incident was explained, however, by the fact that the twisting action of the wind cracked and tore the trees and grindstones so that the feathers and straws blew naturally into the crevices.

LONDON, September 2 (Canadian Press). — The epidemic of sleeping sickness which began in England and Wales at the beginning of the year shows little sign of abating.

During this period the number of cases in England and Wales amounted to more than 4,000.

The death-rate was 22 to 21 per cent. as compared with 40 per cent. of cases in the former epidemics.

HISTORY OF THE FRANKS CASE TELLING HOW YOUTHS PLANNED

Detectives Find Nude Body of Robert Franks Under Culvert—Peculiar Trial Without a Jury.

CHICAGO, Sept. 3 (United Press). —The disappearance of Robert Franks, 14-year-old schoolboy, was first brought to light on the evening of May 21, 1924, when Jacob Franks, Robert's father, reported to the police that his son had not returned home from school.

Later that same evening Franks received a telephone call from a man who said he was "George Johnson," instructing him how to proceed in finding little Robert. The next morning's mail brought a letter which gave more complete instructions. Both the telephone call and the letter assured Franks that his son was safe and was being held for the $10,000 which his kidnappers were demanding.

On the morning of May 22—about 18 hours after Robert disappeared — a railroad worker found the nude body of a boy, partly covered with water, lying under a railroad culvert near the southern city limits. Police were at once notified and Franks was called to the morgue. He identified the body as that of Robert. Robert had been beaten to death with a chisel.

An intensive search for the slayer was started at once. Two people said they saw a man loitering around the Harvard private school which Robert attended on the afternoon he disappeared. This man was said to have been driving up and down the streets in an automobile.

Great Notoriety.

The wealth and social position of the Franks family—Franks is said to be many times a millionaire—gave the case great notoriety.

Several instructors at the Harvard school were held in custody for a number of days on suspicion that they knew of or were connected with the murder.

Not until a week after the boy was murdered were Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb, both sons of millionaires and both precocious college graduates, arrested and held in connection with the crime. Leopold was traced by means of a pair of horn rimmed spectacles which were found near the lonely culvert.

Leopold and Loeb stoutly denied any knowledge of the crime. Leopold said he must have dropped the glasses while on a bird hunt in that vicinity. He said he was a student of ornithology and had often visited the culvert. Both boys gave apparently substantial alibis. They told of driving in Leopold's automobile on the afternoon and evening of the murder, of "picking up" two girls, and of dining and drinking at a notorious cabaret.

Then Sven Englund, the Leopold chauffeur, was called in. He told State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe the machine named by the boys was in the Leopold garage on the day of the crime.

Loeb Confessed First.

Confronted with their shattered a libi Loeb was the first to break. He made a full confession, implicating Leopold. Leopold quite calmly made a similar confession when he was told his companion had broken down.

The amazing confessions of the two young intellectuals, in which they admitted there was no motive for the crime except "the adventure of it," were given attaches of the state's attorney's office as dawn was breaking on the morning of May 31. They told of the boys' desire to commit the "perfect crime," of their longing for a thrill, of their careful plans, of their search for a victim, and finally of how they enticed Robert Franks into a rented automobile, beat him over the head with a chisel, took the body to a remote place on the south side, undressed it, poured acid on the face to prevent identification, hid the body under the culvert, and then addressed the ransom letter to the victim's father.

Unique Ransom Plan.

Their plan for collecting the $10,000 ransom in itself was unique. Franks was to place the money in a cigar box, board a certain train on a certain day, sit in a specified seat, find a further note of instructions in a telegraph blank receptacle, proceed to the rear platform of the train and when he reached a specified advertising sign some distance from Chicago was to throw the money off. The boys planned to be waiting nearby, seize the package and escape. They planned a trip to Europe. Franks was preparing to follow these instructions when he found his son had been slain.

Nathan Leopold, Sr., millionaire head of the Morris Paper Box company; and Albert H. Loeb, multi-millionaire vice-president of Sears Roebuck and Company, fathers of the two confessed slayers, engaged Clarence Darrow, Benjamin and Walter Bachrach to prepare their sons' defense.

After several weeks, attorneys and members of the two families decided Nathan and Richard were unfit to mingle in society and decided to make no attempt to set them free. This decision, however, was not made public until July 21 when the attorneys were called before Chief Justice John R. Caverly to enter preliminary motions. Then it was that Darrow sprang his great surprise, changing the boys' pleas from not guilty to guilty. In so doing, Darrow admitted the boys were legally sane and his efforts were confined to saving his clients from the gallows, and the insane asylum.

Jury Not Necessary.

By the boys' pleas of guilty, a jury was not necessary and upon Judge Caverly alone rested the fate of Leopold and Loeb. He ordered attorneys for the state and defense to present evidence "in aggravation and in mitigation" of the punishment.

State's Attorney Crowe, insisting that the slayers should be hanged for what he termed "Chicago's direst murder," placed more than 90 witnesses on the stand, relating in detail the murder and the confessions that followed.

Darrow, arguing only that Leopold and Loeb should be sent to prison, called a group of noted alienists and psychiatrists to the stand in an attempt to show that the boys—although legally sane—were "mentally irresponsible."

Bitter Legal Battle.

Only after a bitter legal battle with State's Attorney Crowe was Darrow allowed to enter this medical testimony "in mitigation of punishment" for the two slayers. In admitting the experts' testimony, Justice Caverly ruled that they would not be permitted to testify relative to the sanity of the defendants but could tell of any "conditions of the mind" which might be considered in mitigation.

Dr. William A. White, of Washington, D. C., was the first of the defense alienists. He told of his examinations of Leopold and Loeb and declared his opinion was that both were mentally diseased.

Dick Loeb it was, according to Dr. White, who contributed the criminalistic tendency to the murder compact. Leopold, he said, was simply the "slave" of Loeb.

In one of the most amazing defenses ever entered for murderers in any court, Dr. White said that Leopold and Loeb were victims of childhood fantasies. Loeb's fantasies, he said, led towards the criminalistic. He imagined himself a great criminal, leader of a large and desperate band. He pictured himself in jail, stripped of his clothing and tortured before the public gaze. This torture, the doctor said, gave Loeb a "thrill." His ambition was to commit "the perfect crime."

The Fantasies.

Leopold, according to Dr. White, was far more intellectual than Loeb. His favorite fantasy was that of the "king and slave" in which he most often was the slave and Loeb the king. He felt Loeb was greatly superior in many ways to himself.

It was the combined result of these fantasies, Dr. White said, which caused the murder of Robert Franks. Loeb suggested the crime: Leopold consented to assist him as a dutiful slave.

Following Dr. White on the witness stand was Dr. William Healy of Boston, who corroborated in detail the testimony and conclusions of the Washington alienist.

Dr. Healy told the court that both Leopold and Loeb in his opinion were victims of psychosis—an unbalanced mind.

Dr. Bernard Glueck, of New York City, was the third defense alienist. He likewise corroborated the testimony of Dr. White and said the boys in his opinion were suffering from "split personalities." He explained this by saying that in both cases their intellect and their emotional powers were at such great disparity that the personality was "diseased or split."

Last Expert Witness.

Dr. Harold S. Hulbert of Chicago, who with Dr. Karl M. Bowman, of Boston, conducted the first and most thorough examinations of the two boys, was the last defense expert witness. Following closely the outline of the Hulbert-Bowman report, which had been submitted to the other alienists, Dr. Hulbert went deeply into the physical examination of the defendants.

Dr. Hulbert said he found young Loeb was strikingly immature—that he still has three of his "baby" teeth, that he has to shave only twice a week, and that his pituitary glands were functioning subnormally.

Leopold, he said, was precociously developed. His glands of internal secretion are over-functioning, his body is too heavily covered with hair, and his feet are flat.

From these facts and many others which he related Dr. Hulbert said he came to the conclusion that both Leopold and Loeb were mentally abnormal.

Calls College Students.

In addition to these four doctors, Darrow called a group of college students —friends and former companions of Leopold and Loeb. They testified concerning the habits of the two murderers—testimony intended to show that Leopold devoted his life to the philosophy of the super-man, declaring that the super-man was above the law, and that Loeb was exceedingly nervous as a college student, often fainted, and read "cheap detective stories."

Foreman Leopold and Allen Loeb, older brothers of the two slayers, and Jacob Loeb, Dickie's uncle, each testified briefly, each showing that Nathan and Richard had plenty of money to spend and that they did not therefore commit the crime for the ransom money. This, the defense considered, showed that the two boys killed Robert Franks just as they said themselves—"for a thrill."

Crowe placed his own alienists on the stand to level the defense medical structure. Among them were Dr. Hugh T. Patrick and Dr. Archibald Church, who testified there was nothing about the youths to uphold the defense theory of abnormality. Nathan and Richard, while of high intellectual attainments, are ordinary youths with extra-ordinary criminalistic leanings, the state held.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

THE TWINS VISIT THE EIONS

"Then forward—march!" said Weeny.

"The first people I am going to visit on my vacation," said Weeny, the elephant, to the Twins, "are Mister and Mrs. Lion. I knew them in the circus."

"All right," said Nancy and Nick happily. "We're all ready."

"Have you got my satchel?" asked Weeny. "I can't go visiting without my nighty and my toothbrush and my specks."

"We have them all right," said Nick.

"Then forward—march!" said Weeny, and away he went with his four big paddy feet, and switching his little tail behind him.

"Hooray!" cried Nick.

"Hurrah!" cried Nancy.

They were as happy as the king and queen of Timbuctoo.

Pretty soon they came to the rock house of the lion family—Mister and Mrs. Lion and their sons Cubby, Tubby and Bubby.

And the lions were just sitting down to lunch.

"How do you do," said Mister Lion. "You're just in time. We have crocodile wings and guinea pig tails."

"Pa must have his joke," said Mrs. Lion apologetically. "Don't pay any attention to him. Boys behave your manners and get up and set some chairs for the company."

So Cubby and Tubby and Bubby jumped up and untucked their napkins from underneath their chins and set three extra chairs at the table.

"Do sit down," begged Mrs. Lion.

Nancy and Nick had no trouble at all, but Weeny felt most awkward.

But at last he got himself fixed and everybody began to pass things this way and that, until it looked like a game of "Button—button—who's got the button?"

Things tasted pretty good, for, being circus folk, Mister and Mrs. Lion had become used to all sorts of dainties, and Mrs. Lion was a good cook.

"It's a nice day," said Weeny, reaching for another biscuit at the other end of the table with his long trunk.

"Fine!" roared Mister Lion, wiping his mustache with the tassel on his tail and forgetting all about the napkin around his neck.

"Fie!" said Mrs. Lion, shocked at his manners.

"Excuse me, ma!" grinned Mister Lion. "But I must have my little joke."

Just then Cubby Lion shoved Tubby Lion off his chair just for fun.

"Boys, boys!" roared their daddy so loudly that you would have wondered where the thunder was coming from.

Weeny took advantage of this rumpus to reach over Nancy's head with his trunk and drink up all of Cubby's and Tubby's soup.

And after that, the minute anybody began to talk, Weeny reached for something. First thing you know there wasn't a thing left.

"Hey! Where's my dinner?" roared Mister Lion.

LABOR REPORTS A HEATED TALK

Representatives Called on the Premier—Hearing Summarily Ended, They Say.

ON IMMIGRATION.

OTTAWA, Sept. 3. — (Canadian Press).—According to members of the Labor delegation which waited upon Premier Mackenzie King and members of the Government last night, the interview developed some sharp cross-firing and was anything but harmonious at times. The delegation, which came to enter a protest against the immigration policy of the Government, to make representations regarding the eight-hour day, the use of the injunction in labor disputes, and to object that railway labor is not to be represented at the unemployment conference which opens to-day, was received in private. Following the interview, however, certain members of the delegation, three of whom left the Prime Minister's office during the discussion, issued a statement describing what had occurred. The Prime Minister announced at the close of the interview that the Labor representatives had made representations on immigration, the eight-hour day and other matters of interest to Labor throughout Canada.

The statement issued by F. Ingles of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers was to the effect that when one Labor man declared the influx of immigration was proving detrimental to the working people of Caanda, Hon. J. A. Robb interjected that the farmers wanted immigrants to come.

Questioned as to the wages offered by the farmers, Mr. Robb is reported to have said the men should work for what they could get.

At one point of the interview J. A. Flett of Hamilton was called upon to verify certain facts relating to the inspection of immigrants in Canada.

Dealing with the scene which followed Mr. Flett's remarks on immigration, Mr. Ingles' report reads:

"The Premier further stated that he knew Mr. Flett for twenty years, and he knew the methods adopted by Mr. Flett. Mr. Flett, he stated, was a Tory, and as long as representatives of Labor continued to use Mr. Flett as a spokesman, they could expect no favors from this Government."

Mr. Flett resented this statement in no uncertain terms.

Mr. Ingles, who headed the deputation, arose and pointed out that political affiliations of the representatives present had nothing to do with the present visit.

It is reported that Mr. Ingles then declared there was no further use for continuing the interview and left the office. He was followed by others of the deputation.

PARIS, September 3 (Canadian Press). — S. Parker Gilbert, Jr., the former American Under-Secretary of the Treasury, has accepted the post of Agent-General for Reparations under the Dawes plan.

The post is being temporarily filled by Owen D. Young, of New York, who aided General Dawes and the other experts in drawing up the plan.

LIBERAL POLICIES UPHELD SAYS KING

Premier Delighted With Results in St. Antoine and Rimouski.

OTTAWA, Sept. 3. — (Canadian Press).—Premier King last night made the following comment upon the results of the polling in St. Antoine and Rimouski yesterday:

The Government regards the result of the polling in the two Quebec ridings as distinct triumphs for the Liberals. In Rimouski rural riding, where the Nationalist sentiment was strong for some years, and in St. Antoine, a strongly Protectionist riding, Liberal candidates were returned, indicating that the sane middle course being pursued by the present Government has the favor of the people. These two victories may, moreover, be regarded as a vindication of the Government's fiscal policy which was formulated in the interests of the taxpayers, the plain people of the Dominion. Liberalism, with this signal vindication of its soundness, will continue in its efforts to effect the greatest good for the greatest number.

WOULD ENFORCE O.T.A.

J. D. Flavelle, of Lindsay, Tells Prohibition Union.

TORONTO, Sept. 3. — At the call of the Ontario prohibition union a meeting was held here yesterday.

Representatives from all parts of the province interested in retaining the principle of prohibition were present.

A statement was made by J. D. Flavelle of Lindsay, for six years the chairman of the License Board, that it was possible to enforce the provisions of the Ontario Temperance Act, and he believed that within a reasonable time this law would be as easily enforced as any other difficult law on the statute books of the province.

BROCKVILLE FARMER SUFFERED 20 YEARS

"Les" Booth Finally Got Relief Through Taking Tanlac.

"Since taking Tanlac, I feel so fit it sometimes seems like a dream for there was hardly a day in 20 years that I did not suffer," is the striking statement of Geo. L. ("Les") Booth, 271 Perth St., Brockville, Ont., one of the best known farmers in Ontario.

"For 20 years, up to three years ago when I took Tanlac, I suffered from rheumatism in my arms, shoulders, back and hips, so bad at times I could not lift my arms to put my coat on. I couldn't even write my name and I just limped about like a cripple. Many a night it looked like I would not live to see daybreak and once I was laid up six months unable to hit a lick of work.

"Money could not buy the good Tanlac has done me. It ended every sign of rheumatism and built up my weight 16 pounds, and since then I have not had a rheumatic ache or pain. If anybody wants to know about Tanlac, just let them see Les Booth."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

WIFE AND CHILD GASSED IN ROOM

Woman Had Been Despondent Since Her Son Was Killed By Motor Truck.

TORONTO, September 3 (Canadian Press). When Frank Gough, an employee at a local abbatoir, returned to his home from work last night he found his wife and seven-year-old daughter both dead in their bedroom, which was tightly closed, with three gas jets turned full on.

Mrs. Gough had been suffering from severe despondency since the death of her nine-year-old son, who was killed by a motor truck about a year ago.

The family lived in Runnymede district, in the north-west part of the city.

FABLES ON HEALTH

FOR CLEANING FINGERNAILS.

"I wish you'd keep your nails cleaner," Mrs. Mann would frequently tell the male member of the household.

Though most persons who are careful of their fingernails already follow the foregoing practice it might be a handy hint to mothers who have trouble with small boys and wives afflicted with careless husbands:

Fill a bowl with warm water and lather it well with some good soap. Let the fingers soak for 10 or 15 minutes. This will render the nails pink and transparent and they may then be easily manicured.

For polishing the nails anyone can make a powder of a small portion of zinc oxide a pinch or two of carmine and a drop of perfume, if desired.

CROP REPORTS

MADOC FARMERS SAY CROPS ARE BEST IN YEARS

Slight Deficiency in One is Made Up By Another.

SOME RECORDS
John Smith Has Biggest Yield With 55 Bushels of Oats.

MADOC, Sept. 3.—Farm work in this district is progressing very favorably. The farmers have been working at top speed during the week of fine weather just past, and all express themselves as being well pleased with the splendid crops.

Crops are excellent, even the poor land producing good results. Wheat, oats and barley are all good. Spring wheat is yielding from 25 to 35 bushels to the acre, barley about 40 bushels, and oats from 40 to over 50 bushels. Russell Pigden got 50 bushels oats to acre, and from 40 to 45 of barley. Fred Morgan's yield was 500 bushels of oats from 12 acres, and 45 bushels of alsike from six acres. Fred Stewart's wheat ran about 35 bushels to acre, and so far he has threshed two loads oats, running about 40 bushels to a load, and barley about the same. Mr. Stewart just threshed enough to be able to get the balance of his crop in the barn, and he put the last load on the wagon on Monday.

John Smith seems to have the record for oats so far, getting 500 bushels of oats from nine acres, a yield of 55 5-9 bushels to the acre. This, he says, is the best turnout he has had at it.

James Clare, of Hungerford, is reported to have had 390 bushels of wheat from eight acres.

Walter Pigden threshed 14 bushels of timothy seed out of two loads.

Alsike Threshed Out.

The wet weather colored up the grain a little, and in some cases the alsike had to be turned so often that it threshed out on the ground. One yield was reduced in this way from an expected amount of about 100 bushels or a little better, to 80 bushels. The alsike had started to grow on the bottom, but aside from a few disappointments such as this, bumper crops are being threshed every day; and where one yield fails a little, another makes up for it.

Potatoes Good—Price Low.

Potatoes are good but prices poor, the farmers say. Apples are only fair. The codling moth is giving a good deal of trouble, and on trees that are not sprayed apples are spotted with fungus.

The heavy rains kept some of the farmers late with their ploughing when they had not been able to clear a field. Others report that they were able to get their ploughing done during the wet spell.

So far no grumbling whatever has been heard, but simply pure delight and gratitude for crops that are better than in many years past. The threshing, of course, is only half done, and in most cases just enough to enable the farmer to get his grain into the barn.

HAROLD BEBEE IS ELECTED LEADER

South Monaghan U.F.Y.P.O. Selects Officers—To Enter Debates.

BAILIEBORO, Sept. 3.—The South Monaghan U.F.Y.P.O. Club held a business meeting in the Council Hall, Centreville, on Friday evening, August 29th. The most important items of business to be considered were the election of a new president and secretary-treasurer for the remaining three months of the term. The former president and secretary-treasurer, Douglas Deyell and Kathleen Isbister are leaving the community. The president, Douglas Deyell, presided at the meeting, and followed out the usual form. After the resignations of both were regretfully accepted, Rev. A. H. McConnachie, honorary president of the club, spoke in a few words to those present, and especially to the president of the past year, to whom he made known how the club as a whole would miss the untiring efforts he has put forth to keep the young people interested in the club. It is very important that the club should have someone who is deeply interested in its welfare to carry on the work at this time, as South Monaghan Club, being the successful debaters to win the silver cup in the East Peterborough Debating League, have entered the provincial series of debates to be held about October 1st. South Monaghan Club is going to debate with the debating winners of Victoria County, but as yet it has not been decided as to which place the debates will be held. Miss Connie McConnachie was elected as business manager, to receive all correspondence in connection with these debates, also to pick out the subject for debate. Wilfred Johnston was elected secretary, while Harold Bebee, who was the former vice-president, is to fill the place of the president.

CORN GOOD IN NORWOOD

Isaac Puffer Has Stalk 12 Feet Tall—Oats Are Heavy.

NORWOOD Sept. 3.—The corn crop in this vicinity is a real good crop. Isaac Puffer measured a stalk in his garden which reached twelve feet. Many in this district have extra good crops. Oats are heavy but the straw is very short. Peas are almost an unknown quantity.

Douro Wins Lakefield Field Crop Competition

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 3.—The following are the results in the standing field crop competition conducted by the Lakefield Agricultural Society:—
1, T. J. Wood, Douro; 2, G. A. Graham, Douro; 3, Stanley Higgins, Smith; 4, Jos. Mann, Smith; 5, H. J. Abbot, Douro; 6, Dennis Garvey, Smith; 7, W. H. Coons, Smith.

This was the largest competition of the kind held by the Society as there were 27 entries. Douro has lead each year.

OATS ARE GOOD AT MILLBROOK

Well Filled Heads on Short Straws—Wheat Yields 45 Bushels.

PLOUGHING STARTS

MILLBROOK, Sept. 3.—The warm, dry weather of last week has been a boon much appreciated by the farming community throughout the entire district and on farm after farm fields of oats are now cut and ready for drawing in. A continuance of the same favorable weather is hoped for until the crop is safely housed in the barns. The general opinion is that while oats are short in the straw, the grain has headed up well. S. Pritchard, 4th line, Cavan, threshed a small load of oats that were needed for immediate use last week and had about fifty bushels, while another medium load of barley yielded forty bushels—a satisfactory showing in both cases.

R. Olan, L. Morton and H. Murney are kept busy with their threshing outfits throughout the district, some having their grain threshed in the fields to save overcrowding of barn space. Wheat is yielding from thirty-five to forty-five bushels to the acre, and as rapidly as time and labor will permit ground is now being prepared for sowing fall wheat, the plow and harrow being in evidence on many farms in this vicinity.

Some rust and smut in the oats has been complained of, but taken altogether the crop is considered satisfactory, while the second crop of red clover and alfalfa is a heavy one.

Pastures are unusually good and as a consequence beef cattle are doing well and dairy cattle have given an excellent flow of milk throughout the season. While labor has all along been rather scarce, yet the farmers are managing their work as well as careful planning and weather conditions will permit, and will complete the season without too much trouble. The number from this district who took advantage of the harvesters' excursion to the West has not perceptibly affected the situation.

Claim 104 Best.

The claim is advanced by the Agricultural College, Guelph, that the wheat known as O.A.C. No. 104, which was one variety grown in this vicinity in the fall wheat competition this year, under the auspices of the Agricultural Society, has yielded a higher average per acre than any other kind used in the experiments during the past six or seven years. It is the result of a cross-fertilization between Bulgarian wheat and Dawson's Golden Chaff, and is a hardier grain than the latter variety, less susceptible to smut, and practically as strong in the straw. It grows vigorously, the grain being white in color and with a white chaff. Out of forty varieties under test for the past four years, it has been found less liable to injury from the Hessian fly.

Honey Producers.

Local beekeepers will be interested to learn that the Ontario Honey Producers' Association has more than doubled its membership in the last four months, and now has over 700 names enrolled. About 8,000,000 pounds of honey was the estimate for the Province this year, and of this the association handled 6,000,000 pounds, much of it being exported. Producers are given 70 per cent. of their money upon shipment, and the balance when the actual sale takes place.

The present weather is most favorable for a large yield of the dark or buckwheat honey, which will help to make up for the lessened supply of the light and more popular variety. The average yield of honey in Ontario is considered the highest in the world, being 100 lbs. per colony, but the intrusion of foul brood this year has lowered the output at least by two-thirds of the usual amount. The general report, from this and other districts, is to the effect that where proper measures of precaution were taken for stamping out the disease, the bees are recovering rapidly. However, the supply of honey on hand in the local stores is practically exhausted, and so far it has apparently been impossible to replenish the stock.

Clean Threshers.

A campaign for the stamping out of the weed menace is being waged by means of Government bulletins, and farmers are urged to insist upon a careful cleaning of threshing machines before they move from one farm to another. It is estimated that the crop-producing capacity of the land is lessened at least by 25 per cent. through the loss occasioned by weeds, and the farmer on rented land especially can ill-afford such a charge against his holding.

The use of only clean seed is one means of escaping weeds, as even a few thistle balls, or other weed seeds, will make added trouble later on. Having all machinery free of perennial weed seeds is also mentioned as important before moving from one field to another.

Careful plowing under of the weeds and frequent cultivating the land with the spring-tooth up until the end of October, is recommended, while early in November the land may be ribbed up and the roots exposed to the weather. Ribbing attachments placed on the spring-tooth make it possible to cover a large area in a day, as experiments at the Agricultural College at Guelph have proved.

September is the month recommended for setting out new varieties of peonies, as most flower lovers have doubtless learned, and hollyhocks, which are now producing seeds, may also be planted this month if a new bed is desired, though they will re-seed themselves without any special care if the same ground is to be used for their growth another season. Choose seed from the most vigorous plants and those producing the most beautifully colored blossoms if a new bed is being arranged. Planted now, or within a week or two, bloom may be expected next season, but if left until spring before the seed is sown there will be no blossoms until the following year.

The county competition, in which Northumberland county will be represented, has not yet been held.

Another prize-winner for Ayrshires at Toronto, is R. H. Little, who resides near Campbellford.

HARVEST HOME AT BAILIEBORO

Only Buckwheat in Fields to Cut—Wheat Brings $1.15

PRODUCE HIGHER

BAILIEBORO, Sept. 3.—A number of the farmers of this district have finished their harvest for this season, with the exception of their buckwheat which is a later crop, and is usually harvested from three weeks to a month after the rest of the grain. If the weather continues fine until after this week, the majority of the grain will be safely under cover, and then the farmers will be ready to get their land in condition for fall wheat.

Mostly all of the farmers have threshed some of their crops, but as yet there has been very little grain sold to the local elevators, as the season is so late this year that the farmers will be very busy until after the fall wheat is sowed.

The prices of local produce are slightly higher. Eggs are selling at thirty cents; chickens from thirty to thirty-five cents a lb.; cream at 34 cents a lb. of butter fat; ducks at 30 cents a lb., and milk at 10 cents a quart. Wheat is being bought at the elevators for one dollar and fifteen cents a bushel, and one dollar and twelve cents when they send a truck to haul it away from the barn.

The local live stock shipper received ten dollars and fifty cents a hundred for hogs last week

Wheat Seed Yielded 35 Bushels To Acre

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 3.—Joseph Hoey, last fall, purchased seed wheat, O.A.C. 104, from a farmer at Gore's Landing, and sowed 19 acres on his farm, using one bushel and a peck to the acre.

Last week Mr. Hoey threshed 15½ acres of his crop and had a yield of 543 bushels—35 bushels to the acre.

Are your exhibits ready for Peterborough Exhibition? It opens on Wednesday next week.

Boys and girls watch for the Examiner competition next week.

FARMERS AND THE U. S. ELECTIONS

(By ALEX. McGREGOR.)

If there is any class of men who have a direct interest in the outcome of the presidential election in the United States, it is the farmers. Their one great hope, a hope that has been born of experien e is that the Democratic party will not only capture the presidency but will elect a majority of both branches of the legislature. That was what they did in 1912 and the Canadian farmer has not forgotten the tariff concessions that followed, and the prosperity that came to him as a result.

Why Farmers Are Free Traders.

The president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association said, in a recent public address, that he was unable to see how the farmer could be anything but a high protectionist. Like so many others, that gentleman cannot understand how any person could entertain an opinion at variance with his own or what is a benefit to the class to which he belongs might easily be a detriment to those engaged in some other line of industry.

No doubt the president of the Manufacturers' Association is in considerable of a quandary. Knowing, as he must, that in purely agricultural sections of countries on the North American continent, the inhabitants are inclined to be free traders, as a rule, the knowledge agricultural sections of countries on the North American continent the inhabitants are inclined to be free traders, as a rule, the knowledge of this fact must increase his perplexity. For instance, in point, take the case of the Southern States, across the across the line, and of the prairie provinces in our own country.

A Bloodless Revolution.

In 1912 the Democrats, as before stated, won every department of the Federal Government. The South was once more in the saddle, a position it had not been able to attain since the days of slavery. What a rebellion failed to accomplish was brought about by a bloodless revolution. Had the Democrats triumphed in 1860 as they did in 1912, the chances are that the pages of the world's history would never have been defaced with the records of the American Civil War. Sentimentalists may rant about slavery being the cause of that intemecine strife, but every student of American history knows that the real issue was the tariff, and that North Carolina started the conflagration when its Legislative passed an Act, the aim of which was to nulify, so far as the State was concerned, the tariff law adopted by Congress.

Tariff Act of 1913.

The Democrats lost no time in implementing their ante-election pledges that the tariff would be lowered. They took office March 4, 1913, and in the early autumn of the same year their new traiff regulations were in force, regulations that admitted to the United States, duty free, practically everything produced on the Canadian farm, wheat being an exception.

That tariff Act worked the dawn of a new era of prosperity for the Canadian farmer. The boom was first noticed in the live stock business, and the price of cattle went up over 50 per cent. Then came the Great War, and the value of farm products advanced still higher, but the increase before 1914 was normal and would have been maintained had the condition remained unchanged.

One-Sided Arrangement.

But such a one-sided tariff arrangement was too Utopian to last. The old order of things was restored with undiplomatic haste as soon as the Republican regained control of the Government in 1920. Agricultural conditions were at a low ebb in Canada at the time; all that was needed to bring on actual depression was the new American tariff.

Tariff Still An Issue

The tariff has always been a cause of dissension, sometimes of actual warfare. It may be a threadbare subject after all these years of political mauling, but it still remains the bogey-man of statesmanship. It will remain a vital question so long as countries differ in location and climatic conditions. A tariff favored by the Northern States will never satisfy the South. This is not a sentimental difference of opinion between the two sections, but is based on the actual needs of each. The same difference exists between Eastern and Western Canada, and is like to continue in perpetuity. Providence made latitude with different climate and natural production, but man set the boundaries of nations and as invariably is the case when man pits his wisdom against omniscience, he is dwarfed into insignificance.

Competition For Children On Next Week's Farm Page

Next week The Examiner will start a weekly competition for children. There will be six prizes given every week, three for young children and three for their older brothers and sisters.

The competition has been selected by The Examiner as one that can be entered into by every boy and every girl. There will be no entry fee and no conditions except as to the age limit. It is desired that every boy and girl shall have a fair chance to win, and it will be insisted that ages are stated correctly.

What the competition is will be announced on the next Farm Page this week, and the first competition will appear on the farm page next week. With the exhibition opening next Wednesday and The Examiner competition starting in the same week, the children in both city and country will be busy. Watch the Farm Page.

Cutting Done With Mower—Buckwheat Is a Good Crop.

DOWNEYVILLE, Sept. 2.—In this section the smut and rust is very bad, especially the rust. It is so bad in some places they had to cut the grain with the mower and there was a dust from it like sand. Most of the cutting is done through here and looks like a good crop of buckwheat. Corn is only an average crop but roots and vegetables are a splendid crop, potatoes selling at only $1.10 per bag with butter on the up grade selling at 35 cents with eggs at 27 cents per dozen.

Man Fined For Giving Farmers Too High Prices; Says He Wants Only a Fair Profit In Creamery

CEREAL, Alta., Sept. 3.—Extraordinary scenes were witnessed in police court here when a number of farmers of the district stepped forward and offered to pay the fine of $140.00 and costs imposed on N. A. Larson, of the Meadow Brook Creamery, when convicted of a charge of giving farmers too good a price for their cream. Mr. Larson declined the proffers of assistance and paid the fine himself.

According to the police, the charge against Larson was laid by the P. Burns Company, who alleged that Larson was paying farmers more for their cream than allowed by law.

After Larson had been convicted and fined, farmers of the district held an indignation meeting in the town hall, and decided to take the matter up with the provincial government. They charged that the Farmer's government was doing everything to ruin them instead of helping them, and it was time something had to be done.

Larson in court stated that at present prices creameries made a profit of 11 cents a pound, but he was satisfied with five cents a pound profit, and it was while selling cream on this basis that he was arrested.

JOHN SULLIVAN HAD WHEAT RUN TO 63 BUSHELS

Percy Township Man Took 315 Bushels From 5 Acres.

SET BINDER HIGH

Sheaves Rested on Top of Stubble and Dried Out Quickly.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 3.—Here is the record of the most bountiful yield of fall wheat that has yet come to the notice of The Examiner in this district.

John Sullivan, whose 200 acre farm is on the Hastings road, in Percy township, raised this year 18 acres of wheat on land that he summer fallowed in 1923. From this he drew 46 large loads. Last week he threshed 16 of these loads, which were taken from five acres, and the yield was 315 bushels, or 63 bushels to thee acre. The remaining 30 loads are yet to thresh, so that the total yield from the 18 acres is estimated at 1,134 bushels.

The crop was one of the heaviest Mr. Sullivan has ever harvested and while cutting it he set the binder as high as he could, leaving stubble nearly a foot in height. This was so thick that the sheaves as they left the machine rested on top of it clear of the ground, so that they dried out quickly. Stooking the crop was an easy job, as it was not necessary for the workers to stoop down in order to pick up the sheaves.

Mr. Sullivan will not thresh the balance of his wheat until near winter as he has no room at present in which to store his sraw. He has threshed some rye which also turned out well, but the grain was not measured, being drawn in sacks to the barn from the field, where the threshing was done.

GOOD WEATHER FAVORS CROPS

Stirling Oats Run 40 to 50 and Barley 25 to 30 Bushels.

GRAIN WAS WET

STIRLING, Sept. 3.—Farmers who got in such a hurry to gather in their grain should have waited, as the weather is more favorable for the drying, and less danger of musty grain, and also not so hard to thresh.

Some good yields of grain are reported, oats turning out from 40 to 50 bushels to the load, and barley 25 to 30 bushels.

At Bonar Law, 10 miles north of here, the rains last week wet the grain in the stooks, and is beginning to sprout.

Mr. Walter Ketcheson, gardener, who supplies all sorts of vegetables in season, has resumed his trips here, and has a new truck for the purpose, doing away with the horse-drawn vehicle which he had used for years.

Messrs. Wm. Chambers and James Cranston are experimenting in the raising of pigs on buttermilk, having purchased this by-product from the Stirling Creamery, and are at present feeding about 50 pigs. Mrs. Gilbert Windsor's auction sale was a success, cows going to near $100, and other articles accordingly. He and his wife have both been engaged as teachers in a school west of Toronto.

TOMATOES ARE SLOW

Cold Retards Ripening — Heavy Grains Hard to Cut.

CAVAN, Sept. 3.—Tomatoes are slow in ripening this season, due to the cool weather.

Harvesting was a slow process this year. In some cases, this is due to a second growth in the grain; in other cases it is where a field has been seeded to clover or alfalfa. So much rain has caused a wonderful growth of this young crop, and it makes it harder to cut, and when the crop is cut and stooked it takes it a long time to dry out sufficiently to put in the barns.

Some oat crops are hard to cut as the straw is soft and bends over.

Harry Ball, Fallis Line, threshed twenty acres of fall wheat, which yielded six hundred bushels of grain; also eleven acres of alsike, which yielded thirty bushels.

Mr. Ball owns his own outfit and can thresh when it is convenient.

Crop Forecast Shows Decrease World Grain

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Wheat production forecasts received by the Department of Agriculture from twenty-one countries give an aggregate production of 2,171,000,000 bushels, compared with 2,449,000,000 last year, a reduction of 278,000,000 bushels. These countries produced 80 per cent. of the crop of the Northern Hemisphere in 1923, exclusive of Russia and China.

Of the twenty-one countries, increases are shown only in the United States, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Morocco and Korea.

The forecast for Yugoslavia is 68,343,000 bushels, compared with a production of 61,069,000 last year. Switzerland was among the countries in which smaller wheat and other grain crops were forecast.

Best In Years

Farmers haven't seen wheat like this in years. This is a miniature sheaf of four-kernel-to-the-shuck, 35-bushels-to-the-acre wheat, and is an example of the fine crop that is being developed this season.

Wheat, if present prices are maintained, will aid countless farmers throughout the wheat-growing provinces to pay off their indebtedness and "salt" some cold, hard cash this fall and winter.

In many districts the crops hold prospects of being the finest in years, running in many instances as high as 50 bushels to the acre, and one local man had 55.

"Never in my 40 years of farming experience have I seen a crop which will equal the one of this year," says the president of a bank. "Although for several years past the wheat farmer has been pretty hard hit, and has in many instances mortgaged himself to the last nail in his barn, he will be repaid for his trouble and his faith this year.

"He will be enabled, if wheat prices hold at their present level, to pay off the mortgage and his personal indebtedness; to buy new machinery and new automobiles, if necessary, and to put some money in the bank.

"The wheat crop will provide the basis for a firmer foundation of prosperity throughout the country."

Wheat ordinarily has two or three kernels to the shuck and averages about 10 bushels to the acre. Some nowadays average 40 bushels to the acre, four kernels to the shuck, and is hard, heavy and firm.

WILF. ARMOUR TRIES NEW PLAN

Campbellford Farmer Raises Sweet Clover Crop for Seed.

$50 FOR ACRE

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 3.—A large percentage of the farmers recognize the value of sweet clover to the dairyman, and have raised it for pasture, for hay and for the silo. It remained for Wilfrid Armour, an enterprising young farmer, who lives on the Hastings road a few miles from town, to take up another phase of the industry and to go extensively into the production of the seed. Mr. Armour's venture is eagerly watched by his neighbors, some of whom regard it as an experiment.

Mr. Armour has two six-acre fields of it is standing in the stooks, which are so thick that it will require a skilled teamster to drive a wagon among them. Cutting the crop with a binder was considerable of a task. The stalks were as thick as it was possible for any kind of crop to grow, and in some places were fully six feet high. Cutting the clover was a severe strain on the machine, especially on the binder part, and 50 pounds of twine was required for the 12 acres.

Two Weeks To Dry.

It will take two weeks at least of favorable weather to dry the clover sufficiently for threshing, and the latter operation entails a double process. The clover will first be put through the ordinary grain thresher which will separate the seed from the straw. The seed must be put through a clover huller which will remove the outer covering, after which it is ready for market. The first threshing will be done in the field as the straw, when the clover is allowed to go to seed, is of comparatively little value as fodder.

The Financial Prospect.

As this is the first crop of the kind from which seed has been obtained in the neighborhood, Mr. Armour can only approximate the financial prospects. Every stalk of the clover is heavily loaded with seed, and some of Mr. Armour's neighbors are of the opinion that it will turn out as bountifully as a crop of oats. Mr. Armour, however, believes that 10 bushels to the acre will be fair return. Last year farmers who raised sweet clover for seed in other parts of Ontario got $5 a bushel for it on the early market. The dealers sold it for seed at $8 a bushel. The market for sweet clover has not yet opened but the standing quotation is $4.75 a bushel, and as there is comparatively little seed produced in the province, and the raising of this crop for pasture or fodder is becoming more general, the price is likely to advance when the sowing season arrives.

Soil in Excellent Shape.

All weeds are choked out of existence where a crop of sweet clover flourishes, and another advantage is that it leaves the soil in first class condition, the roots loosening up the heaviest clay. Farmers are beginning to realize that seeding a field to sweet clover is as beneficial to the land as summer fallowing it, the latter being an expensive system as one season's crop is lost. Mr. Armour intends to sow rye on the fields where the clover grew this year, and, from experience, has no fear of the result.

Yield of Wheat.

Mr. Armour threshed 200 bushels of fall wheat from six acres of land that the previous year had raised sweet clover pasture, and the grain when weighed will probably bring the yield up to 35 bushels to the acre, a return that would be impossible from any other kind of stubble land.

Mr. Armour's Pastime.

Mr. Armour is an industrious young farmer who indulges in only one pastime. He is a confirmed baseball player whenever he can find time from his farm duties. Last year he was catcher for the Warkworth team and this year fills the same position for the Campbellford nine, and there is no better in the Northumberland league, being equally reliable as a batter, or in heading off the base stealers.

MARMORA FARMS YIELD A RECORD CROP ALL KINDS

Oats Give Double of Best Previous Year From Same Acreage.

MONSTER TURNIPS

Threshing is in Full Swing and Everyone is Satisfied.

MARMORA, Sept. 3.—Harvesting and threshing operations are now in full swing in the neighbourhood of Marmora. Tom Press, of Rawdon, and Mr. Steenberg, of Cordova, have much work ahead for their threshing outfits. Lindsay Neal has threshed over 1,000 bushels of oats, a considerable yield for the acreage sown. Tom Neal, on the adjacent farm, has threshed 665 bushels from the same portion of cultivated land as given over to oats in the past. This, he says, equals two previous good years. Barley realized 44 bushels to the acre. Threshing has now commenced on the farm rented by Walter Deacon, and here very good figures are anticipated. Mr. George Bailey, of Harold, is cutting his second crop of alfalfa. So luxuriant is this that he has had to utilise the pea harvester to reap it.

The turnips on the farm of Thomas Pack are growing to an immense size.

The corn patch of Arthur Sweet is one of the best in town. The apple crop has fulfilled its early promise.

Potatoes are turning out well everywhere.

OATS YIELD 53 BUSHELS

J. O. L. Loomis of Orland Has Big Yield—Buckwheat Attacked.

ORLAND, Sept. 3.—The hot and heavy winds of the last few days have almost ruined the buckwheat crop in this locality. This will mean a great loss to the farmers as there was an immense acreage sown, and a week ago it looked good for 35 to 40 bushels to the acre.

Oats are turning out big. J. L. Loomis threshed a load which turned out 53 bushels, and many other farmers have a like crop. Rye and wheat are above the average, while potatoes are abundant and will be hard to dispose of unless there is a failure in some other parts of the country.

There is a chance of rot which will surely follow if the present dry spell is followed by heavy rains, when all low land crops would be virtually destroyed.

OVERTIME IN LAKEFIELD

Backward Spring Retrieved By Late Growing Weather.

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 3.—The farmers are all working overtime during these fine days which have arrived in time to save hundreds of dollars worth of grain from being ruined. The past week has seen the grain all drawn in for many farmers in the vicinity, and some are already at their fall ploughing. The crop reports on all sides of the the village show a much better yield in all lines than was expected after the cold wet spring and early summer. It seemed this year that the farmer could not get on his land till nearly summer, but there has been a good ending to a rather poor beginning.

Threshing is not yet general, though a few farmers have finished for the season.

KING'S WHARF CROPS.

Wheat Is Excellent Crop — Spring and Buckwheat Are Bumper Yields.

KING'S WHARF, Sept. 2.—The first threshing of the season in this part was done Tuesday when Begley Bros. threshed their fall wheat which was a splendid crop yielding 40 bushel to the acre. Peas are a failure hardly worth threshing, oats and barely being good. There is no rust of any account here as yet but the smut is very bad, the worst it ever was and it will make threshing very hard, especially the oats which are bad with it. The pastures are splendid and the cows are milking just as well as they did in spring and buckwheat is a bumper crop in this locality.

TILDEN WINS U. S. TENNIS TITLE FOR FIFTH CONSECUTIVE YEAR

Superman of the Courts Never Played Stronger Game in Whole Career.

THREE SETS ENOUGH.

Fifth Time Tilden Vanquished W. M. Johnston in National Tourney.

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Sept. 3.—(Canadian Press).—William T. Tilden is still the king of United States tennis. The Philadelphia racquet wizard removed any doubts that may have existed on this score when he swept to victory Tuesday afternoon, over his veteran California rival, William M. Johnston, and won the national championship for the fifth successive year.

It took Tilden exactly 58 minutes to batter his gallant, but badly beaten opponent into submission by scores of 6-1, 9-7, 6-2 and establishing not only his pre-eminent position among United States racquet stars but recognition also as world's champion, for he emerged triumphant from one of the greatest international fields ever gathered together.

A gallery of 7,000, considerably smaller than Monday, had come in expectation of a keenly fought battle. They had anticipated a real struggle between the champion who had been forced to five thrilling sets by Vincent Richards and the Johnston who had crushed the Australian title holder. Gerald Patterson in a sensational exhibition of skill. But instead the onlooker saw the super-Tilden, the champion's racquet genius, at his greatest heights in one of the most decisive victories of his career.

Except for a spirited rally in the second set which he forced to deuce several times and even threatened to capture, Johnston was outstroked, outgeneralled and outclassed. It was the fifth time Tilden has vanquished Johnston in the six successive years they have met in the national championships.

BISONS DEFEATED BY TORONTO LEAFS

Baltimore Drop Game to Reading—Only Two Played.

TORONTO, September 3 (Canadian Press). — Ralph Judd was very effective with men on bases yesterday, and Toronto defeated Buffalo 5 to 2 in the third game of the series.

The Bisons had men on base in every innning but one, and had 14 left on. Judd retired the side with all corners populated once and three times with two on. A double steal gave Buffalo their first run, and a muff by Onslow of Doyle's throw in the ninth with two out accounted for the other. The score:

Buffalo	010000001—2 9 0
Toronto	00040100x—5 12 2

Proffitt and McAvoy; Judd and Sullivan.

Leaders Lose.

READING, Pa., September 3 (Canadian Press).—Baltimore dropped a game to Reading, 2 to 1, when the Keys yesterday afternoon scored a 6 to 2 victory over the league leaders. Baltimore outhit the local nine, 10 to 8, but the Orioles were unable to find Jim Clary's offerings when hits meant runs. The score:

Baltimore	000000200—2 10 1
Reading	01021002x—6 8 1

Thomas and Cobb; Clary and Haley.

POINT ANNE WON.

Defeated Deloro 10-3 in O.B.A.A. Play-Off.

MARMORA, Sept. 2.— On Monday afternoon Sept. 1st Deloro clashed with Point Anne in the second round of the O.B.A.A. play off. Victory came to the homesters by the substantial margin 10-3. Point Anne in playing steady ball throughout the nine innings, deserved their win. "Sunny" Green twirled excellent ball for Point Ann, and backed by Goyer in the receiving station, with first class support in the field, held the Deloro team at his mercy for the first five innings. Green however, began to weaken about the sixth innings when the Deloro sluggers began to pound him but it seemed as if a jinx had camped upon the visitors' trail as they hit right into the fielder's gloves. The hitting of Goyer, Green and Maracle was a feature of the game and helped pave the way to victory.

It must be said that the Deloro nine were not playing up to form. They had an off day at the bat, and were very unlucky in the field. Shea pitched the first six innings for Deloro and a few uncanny hits combined with several inexcusable errors gave Point Anne an early lead. Ada relieved Shea at the seventh and held the home team scoreless for the remainder of the game. The return game will be played at Deloro on Thursday Sept. 4th when Deloro feel confident that the tables will be turned.

FIRPO IN NEW YORK TO FINISH HIS TRAINING

"Pestered By Reformers," Says Rickard—Argentine Is Worried.

The Argentine is abandoning his Saratoga Springs camp at the direction of Tex Rickard, promoter, who ordered him to New York to finish his training.

"The reformers have been pestering him unmercifully during the past week concerning deportation charges which are hanging over his head and his state of mind is such that he cannot concentrate on his training. I have ordered him to come to New York to finish his work so that I can have him here with me to speed up and squelch, if possible, the absurb charges that are hanging fire," Rickard said in discussing the case.

HASTINGS LOST ANOTHER FRAME

Colborne Still Heads the League—Good Holiday Game.

BRIGHTON, Sept. 1.—The league leaders, Colborne strengthened their position in first place to-day by defeating Hastings, their strongest rivals, 4-3 in a close, hand fought game A good holiday crowd was present and treated to a real snappy exhibition of baseball.

Hastings scored in the first when Herrington bunted safely, stole second, went to third on a passed ball and scored on Stevenson's sacrifice. Colborne came right back with a run by Hawkins on his bunt and singles by Wilson and Myles. Mayhew opened the second with a single. Delaney and Ross struck out but Herrington fumbled Hawkins' grounder, Mayhew scored when D. Lemoire let a throw get away and Hawkins when Wilson hit safely.

The visitors showed again in the fourth. Kenny Cruickshanks singled and D. Lemoine sacrificed. P. Lemoine fanned but Collins got a life on Billcox's error, Cruickshanks scoring. They tied it in the fifty after two were out. Billcox erred again on Stevenson, who stole second. Scriver shot a single into right. Delaney made a good throw to the plate but Mayhew let it get away and the run counted.

The scoring ended in the fifth when Colborne got what proved to be the winning run. With one out Wilson singled and stole to score on Myles' long hit. This is the second successive game in which Manager Myles has produced the winning hit.

Wilson's batting was a feature of the game. He got three clean hits and a scratch in four times up. Scriver, Myles, and Mayhew had two hits each. Ross pitched a nice game to hold the Hastings' sluggers to five hits. He had only three strike outs to Stevenson's nine but pitched the better game, as the Hastings' twirler yielded ten hits, Neither pitcher issued a base on balls.

BETHANY-C.G.E. GAME ON FRIDAY

Lakeviews In Kingston and Back On Saturday—Leafs To Lindsay.

MIDGETS NEXT.

Bethany ball tossers will be here again next Friday evening for another round in the O.B.A.A. Intermediate series this time with the champion Canadian Generals. Fans who like the walloping brand of baseball will find the game interesting. The champions use a smashing attack and the larruping athletes from the Durham loop demonstrated in the series with the East Peterborough champs that they also have a punch.

Bill Prindible's Midget cup holders are due for a game in Toronto at the week-end. It will be their first appearance in the big show and local baseball fans will wish them well.

Maple Leafs move to Lindsay tomorrow to play the second game with the youthful Greybirds. The Leafs will travel at full strength and will endeavor to avoid a third contest. If successful, Cobourg will be the next stop.

Lakeviews got away early this morning for the big game at Kingston. The return game here next Saturday should bring out every baseball fan in the burg. Very few cities on the map are given the tremendously big ball programme now being offered to baseball followers in Peterborough, and as it is a good thing, who not boost it along C.G.E. had a good crowd last Saturday, the fans did splendidly for the Maple Leafs and Mackeys on the holiday, and will, no doubt give the Junior champions of Ontario a bumper attendance next Saturday at Riverside Park.

A LEAGUE MEETING

Playing Dates Fixed for the Northumberland League.

WARKWORTH, Sept. 3.—At an executive meeting of the Northumberland League held here on Thursday evening the dates for all postponed games were set so that the league could finish on schedule. Every team present felt that a mistake had been made in having a double schedule.

The main item of the meeting was the protest entered by Hastings against the Brighton club on the game played recently between the two teams on the latter's grounds. Brighton won the game 8-7. In the latter part of the game Hastings was at bat and a Hastings player was on second. He undertook to steal third and the Brighton shortstop ran out on the line and tripped him, allowing him to be an easy out. At least this is what Hastings manager, and also Player Lemoir, who was the player in question, stated. Short-stop Solomon of Brighton was present and did not deny the charge, neither did Brighton officials, and consequently there was only one thing left to do.

All the executive know young Solomon and not one of them think that he tripped the Hastings runner intentionally, as he is a popular young player all over the circuit, always conducting himself in a gentlemanly manner. But this could not alter their duty, and on motion of C. Davidson of Campbellford and C. W. Varcoe of Roseneath, the game was ordered replayed on Campbellford grounds on Friday, Sept. 12, each team to have half the proceeds after the expenses were paid.

Brighton had offered to play the game over again before the meeting, but wanted Hastings to go to Brighton again on their own expense, and Hastings wanted $20, on the neutral grounds was agreeable to both.

The dates for the following postponed games were set:

Hastings at Campbellford, Wednesday, July 30, to be played Saturday, Sept. 20.

Roseneath at Campbellford, Wednesday, Aug. 20 to be played Saturday, Sept. 13.

Colborne at Roseneath, Wednesday, Aug. 27, to be played Saturday, Sept. 20.

Those of the executive represented at the meeting were: President Dr. McKee, Vice-President Dr. Armstrong, Second Vice Gordon Lapp, C. W. Varcoe, Roseneath; Chas. Davidson, Campbellford; Harry Belford, Orlande; Wm. Willman, Hastings.

SOCCER NOTES.

On Saturday afternoon at the Oval the Quaker Oats play the G. W. V. A. in a league game. Kick-off at 2 o'clock. Referee, Alex. Mitchell.

Down on King Edward Park on Saturday afternoon at 3.30 prompt the Thistles and Canadian Woollens meet in a league fixture. Referee, Jack Clark.

A great number of local soccer fans witnessed the Corinthians vs. All-Star Ontario game last Saturday.

An old Caledonian player in the person of Bill Calder, who played as centre forward and lately, unfortunately, broke his leg last season in Oshawa, was a visitor in the city during the week-end.

The Executive of the local senior body will have to make arrangements soon for the school boys' competition, the Alex. Kay Trophy.

DO YOU KNOW BASEBALL?

BY BILLY EVANS

QUESTIONS

1. Batsman hits ball. It strikes the home plate and is deflected into fair territory, bounding into the pitcher's hands, who retires runner at first. Is it fair or foul —W. H. R.

2. With runners on second and third and two out, batsman doubles to right field. Both runners score. Batsman fails to touch first. Ball is returned there and umpire rules batter out for third out. Do the two runs that crossed the plate on the hit count?—W. H. R.

3. Can the pitcher after he has started any movement that the umpire considers part of his delivery to the batter stiff and throw to some base in an effort to catch a runner?—R. H. W.

ANSWERS

1. It is a fair ball, provided it bounded directly from the plate into fair territory and in no way came into contact with the batsman standing in his box.

2. The runs that crossed the plate on what should have been a two-bagger do not count. No runs can score on a play in which the batsman fails to reach first for the third out. Failure to touch first made such a play.

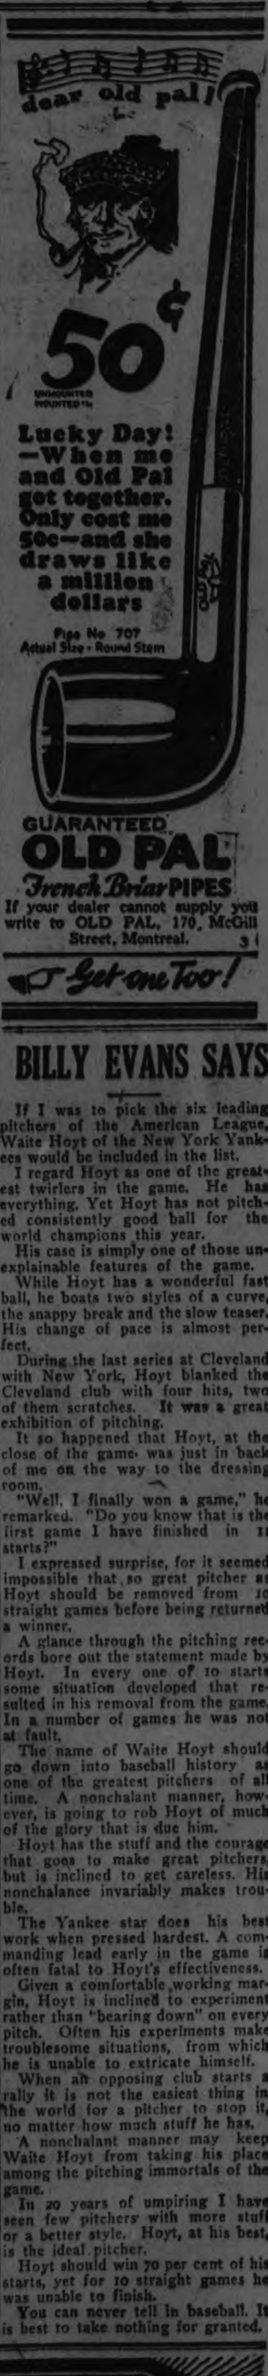
3. The pitcher after starting his delivery to the batter must continue it. Stopping the delivery and throwing to some other base, must be regarded as a balk by the umpire.

TIT FOR TAT.

Pittsburgh may yet get even with the Giants for the mean trick the latter pulled in 1921. That year the Pirates appeared to have the pennant cinched when New York staged a late season spurt that lifted the team into first place and the flag. This year the Pirates have been manhandling the Giants good and proper.

GAME POSTPONED.

ORLAND, Sept. 3.—The County League fixture game between Roseneath and Orland has been postponed at the request of Roseneath from Labor Day till Saturday, the 6th inst.



BILLY EVANS SAYS

If I was to pick the six leading pitchers of the American League, Waite Hoyt of the New York Yankees would be included in the list.

I regard Hoyt as one of the greatest twirlers in the game. He has everything. Yet Hoyt has not pitched consistently good ball for the world champions this year.

His case is simply one of those unexplainable features of the game.

While Hoyt has a wonderful fast ball, he boats two styles of a curve, the snappy break and the slow teaser. His change of pace is almost perfect.

During the last series at Cleveland with New York, Hoyt blanked the Cleveland club with four hits, two of them scratches. It was a great exhibition of pitching.

It so happened that Hoyt, at the close of the game was just in back of me on the way to the dressing room.

"Well, I finally won a game," he remarked. "Do you know that is the first game I have finished in 11 starts?"

I expressed surprise, for it seemed impossible that so great pitcher as Hoyt should be removed from 10 straight games before being returned a winner.

A glance through the pitching records bore out the statement made by Hoyt. In every one of 10 starts some situation developed that resulted in his removal from the game. In a number of games he was not at fault.

The name of Waite Hoyt should go down into baseball history as one of the greatest pitchers of all time. A nonchalant manner, however, is going to rob Hoyt of much of the glory that is due him.

Hoyt has the stuff and the courage that goes to make great pitchers, but is inclined to get careless. His nonchalance invariably makes trouble.

The Yankee star does his best work when pressed hardest. A commanding lead early in the game is often fatal to Hoyt's effectiveness.

Given a comfortable working margin, Hoyt is inclined to experiment rather than "bearing down" on every pitch. Often his experiments make troublesome situations, from which he is unable to extricate himself.

When an opposing club starts a rally it is not the easiest thing in the world for a pitcher to stop it, no matter how much stuff he has.

A nonchalant manner may keep Waite Hoyt from taking his place among the pitching immortals of the game.

In 20 years of umpiring I have seen few pitchers with more stuff or a better style. Hoyt, at his best, is the ideal pitcher.

Hoyt should win 70 per cent of his starts, yet for 10 straight games he was unable to finish.

You can never tell in baseball. It is best to take nothing for granted.

FOR UNEMPLOYMENT.

Pros and Cons of the Situation Discussed at Conference.

OTTAWA, Sept. 3.—(Canadian Press.)—Hopeful of preventing unemployment in Canada during the coming winter, through "regularization of industrial employment," Hon. James Murdock, Minister of Labor, this morning convened a gathering of representatives of political and municipal governments of capital and labor to discuss the problem of unemployment.

Mr. Murdock stated that undertakings by the government in the way of Federal public works were entirely dependent on the appropriations voted by parliament. He said the Minister of Public Works would make a statement in this connection. He pointed out that those invited to the conference had been requested to inform themselves of prospective employment possibilities in their districts during the coming winter and steps which might best be taken to guard against unemployment and distress.

Statements made at the meeting indicate the likelihood of a sharp division over the question of responsibility. The Dominion Government has in the past taken the ground that responsibility for unemployment relief lies primarily with the municipalities concerned.

To-day, one after another, municipal representatives stated that they considered the primary responsibility lay with the Dominion Government.

Tom Moore, president of the Trades and Labour Congress, had a four-fold plan. He would have Federal, Provincial, and municipal authorities continue their public works with full completement during the winter months. Federal and Provincial public works for which provision was made in recent Legislative sessions, should be undertaken at once and continued during the winter. He thought a National Committee should be appointed to determine where the work might be initiated and to arrange for financing and in conclusion stated that the eight-hour day and the prevailing rates of wages should apply on such work.

GIVE APPROACH TO GARAGES ON A STREET LINE

Debate Waxes Hot in Council—Some Would Prohibit Erection.

DISCUSS PAVING.

Contractor Must Pay $20 a Day For Hire of City Road Roller.

Last night's regular meeting of the City Council was featured by a sharp debate on the advisability of giving L. Webster, Rubidge street, approaches to four garages he has erected on his property, and it was decided to allow these to be put in. Alderman Phelan spoke strongly against the permitting of such buildings on the street line, saying they depreciate the value of property in the neighborhood.

Alderman McIntyre claimed that the applicant had been told to go ahead with his garages on the location where they now stand, and should not be penalized for carrying out the City Engineer's instructions.

Alderman Maher: "Why doesn't three apartments, so what does he want with four garages?"

Alderman Phelan: "Four hen houses they look like. You'll have them stuck all over the town and then you'll change it."

Alderman Mather: "Why doesn't he take one down and move the others back? There's more than cars in them. I've seen furniture there and next thing you'll have an auction room. The people across the road put their garages behind the houses."

Alderman Phelan said he could get a petition signed by all citizens along the street.

Alderman Fife: "A petition would not affect the situation one bit. We have no authority as aldermen to say we want the garages put in a certain place."

Alderman Morrison: "I think we are wasting a lot of valuable time. I feel a man can build what he likes and we should give him an approach."

When the motion to grant four approaches carried, Alderman Phelan called for yeas and nays. "I want the people to know those who turn a somersault every time a question of this kind comes up," he said. The vote on allowing the four approaches was: Yea— Turner, Fife, McIntyre, Crowe, Morrison and Mayor Turner. Nay—Phelan, Jones, Stocker and Maher.

Rubidge Street Paving.

In a discussion on the proposed paving of Rubidge street, Alderman McIntyre advocated saving to the Council the right to pave with bithulithic even if the majority of the residents want concrete.

Alderman Maher said concessions have been made to citizens desiring bithulithic and should be extended to those preferring concrete.

Alderman Crowe moved that no more paving be done this year and was supported by Aldermen Stocker, Turner and McIntyre. He was defeated when Aldermen Phelan, Fife, Jones, Morrison and Maher voted contrary.

Reports.

Alderman Crowe presented his report of the convention in Windsor at which he represented the city; Alderman Stocker reported on his visit to Buffalo with Alderman McIntyre as city representatives, and W. H. Henry presented his report on the Municipal Board gathering where, with City Clerk Armstrong, he represented the city.

Wants Coal.

Alderman Fife urged the timeliness of arranging for coal for the city building and suggested that soft coal might be advantageously used instead of hard. He was authorized to procure prices.

Alderman Maher suggested substitution of oil burners, but Alderman Turner said so saving is effected, although oil is more convenient.

Weed Cutting.

Alderman Crowe remarked that weeds on city waste places are ripe and seeding and Mayor Turner said he could confer with the police department.

Alderman Myers' Illness.

A motion of sympathy with Alderman Meyers was passed, expressing hope that he be soon recovered from his illness.

It was reported that he is improving slowly and to avoid his automatic suspension, according to the regulations, on missing three meetings, he was granted two months' leave of absence.

Rate For Road Roller.

In discussing the payment to be made to the city for use of its steam roller, Alderman Stocker moved that $20 a day be charged John Carroll, and Alderman Fife proposed that the rate be the same as last year, $13.50. Alderman Stocker contended that Mr. Carroll heard the discussion when a price of $25 was mentioned, and Alderman Fife replied that Mr. Carroll was precluded from speaking in the Council meeting when the matter was under discussion.

Alderman Maher: "A rate per day should have been set for all machinery. This way you appear to be trying to get all you can out of the man.

After further discussion a price of $20 was set.

General Business.

A by-law for construction of sidewalks in the city was passed in its three readings.

City Engineer R. H. Parsons reported that permits were issued during August for 3 dwellings, 4 garages and 19 miscellaneous buildings and and repairs.

Petitions.

Petitions were received for the construction of sewers on the north side of Lansdowne street, from Lock to Sherbourne and for permission to connect houses on the south side of Lansdowne street.

Thanked Council.

A letter from G. N. Gordon,, K.C., M.P., read as follows:

"I wish you would kindly express to His Worship Mayor Turner and the Council my appreciation of their kind offices on the occasion of the visit of the Prime Minister of Canada to Peterborough.

"The Prime Minister desired me to say to the Mayor and Council that he appreciated very much indeed the well chosen, kindly and hearty welcoming words of Mayor Turner at the reception to the Prime Minister on Thursday last."

Mr. Gordon mentions the book of views presented by Alderman Joseph Crowe, Chairman of the Reception committee as being greatly appreciated by the Premier and concludes: "For myself, I wish to thank the Mayor and Council for their kind and courteous treatment accorded me, and you may be assured that there will be no occasion upon which I will forget the interest of this splendid and progressive city."

Approved Sewers.

The Provincial Board of Health forwarded approval of sewers on King, Donegal, Hazlett, Oxford, Ross and Sophia streets, at a cost of $6,984.25.

Dumping Ground.

A resolution of the Board of Health, "That the City Council be requested to arrange for dumping grounds for the city," was presented and referred to the Property committee.

Action For Damages.

J. F. Strickland advised the Council that he is instructed to proceed against the city for injuries sustained by Mrs. Isabella Gardiner of 370 Hunter street. Mrs. Gardiner, it is said, caught her foot on a piece of broken sidewalk at 390 Park street north and sustained injuries in the fall.

Licenses.

Applications for billiard table licenses were received from F. B. Patterson and Louis Yeotes, and for eating houses from Mrs. J. Fowler and E. M. Austin.

No Fire Loss.

Fire Chief George Gimblett reported that there was no loss by fire during the month of August, this constituting a record for Peterborough. There were eleven alarms. The pulmotor was used for 25 minutes on one occasion.

There were present last night, Mayor J. J. Turner, Aldermen Nagle Phelan, R. N. Jones, E. M. Turner, J. O. Fife, W. Stocker, M. McIntyre,, J. Crowe, R. Morrison and M. J. Maher.

WORLD FLIERS READY.

Final Lap In Round the World Flight Nearing Completion.

HAWKESBAY, Nfld., Sept. 3.—(Canadian Press). — American around the world fliers, now within two days' easy flying time of their home country, will jump from Hawkesbay to Pictou Harbor, Nova Scotia, to-day, preparatory for their final dash to Boston. The airmen flew yesterday from Ice Tickle Harbor, Labrador, to this port, swooping down across Labrador and Newfoundland through fogs and head winds. They tuned up their machines and refueled last night, and were in readiness for the get-away to-day as soon as weather conditions were reported favorable.

Both Lieutenants Lowell Smith and Erik Nelson, the only two of the four original airmen who have made the continuous flight, were anxious to get to Pictou Harbor today to greet their comrade, Lieut. Leigh Wade, who will rejoin the flight there and continue with it back to Santa Monica, from which the world girdling efforts started last March. Wade lost his plane on the flight from the Orkney Islands to Iceland, but has received a new machine at Pictou.

Yesterday's flight was without incident, except over the Belle Isle Straits and along the coast of Newfoundland, where the airmen encountered fogs, rain and a strong head wind. They drove through, however, and were given a greeting as they alighted on the bay here.

NO ALBERTA FUEL.

Coal Strike and High Freight Rate Two of the Causes.

TORONTO, Sept. 3.— (Canadian Press,)—Ontario has given up hope of getting any Alberta fuel this year. What with coal strikes at the fields, Sir Henry Thornton's refusal to reinsttae the special 7 dollar per ton rate, and the Federal government's failure to pass regulations governing the expenditure of $200,000 voted to assist in covering losses on freight in shipping Alberta fuel to Ontario, Premier Ferguson admitted yesterday that the chances of Ontarions burning western coal this winter did not now appear bright.

"But the Ontario government is ready and anxious to meet anybody half way in the matter of freight cost experiment proposed even yet," he said.

"What we want to do is to keep Canadian money in Canada and our idea was to settle for all time the controversy over the exact cost of hauling coal eastward, and on that finding formulate a basis for future business."

AT THE ROYAL.

CIRCUS AT ROYAL TO-MORROW

Many Circus Performers in New Walton Film at the Rialto.

A circus is essentially a children's playground.

True, a big circus affords entertainment for every class and every age, but if it weren't for the youngsters, nine out of ten circuses would fall flat. It is the children who arouse the enthusiasm, who enveigle peanut money for the monkeys from fond parents and coax the dads and mammas to the Big Tops.

To help create the circus atmosphere in "Sawdust," the Universal attraction starring Gladys Walton, which is showing at the Royal to-morrow, several old-time clowns, acrobats and trick performers were employed as "atmospheric players in the picture.

Gamble began his career many years ago as a trouper in a small one-ring circus. The circus toured America by wagon-train. Gamble did a "Punch and Judy" act. He liked children and played up to them. From the one-ring circus he graduated to the big-time circuit and spent several seasons with the big show, doing his act in vaudeville between seasons. He has appeared in nearly every small town and big city in America and Canada, and has made one tour of the world with a circus troupe.

In the "Sawdust" troupe are Paul and Edith Rondas, known in circus and vaudeville circles as the Rondas Duo. They put on a whirlwind cycling act. Paul plays an accordion as he gallops over the stage on a lone bicycle wheel and his wife plays the saxaphone while she is likewise guiding a single wheel over the boards.

The play was adapted to the screen from a magazine story by Courtney Riley Cooper. Jack Conway directed the picture.

AUTO CRASHES INTO TREE AFTER PARTY

One lesson which "For Sale," the picture at the Royal to-night teaches, is that gasoline and whisky will not mix. Those who are wont to look at the wine while it is red and then expect to turn the highway into an automobile speedway may wake up suddenly finding themselves bidding good morning to St. Peter. Driving while under the influence of liquor also often carries with it a vacation in a whitewashed cell.

The danger which reckless driving carries is graphically shown in a situation in this gripping photoplay of American society life, where one of the characters, a part played by Jack Patrick, meets his death in a thrilling automobile crash.

The accident, due to the recklessness of the intoxicated driver, is one of the many dramatic high-lights of this absorbing story. An expensive high-powered machine was run into a tree and completely wrecked by the producers in order to get camera realism.

"For Sale" features a coterie of filmdom's greatest players, including Claire Windsor, Adolphe Menjou, Rob Hilis, Tully Marshall, Vera Reynolds, Frank Elliott and Christine Mayo.

AT THE CAPITOL.

POLA'S NEW PICTURE DUE AT THE CAPITOL THEATRE

Pola Negri's new Paramount starring picture, "Lily of the Dust," is a production with an ending which will surprise even the keenest students of drama because it is so totally unexpected. Produced by Dimitri Buchowetzki, "Lily of the Dust," due at the Capitol on Wednesday and Thursday, presents Ben Lyon, Noah Beery and Raymond Griffith at the head of the supporting cast.

The story was adapted by Paul Bern from the novel by Hermann Sudermann and stage play by Edward Sheldon, "The Song of Songs."

The role which Pola Negri portrays, is one of a beautiful girl raised in a small garrison town among surroundings of the utmost poverty. She is given a place in a lending library where she comes in contact with the officers of the garrison. Among these is Robert Prell with whom she falls in love.

Unfortunately for the lovers, Colonel Mertzbach covets Lily and goes so far as to propose marriage. His dominant personality sweeps everything ahead of him, and Lily becomes the Countess Mertzbach.

Prell follows the pair on their honeymoon, seeking an opportunity for a secret meeting with Lily. He enters her room when he thinks she is alone and is discovered with Lily in his arms by the Colonel. A divorce follows and Prell, wounded in a duel, resigns in disgrace from the army.

Thrown upon her own resources and branded as a faithless woman, Lily finds herself in a worse state than before her marriage. Being young and desirous of enjoying life, she accepts the attention of Richard Dehnecke, a wealthy manufacturer, who places here in a handsome suite of rooms and introduces her to the fast life of Berlin's gayest circles.

She grieves for Prell but believes he will never return. One day, when Dehnecke has presented her with a magnificent rope of pearls, she looks past him to the doorway where she sees Prell, pale from his wound. Overcome with shame at being discovered, she begs his forgiveness. After a terrible struggle, he consents to forget the past if she will immediately leave Dehnecke's rooms.

Too poor to support her, Prell is dependent upon a wealthy uncle who comes to the city to see what type of woman his nephew wishes to marry. The uncle is a man who has known every type of woman. Lily, fearful for her future, prepares to match her wits against those of the astute old man. By a strange turn of chance, the room where the three people dine is one which has witnessed some of Lily's wildest escapades while with Dehnecke.

She loved Dehnecke, and she is still in love with Prell. The power of suggestion is very strong and, influenced by the wine she drinks, she becomes merely the plaything of destiny.

The final scenes of the picture are crammed with drama of unusual power. Denecke or Prell is the question in the minds of the audience.

Noah Beery as 'Mertzbach,' Ben Lyon as 'Prell' and Raymond Griffith as 'Dehnecke' are superbly cast in support of Miss Negri.

EXPOUND NEW THEORY.

Astronomers Now Say Mars Is Not Inhabited.

LICK OBSERVATORY, Mount Hamilton, Calif., Sept. 3.—(Canadian Press).—A score or more of astronomers who have been manning giant telescopes here since Mars has been opposition have concluded the planet is not inhabited. The supposed "Canals" which long have been the chief basis of scientific belief that Mars boasted animal and probably human life much like our own they say are too wide to be man made affairs, fully one hundred miles across. Also they are declared to be too winding in their courses to be the result of any martian engineering project.

Observations and photographs virtually have established that Mars has clouds and atmosphere conditions similar to our own, and also rivers, and mountains, land and sea. The presence of water in the supposed canals is believed to be proved by the fact that vapors similar to our own fogs arise from them every morning, when the sun first strikes them.

OUTWITTED CROWD.

Prince Did Not Turn Up at the Drag Hunt.

SYOSSET, N.Y., September 3 (Canadian Press). — The Prince of Wales is successfully avoiding publicity. It was demonstrated to-day that the heir to the British throne successfully outwitted the crowd of reporters, and that he is realising his desire for freedom.

It had been announced that the Prince would take part in the drag hunt at Meadow Brook Club early this morning, and so closely was the secret of his whereabouts guarded that it was taken for granted that he had done so.

Early this afternoon it was ascertained for the second time that the Prince had arrived home at dawn. He had spent the night at the home of Vincent Astor, where a late supper had been given in his honour.

After seven hours' repose he arose this afternoon and went to the Polo Grounds to see his ponies, three of which went slightly lame during the game.

FABLES ON HEALTH

Wrinkles creep into the face of all of us—and Mrs. Mann of Anytown was no exception. She found what is known as the "Berlin Method" helpful in removing them.

This method starts with steaming the face. Narrow strips of court-plasters are applied to the wrinkled sections, but first these sections must be smoothed carefully with the fingers. To get results this treatment must be persisted in for some time and applications should be made twice a week.

When furrows appear on the forehead a compress may be applied made from linen soaked in the white of an egg and mixed with alcohol.

Place it on the forehead upon going to bed and leave it through the night, unless it begins to smart. Then it is best to remove it or the skin will be reddened.

For general skin stimulation, bathe the face in cold water, then rub briskly with a towel or with the hands and rub in some good cold cream.

Electric apparatus may now be secured which, when properly applied, helps in many cases.

GUNS.

Over three and a half times as many rifles were manufactured in the States last year as in 1921. This isn't alarming, for crooks cannot easily tote rifles without being detected.

But the increasing sale of pistols is dangerous—about four million dollars worth last last. We'll never get crime any way near control until the sale of "guns" is curbed, especially by mail order. Life imprisonment for owning or carrying a concealed or concealable weapon, with no mush-hearted paroles, would prevent a lot of murders. Disarm the criminals.

BEAD FRINGE.

Narrow bead fringe, not more than an inch in width, follows the scallops and uneven hemlines on the new dinner gowns and is often repeated many times in the skirt.

LOCAL DOCTORS VICTIMIZED BY SLICK VISITOR

Declares Intention To Open Private Hospital and Obtains Instruments.

CHEQUES UNPAID.

Dr. MacDonald Entertained Local Medical Men and Left Them Flat.

Peterborough laughted when Port Hope was recently visited by a medical man who represented himself as coming from the department of health. This doctor was escorted around the "prettiest town in Canada" and shown with pride the health arrangements that made it also the 'healthiest town' this distinguished visitor had ever seen. Then it was discovered that the doctor was a harmless practical joker who carried his jokes to the extent of passing worthless cheques, and he was promptly apprehended at Cobourg and returned to Whitby.

Peterborough's visitor, Dr. MacDonald, represented himself as hailing from Toronto in search of a location for a private hospital. He met Dr. D. C. King, who is well acquainted in Millbrook and arranged to start practice in that village. To Dr. King he represented himself as being highly recommended by eminent Toronto practitioners, and said he was a graduate of the Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, with a record of two years' experience with Mayo Brothers the famous surgeons.

In Millbrook, Dr. MacDonald arranged for the purchase of "Ingle Nook", the homestead of the Misses Alice and Lottie Vanee, which he declared would be fitted up immediately as a private hospital.

Gets Instruments

Returning to Peterborough with the details of his practice arranged the Doctor approached Dr. King with offers to purchase instruments and equipment of which the latter wished to dispose. The instruments were produced and examined, the visitor making a selection of those he required and having them packed in two bags. Other weightier and more bulky apparatus was also selected, but not packed.

The total value of the instruments as decided upon was $900, but Dr. MacDonald suggested that he make out his cheque for two or three thousand dollars, to cover all the purchases he intended making, and "the detail could be arranged later." Dr. King accepted the cheque on Monday.

Meantime, the visiting Doctor had not forgotten his social amenities, and had made himself pleasant in visiting other physicians in the city, even entertaining a number in his hotel.

On Monday night when Dr. King arrived at his home he found Dr. MacDonald awaiting him, and they went together to get the bags of instruments.

The house had been broken into and the bags taken.

Dr. King called the police station and a sergeant was quickly on the job. Dr. MacDonald, it is said suggested that a watch be put on the lockers in the stations, since the thief might have put the bags there to await a morning train.

Dr. King had been invited by the eminent visitor to assist him in an operation in Port Hope on Tuesday morning, and went there to fulfil his engagement. Dr. MacDonald was not present, and no operation was scheduled in the town that day, Dr. King ascertained.

Clean Get-away.

In the meantime, with Dr. King out of the way, Dr. MacDonald had a taxi driver take him to the station, where he obtained the two bags from the locker he had advised the police to watch, drove to a small station down the line, and there boarded the train with a ticket booking him through to Montreal.

Behind him he left cheques to pay for everything he had received, including drugs at Moncur's drug store (cheque $100); Empress hotel, daily bill and a dinner to the city doctors; Millbrook house, payment of $100; some small items of five and ten dollars each, and the big $2,000 cheque left with Dr. King.

Warrants are now issued charging Dr. MacDonald with housebreaking and passing worthless cheques.

Completely Fooled.

The visitor who was so taken to the hearts of many Peterborough doctors, is described as being about five feet eight inches tall, with blue eyes, light hair, and a clean shaven, somewhat rough face. He appeared to be about 35 years of age and had a professional air. When in repose he had the "jolly good fellow" manner that accompanies many professional men in their hours of leisure.

Besides his pretensions of intimacy with prominent surgeons in Toronto, Dr. MacDonald backed his bid for credit with a nonchalent reference to $60,000 which his father had left him, and a $16,000 house he owned in Toronto.

That he has some medical training is evident from the fact that during his stay in Millbrook he took charge of a difficult case. While there he boosted his credit with many references to Dr. Phyllis V. Young, of Peterborough, intimating that she would enter partnership in the Millbrook private hospital with him.

Dr. Phyllis Young, interviewed to-day by The Examiner, absolutely denied any knowledge of the proposed partnership, and intimated that she had not even been approached with reference to it. If Dr. MacDonald used her name he did it without her sanction or warrant.

Dr. D. Carmichael, whose name was also mentioned in connection with an alliance, told The Examiner he had no dealings whatever with Dr. MacDonald. The latter had spoken about wanting someone to help him with an operation, Dr. Carmichael said, but personally he had not dealt with the man.

One Phase of the Home Bank Scandal.

TORONTO, Sept. 3.—(Canadian Press).—M. J. Haney, former president of the Home Bank, who through illness was unable to attend the sittings of the Ontario Public Accounts Committee, when the bond scandals and Home Bank affairs were under investigation, is now able to be out and attend almost daily at the offices of the solicitors for the liquidators, G. Liquidators have claims amounting to $180,000 against Mr. Haney, arising out of the failure of the bank and friends of Mr. Haney say he is now endeavoring to arrange settlement by giving the liquidators a lien on his assets. Mr. Haney is a shareholder in a number of companies, including the Kingston Locomotive Works and Brick Company doing business west of Toronto.

Mr. Haney was president prior to the election of the late H. J. Daly to that office.

PICTOU GREETS AMERICAN FLIERS WITH WARM CANADIAN WELCOME

Nova Scotia Town Crowded With Visitors When U. S. Planes Arrived.

FROM NEWFOUNDLAND.

Official Reception By Pictou's Mayor—Hop Was Uneventful.

PICTOU, N.S., Sept. 4.—(Canadian Press).—The four world encircling American airmen reached Canadian soil at Pictou last night after a trip of 420 miles from Hawkes Bay, Newfoundland, during which they were delayed by headwinds, but otherwise found flying conditions favorable.

The 'planes, leaving Hawkes Bay at 10.12 Eastern Standard Time, arrived here at 4.58 p.m. Because of their late arrival, precluding the possibility of gassing and oiling and a general check over before the coming of darkness, and because of a broken spreader bar on Lieut. Smith's plane, broken some time during the journey, it was decided that the original schedule calling for departure for Boston today would not be followed and that the birdsmen would not take off until Friday morning.

Wade Resumes Flight.

Lieut. Wade and Lieut. Ogden, forced out of the round-the-world flight last month will take the air in a new machine with their comrades and will continue the flight until its completion. A new propeller, replacing one found to be unsuitable, will be placed on Lieut. Wade's machine today.

The hop from Hawkes Bay was made without special incident beyond the breaking of the spreader bar on Lieut. Smith's machine—a minor accident that did not affect the flying qualities of the 'plane.

The airmen encountered no fog—a dreaded visitant of Newfoundland waters—and throughout the trip found exceptionally high visibility enabling them to pick up the destroyers and patrol vessels which stood out to convoy them at long distances. Head winds, however developed in Cabot Strait, and cut down the speed until after Cape St. Lawrence was sighted, when the wind hauled to the northwest and virtually blew itself out.

A Canadian Welcome.

The aviators, thoughtful of the 'planes that have carried them more than 22,000 miles since the initial hop off at Santa Monica, California, last March, scrubbed them clean of oil and grease, carefully went over the engines and made things "all fast" before they would allow themselves to be taken ashore. From the 'planes they went directly to the Canadian destroyer Patriot where they were met by Captain H. E Reid, commander of the vessel, Hance J. Logan, M.P. representing the Canadian Federal Government, Major-Gen. H. C. Thacker, senior military officer of the district, Major J. A. McEachern of Pictou and other notables. Then they were guests for a few moments of Captain Taylor, comander of the American destroyer Barry, before they assumed the role of guests of honor at an official reception at which Mayor McEachern presided.

Town Was Crowded.

Pictou, more than doubled its population during the day and thousands of visitors from throughout Nova Scotia, Cape Breton, Prince Edward Island and Eastern Canadian provinces poured into town for the occasion. It was a typically Canadian welcome and one that the aviators found had not been exceeded in warmth since they hopped off from Santa Monica. Every inch of space on the piers jutting out into the harbor was filled, and score of motor boats chugged about the landing moorings, kept at a respectful distance by a patrol boat from the Barry. The great bass whistle of the Patriot and the Barry's siren played out a ceaseless shriek of welcome. As the 'planes taxied down to the water and every craft, in the harbor joined in, while 6,000 people at the waters' edge shouted frantically.

It was a big day for Pictou.

RESCUED BY U. S. SHIP.

Here is Lieut. Locatelli, the Italian airman, who, with his three companions, was rescued by the American cruiser Richmond after tossing about for more than 80 hours in his disabled seaplane in the rough North Atlantic waters. Locatelli, who had obtained permission to accompany the American 'round-the-world byers on their trip across the Atlantic, was forced down between Reykjavik and Fredericksdal, Iceland.

POINT OF LAW DELAYS TRIAL

Question of Hearsay Evidence in Murder Case Raised In Montreal.

ENMITY ALLEGED.

MONTREAL, Sept. 4.—(Canadian Press). — Conversations said to have been held between Wm. Clarke, the murdered watchman of a plant here, and Christopher White, which tended to show that enmity existed between the two men, the latter of whom is charged with Clarke's murder, were barred from evidence as being hearsay testimony in court here yesterday afternoon. Crown Prosecutor Patterson objected to this ruling and the court took the question into deliberation and stated that a final ruling would be given next Friday, to which date the case was adjourned.

The manager of the plant where Clarke was employed was the star witness and told of the discovery of the body in a pool of blood. He identified the revolver which figures in the case as belonging to the company. He had smelled it when the body was discovered and it smelled as though it had been recently used.

Detective Barrett produced a bullet which he had found near Clarke's body, and told of finding White's hands very dirty and his linen soiled, the color in both cases appearing to be the same as the paint on the broken palings surrounding the plant.

FRENCH KEEP FAITH.

Restrictions In the Occupied Parts of Germany Are Raised.

DUESSELDORF, Germany, Sept. 4. — In order to show France's desire to restore as quickly as possible, and as widely as possible, Germany's economic unity, in conformity with the London agreement, General Degoutte, commander of the allied troops on the Rhine, yesterday issued decrees allowing motor cars to circulate with absolute freedom, abolishing safe conducts between the occupied and unocupied portions of Germany, and suppressing duties on merchandise passing between the occupied and unoccupied parts of Germany.

316 Cases of Beer Seized At Mitchell Bay Are Now Claimed By Governments

CHATHAM, Ont., Sept. 4.—(Canadian Press).—The ownership of 316 cases of beer, seized on a cruiser, by County Police at Mitchell Bay on August 12, will be contested by the provincial and federal governments it was intimated yesterday following an order made by Magistrate Carscallen confiscating the beer subject to the rights of the Dominion Government.

The magistrate held that the boat had been properly seized by federal officials and that the vessels and its cargo belonged to the Dominion authorities. While the county police took possession of the boat and the beer at Mitchell Bay the seizure was not made by local federal officials until after it had been brought to Chatham, and the beer stowed away in freight cars for shipment to the Ontario Dispensary.

PARENTS DUPED GIRL KIDNAPPED

Alleged Illness of Relative Told By Stranger in North Verulam.

RETURNED FOR GIRL.

LINDSAY, Sept. 4.—(Special to Examiner).—A daring attempt to kidnap a sixteen-year-old girl was made in North Verulam some time between two and three o'clock yesterday morning. It appears that a young man called at the home of Mr. Nelson Aldred in a touring car, and informed him that his sister-in-law, Mrs. David Aldred, had taken seriously ill and that her husband had asked him if he would go after Nelson Aldred's daughter to look after the sick woman.

Mr. Aldred became suspicious and questioned the stranger as to why Mr. Aldred had not come himself. The young man gave his name as Oliver, and stated that David Aldred had come to the Sutton home, told of his wife's illness and requested that Oliver run over to his brother's farm for the girl. Oliver claimed he was driving Mr. Sutton's car.

Mr. and Mrs. Aldred finally decided to go to the brother's home instead of the daughter. When the car reached David Aldred's gate Oliver brought the car to a sudden stop and feigned gasoline shortage. Mrs. Aldred started for the house, while Mr. Aldred helped the young man get the car to the side of the road. Suddenly the stranger put on the gas and the car was soon out of sight.

Oliver returned to the home of Nelson Aldred, and, it is alleged, entered the house, told the girl that her aunt was dying and that her father had sent for her. She arose and dressed and entered the car. Instead of going in the direction of her uncle's farm, the car turned in a different direction.

When the parents returned home and found the daughter missing, searching parties were instituted. Miss Aldred was found early Wednesday morning on the Fenelon road, walking toward her uncle's home. No trace has been found of the mysterious Mr. Oliver.

CAR KILLS WOMAN.

And Another Smash on Montreal Street May Be Fatal.

MONTREAL, Sept. 4—(Canadian Press).—Mrs. Eliza Laval, 46, of this city, was instantly killed on Beaver Hall Hill yesterday afternoon when she stepped from the sidewalk into the path of an automobile descending the hill. She was struck and thrown violently, fracturing her skull.

Barely had she been pronounced dead by a hastily summoned doctor than another accident occurred a little higher up the hill. Raoul Jasmin, 30, farmer, of St. Laurent, suffered a fractured skull, and is in the Royal Victoria Hospital in a critical condition as a result of his horse bolting and throwing him from the rig he was driving to the pavement.

SIR GEORGE FOSTER 77.

OTTAWA, Sept. 4. — Right Hon. Sir George Eulas Foster, K.C.M.G., yesterday celebrated his 77th birthday.

Sir George accompanied by Lady Foster is at present in South Africa, with the Canadian delegation attending the conference of the Parliamentary Union at Cape Town.

PREMIER MACDONALD'S SON PREDICTS LONG RULE FOR BRITISH LABOR PARTY

Malcolm MacDonald, Now In Montreal, Says Liberals Will Disappear in Changing Political Movement In Great Britain.

MONTREAL, Sept. 4.—(Canadian Press).—There are no young Liberals being born in Great Britain today. Things have changed since the days of Gilbert and Sullivan when every young Briton was either a "Little Liberal of else a Little Conservative." All the babies of the future are destined to be either Conservative or Labor. This is the opinion of Malcolm MacDonald, son of Ramsay MacDonald, Premier of Great Britain now in Montreal.

"The present Labor Government is the beginning of a long Labor rule," Mr. MacDonald says. "Labor will do very well in the next election but I don't think they will get a clear majority. It will be a tussle between the Conservatives and Labor."

The Liberals would not figure much and he did not believe that Lloyd George will ever return to power.

The star in the Conservative firmament would be Winston Churchill, whom Mr. MacDonald believes will one day be Conservative Leader.

To the question "what does your father think about the prospect of an early election?" Mr. MacDonald replied "I don't think he has time to think anything at all about it."

SCIENTISTS AT SUDBURY VISIT MINING PLANTS

British Savants Complete a Month's Intensive Study of Canadian Geography.

RUSH FOR STEAMERS.

Half the Party Depart For Montreal and Colleges Overseas.

SUDBURY, Ont., Sept. 4.—(By Canadian Press Staff Correspondent) — Four hundred members of the British Association for the Advancement of Science took the last session in their intensive 4 weeks' geography course on the Dominion of Canada when they inspected nickel and copper mines and concentrating plants here yesterday where ninety per cent of the world's nickel is produced. About half of the scientists took regular trains from Sudbury to Montreal last night in order to catch the steamers which are waiting to take them back to lectures and laboratories and the remainder will reach Toronto in the special trains today.

Gather Information.

For nearly three weeks the experts have peered into mines, looked at tall trees, talked about wheat and inquired about immigration and many of them plan to utilize the time on the boats, which take them home, in completing the notes and indexing the specimens which have been accumulating since they first reached Quebec on August 1. The material they have gathered will serve as the basis for many lectures on the Dominion and it's resources and numerous articles of the technical and scientific magazines are already taking shape. Cameras have been busy throughout the savants' stay in Canada and it is a modest estimate that 10,000 different negatives made in the provinces will find their way to the British Isles many of them to be made into lantern slides but others saved simply as a record of some glorious Canadian sunset, or of some beauty spot in the Rocky mountains or about the inland lakes.

Canada a Surprise.

That the scientists are satisfied with what they have seen is a foregone conclusion, but many of the older members of the association who visited Canada at the time of the Winnipeg meeting in 1909, express astonishment at the rapid growth which has been made, and they note with gratification forty per cent. of public money in the new Provinces is spent upon education. Among those to pay tribute to the transcontinental railways and the part which they have played in the progress is Sir Thomas Holland, eminent geologist. Perhaps the spirit in which the sages are returning to Great Britain is best summarized by Sir William Bragg of the University of London, who said: "We are never tired of saying good things about Canada."

FRANCE FAVORS DISARAMENT IF WITH SECURITY

Herriot Says Mutual Assistance Pact Was Initiated By British Delegates.

LEAGUE OPENING.

Main Question of Assembly Will Be Discussed To-day —Inaugural Brief.

GENEVA, Sept. 4. — The French semi-official Havas agency yesterday sent out the following dealing with Premier Herriot's position on the primary question before the Assembly of the League of Nations:

"M. Herriot and his associates discussed all the aspects of the security and disarmament problems before the conference M. Herriot was to have with Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain.

"It is understood that M. Herriot will remind Mr. MacDonald that the mutual assistance pact, initiated by a former British delegation, as a corollary to the resolution animously adopted in 1922, by the League of Nations, stating that it would be necessary to treat the disarmament and security questions as an indissoluble unit.

"France remains faithful to this principle which received the approval of Lord Robert Cecil, of a great number of the powers and of the little entente. It is possible that plans recently submitted, such as the American project or others which which may come up in the course of the discussions, may contain useful suggestions where the idea of obligatory arbitration brings a new element into the debate.

"France, who initiated the London arbitration in regard to the inter-allied policy, will certainly not refuse to entertain the idea if it is accompanied by supplemental guarantees in the form of assistance and sanctions in the event of conflict."

Albania Grateful.

The afternon session of the assembly lasted a bare twenty minutes, just time enough for Prof. Luigji Gurakuqi, the Albanian finance minister to thank the league for the financial help accorded his country's distressed populations during the past year.

He hoped that through the league's action, Albania would become "an element of stability and progress in the Balkans."

Dr. Motta, president of the assembly, then announced that two sessions would be held to-day, at 11 a.m., and 4 p.m., for discussion of security and disarmament. He added that those who had applied to speak included the British prime minister, Ramsay MacDonald, and indicated that the discussions undoubtedly last through Friday. The general discussion of league problems would be taken up about Saturday.

Premier Herriott yesterday laid a palm on the monument erected to the Genevese volunteers in the French ranks, and French residents of Geneva who died during the war period.

He then resumed contact with Premier MacDonald, while the various members of the French delegation had informal conversations with the members of the British delegations.

The assembly commissions marked time pending the outcome of the negotiations between the two premiers.

RACE INJURIES FATAL TO GEERS

Dean of American Trotting Track Thrown Over Horse In Fall.

FAIR'S "GEER'S DAY."

WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 4. — Edward F. (Pop) Geers, of Memphis Tenn., dean of American harness drivers, and known for many years as the "grand old man of the trotting turf," died in "the harness" yesterday. The veteran horseman was fatally injured when his mare, Miladi Guy, stumbled and fell during the first harness race at the West Virginia state fair.

Pop Geers

Dislodged from the overturned sulky, Geers was thrown over 15 feet ahead of the horse, and suffered injuries which caused his death three hours later in the Ohio Valley Hospital. Death was attributed to shock and internal injuries.

Wednesday had been set aside as "Geers Day" at the state fair, and a great crowd had turned out to honor the premier reinsman, who for 50 years had been making history on the American trotting turf.

The first heat of the 1:14 trot ended by Geers taking third place. In the next heat, while he was attempting to pass Santa the Great, which was leading the field, Miladi Guy was seen to stumble.

A shudder went through the crowd as driver, horse and sulky went down. Other horses in the race were swung wide of the fallen horse and driver by inches as they thundered past.

AUTOMOBILE RACER HURLED TO SWIFT DEATH BY PLUNGING CAR

Dario Resta Nearly Decapitated on Brooklands Track, England, After Record.

HIS CAR SKIDDED.

Twenty Years As Racer Ended With Instant Death—Assistant Unhurt.

BROOKLANDS, England, Sept. 4.—(Canadian Press). — The speed king, Dario Resta, hero of countless automobile victories and hairbreadth escapes during his twenty years' career as a racer, met a terrible end yesterday on the Brooklands track, which he quite recently had described as "the easiest track in the world to race on."

Resta was driving his 160 horsepower grand prix Sunbeam with the intention of breaking the 50 kilometre record. The car had made a couple of circuits of the track, when suddenly it skidded for about three hundred yards, then turned sideways, dashed over a bank and crashed into an iron fence, nose dived into the ground on the far side of the fence, righted itself and burst into flames.

Resta was thrown out with terrific force and his head must have struck either one of the large wooden posts supporting the fence or some part of the car, for he was almost decapitated, and had other terrible injuries. He died instantly. His body was picked up a few yards from the car.

William Perkins, Resta's mechanician, was thrown clear of the car and was only slightly injured. He suffered from burns, however, and was taken to a hospital.

BOYER DIED A HERO.

ALTOONA, Pa., Sept. 4. — Joe Boyer, speed king of the automobile world, went to his death on the Altoona Speedway Monday a hero, it became known when the last words of the pilot were disclosed by the doctors who amputated his crushed legs.

Examination of the wrecked racing machine showed that a blowout caused the accident, and veteran racing men said it was a little short of miraculous that the car, speeding at 125 miles an hour, did not run down the bowl and crash into the hundreds of spectators massed in the infield. This speculation brought out the true story — the fact that Boyer deliberately sacrified himself to save others.

"I'm glad I saved them," the driver told those who carried him into the hospital. He was fully conscious and nodded his head as friends told the story of how Joe was pinned in his wrecked machine as it hung from the upper guard rail of the track.

Word of her husband's death reached Mrs. Boyer at Buffalo and she went direct to Detroit.

OBREGON SEES BETTER MEXICO

Retiring President of Mexico Predicts a Balanced Budget.

FAREWELL MESSAGE

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 4.—President Obregon retiring as chief executive of Mexico, to-night read a farewell message in which he declared that Mexico is emerging from its dark days, and that by practicing the economies lately initiated she will be able to balance her budget within two years.

President Obregon said his administration has reduced the army, retaining only trained soldiers and that the 12,000 able troops will be more valuable than 150,000 poorly equipped soldiers. The new army will be equipped with Thompson machine guns.

Relies on Airplanes

The President declared that he relies largely on the efficient air force to cover territory which is not reached by railroads.

The government, he said, plans a rehabilitation of the railroads by the addition of new rolling stock, and the re-establishment of the free ports.

He announced that there is every promise of a speedy recovery and return to Mexico of President-elect Calles, who is now in sanitarium in Berlin. He promised that President Calles will carry out the policies of the present administration.

FISET'S MAJORITY 1953.

RIMOUSKI, Que., Sept. 4.—(Canadian Press)—Complete returns in the Rimouski by-election totalled yesterday, give Major General Sir Eugene Fiset a majority of 1953 over Elizear Sasseville, his Conservative opponent.

GOOD SLEUTH

Hereafter there will be no jokes about correspondence school detectives in Clinton, Ia. It was Willis May (above), holder of diplomas in several mail order schools in detecting, who solved the mystery of the Brownfield double murder there after the police, sheriff, and state authorities had failed. He ran around with Earl Dannatt (below) for several months until he finally obtained a confession from Dannatt.

PEACE ABROAD AKIN TO HADES

Dr. Woods Hutchinson Says So and Thinks Europe Badly Off Mentally.

PRAISE FOR AUSTRIA.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—"Now that the war has been over some seven years——"

Dr. Woods Hutchinson, noted for public health work and medical war correspondence, who returned Tuesday from a three-year sojourn abroad, broke off, polished his gold-rimmed glasses meditatively, and went on:

"Now Europe's just as peaceful as a corner in Hades."

Dr. Hutchinson in 1917 was in the war-ridden regions from Ypres to Piave. Recently he re-visited those regions to learn the effects of peace. And the above is his conclusion, elaborated a bit in the following:

"I should say that Europe is very badly off mentally.

"The countries over there remind me of two patients who came into my hospital in California during the influenza epidemic. They were from the same neighborhood and blood enemies. In the middle of the night each discovered the identity of his bedneighbor. Morning found them both dead in the same bed.

"Not one of those countries could put up a fight that would last six weeks. But they keep on making faces at each other. America can't do any better by them than to sit on the fence with a large club in her hand bearing the dollar sign and let the boys that are good know they'll have their reward.

Austria Shows Pluck.

"Really a good word ought to be said for Austria. There is the city of Vienna harboring more than two-thirds of the population of the whole country. Think what that means! And she is picking up marvelously, plucky as the deuce and with her currency stable, even if it is so frightfully reduced in value."

As for France, he said:

"To borrow from Mr. Shaw, the best I can say for France is that she has no enemies, but is cordially disliked by most of her friends."

LAW ENFORCEMENT DIFFERS FROM LAW

What Is the Use of Having Law If We Do Not Abide By It.

By CHARLES P. STEWART.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Law and law enforcement are two different things.

American law, as law, is improving, according to Attorney-General Harlan F. Stone.

But is it enforced, respected?

The public thinks not, the Attorney-General admits.

Is the public right?

The Attorney-General is afraid so, at the present time at any rate, for he says "the actual administration of justice in these United States is in a period of decline which began before the war and was greatly accelerated by it."

Be it said, however, that the Attorney-General is not a pessimist. Having faith in the American bar and the American people, he believes we will pass soon into a period of improvement.

But why don't we do something now, with a view to improvement?

We do, says the Attorney-General, but not the right thing. We doctor symptoms, not the disease.

Suppose law enforcement goes wrong, through official incompetence, corruption or both.

There are causes for incompetence and corruption.

Do we remove the causes? No, we remove the officials; maybe punish them.

Or, if lawyers take a hand in attempting to reform, what's their method?

More law, more procedure—better perhaps.

But in either case—symptoms, not the disease, are treated.

* * *

"What is the disease?" I asked the Attorney-General.

"For one thing, politics," he answered.

"The prosecutor's job ought to be taken out of politics. Why should it be political, any more than a judge's?"

"Would you have prosecutors appointed?"

"Maybe not, but I'd make their terms longer, anyway—during good behavior, even."

The Attorney-General dwelt on the weaknesses of prosecutors' offices; showing how politics affects them—not so much money, but political influence. He pointed to their lack of system, to the laxness, slackness of their methods.

* * *

"But isn't politics just a reflection of public opinion, anyway?"

The Attorney-General didn't answer definitely.

But in a recent address before the American Bar Association, he said:

"It is axiomatic that a people, in the long run, will get the kind of justice they deserve." And: "It is a truism that law enforcement cannot rise above its ultimate source in popular respect for law."

The bar's standard needs improving, commented the Attorney-General.

"For a generation," he said in his American Bar Association speech, "we have progressively lowered the bar's standard through the increasing number of those entering the legal profession without sufficient training, without the background of liberal education, experience and associations which make for moral responsibility, as well as to develop the capacity for performing adequately the duties of the lawyer.

"Not," he added, "that I have anything against the poor boy who wants to enter the law. I was one myself. But the poor boy with such an ambition must prepare himself."

"Does this add to law enforcement difficulties?—among our laws, have we some we really don't want?—laws that can't be enforced, yet can't be repealed—laws that are broken even by many of those who helped to put them and who help to keep them on our statute books?"

"My job," answered the Attorney-General, "is to try to enforce the laws, not to criticize them."

Yet, the Attorney-General does criticize a little, at least by implication.

Thus:

"The extension of Government activities into new fields has brought about devices in the supposed interest of expeditious law enforcement without inconvenient interference by the courts, by conferring more or less arbitrary powers on administrative officials, constantly tending to narrow the common law rights and privileges of the citizen.

"We will do well to remember that the most previous inheritance of the new world from the old is embodied in those fundamental rights and personal liberty under the law, which have found their true expression here in our bill of rights and the first ten amendments to our constitution."

BRITISH TRADES COUNCIL GIVES WIDER CONTROL

Power Invested In Central Organization In Relation To Individual Unions.

IMPORTANT CHANGE.

Council Can Go To Any Length Without Consulting Rank and File.

LONDON, Sept. 4. — (Canadian Press).—The significance of the decision of the British Trade Union Congress at Hull Tuesday to extend the powers of the general council by giving it greater control over individual unions in the case of industrial disputes and additional power to intervene in disputes is being much commented on. The decision is regarded as investing the general council, whose membership numbers 32, with powers not given to any single body of men since the labor movement was launched a century ago.

The proposal to increase the council's powers was first made three years ago, but it was then rejected by a majority of three to one.

The new rule does not merely permit the council to take the initiative in any industrial dispute, whether it is requested to interfere or not, but authorizes it to render the union or unions involved in the dispute all moral and material support possible.

A. J. Cook, general secretary of the Miners' Federation, who seconded the resolution Monday, granting the council the extension of power, in an interview here yesterday, said the council can go any length without calling for a ballot or consulting the rank and file of the workers chiefly concerned in a dispute, and can even call a general strike at any time and it can impose levies on all the unions for running any strike it likes.

Benn Tillett, Labor M.P. for North Salford, however, takes a less drastic view of the resolution. He expresses the opinion that individual members of the unions will be able to check the power of the council.

Lieutenant-Commander J. M. Kenworthy, Liberal M.P. for the Central Division of Kingston-Upon-Hull, who is attending the Trades Congress as a guest, says with reference to the council's powers that the united front presented by the trade unions is now the greatest spectre the employers of Great Britain have ever confronted.

NEWS FROM MADOC.

New Teachers in the Town and District—Personals.

MADOC, September 4. — Labor Day in Madoc passed off very quietly, with most people away on motor trips, and others putting in a real labor day with hard work at home, doing the numberless odd jobs that had been accumulating all summer, waiting for the spare hour.

The schools opened on Tuesday with a very fair attendance. Two new teachers have taken their places on the High School staff, Miss Collop and Miss Wilson. As Mr. Marcellus is unable as yet to resume his duties Miss Travers is substituting as principal. Only one new teacher (Miss Harris) was added to the public school.

Mr. Walter Tucker of Ottawa is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Tucker.

Mr. and Mrs. James Smellie of Hamomndsport, N. Y., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Casement.

Miss Nellie Phillips and Miss Echo Jarvis left for Niagara Falls, N.Y., where they will enter the Memorial Hospital as nurses-in-training.

Mr. F. Burt, of the Dominion Bank has returned to town after a month in Marmora, where he was acting as manager.

Mr. and Mrs. Springham and two children, and Miss Pearl Crawford, spent the holiday at the Sand Banks.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker Embury are atending the National Exhibition at Toronto.

Quite a number of cars well loaded with camping outfits, have been passing through town on the way north, for duck shooting. Very little shooting is reported from Moira Lake on the holiday, but several people were very successful in capturing lunge.

Among those who had holiday luck with the maskinonge was Miss Jennie Wright, who is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Wright.

Miss Kathleen Burns has returned to North Bay to take up her duties as teacher.

Miss Mary Foote is teaching at Burris' school this year.

Mr. Carl Whytock, Dr. Third, of Kingston, Dr. A. Whytock of St. Catharines, Dr. H. Wright of Trenton, Messrs. Percy Nayler, C. Moon, and J. Crawford, spent the week-end at Bon Echo.

REPORTS TO THE CITY COUNCIL

Railways and Parks Committee.

The Railways and Parks Committee reported as follows:

We recommend that the City Engineer be instructed to construct a concrete sidewalk diagonally across the north-east corner of the Riverside Park property from Hunter Street to Burnham Street.

We recommend that the City Engineer be requested to make an estimate of the most of the construction of a toboggan slide at the Riverside Park.

We recommend that the letter from Walter J. Oke and F. E. Convery, saying that they are no longer connected with the Peterboro Baseball Association be received.

We recommend that the City Solicitor be instructed to write to the Dickson Company and tell them that a strip of land which is included in the Riverside Park property, and which they conveyed to the city, has been claimed by the Burnham Estate, and that it appears that they had not a paper title to it and the city is now called on to pay two hundred and fifty dollars ($250) for it to get a clear paper title, and ask them if they will refund this amount to the city.

We recommend that the Peterboro Rangers Band, Male Voice Choir, Symphony Orchestra, and the Caledonian Pipe Band be informed that the Council has been pleased with the excellent concerts they gave in the park in the past season, and that the Salvation Army Band be thanked for the concert they gave in the park on a Sunday evening.

W. H. Henry's Report.

The city representatives to the annual meeting of the Ontario Municipal Associaton held in Toronto on 27th August, beg leave to report as follows:

The attendance at the meeting was a representative one delegates being present from municipalities from Ottawa to Windsor and north as far as Cobalt. The delegates were welcomed by His Worship W. W. Hiltz, Mayor of Toronto.

The president in his address referred to a number of subjects, including unemployment and the preparation of the voters' lists for Legislative elections.

A number of interesting papers were read.

Mr. K. W. McKay, of St. Thomas, in a paper on "Equalisation of Assessments,' advocated the appointment of a Provincial Inspector of Taxation, and said that if municipalities were not compelled to carry out the law requiring property to be assessed at its actual value, they should be given the option of fixing a percentage at which it would be assessed.

Mr. W H Nugent, of Belleville, in a paper on "Powers of Taxation," advocated the segregation of the interests to be taxed by Dominion, Provincial, and muncipal bodies, so that the same interests would not be taxed by more than one body.

Mr. Glendenning, of Niagara Falls, read a paper on "The Preparation of Part 3 of the Voters' Lists," and pointed out reasons why the municipalities should not be at this expense.

Mr. A. K. Bunnell, of Brantford, read a paper on "Uniform Municipal Accounting," and advocated changes in the methods of accounting so that comparisons between the financial affairs of the different municipalities could be more readily made.

Mr. W. B. Doherty of St. Thomas outlned the legislation affecting municipalities passed at the last session of the Ontario Legislature, and Mr. C. R. Tuson, of Windsor, gave an address on "Traffic and Safety Problems." He advocated a "stop system" by which motor cars would be compelled to stop before entering on busy streets from a cross street, the prohibition of left hand turns at busy intersections, safety zones for pedestrians at car stops, prohibition of parking on busy streets, the education of children in the school regarding safety methods, and the utilisation of larger school boys as traffic officers at crossings near schools at times when children are going to and coming from schools.

Mr. G. D. Hastings, of Guelph, read a paper on "City Manager Form of Government." In Guelph it is the duty of the City Manager to recommend from time to time to the various committees of the Council such measures as he may deem necessary or expedient and to keep the committees advised as to the financial and other needs of the corporation and as to all work or matters pertaining to the work of the various committees. Guelph has eighteen aldermen which he considered too many and he thought that there should be no committees, but a Board of Control that would meet once a week. He said that the manager system caused better co-operaton between the departments. Niagara Falls also has a city manager. In Niagara Falls, they laid their pavements by day labour, and had laid asphalt pavements without concrete base on streets which had a deep macadam surface.

There were other papers and discussions on subjects of a more or less technical nature regarding assessing and other municipal work.

A large number of resolutions were passed, a number of them dealing with proposed amendments of a technical nature to the municipal law. Among the resolutions passed were the following:

Asking Councils to give more definite consideration to town planning and asking the Legislature to give municipalities further town planning powers; asking that the law be amended to provide that the responsibility for the maintenance of indigent immigrants residing in Canada less than twelve months should be borne by the Dominion Government; that the law be amended so that the exemption of church land should not apply to land detached from a place of worshp or land used for entertainment or recreation purposes; that the Medical Officer of Health should hold office at the pleasure of the Council; referring the subject of the period of residence to make a municipality liable for the maintenance of patients under the hospitals and other Acts to the Executive Committee for consideration; asking for the standardisation and erection of danger signals at railway crossings; that a committee confer with the Minister of Highways in reference to a publicity campaign to increase tourist traffic; that the Legislature be asked to re-enact the Manhood Suffrage Registration Act and do away with the necessity of preparing part 3 of the voters' list; the appointment of a committee regarding municipal accounting; that the law be amended so that no order be made under the Children's Protection Act to make a municipality liable for the maintenance of a child until the municipality had received ten days' notice in writing and permitting the municipality to be represented at the hearing; to permit income taxes to be collected in the year in which the assessment is made; that railways carrying express, telephone, or telegraph business shall be liable for business taxes on such business; that the Legislature consider the advisability of appointing a Provincial Inspector of Assessment and other resolutions asking for amendments to the Assessment Act.

The resolutions asking for amendments to the law are to be brought before the Government by the Executive Committee.

A copy of the resolutions is attached to this report.

Ald. Stocker's Report.

At your request Ald. McIntyre and myself attended the Fire Chief's Convention held in Buffalo on August 19th, 20th, 21st, 22nd and 23rd.

We left Peterborough early Tuesday morning, August 19th, arriving at Buffalo at noon. After lunch we registered at headquarters and attended the afternoon meeting. The chief topic of discussion was the co-operation of insurance companies and citizens with the Fire Department, and over insurance.

We were very much interested in the display of fire fighting equipment held in the Buffalo auditorium. We made several visits to this exhibit and found it very interesting as well as profitable. We looked over all kinds of equipment and the information we gained we hope will be of some benefit to the city at some future time.

We left Buffalo Thursday afternoon and Chief James of Hamilton, Ontario gave us permission to look over the Hamilton equipment and to have anything demonstrated to us that we desired. We looked over their new pumper and it was tested to our satisfaction. Your delegates appreciated very much the kindness of Chief James and his able staff.

The writer also looked over the parks in Buffalo, Hamilton and Toronto and I hope to suggest some of the ideas I obtained to our local Parks committee in the near future.

The Board of Works reported as follows:—Your Board has a conference with members of the Council of the Township of North Monaghan at which the Township's representatives agreed that the Township would pay the City Four Hundred Dollars ($400.) for work which the City had done on Lansdowne street between Park and Lock streets. It was also arranged that the Township, would temporarily repair the Monaghan Road south from Charlotte street and that the city would pay half of the cost.

We recommned that these arrangements be confirmed.

We recommend that these arrange North Monaghan be asked to repair Lansdowne street from Lock street east and that the city pay half of the cost.

The Reeve of Douro Township met your Board at a meeting on August 25th last and it was arranged that the City Engineer would meet the Township Road Superintendent the next morning and look over Armour Road north from Smith street and that repairs to the road be made.

We recommend that the Chairman of this Board and the City Engineer be authorized to purchase a car of steam coal.

Your Board received from the City Engineer a copy of a letter he had received from Messrs. Peck, Kerr & McElderry on behalf of the Quaker Oats Company noting that gravel had been placed on Lot 45, Plan 42, and that storm water was drained across the lot, and asking for an explanation.

We recommend that the Clerk reply to Messrs. Peck, Kerr & McElderry that the drain was laid there many years ago when it was thought that Argyle street extended to the river and that the council would be pleased to receive a concession from the Quaker Oats Company to main tain the drain there, and also that the gravel which had been placed there under the same misconception, would be removed.

We recommend that an application from W. J. Hooper that Rubdige street south of McDonnell street be repaired be referred to the City Engineer.

Your Board received a letter through the City Engineer from A. McNab, Agent of the Canadian National Railways, in reference to the vibration caused by trains passing along Bethune street, saying that it was the intention to relay the road bed with one hundred pound steel.

We recommend that the City Engineer be authorized to move the rear part of the old Rapid Tool building to the City yard.

We recommend that notice be given of the intention of the Council to construct concrete sidewalks as local improvements under section 9 of The Local Improvement Act on Dublin street, south side from Harvey street to Waterford street; on Waterford street, west side, from Dublin street to London street; on the Monaghan Road, west side, from Walkerfield Avenue to Homewood Avenue; on Walkerfield Avenue, south side, from the Monaghan Road to a point 100 feet west; on Reid street, east side from Smith street to Stewart street, and on Reid street, east side, from Edinburgh street to Smith street.

We recommend that the City Engineer be authorized to fix up the boulevard on George street at the King Edward Park.

UNFAIR TREATMENT.

Down in Port Hope there is trouble between the Town Council and Chief of Police John Brown, a former member of the Peterborough Police Department.

For some reason or other, not publicly stated, the Council has asked for the resignation of Chief Brown.

The latter does not question the legality of this action—at least, for the present—but he does maintain that he is entitled to be informed by the Council of the charges against him, or of the reasons that have led to a demand for his resignation.

The town fathers have flatly refused to give any explanation.

Looking at the question from this distance, Chief Brown seems to be the victim of decidedly unfair treatment.

He is a police officer of many years of experience, and his record entitles him to consideration.

Moreover, to demand the resignation of the Chief without a public statement of the reasons for such action is to prejudice his chances of future employment in police work.

He is given no opportunity to refute the charges against him—in fact, he is left in the dark as to the basis upon which the Council has developed its case.

In common fairness to Chief Brown and in the public interest generally, the particulars should be published.

THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR.

The Peterborough Industrial Exhibition Board has been fortunate in securing the attendance of Col. His Honour Henry Cockshutt, the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, to formally declare Peterborough's big Fair open a week from today.

Col. Cockshutt has proved himself one of the most capable and conscientious Lieutenant-Governors in the history of the Province.

He has evidently been inspired by the desire to make his term of office mean something to the people of Ontario, and he has been singularly successful in reaching that ideal.

No occupant of Government House has done more to bring about harmony and a better understanding among the various interests and classes in the community than the gentleman who honours Peterborough by pressing the button at the Exhibition next week.

At Government House he has brought together representatives of all sections of Ontario and of almost every occupation in order that they might meet together in a social way, learn something of one another's problems, hear something about the other fellow's views and reach a closer entente with their fellow-citizens.

The old clamour against Government House and its cost has ceased—the present Lieutenant-Governor has demonstrated that his office can be made of real and important service to the Province.

His visit to the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition will be looked forward to with a great deal of interest, and he should receive a most cordial reception from the people of Peterborough and the district.

The Exhibition will be honoured by his attend-

SCHOOL ACCOMMODATION.

Once more the question of additional High School accommodation is brought forcibly to public attention by the announcement from Principal Kenner of the Collegiate Institute that 524 pupils presented themselves for admission on Tuesday, and that a number of county pupils were rejected because there was no room for them.

These pupils live just outside the city limits, and it is most unfortunate that they should have to be deprived of a chance of continuing their education.

And the present outlook is that unless more accommodation is provided it will be necessary to deny admission to a number of city pupils.

That is a most serious state of affairs—it has been developing for a number of years and it demands action on the part of the Board of Education.

The board seems unable to come to an unanimous conclusion as to whether a combination Technical and Collegiate Institute should be built or the present building should be enlarged to provide the increased Collegiate Institute accommodation required.

In the meanwhile the attendance has been increasing to such an extent as to make it impossible for county pupils to enter at all and to render it likely that some city pupils will also be unable to find accommodation.

The Building Committee has been authorized to prepare specifications and obtain tenders for building a combination school, and once those details have been arrived at the question should be taken up with the City Council without delay.

Procrastination in this matter is likely to prove a very serious affair.

WHAT'S COMING NEXT?

Radical changes in airplane designs are expected to result from the experiments of Professor Bjerknes, the Norwegian. Before the meeting of the British Association for Advancement of Science, he demonstrates his new style of airplane.

It has whirling cylinders instead of wings.

These cylinders, shaped like tin cans, revolve swiftly. The technical explanation of how they work is complicated.

Man gets his new ideas by studying and adapting things that already exist in nature. When man wanted to fly, he naturally started out with the idea that his airplane must have wings like a bird or insect. The plane you see soaring overhead looks as if it were a huge dragon fly or hawk.

Similarly, the first railroad passenger cars looked like stagecoaches. The first autos looked like horse-drawn buggies. The first typewriter keyboard was a copy of a piano's, even to black and white keys in a row.

Hard to shake off the precedent of the past. Old ideas cling and modify new ideas. It is as if man, venturing into the new, fears totally to discard the old; he clings to the old as a life preserver.

But as the new ideas develop, especially new inventions, the old is gradually shaken off. The time may be ripe for the airplane to cease looking like a bird or insect. Who knows?—the final perfection of the airplane may look like a spider, a rat or a rubber ball.

WELCOMING THE PREMIER.

In a photograph published of Premier King's party inspecting the lift locks at Peterborough there is a human touch that was quite unintentional, says the London Advertiser.

As one looks over the group walking toward the locks, chief interest centres for the moment on the Premier, but it does not remain there, nor yet on the figure of Deputy Speaker Gordon, who is shown waving his hand in an attitude of explanation; nor yet on the other political lights in the group.

The real picture is that of a small boy, bare-footed, no hat, his braces in evidence over the framework of a collarless shirt, but with all attention turned toward the Premier. This youthful admirer, although not recognized in the party, nor named as being among those present, is in reality the most striking figure in the group.

The exploits of the small boy are many. Whenever there is anything going on there he is in the midst of it. Dressed for the occasion? Yes, always. Bare feet, one pair of trousers and one shirt, he is ready to greet the circus, crawl under the tent, monopolize the knot holes at the ball park or walk with the official parties greeting Premiers or potentates. The small boy—what a dull place the world would be without him.

OBSTACLES TO DISARMAMENT.

To the detached dweller on this peaceful Continent, the cure for swollen armaments in Europe looks very simple. As things stand, "A" is arming to defend itself against "B," and "B" is arming to defend itself against "A." Occasionally, there is a "C" and a "D" brought into the problem, but the general effect is the same. The nations of Europe, in a word, are arming to defend themselves against each other.

Obviously, then, the amount of armament needed by "A" depends upon the amount which "B" thinks it needs. If we represent the armament which each of them deems necessary by 100, they would be in the same position relatively toward each other if that amount were reduced by both of them to 50—or to 25. So why not reduce and save money? It looks like a simple problem in arithmetic.

* * * *

But, unfortunately, it is not so simple as all that. Let us start at home and take the British Empire. The British Empire has commitments all over the world which call for a certain measure of military and naval readiness. In fact, at the present time, the British Empire has almost no armaments directed at Europe at all. There is no Continental Navy which could take the sea against us. And we never have maintained a Continental army. When Germany and France were confronting each other with conscript armies numbered by the million, Britain had nothing but the "Old Contemptibles" to put against them. France had to hold the line for a year while Britain was getting ready to fight.

Now it would be very difficult for Great Britain to shave down her armaments needed for the defence of her political and trade interests abroad. Could she reduce her army in India? Would it be safe to have no army available for Egypt and the Soudan? Only if she had grown careless about keeping her Empire. At the present moment, she is sending warships to Shanghai; and no one—not even the pacifists—would suggest that she should leave the immense British interests up the Yangtse to be destroyed for lack of a little display of force. In fact, few white interests in Asia would be worth an hour's purchase if the British Navy were withdrawn. A massacre of missionaries would be one of the first fruits of so cowardly a policy.

But, of course, the fact that Great Britain has a navy reacts upon all other maritime nations. The United States feels that she must meet it. Japan wants to be strong enough to prevent dictation to her—as China and India are dictated to—in her own waters. France must have warships enough to keep open the connection with her African Empire. Italy must confront France. And so it goes. The only reductions that can be made are in capital ships; but—no matter how far Great Britain might be willing to go along this line—the other nations would never be willing to give the British that absolute dominance at sea which their cruiser squadron, all of it necessary for world patrol work, would then assure them.

* * * *

Take again, the military position of France. It is fashionable in some circles to accuse the French of "Imperialism" because they have a large and well-equipped army and have sought allies among the smaller nations. But what is France to do? It is by no means merely a question of Germany. It is not even primarily the German threat which keeps France en vidette. France is bound, for instance, to defend Poland. If France were to permit Russia to overrun Poland, two other things would happen at once—Rumania would be frightened into accepting Russian dictation, and Czecho-Slovakia would greatly fear her fate sandwiched between a "blooded" Russia and a hostile Germany. If that were the position today, the London agreement would never pass the Reichstag. Germany and Russia would feel strong enough to fight.

France simply must maintain a military supremacy in Europe as assured as the British naval supremacy in the Eastern Hemisphere. She has no other choice. She must do it by keeping up her army and subsidizing allies. But this unavoidable fact reacts on other nations. Italy must maintain an army to make sure that her rights will never be neglected. Great Britain is bound to regard French naval activity with a more anxious eye because France has a paramount military position as well—to say nothing of aircraft.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The trouble seems to be that the Board of Education only realizes at the beginning of each term that the Collegiate Institute is overcrowded.

Peterborough's big Exhibition next week should, with favourable weather, break all previous attendance records.

The Prince of Wales will be unable to visit Belleville, thereby losing a good chance for a rest.

Peterborough is not the only city suffering from lack of Collegiate Institute accommodation. Over 500 students have applied for admission at Belleville, and Principal McLawrin doesn't know what he is going to do with them all.

A THOUGHT

LEARN SELF-CONTROL.

Learn self-control.

You can not hope to become a successful business man until you have developed the ability to control yourself.

When you allow another individual to make you angry, so angry that you lose your head—or lose control of yourself—you are permitting that person to dominate you and drag you down.

If you have followed the newspaper stories of great legal battles you will realize that one of the first things a really shrewd lawyer does when he starts to examine a witness is to cause the witness to lose his temper. He knows that when the witness becomes thoroughly angry he will lose control of himself and tell things that he probably would not divulge had he remained master of his emotions.

In order to control conditions you must first control yourself. Be slow to anger, slow to express unpleasant opinions about others you do not happen to like. Don't let an impatient or unreasonable customer ruffle you up. Keep calm and serve her with a smile on your face, even her attitude justifies rebuff from you.

Self-control is constructive. It helps you build character, success, happiness. Lack of self-control is destructive.

RELIANCE

Not to the swift, the race;
Not to the strong, the fight;
Not to the righteous, perfect grace;
Not to the wise, the light.

But often faltering feet
Come surest to the goal;
And they who walk in darkness meet
The sunrise of the soul.

A thousand times by night
The Syrian hosts have died;
A thousand times the vanquished right,
Hath risen, glorified.

The truth the wise man sought
Was spoken by a child;
The alabaster box was brought,
In trembling hands defiled.

Not from the torch, the gleam
Not from the stars above;
Not from my heart life's crystal stream
But from the depths of Love
—Henry Van Dyke

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, September 4.—There is no sign of improvement in the cattle business at the Union Stock Yards yesterday. The right kind of butchers are not coming forward and in the poor ill-bred and unfinished kind the competition is too strong for anything but losing prices to be received. The salvation in the market is the buying for export. Export bulls were picked up from $3.00 to $4.00 a cwt. for the Antwerp market.

Packers' buyers did not appear to be much concerned as to whether they bought or not and had to be coaxed to look over the bunches of butchers. Frank Hunnisett and Chas. Luness candidly admitted that the kind of stuff their trade demanded was hard to get even at firm prices. The specialists are finding no difficulty in buying all the stockers feeders required and are bidding low on account of the poor beef demand.

John O'Keefe bought a string of 600-pound Western steers at 33.90 a cwt. and is sending them to Glencoe.

A few choice butcher steers sold at $6.75 a cwt., but real good handyweights were $6.25 and good mediums $5.50 to $5.75. Common butchers sold in quantity at $4.40. Butcher cows were about steady. Good butcher cows were $4.00 to $4.25 and common cows $2.75 a cwt. The market was extremely dragging during the morning and a large carryover is again assured.

Calves remain a bright spot in the market, with choice tops selling at 11 cents. Good calves are around 10 cents, and good mediums 8 to 9 cents. Common calves sell from 6 to 7 cents, and grassers 3 1-2 to 4 1-2 cent. F. Williams from Stouffville, sold three 300-pound calves at 10 cents a pound.

Fresh lambs are about 12 1-2 cents for ewes, but this is no better than the 12 cents paid on Tuesday for those which stood over two days. A small package of lambs made 13 cents, and the market may be considered 25 cents a cwt. higher.

Yearlings sold at $8.50 and medium sheep $5.50 to $6.00.

With many more hogs coming, the packers lowered the f.o.b. price yesterday to $9.50 a cwt., and are talking of making the week-end quotation $9.25 a cwt. f.o.b.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Sept. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Export trade in grain here has been more active of late and a fairly large business has resulted with sales of odd lots of Canadian spring wheat and barley to the United Kingdom. In the domestic market there was some demand from exporters for wheat and sales of No. 2 northern were made at 14 1-4 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg October option. Demand from local buyers for carlots of oats on spot was better and a moderate business was done.

The export for flour has been much more active of late with demand mainly from continental buyers but trade with the United Kingdom is reported quiet. Movement for domestic consumption shows little improvement, but the tone of the market is steady with prices unchanged. There were no new developments in the market for winter wheat grades and the market for white corn flour remains firm under a steady demand.

A fair business is passing in millfeed but the trade in standard grades of rolled oats was somewhat limited.

A firm feeling prevails in baled hay with demand good and prices fully maintained.

A fair business is passing in all grades of eggs with the market firm and prices unchanged. There is however no betterment in the export trade for fall shipment, prices being too high for the English dealers.

The butter market is without change, prices being steady with only a small volume of business passing. There was some business in cheese reported over the cable in western firsts at 92 shillings per hundredweight and in western and eastern seconds at 87 shillings six pence per hundredweight, but the demand is not general. On the whole the market is quiet.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, September 4 (Canadian Press). — Wheat rallied sharply yesterday on reports of heavy export business with France, Germany and Italy. Offerings which were readily absorbed by strong commission houses and seaboard interests who were removing hedges, were largely responsible for the upturn.

Wheat closed 1 to 1 3-4 cents higher, September $1.24 3-8 to $1.24 1-2 and December $1.29 3-8 to $1.29 1-2.

Corn advanced 1 to 1 1-2 cents.

Oats were unchanged to 1-4 cent up.

Provisions 7 1-2 to 17 1-2 cents lower.

Reports of more favourable weather for harvesting in Canada where the new crop already is under way and an easier tone in Liverpool cables gave wheat a downward slant at the start and resulted in some persistent selling. However, reports of much damage to Argentina's new wheat crop ,due to the continued drought and aggressive buying here by exporters, changed the trend of the market and prices shot upward, all deliveries showing substantial gains at the finish.

Estimates on export business were more than one million bushels in all positions, while Tuesday's sales were said to be as much as five million bushels.

CLOSING SEASON AT STONEY LAKE

The School Bell Brings a Number of Cottagers Home.

PERSONALS

STONEY LAKE, Sept. 4.—During the past week a number of cottages closed for the season, lured away from the "bright waters and happy land" by the approaching ringing of the school bell. The fine warm weather of the last ten days of August made people loath to leave, and many bored the Labor Day rush and remained for the week-end. The cottages were later than usual opening and they are closing later. One seldom sees so many cottages open at the first of September as this year. Those who are free agents and can remain through September are to be envied, as everyone who has stayed through the month is enthusiastic about it and declares it to be the best time of all for enjoyment on the lake.

Visitors who take the ever-popular round trip on the steamers rave about the beauty of the scenery and the constant variety; it has been compared to the Muskoka Lakes and has often been called a miniature Thousand Islands. One rounds a point and there perched in a shaded nook is a cosy cottage with its broad screened verandah with hammocks, cosy chairs, etc., all to tempt the tired body to rest in its depths and enjoy a good story. These scenes are numerous and one never tires of the wonders and beauties of what may well be called a great summer playground.

This wet season has meant that the trees are still green and flowers living. Last year at this time, after a very hot, dry season, many of the trees were practically withered up and the scrub oaks were as brown as the baked soil on which they grew.

The flower garden at "Monplaisir," the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Walter of Montreal, is at its best and is a perfect riot of colorful bloom. Passers-by on the steamer exclaim over the beauty of the place.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon K. Fraser have purchased a motor boat which will carry about a dozen passengers and which is named the "Baby Wanderer." It is one of the handsomest motor boats on the lake.

Mr. J. O. McCarthy of Toronto has closed his cottage on "Emerald Isle" for the season.

Mr. Eric Moore of Toronto is visiting Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Moore at "Star Cottage," near Mount Julian.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sheehy and family of Peterborough closed "Lyrefoune" for the season last week.

Mrs. Russell of Toronto has closed "Kosy Island" for the season.

Mr. Arthur L. Piper of Toronto spent the week-end with his family at "Kimo."

Miss Inez Stewart of Hamilton, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Crawford at Belleview, returned home last week.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Colville of Toronto have closed their cottage near McCracken's for the season.

Mrs. C. R. May (nee Elsie Graham) of Cleveland spent the week-end with friends on the lake.

Mr. and Mrs. John Davidson have closed "Grand View" cottage at Crowe's Landing and returned to Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Lawlor of Norwood have closed "Interlaken" for the season.

Mr. Keith G. Lech, who spent the past month at Mount Julian, has returned to Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. George G. Hendren and family closed "Rockridge" on Monday and returned to Lakefield.

Dr. and Mrs. Stuart E. Fraser of Chicago and Dr. Alex. Fraser of Lakefield are spending a few days at Dr. J. R. Fraser's cottage at Burleigh Falls.

Dr. and Mrs. Perry Goldsmith of Toronto have closed "Forest Nook" and returned to Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Logan Craig have closed their cottage at Crowe's Landing and returned to their home at Grand Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. E. LaCrawford and children of Toronto closed "Belleview" last week and returned to Toronto.

Mr. Wilfred Adams, B.A., who spent the summer at Kawartha Park, left last week to resume his position on the staff of the Aurora High School.

Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Pond have closed "La Hinda" during the past week and returned to their home in Pittsburgh.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Pierdon and family of Toronto have closed their cottage at Kawartha Park and returned home.

Mr. Fred. Dumble of Peterborough is spending a few days at his cottage near Gilchrist's Bay.

TRY MAGNESIA FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

It Neutralizes Stomach Acidity, Prevents Food Fermentation, Sour Gassy, Stomach and Acid Indigestion.

Doubtless if you are a sufferer from indigestion you have already tried pepsin, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and you know that these things will not cure your trouble—in some cases do not even give relief.

But before giving up hope and deciding you are a chronic dyspeptic just try the effect of a little Bisurated Magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate or milk, but the pure Bisurated Magnesia, which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powdered or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or two compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach, which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat.

You will find that provided you take a little Bisurated Magnesia immediately after a meal you can eat almost anything and enjoy it without any danger of pain or discomfort to follow and moreover, the continued use of the bisurated magnesia cannot injure the stomach in any way so long as there are any symptoms of acid indigestion.

HERCULES.

Chicago needs and takes so much water that the Great Lakes are being lowered to a level dangerous to the shipping prosperity of other ports. Cities are wrangling about it. Montreal's consulting engineer is enthused about the proposal to dam Canadian rivers so as to move a watershed that drains 20,000 square miles. The water would be shifted to flow into the Great Lakes through Lake Superior, at the rate of 20,000 cubic feet a second.

Hercules was a weakling. Just ponder this engineering job, showing what is possible by the pooling of men's power.

WOOLWORTH.

The Woolworth 5-and-10-cent stores expect to sell 220 million dollars worth of goods this year, according to their vice-president. That means over two billion dimes tinkling into the cash registers. Woolworth little dreamed of such possibilities when he started his first "notion store" on a small scale.

In the 5-and-10-cent store, merchandising has reached its highest development. Gradually the system will expand to include all forms of retail business. Observe the many chain stores already.

A LUNATIC AT LARGE.

The indistinct line between sanity and insanity is always interesting to search for, but the craziest person on earth is the chronic grouch.

These indifferent individuals who refuse to recognize the rights or the feelings of others are more than "boghouse"—they are brainless.

When mental deficients are passed upon as crazy, we place them in an insane asylum or private institution. In the public institution, they are usually there for keeps. But the grouch, we let run wild.

The madman, it is said, finds pleasure in his insane ideas, but why in the world does a grouch want to live?

The grouch avoids his neighbour because he says his neighbour does not make him happy: Then the grouch gets lonely and in this miserable state of loneliness, he hates everybody, including himself.

A man who suffers from gout in the head and a grouch in the heart is a lunatic at large.

Pleasant Social Eve in Fairmount Home Recently.

OTHER NEWS

MILLBROOK, Sept. 4.—A very pleasant social event took place on Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Sanderson, Fairmount, when the members of the Scott's Corners Community Club, and of the Christian Endeavor Society of Springville Presbyterian Church gathered in honor of a fellow-member, Miss Janet Sanderson, the eldest daughter of the house, whose marriage to Mr. J. H. Peel, of Port Perry, was soemnized in Springville church the following Thursday, at 2.30 p.m., Rev. G. I. Graw officiating.

Between fifty and sixty young people were present, and the large lawns of Mr. Sanderson's home presented a picture of youth and good spirits as games of various kinds were indulged in, bright faces and happy laughter giving evidence of the enjoyment which the occasion afforded.

Soon after adjournment to the house had taken place the bride-to-be was the recipient of some handsome gifts, the Community Club of Scott's Corners making their presentation first, accompanied by the following address:

Miss Janet Sanderson,
Fairmount.

Dear Janet,

We, the members of the Scott's Corners' Community Club, wish to show our appreciation of the interest, and active part, you have taken in the Club.

On hearing that you were soon to depart from our midst we felt that we could not let you leave without some token of our esteem. In conclusion, we wish you much joy, prosperity, and happiness in your new home and we would ask you to accept this library table as a small remembrance of us, the Scott's Corners' Community Club.

Signed on behalf of the Club,
W. SEYMOUR, President.
DAISY MURRAY, Secretary.
August 25th, 1924.

The address which accompanied the gift from the Endeavor Society was then read:

Springville, Ont.,
August 25th, 1924.

To Miss Janet Sanderson.

Dear Janet,—We have met here this evening to spend a social hour together in your honor. We, the young people of Springville congregation, regret losing you very much; however, our loss is another's gain.

Your friendship, co-operation, and readiness to assist has been appreciated by us all. You have most certainly been a great help, both socially and spiritually.

You are not going very far away, and we hope you will often come back and visit us. We can assure you of a hearty welcome at any time.

Each and all wish you health, happiness, and every success in your new home.

Please accept this parlour table and vase as a slight token of our appreciation.

Signed on behalf of the young people of the Springville congregation,

HELEN WHITTINGTON,
PEARL BOWLES,
MARIAN CLARKE.

The warm gratitude which Miss Sanderson felt for the kindness expressed in this tangible way by those who had been her companions in both church and community activities was voiced in a few well-chosen words, and the cordial invitation to the guests to visit her in her new home was recognized by all as being no mere form of words, but meant to be acted upon as soon as opportunity would permit.

A dainty supper was served and the remaining hours of the evening passed rapidly before the guests, with many personal expressions of good will, and good wishes, left for their respective homes.

Had Corn Roast.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. McGill extended the hospitality of their summer home at Nurse's Island, Rice Lake, on Monday evening, when thirty guests accepted the invitation to be present for a "corn roast," and a jolly social time was enjoyed together.

Abundant provision was made to satisfy the demands of the "inner man", and the appetites of the guests evidently were in the best of condition since one hundred and fifty cobs of corn and one hundred "hot dogs" were disposed of promptly.

Both round and square dances added to the pleasure of the evening, violin music being furnished by Mr. Harold Moncrief, while Mr. Nurse efficiently fulfilled the duties of "floor manager", calling off in the most approved manner when the more old-fashioned form of "tripping the light fantastic" was engaging the attention of the guests.

Altogether it was one of the most delightful evenings which the social occasion of the season has afforded. Among those present were:

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Ball, Millbrok; Mr. Fred and Miss Ethel Perrin, Mr. Fred and Miss Mary Wood, Mr. Roy and Miss Whittington, Misses Edna and Coral Huggins, Miss Clover Finney, Mr. James Wood, Misses May and Beryl Wood, Mr. Harold and Miss L. Nurse, Misses Bernice and Florence Barnard, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Paul, Miss Mildred Paul, Mr. and Mrs. Hardold Moncrief, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Moncrief, Mr. Nurse and family, Miss Jean Pue, Messrs. Robt. Hancock, John Hancock and Walter Jacob, of Port Hope.

Funeral of Mrs. Allen Cook —Fenian Raid Recalled.

NEWS BRIEFS

COBOURG, Sept. 4.—It is interesting to note that the exodus to the Canadian National exhibition in Toronto is large from this locality as well as all other parts of Ontario. The railroads possibly are handling more passenger traffic on account of the detours in the Provincial Highway between Cobourg and Port Hope and between Oshawa and Bowmanville. In the matter of the first detour, the Dale road is said to be in fairly good shape, but the lakeshore one not so good.

Death of Mrs. Allan Cook.

Rev. A. M. Irwin of Whitby assisted Rev. C. W. Demille in the funeral service held for the late Mrs. Allan Cook, which was held on Saturday. Mrs. Cook passed away at the home of her son-in-law, Mr. E. E. Cauker. She had been in poor health for some time and was a faithful member of the King street Methodist Church at Oshawa. Three daughters, Mrs. Cawker and Mrs. Proctor of Oshawa and Mrs. Wilson of Gormley survive their mother.

Fenian Raid Times Recalled.

The drill shed at Orono was destroyed by fire a short time ago and its destruction brought back interesting reminiscences to old residents. Following the excitement of the Fenian Raid, the drill shed was erected in 1866. A picked company of the best manhood of the district was organized at the time with the late J. T. Tucker as Captain and the late Charles Eddy as First Lieutenant and the new building was at once turned into an interesting place for regular military drills and manoeuvres.

Military Church Parade.

Rev. E. W. Pickworth of Brighton preached at St. Peter's Church on Sunday morning, the service being marked by the presence of Northumberland regiment, accompanied also by artillery and other local officers and men. The Regimental Band under Capt. Colwill assisted in the service and played the hymns.

Other Sunday Church Services

Rev. Dewey Stinson preached in the Methodist Church on Sunday and his sermons were of interest and profit to all who heard him.

At the Congregational Churches at Cobourg and Coldsprings, Rev. James Pedley was the preacher at both services.

Rev. Archdeacon Warren preached at the evening services at St. Peters.

Rev. W. A. Bremner returned from his holidays at the week-end and occupied the pulpit of St. Andrew's Church at both services.

Rev. R. F. Stillman returned on Monday from his holidays and Mrs. Stillman and daughter have returned also from their trip to British Columbia.

Rev. F. W. Anderson, Port Hope, has also returned from holidays and took the services at St. Paul's Church in that town on Sunday.

The Late Mrs. Frederick Meyers.

The funeral of Miss Eva Anita Irene Meyers wife of Mr. Frederick Meyers took place on Friday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Murdoff. Mrs. Meyers was thirty-one years of age. The interment was in Front of Sidney Cemetery.

Fined $200 and Costs.

James Parr, of Ceasaera, Durham county, pleaded guilty to a charge of having liquor in a place other than his private residence before Police Magistrate Horsey at Bowmanville on Saturday and was fined $200 and costs. His place was searched by License Inspector Goodrich, it is stated, and a quantity of liquor was found.

NEWS OF WARSAW

Orangemen Held a Service in the Woods—Personal Mention.

WARSAW, Sept. 4.—There was an Orangeman's service in Mr. Deen's woods on Sunday afternoon. Rev. Cox of Lakefield and Warsaw conducted the service. Some chairs, the organ and reading desk were brought on a truck, which was used as a pulpit. Mr. Cox began by saying the Orangemen had fought to defend the creed which had just been repeated. He gave a history of the Church of England. There were Christians there before Roman Catholicism ever came, the sixty-third article of the Magna Charta read, and the Church of England shall be free. Nothing was further from the truth than to say that the Church of England began because Henry VIII. wanted a divorce. He reminded those there that an obligation of Orangemen was to support Protestantism by attending church. Picnics could be largely attended, but the church of God is not attended. He urged the need to the world at large, to the church and to the people themselves of attending church.

Pastor Chorley preached his farewell sermon at Warsaw on Sunday morning. Mrs. Chorley sang a farewell message. There will be service in the Baptist Church on Sunday.

Methodist Sunday School had the regular quarterly temperance talk on Sunday. Mr. Matthews said that in view of some of the things that were reported, it was time to do something. The speaker spoke of prohibition being an old question. The first vote he ever cast was for prohibition. He read an extract from the History of Scotland dated 1805 which was an unconscious plea for prohibition. He showed that Government control would mean pretty nearly that you could get what you want and would be no stop to bootlegging. He spoke of the absolute indifference of many people. They think it will go all right because it did before. The people who want Government control are working hard, and we must be up and doing or we will be back worse than we were with the licensed bar.

There will be the usual union morning service at Warsaw Presbyterian Church on Sunday, Sept. 7th. At Cottesloe the young people are holding a rally service in the evening at 7.30 o'clock. Addresses by Mrs. Forsythe, Dr. Munro and Cecil Bolton. Offering for missions. Other services same as usual.

Schools reopened Tuesday. Miss Fitzgerald is back in Douro No. 5, Miss Humphries in Cottesloe, Miss Quinn junior teacher in Warsaw and Mr. Currie senior teacher. Mr. Currie will take the third, fourth and fifth classes. Some from nearby sections who have passed the entrance are coming for fifth class work.

Mr. and Mrs. David Forsythe, Detroit, are visiting Mr. George Forsythe and other relatives here.

Mrs. Wm. Clysdale is visiting her son, Mr. Stewart Clysdale.

Miss Beatrice Hoag is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Alex. Calder.

Mr. and Mrs. Stark and family returned to Toronto on Thursday.

Master John Dewart of South Monaghan spent a few holidays at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. John Dewart.

Miss E. M. Dewart, principal of S. S. No. 4, Stamford, left on Monday morning to resume her duties.

Mrs. Robert Sinclair and family returned home last week.

Hiram Anderson and Milford Payne are gone to Ted Payne's.

David McManus and Charley Morrison have returned to the West.

Dr. and Mrs. McLeod and son from Avon, New York, visited Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Crowe last week.

Among those who have attended Toronto Exhibition are Mr. and Mrs. Oliver MacIlvena, Mr. John Moore and Miss Alice Wasson.

Miss Burry spent the week-end and holiday with Mr. and Mrs. Weir.

Mr. Albert Cooper returned this evening from Toronto, where she spent a week with her sister, Mrs. Robert Gunn, who is seriously ill.

Miss Adelaide Batten is spending her holidays with her sister, Mrs. Verne Selkirk in Toronto. Mr. Selkirk is doing as well as possible after an emergency operation for appendicitis.

Peterboro

The Most Alarming City In The British Empire To-Day
←The Toronto Star Weekly Says Of Peterborough→

By ARTHUR HAWKES.

PETERBORO is the most alarming city in the British Empire. Except at Thameside, near London, nowhere else are alarm clocks made in the King's dominions. Thameside, the output is far below the Peterboro quantity, which will presently be two thousand a day. Just now, about eleven hundred ready wakeners per diem are finished on the hill that looks eastward on the famous lift lock of the Trent Canal and westward on the embowered city. They are all sold in Canada, for, so far the clock industry is not what the auto ditto is. It does not assemble parts manufactured across the line and export them, so as to get the Canadian drawback and the British preference, which operates in fashions we are not now concerned with.

Assume there are nine million people in Canada, eleven hundred alarm clocks a day—say, six thousand a week—means three hundred thousand a year. Every seventh Canadian house buys a Peterboro alarm clock every year. To a stirring extent, then, Peterboro has got the early ear of the early birds of this broad Dominion. We are raising our own alarm clocks, which is not done in any other part of the empire. "We" means Peterboro, and in Peterboro it means the Westclox people, settled there from La Salle, Illinois, where they turn out about seventeen thousand Big Ben and Little Ben alarmers every day—the same Bens as are all but begun, continued, and completed at Peterboro; the story of which is as interesting as any novel and as true as the sincerest gospel ever preached.

One mentions the alarming city, the imperial chanticleer, first, merely to show that in Peterboro, like every other place in which you look for character, in sure and certain hope of finding more than most of the local people intimately know, there is unexpected achievement, and unheralded romance. At the moment you are asked to accept the romance of an alarm clock on tick; but it is there, in every wheel, every peal, every little movement of the pesky little body which, though it annoys you too early in the morning, is a first safety against lost time, lost trains, lost money, and lost temper.

Ever since Peterboro was seven years old among cities, it has been announced as the electric city—which it is; and which, in a way, it was more than it is. Thirty-one years ago, when the works of the Canadian General Electric Company were established in Peterboro, everybody admitted the industry of harnessing the lighning had future; but scarcely anybody dreamed it had so much of a mortgage on the future as the present discloses. The electric light was here; the electric railway was dimly seen in the offing; hydro-electric power, compared with the flood it has since become, was only a cloud the size of a man's hand. The automobile, with its electric generator, starter, distributor, lights, and horn, was not yet with the visionaries who are the first heralds of scientific revolution. The radio was as much out of sight then as taxes are now.

Modern Miracles of Canada.

In those conditions Peterboro became the manufacturing home of the greatest electrical enterprize in Canada. When in one of the Peterboro shops of the C.G.E., you look down its nine hundred feet of sky-lighted length, and see the leviathan machines that are being built up, and you know that this is only a section of a section of the electrical industries of your modest but confident country, you get a new and elevating line on the marvels embedded in the development of Canadian communities out of the wilderness that has happened almost entirely within living memory.

Really, the astonishment is not that in this present age we think so highly of ourselves, but that we take for granted so much miracle and treat as a commonplace the wizardries which, even since steam became a human slave, had not entered into the imagination of man.

Peterboro is only one of the places that fill you with gratitudinous pride in the courageous endurance of what seemed ordinary people living in ordinary conditions, and producing to themselves ordinary results. Your reverence goes out to these who toiled in discouraging poverty and pitiless hardship without suspecting the glamors that later times may throw about the beginnings of flourishing communities. Centenary celebrations might well have been put in hand at Peterboro before this. The mill on the bank of what was afterwards called the Otonabee river, which gave the name of Scott's Plains to Peterboro's first business settlement, was built as the outcome of a trip from Cobourg soon after the settlement farm was begun around the lesser lakes of Ontario's hinterland. It is impossible to put one's hand on a given square foot and on a precise date and say, as is said about Guelph: "Here and there the city was founded and celebrated by a man who called it by its everlasting name." In legal lore, there wasn't a Peterboro until years and years after Peterboro was opened for business. The alarming city was never a village, according to the law; though it certainly was a village according to the trading gospel that was practised in it.

Until it was incorporated as a town in 1850, Peterboro was civically a part of the township of Monaghan. That it was included in a township named after an Ulster county furnishes a clue to its Hibernian flavor—a clue which speedily becomes a proof, and a trail to a "histhory, begorra, that ivry son of Peterboro should rejyce in this day."

It is a vain devotion to English things to imagine that Peterboro was so christened by some devout son of the cathedral city which is partly in Huntingdonshire and mostly in Northamptonshire; and which had its benedictine abbey twelve hundred years ago. Our Peterboro derives its name from Mister Robinson—and the Napoleonic wars—on this wise.

An Irish Foundation.

The Napoleonic wars left the United Kingdom and kingdoms that were not so united in bad economical shape. What with war debts, the increasing use of machinery, and the obtuseness of statesmen that is still in fashion, times were bad for far too many years. Emigration became a national policy, what time the agitation for the reform bill and the rise of trade unionism was convulsing Britain. It will be news to some that in 1832 a hundred thousand immigrants came up the St. Lawrence to Quebec in sailing ships.

The Hon. Peter Robinson, brother of that John Beverley Robinson who was Attorney-General of Upper Canada at twenty-one, and whose name and character and baronetcy survive in the family still, was a sort of immigration providence to the Government of Upper Canada, the heads of which had not yet become seized of the suitability for self-government of British people who had the nerve to leave Britain. The Hon. Peter took up with the British authorities the question of directing part of the immigration flood to the region round-about Scott's Plains in the Lake Ontario highlands.

He went to London on that business and arranged for a couple of thousand Irish people to come in one ship, and he planted around what is now Peterboro. They sailed from Cork, and he sailed to New York to receive them. In those days they seem to have first landed their immigrant and then got ready to receive him. Fifteen of the passengers died on the twenty-one day passage to Quebec. The whole shebang was tented at Kingston during a summer, so hot that dysentery and ague carried off many more. Fall was approaching before they could be located where it was hoped they would entice goodly fortune out of the lands then covered with bush. Log houses were built on their hundred acre allotments; each house being valued at ten pounds. When winter came each family had a cow and some implements, including three gimlets and a hundred nails. For eighteen months all were rationed by the government, always with the Hon. Pete as a sort of Johnny on the spot, doing what he could to ensure a future for his charges that would at least be better than their past and present. So, when the name of Scott's Plains didn't fit the business centre any more they called it Peterboro, entirely after him, and heedless of the cathedral city across the sea.

An uncommercial observer has called Peterboro the friendly city, and has suggested a relation between the goodwill that generally pervades it and the plenitude of trees that bless its streets. You may work backward or forward in quest of the evidence that justifies this view. Take the backward course, for the moment. If, motoring into Peterboro and your car offers to the first watchful policeman who sees it, indication that it is a touring tourist—most of the numbers that swarm about Peterboro are around the 180,000's—he commands a halt. But instead of a summons he presents a card from the mayor and citizens bidding you cut yourself a piece of cake and make yourself at home by calling at the chamber of commerce, which is also the motor league, and giving the city a fair chance to show you just what goodwill, courtesy, and the hospitable habit are like. You can't beat that anywhere in the Christian world—the policemen turned into spirits ministering to the stranger almost before he has arrived within the gates.

Brotherly Peal of Bells.

Peterboro is ensconced below a series of hills which are ramparts of the Otonabee valley. The hills foster a tendency to heat in summer, but otherwise afford views of landscape and townscape in which the umbrageous tree is a feature everywhere. On one holy eminence stands St. John's, the oldest church in this quarter of Ontario. It has who few sacred edifices on this continent offer to the beholder—an ivy-mantled tower, containing a noble peal of thirteen bells. The bells came from a public movement, which, being singularly full of brotherly love, was singularly devoid of sectarian pride. They are eloquent of the rectorate of Archdeacon Davidson, who, though now a resident of Toronto, has not broken his old parochial tie. The deed of gift to the church stipulates that the bells are to be rung in honor of any wedding, wheresoever and by whomsoever performed, the parties to which will pay the ringer's modest fee. Here, indeed, is a characteristic of religious life which, by way of contrast, shows how much farther ahead, in true godliness and human charity, rectorial wisdom is in Canada in comparison with what one has known it to be in the established Church of England. The bells of a parish church which was once very familiar to several Torontonians, would no more be rung for a Methodist wedding than they would peal for a Mohammedan thanksgiving. If an outstanding figure in the official public service of the parish passed away who had nourished his soul according to the Wesleyan polity, no bell tolled for his departure, nor would be allowed to toll unless his family foreswore his whole life and had him buried by what was to him an alien church.

It so happened that at the time this discourse was being prospected, there was a citizens' service in St. John's to dedicate a mural tablet to the memory of a journalist who died since the war—editor Yokome of the Examiner. It is so rare that a non-proprietorial journalist, living or extinct, receives public recognition of his community value that the Yokome tablet is veritably a milestone in the lengthening memory of one of the journalists who saw it unveiled.

Yokome was a passionate lover of trees and everything that grows in fertile soil. He preached an arboreal gospel for several decades, and pleaded earnestly for the popularity of horticulture. One of the quiet sort, he shrank from personal publicity, and was known to few of his readers. In his garden were English perennials such as are rarely found off the incomparable isle. In him was no desire for money, no hankering for controversy; though the paper he edited was owned by a Liberal politician during this present and the preceding century, and wasn't always an ensample of the charity which suffereth long and is kind. He was a devout Anglican, and the friend of the rector, whose imperialism, according to repute, is so little different from Toryism that he may honestly suppose that Grits are born bad and grow worse. Editor Yokome hamng gone hence, all sections of the colmunity, those who agreed with his poitical discourses and those who did not; those who openly applauded his community enthusiasms and those who wished they had, joined in honoring his memory. At the dedicatory service the lesson was read by an unsurpliced Presbyterian divine, and the archdeacon, speaking of Mr. Yokome, more as a citizen than as an archdeacon, told Peterboro how good it is, and incidentally how much better in one or two respects it might be.

Peterboro, according to its candid the needy, and in answering to every friend, is super-eminent in succoring patriotic appeal. But the brilliance of its character is slightly dimmed by the recurring flight of the twin insects of jealousy and apathy into its civic orbit. To be sure, the same criticism can, with equal vigor and truth, be made of every other city in an imperfect world. Everywhere too small a proportion of the electorate goes out to vote; and too large a percentage of those who are keenly interested in public affairs allow personal rivalries to affect cool and self-denying judgments.

Cox and Flavelle.

Peterboro has produced its fitting proportion of distinguished citizens of Ontario and of Canada; and it hasn't waited till their decease to make a record of what was thought of them. An appraisal of the merits of native or adopted sons would be interesting but not unanimously approved. Who is to say, for instance, whether Senator Cox or Sir Joseph Flavelle has reflected the greater glory upon Peterboro? The living baronet, who is nothing if not generous in lauding others, as becomes a veteran Sunday school superintendent, a personally patented exponent of noblesse oblige, would place himself behind the departed senator, partly because some of his own pecuniary success, at least, is attributable to the first financial magnate of national renown who obtained his fundamental experience in Peterboro—including proficiency in the art of making the most of things, and knowing just what goods to put in the front window.

Geo. A. Cox, native of Colborne, by the lake, was sent to Peterboro in the year that the younger of the famous Flavelle brothers was born in the neighbourhood—1858. He was eighteen years old, and was the Montreal Telegraph Company's operator, as a few of the city's venerabilities delight to relate. How he deflected into insurance, preferring to handle other people's money to repeating what other people paid him to say; how he became a president of the Midland Railway; how he obtained first the General Eastern agency and then control of the Canada Life; how he moved to Toronto after thirty Peterboro years; how he developed a financial power greater perhaps than that of any Canadian individual whose genius was in unadulterated finance rather than in the exploitation of portions of the public domain—are not these things and more written in the chronicle of the Canada Life, the Bank of Commerce, and the institutions which grew up within the shadow of their wing?

To those who saw Senator Cox only when he was the Torontonian thinker and doer in millions—the rather grim, deacon-looking man with the short, square beard, shaven upper lip, black clothes and invariable plug hat—cannot visualize him as the Peterboro citizen who gave much time to public service—starting a school here, taking a hand in a popular demonstration there, presiding occasionally at a meeting, and being mayor for years in succession, and coming back to the job after giving other fellows a chance.

If the Cox name could have done for the Grand Trunk Pacific what the Cox activity did for the North-bound Midland, which afterwards became part of the Midland division of the Grand Trunk, the Canadian people might not be as far up the neck in the railway business as they are now. The old Midland was in mighty poor shape when he got it, but he gave it the management of genius. The public in those days didn't regard a railway operator as necessarily an undesirable member of a community. Though he had not been beaten as a legislative candidate, it was mooted at one time that Geo. A. be given the joint acclamation of the Liberal and Tory parties. The Tory convention adjourned to allow the delegates to slumber on the proposal—which they did, and awoke more ardent Tories than ever, and Mr. Cox never came to Toronto with a returning officer's writ.

One thing that happened in the Midland's early days was never foreshadowed or followed. By combination between the Midland and other railways, one Twenty-fourth of May there were free excursions to Peterboro; and at eventide, what was surely the biggest passenger train in history, ran triumphantly from Peterboro to Port Hope—three engines, forty cars, five thousand people—five thousand, mind you. The Midland presidency lasted from 1873 to 1884—and while it was proceeding, Cox, of Peterboro, was one of the Howland syndicate which, in 1881, offered to build the Canadian Pacific.

Growing out of the Cox insurance agency was the presidency of the Central Canada Loan and Savings Company, with headquarters, of course, at Peterboro. E. R. Wood, commonly regarded as one of the choicest offshoots of the Cox financial stem, now does the presidential work in the office at the corner of King and Victoria; but in Peterboro, where this special legacy of the Cox era is powerful and obvious, it offers a special evidence of the blessing of making the most of your opportunities. Strictly speaking, in the view of the Canadian Bankers' Association, a loan company isn't a bank, though it does many things that a bank does—sometimes even to closing its doors. But on the window of the Central Canada, on the west side of George Street, Peterboro, is printed "Savings Bank" in the largest letters that adorn the plate,—a true sign, but not the sort of sign you see on similar offices elsewhere.

Political Changes.

George Albertus Cox was appointed a senator less than six months after the Laurier premiership began. His willingness for political distinction had expressed itself in a federal as well as a provincial candidature. There were fifteen years between his contest for the legislature, at 32 years of age, and his candidacy for the Commons in 1887. His double failure may testify to the inborn independence of the Peterboro character. The political color of West Peterboro, combination of urban and rural as it is, has varied considerably The provincial election of 1919 sent a Labor man to Toronto, who might, perhaps, have retained the seat last June if he had more capacity for statesmanship, if the Labor party had more than held its own, if the farmers had been less distracted by Morrison and Drury, than they were, and if both the old parties had disappeared.

Perhaps the reaction after the reaction after the war has set in, if any thing can be judged from the present parliamentary representation of West Peterboro, a Ferguson supporter is coming to Toronto for his first session.

A King stalwart returns to Ottawa for his fourth session.

"It may be easy to read the future from the immediate past, but the present decipherer can make nothing of the portents of the post-war period. John Hampton Burnham, who is worth several chapters all his own, was a triumphant Unionist in December, 1917. Conceiving that the Union government had outlived its mandate he resigned, and ran for re-election as an unhyphenated Tory in February of '21. There were five candidates. Emissaries from Ottawa said the fight was on grave national questions. Wise men on the job declared the issue was local. The Liberals played Newcombe Gordon to the limit. He won, largely because of the fiery vigor of his own campaign. He won again at the end of the same year, largely for the same reason; though it might be pleasant to believe that high considerations of Liberal altruism are the most powerful political forces in Central Ontario. Mr. Gordon frankly calls himself a politician. He believes, with evidence to sustain him, that his success in February, 1921, was the first true harbinger of the general victory that was to scatter the Meighenites like chaff before the wind. He received the deputy-speakership, which he fills with real and unusual distinction, and has cast a justified eye upon loftier heights. An oiled sledge hammer is not as likely to miss its mark as some lovers of cold iron might suppose; and Gordon seems likely to hold the Liberal party's own, and then some, for a good while to come, accidents at home and unexpected collapses at Ottawa not preventing.

An Extraordinary Canal.

The lift lock at Peterboro could hold its place as a phenomenon of the engineering world if not a vessel passed through it, and also if the Trent Canal were carrying as much shipping as goes through both locks at the Soo. The lock's all right; but the canal, of which it is the chief distinction, is famous or infamous according to the partisan conscience, also according to who happens to be in power. Perhaps infamous is an inappropriate word, seeing that it can't be fastened exclusively on any party in the state. The responsibility belongs to both brands of statesmanship which regarded themselves as enjoying perpetual rights to the pursuit of electoral life, liberty and happiness, until the little fuss in Europe made cockshies of thrones, states and parties.

The Trent Canal, on which, up to the end of the war, over seventeen million dollars were spent for construction and maintenance, as against thirty millions on the Welland—the old Welland, that is—carried sixty thousand tons of freight in a year when the Welland was carrying three million tons—fifty times as much. Its most fervent admirer doesn't expect it even when it may connect Lakes Huron and Ontario to get enough business to fulfil the vows of its earlier, and long since defunct fathers and godfathers. But the lift lock, with its two chambers in which the boats are gated and carried up and down sixty-five feet, will still have in its concrete 26,000 barrels of cement; will still furnish excellent photographs to visitors; and will still prove how much engineering skill can be swallowed up by political electioneering skill. The Trent Canal project is ninety years old, and still unfinished. Since the first report upon it in 1833, how many deputations have gone from Peterboro to Ottawa, to governments of both complexions, only a diligent search of the newspaper files would disclose. Until the farmers, several trainloads strong, bombarded Sir Wilfrid at Ottawa in 1910, with their demands for reciprocity, the most numerous aggregation of patriots that ever camped on Parliament Hill was the Trent Canal crowd, in 1897. The canal may justly be regarded as one of the most remarkable monuments to Antiquity which modern devotion has reared; because the prayers and appropriations for it have ceased to have predominant regard to the flight of time and the perpetual revolution in commercial transportation which scraps many good schemes almost as soon as they are on paper. It is 235 miles from the point of Georgian Bay, which was to be made the other end of the Trenton basin. A cargo coming from, say, Port Arthur to Montreal by this route instead of via the Welland Canal, would save roughly, four hundred miles—and that is all, in modern times it could save, through a canal with a nine-foot draught. In 1833, when the project was first a parliamentary baby, the present traffic up and down the lakes was not dreamed of. The time was five years before the Great Western inaugurated trans-Atlantic steamship travel. She was 1,340 tons register, and took fourteen days from Bristol to New York. There wasn't a railway in Ontario. If there is to be a canal to cut out the Huron-Erie, Ontario-St. Lawrence roundabout and beat the C.P.R. grain route from Georgian Bay to Montreal, via Orillia and Peterboro (the Trent route in the main) obviously it must be up the Ottawa. From Montreal to Georgian Bay, via the Trent Canal, would be 430 miles. From Montreal to Georgian Bay via the Ottawa and Lake Nipissing is 406 miles, and the canal would strike the Bay 100 miles nearer Port Arthur than the Trent outlet on Georgian Bay.

What has been done to catch votes, therefore and there has been no other excuse for so high an outlay on the Trent Canal) is a tribute to the power of a scheme that was a vote-getter ninety years ago—a species of political ancestor-worship which is appropriately valuated by the modern heads of Peterboro. There is nothing quite like it in Canadian history; in the heavens above, in the earth beneath, or in the waters under the earth. But it can be said that the canal does something to make one of the most attractive holiday regions of North America more attractive still. But the sums that have gone through the estimates certainly look large for the exquisite pleasure of seeing the yacht of an American newspaper proprietor and its jolly party moored at Peterboro on a fine summer's evening.

Canoes and the War.

After all, Peterboro has a maritime supremacy that never depended on the Trent Canal. The irreverent, who do too much abound, aver that Peterboro put the canoe into canoodling. If another city in the Empire makes as many canoes and other watercraft as are turned out within a stone's throw of George Street, nobody thereabouts knows its name. Counting according to catalogue price variations, the company, whose master builder is the dynamic son of the Rogers who founded the business in the eighteen-seventies, three hundred and ten vessels, each varying from the other, are made on Otonabee's banks. It was here the boats were made that enabled the British army, with the aid of Canadian boating experts, to climb the Nile, nearly forty years ago. Whereof a more recent war story.

When the war broke, Mr. Rogers wrote the War Office, describing the kind of boat he would be prepared to build, if boats were needed anywhere in the war. If men were required, he could get five hundred from the Hudson's Bay Company. He received no reply; for, of course, the War Office understood the war was to be fought in France and Flanders, where navigation was not a factor.

Mr. Rogers enlisted, went overseas, and was invalided home as a result of the 1916 campaign. The first thing he saw in Montreal was a notice saying that two officers from London were in Canada looking for boats and boatmen for service on the Tigris and Euphrates. They had never heard of the Peterboro offer made so promptly in 1914.

A twenty-six-foot canoe, to carry five tons of freight, or twenty-six men, is the biggest thing of its kind in the paddling and portaging world. It is made in Peterboro as easily as a jackpot is constructed. The heaviest electrical generators in the world are made here, also, as a matter of course. And, just to show how versatile the electrical manufacturer must be, you pass from an examination of the 55,000 horsepower generators that are being groomed for the Queenston power house, straight to a place where girls are assembling clocks not so very different from the alarums of the Westclox hive—for the meter that tells your Hydro caller what you have been doing with iron and vac is a clock regulated by Niagara Falls instead of by a throbbing spring.

Mr. Patterson, the general manager of the Canadian General Electric works from the beginning, knows pretty well all that is known about electricity—which, as he suggests, isn't much; for electricity is like the deity in that no man hath seen it at any time. What happens to Niagara water is that it is turned into a spout, at the bottom of which it whirls a wheel on a shaft, which turns the inside of the generator; and the generator, by the friction it develops between innumerable pieces of metal that fly round one another like mad, produces the electricity which nobody sees, but which anybody can find out kicks like a million mules. The electricity jumps on to the wire that goes out from the generator, and goes as far as the wire will let it go, until it gets into the ground, or works off some of its fury by turning other wheels—street car wheels, for instance—or getting other things all het up—mother's iron say.

Giant Generators.

You can see a C.G.E. clock any time at home, but the 55,000 h.p. generator can't be shown even at the "Ex." It is literally true that the great big revolving sections of the generator are Peterboro groomed. They are cast in Montreal and are shipped here to have the roughnesses pared off, the air-wrought defects sought out and filled, and everything toned down or tuned up, so that the great leviathan can work with the force of Jove and the smoothness of the still small voice The Queenston generators are twenty-seven feet in diameter. The stationary, outside sections have to be cast in three sections, because there is no other way of hauling them across country. Chunks of armor plate for dreadnoughts are flimsy jobs compared with the present maximum Hydro sizes. A dictionary-full of words couldn't convey as much impression as a picture of the Niagara Pegasi, of its nine months' groom, and you are therefore referred to it.

Being the electrical city is more than being the first head centre of Canadian general electrical manufacture. Peterboro has long revelled in the public ownership of juice. In no other Ontario city has one seen street lights shining at noon-day, because as one enthusiast for P. O. said, it costs more to shut the lamps off than it does to keep them on. The Trent Canal furnishes power through the Central Ontario System, of which many glowing and some other things have been said. It drives the street railway of Peterboro which for seven years has been run by the Ontario Hydro railway department. It doesn't pay. It never did. It cannot, according to a report submitted to Guelph during the radial voting age up there, in which Mr. Gaby demonstrated that on a street railway for a population of less than 50,000 Dr. and Cr. can't be on speaking terms. Anyway, you don't read "Hydro-Electric Railways" on the Peterboro cars, good as they are.

Million-Dollar Bridge.

The city hasn't gone in for an imposing city hall—the municipal offices are as utilitarian in aspect as the London ditto. Public services are conceded to be in good shape, with a certain, amount of criticism of past councils especially for the too magnificent Hunter Street bridge. It is of concrete. Its main span, being the biggest span in Canada, according to repute, carries smaller arches upon its haunches. The walls next the sidewalks are marvellously massive, of the most wonderful concrete — imported chips from whose faces the cement was washed away. Night lighting is from lamps reared on astonishingly artistic pillars of concrete, designed in New York, set in the walls are terra cotta ornamentations, of which, when they are pointed out, it is remarked, "What's the use?"

The bridge was projected to cost a quarter of a million dollars. The cost was projected twice that. By the time the sinking fund has come to its full sink, the bridge will have taken a million dollars from the civic treasury. From every other point of view it is a noble work—so noble that an opening ceremony was deemed to be quite superfluous as an aid to public appreciation of its enduring and endearing features.

Suggestions For Weather Observers

By Dr. A. H. PALMER,
U.S. Weather Bureau, San Francisco.

When an instrument shelter exposed in a public place serves as an inviting object on which boys are in the habit of cutting their initials with a knife, the practice can be discouraged by liberally sprinkling fine sand on the freshly-painted surface.

When the maximum thermometer is attached near the middle instead of near its right end on the thermometer support, the revolution required for resetting will cause the mercury column to separate, part of the mercury going to either end of the tube. This thermometer should therefore be attached to its support near the top end; that is, the end opposite the bulb.

The breaking of the alcohol column n the minimum thermometer into detached segments after the thermometer is properly installed is frequently due to an insecure foundation of the instrument shelter. A shelter which is not rigid will be jarred by the wind to such an extent that the alcohol column will separate. Shelters may be made rigid by driving a wooden stake into the ground at each foot of the shelter support, and then nailing the foot and the stake securely together. This will also prevent capsizing by the wind.

The door of the instrument shelter should invariably open to the north, so that the sun may never shine upon the inclosed instruments regardless of when the door is opened. The shelter should be painted white so that the heat of sunshine may be reflected rather than absorbed. The thermometers are intended for recording the temperature of the circulating air, and should therefore be in perpetual shade, and where there is a good circulation of air.

When a rain gauge is installed in permanent position, care should be exercised to see that it is not near growing trees, which in the course of a few years may grow completely over the top of the gauge.

When an observer realises that the smallest unit of precipitation measurement, namely, 0.01 inch, is equivalent to more than one ton of water to the acre, he is more ready to use care in his measurements, and there will be fewer reports of precipitation expressed in even tenths.

When an observer learns that the density of snow is not always one-tenth that of water, it usually serves as an inducement to a careful measurement of the water content of newly fallen snow.

It is bettar to place weather instruments at the home of the observer rather than at his place of business for the following reasons: (a) ground rather than roof exposures are more readily available; (b) environment is more likely to remain unchanged; and (c) there are likely to be fewer breaks in the record due to Sundays and other holidays.

Various observers who use thermographs or hygrographs have found it convenient to keep the ink for the recording pen in small oil cans, similar to those usually used with a bicycle or a sewing machine. If the aperture in the spout is sufficiently small a single drop of ink can be placed upon the pen without waste or inconvenience.

If but one weather observation is made in 24 hours, it is best to make it in the late afternoon or evening, as the maximum and minimum temperatures of the current day can usually be determined at that time.

After resetting the maximum and minimum thermometers they ought to agree within one or two degrees, as they are then indicating the current temperature. If they differ by more than two degrees something is wrong with one or both instruments.

Scale marks on thermometers can easily be renewed by rubbing in ivory black with the aid of a small strip of blotting paper. The etching scale-marks on the glass tube will retain some of the ivory black, while the excess can be rubbed off with a fresh piece of the blotting paper.

Every weather observer has a local reputation as a scientist. Since acuteness of observation is generally regarded as an index of latent scientific ability, a weather record may be made to reveal more than mere statistical data.

A trustworthy weather record is an asset to any community, regardless of how small that community may be. A careful and conscientious amateur weather observer who is keeping a daily weather record with the aid of standard meteorological instruments properly installed is rendering an important and valuable public service, the value of which will increase with the length of the record and the growth of the community.

PANAMA.

In a year 5648 ocean-going ships passed through the Panama Canal, says official report. Without the canal, they'd have had to make the long trip around the southernmost tip of South America.

Uncle Sam has been collecting almost 25 million dollars a year in tolls from these ships. Our national investment in the canal is paying around 4 per cent. interest. Originally there was no hope of much profit, for the canal is primarily for increased navy efficiency. Becoming more valuable for enabling ships to keep railroads on their toes, by competition.

CAMPBELLFORD DROPPED GAME

Rev. D. C. Daniels Played Right Field in Game With Orland.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 4.—Campbellford, for the first time on record, had a member of the ministerial profession in its line-up, in the game with Orland yesterday, Rev. D. C. Daniels playing in right field. He has appeared in several minor games this season, but his work yesterday proved that he is able to hold his own in faster company than that in which he has previously figured. In four times up he made two singles. None of the Orland hits went his way, so that he had no chance to demonstrate what he can do as a fielder, but he is a good sprinter when it comes to running bases.

But even this clerical assistance was not sufficient to save the home team from defeat, the score being 11-7 in favor of the visitors. The result would have been different if the home team had played throughout as they did in the last three innings, when they held Orland hitless and scoreless, only nine visitors going to bat in the three frames. Even the watchful Kory Zufelt struck out.

The game started with a number of recruit acting as substitutes for Campbellford, but the team regained something of its identity when Armour, Nesbitt and Daniels arrived after the first inning, in which Orland made four runs, their biggest tally in the game.

Ibey pitched his first game, and for a 16-year old youngster, certainly made a good showing, eight of the heavy hitting Orlands falling victims to his curves. Two walks to first were all the passed that he issued, and two safeties was his record at bat. Ibey has a baseball future ahead of him if he cares to follow up the game.

Mulhall maintained his record as a hitter when hits are needed and in all fairness he should be credited with a two base hit that does not appear on the record. In the first, with two men on bases, and no one out, Mulhall sent a sizzling grounder down the left foul line It passed the first bag on fair ground but when about 20 feet beyond that point rolled foul. Richardson of Orland, who was umpiring behind the bat, called it a foul, and refused to change his decision. Mulhall then advanced one base runner, and sent the other across the plate by a sacrifice to Weston at second.

In the second inning, when Mulhall went to bat, there were two men out and two on bases. He sent the ball to right centre for a clean three bagger, sending in the two runners ahead of him. He died at third when Harry Zufelt grounded out to first.

The other extra base hitters for the visitors, were Samis, who doubled in the fourth and Kory Zufelt, who tripled in the sixth, scoring Mulhall, who had got to first on a single.

In the seventh inning after Eagleson had got to first on a single and Armour drew a pass, Holmes came to their rescue with a three bagger, following the other two runners around the plate on a wild throw from the outfield.

One point raised in dispute was when Blakely in the seventh bunted the ball to left and Mulhall who saw that it was going to roll foul made no effort to field it. Some of the Campbellford players insisted that for that reason it should be called a strike, but Umpire Richardson refused to listen. The game however, was a clean exhibition of baseball from start to finish, and if some of the decisions by the umpire were open to criticism, both sides suffered in about the same proportion. Orland won on their merits and deserved their victory.

The Orland players appeared to have all the luck. Kory Zufelt, accompanied by his wife and child with some of his fellow players, stayed over for the picture show at the Regent. When it came to drawing for the prize (an electric lamp) Kory had the winning ticket, the first one taken from the box, and will now be able to connect his prize with the Hydro system at Warkworth, where he resides.

A FATAL ACCIDENT.

Woman Killed When Automobile Turned Turtle.

PENETANGUISHENE, Ont., September 4. — A fatal motor accident occurred here on Fox street, on Tuesday evening, when Mrs. David Thompson was almost instantly killed and Jack Russell, son-in-law of Mrs. Thompson was knocked unconscious.

The other occupants of the car, Mrs. Russell, Master Bill and Miss Jean Thompson, escaped with minor injuries.

The party was returning from the Canadian National Exhibition, and when almost at home when a front tire blew out, causing the car to skid in the soft sand and turn turtle.

The funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon.

HIDDEN

Only one American family in every four has an income of $1000 or more a year— if you believe the national income tax figures.

The latest of these statistics that are completely compiled cover 1922 and show that 6,385,405 admitted incomes of $1,000 or more during the year. It's estimated the average family has four and a half members —that is, nine members to every two families.

If the tax collector could get to the "hidden incomes," Uncle Sam could retire a big chunk of the national debt.

SECRETED

Do you believe that only one American family in every four has an income of $1000 or more a year? And do you also believe that only one family in every 14 has an income of $3,000 or more a year?

If so, you believe that the national income tax totals for 1922 tell the true story. How much is hidden — by small incomes as well as the big ones?

WILLIAM SMITH IS NATIVE SON PIONEER DAYS

The Oldest Surviving Native Born Son of Seymour Township.

EARLY HARDSHIPS.

Men of Vision Were Among the Early Settlers in the District.

CAMPBELLFORD, September 4.—The oldest surviving native-born son of Seymour Township, including the town of Campbellford, is William Smith, who resides on Rayney Street, and who knows more about the history of town and township than any of his competitors. The only man in Campbellford who surpasses him in point of age is Edward Stephens, who is in his 94th year, but the latter's birthplace was in England.

Mr. Smith was born 85 years ago on Lot 15, on the 3rd Concession of East Seymour, in what is known as the Irish Settlement, on account of the number of immigrants of that nationality who took up land there. His parents had arrived from Ireland with two children a few years previous. The new settlers made their way from Cobourg in a hired waggon that cost them $5.00 a day, and the trip over what was by courtesy called a road, but was really only a trail through the forest, occupied three days.

Helped Settlers.

In those days the Government encouraged immigration from the British Isles and extended some help to those who wished to take up land. The place which was the objective of those who entered the district by way of Cobourg was what is now known as Perry Boom, the summer resort down the river about five miles from Campbellford, and which at that time was called Percy Landing. At that point a Government boat, or batteau, carried the new arrivals and their effects about three miles further down the river to Government House, a primitive building located on a large tract of land belonging to the Government. In this house of refuge the pioneers were permitted to stay for a limited number of days, to give them a chance to get their bearings, but while the guests of the ruling powers they were acquired to furnish their own provisions. All they received was the rather indifferent shelter which the building afforded. But Government House for years remained the hub of civilisation in that district.

Men of Vision.

Those in authority in the pioneer days were men of vision and had faith in the future of the new country. The Government for a long time was convinced that the land on which their house of entertainment stood was the ideal site for a town which was to become the metropolis of that region and refused to dispose of any of the 200 acres. Mr. Smith, the subject of this sketch, before he had attained his majority, purchased the land in question for $3,000, a fortune in those days, and bravely set to work to clear up and pay for his holdings. The Government House that had sheltered his parents upon their arrival in Canada, was his first home, and to this he took his young bride. Mr. Smith lived there for over 60 years or until he retired and came to live in Campbellford 15 years ago. He found the place a wilderness; he left it one of the garden spots of Seymour.

Miss McDonald Arrives.

Mr. Smith married Miss Mary McDonald, who, as a girl of 15, arrived from Ireland with her brother.

Mrs. Smith was the partner of her husband in all the trials and privations of pioneer life, and now shares the ease and posperity that has come to them in their declining years.

Pioneer Markets.

And there were hardships encountered by the pioneers to which the rising generation of farmers are happily strangers. The government, who had sold Mr. Smith his farm, insisted on its pound of flesh, the last cent of principal and interest. Three thousand dollars was a large sum to dig out of a bush farm. There were no roads, no markets and very little money in the country. Mr. and Mrs. Smith had at one time, by hard work, managed to accumulate five tubs of butter, 500 pounds altogether and started with it for the Belleville market, 32 miles away. It was a long, hard trip over the rough roads, and when they reached Belleville they failed to make a sale and had to start for home with their produce. When they reached Stirling they were fortunate enough to dispose of the butter there to a merchant who happened to be filling an order for a lumber camp. The price which they received per pound was a "York shilling," 12 1-2 cents. The $62.50 which the sale brought them was a lot of money in those times, but did not go far in paying the 9 per cent. interest which a loan company charged for the money loaned Mr. Smith to pay the government for his farm.

Active in Community.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith, by untiring industry, made for themselves one of the finest farm homes in Central Ontario. All the surroundings bore testimony to their cultivated taste and love of beauty and order. A grove of pine trees stood near their buildings, but although some men offered them $1,000 for the trees, Mr. and Mrs. Smith could not be induced to dispose of them.

While they were so active in their own interests they found time to devote to work in the interests of the community. They took a prominent part in establishing the first school and in engaging qualified teachers, so that all of their seven children, three sons and four daughters, received good educations, some of them finishing their primary scholastic career in Campbellford. The English Line Methodist church, a handsome edific, that was erected by voluntere lavor, had no more loyal supporters than Mr. and Mrs. Smith. Of their three sons, George, and Henry of Toronto, and Ernest Everett, of California, none of them cared to follow farming as a vocation and they left home for life in the city. The daughters are Mrs. Frank Glenn, Mrs. Sanford Anderson, Mrs. Thomas Walker, all of Seymour, and Miss Eva, who resides with her parents.

Some Reminiscences.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith recall the early days of Campbellford when there was no bridge and the only means of crossing the Trent was by ferry or fording the stream where the water was low. The first post office they remember was a 12 x 12 log building which stood on the present site of the Public Library. Storm Platt was the pioneer postmaster.

R. Leviscomte was captain of the boat which carried settlers from Percy Landing to Government House. The captain later gave up the river and purchased a large block of land in the district. Some of his sons have reached high places in the professional and business life of the country.

Mr. Smith recalls that one of the settlers, Lewis Dunk, brought a cow from Cobourg to Percy Landing. The animal wandered away into the woods and was lost for three days. When found the cow was placed on the Government boat, but when the voyage was commenced she became unruly and kicked a hole in the bottom of the craft. It was necessary to make a hasty landing in order to save the lives of the passengers.

The First Merchant.

Henry Payne, a pensioner who had seen service in European wars, was the caretaker of Government House, where he kept a small store, selling supplies to the settlers. It is recalled that his prices were always high. Sometimes he traded his goods for labour, the settlers helping on a small farm which he had cleared up.

David Allan, some of whose descendants are now living in Campbellford, opened a store in the district, and was liberal in his treatment of those who patronised him.

Mr. Smith's father, and the latter's brother John, started the first flour mill at Menie. In the early days it was a hard matter to raise wheat, and harder still to have it ground into flour. Some of the early settlers had to carry their grain on their backs over the forest trails to Cobourg to have it treated in the mill there.

Mrs. Smith, then Mary McDonald, recalls that she arrived in Toronto from Ireland on the 24th of May, 1862. Even that place was in the primitive stage of existence. On the land now occupied by the Eaton store was a small log house which contained the residence and mercantile business of the late Timothy Eaton.

WEDDING BELLS.

MONCRIEF—PRESTON.

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 4.—A very pretty wedding took place in the Presbyterian Church at Lakefield on Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, when Hertha Cullen, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Preston, was united in marriage to Melville William George Moncrief, of Emily Township.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. P. L. Jull, pastor of the Presbyterian Church.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a becoming costume of white silk crepe de chine, trimmed with lace and pearls, and carried a bouquet of bridal rose and smilax. She wore a conventional veil and orange blossoms.

She was attended by her sister, Miss Electa Preston, who wore a gown of grey crepe de chine, with hat to match, and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses.

Mr. Roy Windrim, of Emily, supported the groom. Miss Hunter officiated at the organ and played the customary wedding music. During the signing of the register Miss Cullen sang a solo.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents on Smith Street, which was attended by about forty guests.

After a brief honeymoon the happy couple will take up residence in Emily Township, followed by the good wishes of many friends.

The bride, who was one of the most popular young ladies in the village, was formerly a member of the Public School staff and the choir of the Presbyterian Church.

KEEPS FAMILY ON $13.00 PER WEEK

Not Only Feeds and Clothes Himself, But Also Five Children.

(By Milton Bronner).

LONDON, September 4. — It is not always easy for the American working man to make ends meet.

But the lot of the British labourer is far harder still.

Take Alfred E. Mummery, for instance. He is feeding, housing and clothing himself, his wife, and five children on $13.00 a week.

And there are thousands even less fortunate than he.

For Mummery, employed by the street cleaning department of the Borough of Southwark, which is a part of big London, gets more rather than less than the ordinary unskilled worker. He is just an average British workman.

But to get back to his living problem in after-the-war expensive England.

Mummery lives in the Walworth district. His home is on the top floor of a tenement building.

Lucky to Have Three Rooms.

There are three rooms—two bedrooms and a room the family uses as a kitchen, dining-room and sitting-room. It is in the latter that his children study their lessons every night after supper.

"We rented the flat before the war," Mummery explains. "We are lucky to have it.

"Under the law, the landlord cannot put us out, so long as we pay our rent, and he can't get over 20 per cent. more than we paid before the war.

"Most landlords nowadays, when they get an unfurnished flat vacated, put a few things in it, call it furnished and ask almost any price they want. And they can put you out almost any time they wish.

"Our landlord installed in our flat a coal stove and also a gas stove with a penny-in-the-slot connection for our gas supply. We pay him nearly $3.00 a week.

"In case I get sick, the borough will pay half of my wages for six months. If anybody in my family takes ill we get doctors and medicine under the National Health Act. If we need dentists we get them free through the London County Council.

"The nine shillings (less than $2) that I keep for myself I use partly in keeping up my dues in clubs that pay benefits in case of illness or of death.

"Now I suppose you wonder what we eat. Well, here's about the way it runs:

"Breakfast — Tea, bread and oleomargarine.

"Noon dinner — Meat, greens or cabbage, potatoes, and tea.

"Five o'clock tea — Bread, oleomargarine, tea.

"Eight o'clock supper — Bread, cheese, tea.

"My wife uses three or four pounds of tea a week, costing one shilling and fourpence (30 cents) a pound. We have about eight or nine pounds of sugar a week at 7 1-2 pennies (about 15 cents) a pound.

"When we have meat it is bacon, mutton or sometimes beef at one shilling and fourpence a pound. We get greens at a penny ha'penny (approximately three cents) a pound.

"Potatoes don't cost us much. We get three pounds for tuppence (about four cents). We need about five loaves of bread a day. They are small loaves costing 4 1-2 pence (about nine cents) each. And our oleomargarine—running about three or four pounds—costs us sixpence (about 12 cents) a pound."

Church Fetes Their Amusements.

Clothing and shoes for himself and his family, however, form Mummery's big problem. He tries to meet it by paying some of his spending money into boot and clothing clubs. That costs him about 12 cents a week.

"When he has paid in a certain amount, he is entitled to boots or clothing equal to that amount.

"But we make ours last a long time," he says. "I always can buy leather fairly cheap, and I repair the shoes of the family. And my wife is mighty clever at patching up the clothes."

Mummery, unlike many British workmen, doesn't spend his spare time at the "pubs," public-houses or saloons. He neither drinks nor smokes. And he doesn't go to the movies.

Mummery is religious. He is a regular churchgoer. And he and his brood look to the church festivals for all their amusement.

"We go to the concerts and the services at the Browning Settlement, which is near where we live. These entertainments don't cost anything, and they are pleasant.

"They often have lemonade and cake, and the cost is so small that anybody can afford it if he has a regular job."

That, in brief, is how a man is supporting himself, his wife, and five children on $13.0 0a week.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Funeral of Mr. Hedger on Tuesday Afternoon—Personal Mention. Fine Exhibition.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 4.—Mr. Hedger, who died on Sunday morning, August 31st, at the age of eighty-seven years, after almost a year of illness, was buried from his late residence on Canrobert Street on Tuesday afternoon at the Warkworth Cemetery. He was born in Tyronne County in Ireland on March 15th, 1837. In 1863 he married Miss Lily Hayes in Ireland, and they came over to the States the same month that they were married. In a very short time they came to Colborne, Ontario, and later to the farm in Percy, where his son, Mr. Wm. Hedger, now lives. About seventeen years ago, when his wife died, he came to Campbellford and lived with his daughter, Mrs. Jabez McCullogh. The late Mrs. Hedger died seven years ago, on the 2nd of September. Their wedding anniversary was September 3rd, and Mr. Hedger was buried on September 2nd, the same date that his wife died. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church. Rev. C. F. McIntosh had the funeral service, assisted by Rev. W. Elliott, of the Methodist Church.

The pall-bearers were his six sons-in-law. Among the beautiful flowers sent was a wreath from the family. He leaves six daughters and one son, the other son, John, having died about twenty-four years ago. They are: Mrs. Fred. McMullen, Mrs. Dennis Owens, Mrs. Sam. Parks, Mrs. Jabez McCullogh, Mrs. Geo. Hendry, all of Campbellford; Mrs. James Leonard of Seymour, Mrs. Harry Bertrand of Norwood, and the son, Mr. Wm. Hedger, on the homestead in Percy. He has about twenty grandchildren. One brother George, who came out from Ireland about two years later than the deceased, and who lived at Gravenhurst, died six years ago. The following relatives from a distance attended the funeral: Mr. and Mrs. James Hedger of Barrie, Mr. and Mrs. Fred. McGlennon of Lake Port, Mrs. John Youmans, Mr. Wm. Kernargan and Mr. George Brannigan of Colborne.

Archer—Thain.

On Wednesday, September 3rd, 1924, at eleven o'clock a.m., Lottie I., only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Thain, Seymour Street, was married to Mr. Ray I. Archer, second son of Mr. Joshua Archer, of Percy. Rev. Mr. Daniels, of Seymour Circuit, officiated. The young couple were unattended, and were married under a white arch decorated with green. The flower girl was a cousin of the bride, Helen Thain, of Seymour. Mr. Warne of Peterboro played the wedding march.

The groom's gift to the bride was a string of pearls; to the pianist, a platinum bar-pin, and to the flower girl a bar-pin.

The bride was dressed in white Kan-jori silk, draped with veil and orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of roses and fern. Her travelling suit was navy blue, with hat to match. There were about sixty guests present at the ceremony. A dainty wedding breakfast was served in the dining-room, after which the bride and groom left on the 1.30 train for Toronto and other points.

Among the guests present at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Warren Hall and family of Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. Sparrow of Shannonville, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Humphrey of Hastings, Mrs. Miles of Warsaw, Reeve and Mrs. C. Davidson, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Donald and son Miller, Mrs. Amos Green, Mr. and Mrs. Blakeley, and Mr. and Mrs. George Dunn, all of Campbellford.

On Thursday of last week a surprise party and miscellaneous shower was given the bride at her home. There were about one hundred and fifty present. She received many beautiful presents. During the evening the Burnbrae Church choir, of which she was organist, presented her with a music rack. The evening was spent in music and dancing, after which all enjoyed the refreshments served by the ladies present.

LAUGHTER PASSES FROM HUMAN RACE

Doctor of Philosophy Predicts Death of Laugh—Paints Dreary Future.

A dreary future, in which no one will ever laugh, is predicted by Dr. Charles Gray Shaw, who teaches philosophy at New York University. Many signboards point that way.

People certainly do not laugh as much as they used to. Comedians in recent years have been complaining in its existence to grin about, it can always look back and laugh at us.

ing that audiences are becoming more solemn, with the "Dare you to make me smile" attitude.

This is due partly to the war, which took most of the joy out of life and shocked people into serious attitude. But, even more, it's a result of publicity. In former generations jokes traveled slowly, were carried about by theatrical troupers and drummers. Today the new joke on Broadway is carried by newspapers, vaudeville and radio all over the country, and quickly.

Naturally, with such fast circulation, the life of a joke is shorter.

Then, too humor has become a scientific business. Hundreds of clever comic artists and column conductors are on the alert for new "gags." The old ones have been classified, rehashed, disguised, served time and again. Every one knows them—except the rising generation.

But scientific distribution of available humor is not what Shaw has in mind when he predicts a future without laughs. Primitive man, he says, didn't know enough to laugh, since wit involves a certain amount of intelligence.

"The men of the future will know too much to laugh at anything. We laugh at what we do not understand, or at what seems inferior to us. In both cases, our pride induces us to assume an exalted position and haughty air. Men used to laugh at Columbus and Galileo. Now they try to joke about Einstein and Freud.

"On the social side we are prone to laugh at people who appear inferior or who are forced to assume degrading positions. The prince laughs at the pauper. The city person snickers at the rustic. The native citizen smiles at the immi-

CHINA GRIPPED BY OPIUM EVIL AND CIVIL WAR

Battles Cost Money and Tax On Opium Is Natural Source.

SWAYS COUNTRY.

Ancient Devils Seize Modern Inhabitants of Oriental Country.

By ROSE C. FELD.

China is once again in the grip of the opium evil. The poppy is growing abundantly in fields that should be sown with wheat and rice; people in many provinces and districts are suffering for want of food because of the lack of grains, and opium is being smoked freely and openly under the eyes of the Government. This retrogression is due entirely to the fact that China today is practically in a state of civil warfare. Each province has its own military Governor, most often a General, and each Governor has his troops, which must be kept in a constant state of preparedness. The support of troops costs money; money means taxation of the people, and nothing in China is as lucrative as a tax on opium. Through "military" necessity, therefore, and often military coercion and control, farmers in Canada are planting the poppy. Missionaries write that Christian Chinamen who refuse to grow the plant are actually being penalized by local military governments.

A recent investigation by the International Anti-Opium Association, with offices in Peking, covering the period between October, 1923, and April, 1924, shows that the old opium-smoking China is in the saddle, with young progressive China practically powerless to prevent it. Conservative opinion here and in China holds that the thing will spend itself in time, that it is an evil merely coincident with the chaotic state in which the vast country finds itself and that China will come out of it as soon as civil warfare ceases. It may take ten years, twenty years or thirty years, it is stated, but it will die. The sensible Chinaman is not unaware of the demoralizing effects of the narcotic.

Some idea of how great is the present backsliding can be gained by some pertinent facts in the history of the fight on the drug. China, it should be remembered, exports very little opium. It consumes virtually all it produces and manufactures. This has been true in the past; it is true today. British India, Turkey and Persia, the three other great opium growing countries, supply much of the rest of the world's opium and its derivations, morphine and heroin.

The use of opium is an ancient evil in China. At the close of the last century progressive public opinion discovered that the land and its people were saturated with the drug. Not only were there vast growth and traffic within the nation, but, in addition, China was importing opium from other countries. Chief among these was British India. This trade was a mine of wealth to the English, even though, as has since been stated, the traffic was considered morally indefensible."

English Trade Reduced.

At the beginning of the twentieth century, however, English opinion had grown so strong against this form of revenue that measures were taken to put a stop to it. An agreement was made between England and China whereby England promised to steadily diminish the exports of opium from India to China between the years 1907 and 1917, and China agreed to cut down its own production. England lived up to the letter and spirit of the agreement. By 1914, it is stated, three years before the end of the term, opium had ceased coming in from India. A conscientious Administration had made this change possible.

In China proper, however, the problem was more difficult. The territory was stupendous, the Viceroys of the provinces, not all converted to the idea that so great a cut in revenue was justifiable, were an obstructive force. Yuan Shi-kai, assisted by Sir John Jordan, the British Minister, who was intensely interested in the building up of a new China, and foreign missionaries, did a vast amount of cleaning up by 1917. Optimists at that time thought that the drug was finally stamped out. That, however, seems not to be the case.

China and its reformers, both native and foreign, had much cause for congratulation. Unfortunately, however, simultaneous with the stamping out of one evil, a new one sneaked into the country. Sneaked is the proper word. The opium that India, Persia, Turkey and other poppy-growing countries export found its way into factories in England, Scotland, Germany, Japan and the United States. There opium was manufactured into derivative drugs, morphine and heroin. These became a substitute for the missing opium. As much as twenty-eight tons of morphine, it is stated, have been smuggled into China annually in the past six or seven years. Morphine today is cheaper than ever in the Far East.

Much of the drug that finds its way into China comes originally from the United States. The whole coast of China within easy access of Japan, where it is manufactured and imported, is dotted with smuggling stations. The customs authorities, many of them honest and sincere in their effort to do their duty, find their hands practically tied by the huge, powerful army conducting this traffic.

Basil Matthews, an Englishman who has made a study of the subject, gives instances of Chinese smuggling ingenuity. A woman left a ship with a basket of kittens which upon examination were found to be dead, their skins covering bags of morphine. A sailor came down a gangplank with a parrot in a cage, a common sight. Upon investigation by customs officials the cage proved to have a false bottom filled with the drug. Oranges are often scooped out and filled with morphine or heroin, a cake of soap is sometimes hollowed out and is used as a container, false steam pipes in railroad cars carry it.

Morphia Smuggled In.

According to the figures of Dr. Wu Lnie-teh, director of the North Manchurian Plague Prevention Service, the amount of morphia smuggled into China since 1911 has been multiplied by five. Here are his figures:

1911..... 5.5 tons 1916 .....16 tons
1912..... 7.5 tons 1917 .....22.5 tons
1913.....11.25 tons 1918 .....22.5 tons
1914.....14 tons 1919 .....28 tons
1915.....16 tons

Two hundredweight of morphine, it is stated, is enough to meet the present medical needs of the country. The rest goes to drug addicts.

In the past the United States for one, was negligent in its duty to other nations by exporting large quantities of drugs without questioning their destination. To-day, however, it is not so easy to make a shipment of narcotics. If China, for instance, wants a certain amount of morphine, there are many legal formalities to observe. The Chinese merchant or wholesale druggist in China applies first to the American Consul in his city, then to his own Government, for permission to import. He then sends both certified documents to the American exporter. The latter, before he can make shipment, must apply for a permit from the Bureau of Narcotics at Washington. Only a limited quantity may go to any country. If the Bureau at Washington gives its permission the shipment may go ahead. If not, it is stopped.

The Heart of the Problem.

The League of Nations is now working on this problem of importation certificates. The system, boiled down to simplest terms, provides that every application for permission to export dangerous drugs must be accompanied by a certificate from the importing country stating that the consignment is approved by the Government, and is required for legitimate purposes.

Many exporting countries, fearful of losing this revenue, refuse to be bound by these terms. To force them to comply, the Assembly of the League passed a resolution requesting governments not to buy drugs from countries which have not ratified the adoption of some form of international certificates of import. This amounts to a boycott and may be successful. At the last meeting of the Opium Committee of the League most of the exporting countries had manifested their willingness to abide by the rules, but the traffic still continues through underground routes.

It may be that the League may partially succeed in controlling the amount of drugs that goes into a country. But the problem is more fundamental than export and import. A final solution can only come through regulation of the source of supply. Can the League or any body control the production of the poppy which gives opium, morphine and heroin and the plant which makes cocaine? There, after all lies the crux of the question. Who will decide how much is necessary for legitimate purposes? Can the various Governments make a monopoly of the production, manufacture and sale of drugs? All these are phases of the subject which bring increasing difficulties into the situation.

Right now in China, as a matter of fact, something like Government control is in operation, but, unfortunately, that control is vicious. China is trying to become a political democracy. In time, as the more progressive spirits of the nation hope, it may turn out to be a United States of Asia, each province with powers of a State, and a powerful central Government similar to the Federal Government at Washington. Meanwhile, one province fights another. Each province has its own military governor, its own militia, its own troops. What there is of a central Government is practically helpless. Most of the provinces have a combination of civil and military government, but, as pointed out by observers interested in China, what can a civil Government do in a state of war? There are soldiers to feed, to clothe, to equip. That means money. Opium always brings a good price and always produces large taxes. To tax a wheat field is a picayune way of raising revenue when that same field can be sown with poppies, which bring a vastly greater return.

One Province Clean.

The various provinces differ from each other, because each province has its own controlling body, working independently of the next. In some sections control is rigid and conditions clean—Shansi, for example. The Governor of this province is Yen Hsi-shan. According to the report, not a poppy is grown in this territory. Opium, however, comes in from the neighboring provinces of Shensi and Honan. It is stated that Governor Yen wrote to the Governors of Shensi and Honan urging them to take measures of prohibition. "My province would be clean but for smuggling from your territories," he said. The smuggling, however, has not ceased.

Shansi has 105 hsiens or districts. In eighty-five of these opium societies have been established the President of which is nearly always the Magistrate of the district. During the last two years, it is asserted, 51,000 persons have been treated in the opium curing houses, 3,000 persons have been arrested as smugglers, and 15,000 as smokers. During 1922 nearly 40,000 ounces of opium and morphia and 18,000 opium lamps and pipes were seized and burned.

By extensive circulation of anti-opium literature all over the province and by public lectures, the people are being educated to the evils of the habit. Opium smokers and pill eaters when arrested are compulsorily sent to curing houses. Upon discharge they are fined $30. This money is returned to them at the end of one year if they continue to abstain. But for the menace of the neighboring provinces, it is stated, and the morphia traffic along the Peking-Hankow Railroad, narcotics would be unknown in Shensi.

Take Honan, the district near Shan. Whole sections of this province are said to be growing nothing but opium. After the poppy is gathered the ground is planted with rice. The provincial Constitution, which is the civil Constitution, definitely prohibits the use of opium in this province. The military authorities, however, now in power, permit its sale, import, export and use provided the purchase bears the stamp tax of the military monopoly. This monopoly is controlled by General Chao-Heng-Ti. His stamps have been distributed to all districts in the province for opium-taxing purposes.

Hung Chiang is the distributing centre for this province. Fleets of hundreds of boats bring the drug down from Kweichow. These boats, it is said, are under strong military escort. The General pays his soldiers with the duty levied on the opium. Hung Chiang has 60,000 inhabitants. Its opium dens total more than two hundred.

Fukien, a province on the coast, shows a state of general retrogression. The whole province is virtually under military and compulsory poppy cultivation. About 70,000 soldiers, under five principal Generals, together with the navy and the marines, are being supported by opium taxation. Predecessors of the Generals now in command had collected land taxes three years in advance, and the only means for raising necessary funds to maintain the present army was either to collect taxes for one or two more years, or to impose one special tax such as that on opium cultivation. The latter was decided upon. Wherever troops are stationed the growing of opium is compulsory. Magistrates issue the orders and soldiers enforce them. Riots have been frequent, and in several places, it is stated, peasants have been shot down and villages burnt. Taxation is not only applied to land under poppy cultivation, but opium is taxed in transit from the region controlled by one General to that of another. Opium dens are taxed at a monthly rate per pipe, and additional taxes for permits to sell are imposed upon all dealers.

Amoy, a city on the coast, has established an open Government monopoly typical of other sections. All opium is purchased by the monopoly at $1.50 and sold at the fixed price of $4 an ounce. It is estimated that over $500 a month will be thus cleared. All cultivation is under monopoly permit and all sales are negotiated by monopoly agents.

Conditions are practically the same in other provinces, and local districts varying only as the personal expression of the Administration varies. In Kwangsi, for instance, the Military Governor collects 33 1-3 per cent tax on opium. The annual quantity used there is estimated roughly at fifty-six tons. Opium in Kwangsi sells at $80 per hundred ounces. In Suiyan, the military office taxes opium at 30 cents an ounce. The office imports and distributes the produce for sale. Stamps are printed for various quantities. One ounce gets the 30-cent stamp, ten ounces a $3 stamp, thirty ounces a $9 stamp. In Sinkiang each mou of land is taxed $30 whether or not it is planted with opium.

It is estimated that in China alone, during the year 1923, 12,000 tons of opium were produced. All the rest of the countries producing this drug, including India, Persia and Turkey, totalled 1,500 tons. This will give some idea of the present situation in China.

Competent observers believe that just as soon as a strong central Government is built up in China there will be drastic control of the drug.

"The old Chinaman is to-day in power," one authority explained. "The young Chinamen, the boys who have been educated in the West and have acquired Western culture and ideals, have not yet reached a place of importance in the nation. They are still considered the talkers, not the doers. They're young, they haven't dug their heels into property, into politics, into business and industry. Ten and twenty years from now they will be the big men of the nation. Then the revolution there will get its real impetus. Construction changes will come. Meanwhile but little can be done. China can promise a League of Nations a hundred times over that the production of the drug will be stopped, but as long as power is distributed among provinces and Military Governors, nothing will be done."

CANADA NEEDS NO MORE IMMIGRANTS

Toronto Can Look After Its Own Citizens, But No More.

OTTAWA, Sept. 4.— (Canadian Press.)—From Halifax to Vancouver representatives of provinces and municipalities received yesterday in the Dominion unemployment conference distress due to unemployment, their fears of an aggravation, of this situation in coming months, and stressed with complete unanimity that the Federal government was primarily responsible for conditions, and should shoulder a fair share of the responsibility for present relief and future requirements for this purpose. From every city and province came the same story of abnormal unemployment. Every municipal and labor representative denounced the government's immigration policy as unfair, both to the emigrant and to Canadian labour. Mayor Duquette, of Montreal, advocated an embargo on pulp wood. Mayor Sanson, Quebec, declared the shoe factories of his city were running less than half time. Mrs. Edith Rogers, M.L.A., Winnipeg, spoke of distress in that city and failure of the government's immigration and settlement policies. Mayor Hiltz declared that Toronto could look after its own citizens, but no more, while Mayor Jutten, Hamilton, drew a gloomy picture of industrial conditions in that manufacturing city.

On motion of Mayor Hiltz of Toronto, seconded by Controller C. J. Tuller, of Ottawa, the conference appointed a representative committee to summarize views expressed throughout the day and draft a resolution for presentation at to-day's meeting. The member of the committee are: Hon. R. G. Reid, Provincial Treasurer of Alberta; S. J. Farmer, Mayor of Winnipeg; John Murphy, Mayor of Halifax; J. R. Shaw, of Woodstock, Ont., former president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association; J. M. Piggott, of Hamilton, President of the Association of Canadian Building and Construction Industries, and John W. Bruce, general organizer of the United Association of Plumbers and Steam Fitters, Toronto.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

A FUNNY CLOTHES-LINE

Weeny, the elephant, and Nancy and Nick left Mrs. Lion's house in such a hurry that they almost forgot their satchel.

Weeny just had time to grab it with his trunk before Mister Lion came roaring after them.

But no wonder Mr. Lion was cross! Weeny had eaten up every bit of his dinner—soup, biscuits, marmalade, and all!

"Where's my dinner? I want my dinner," roared poor Mister Lion.

"You said you were having crocodile wings and guinea pig tails," laughed the elephant. "So I guess you have as many now as you had before. Good-by."

And away he trotted down the road with Nancy and Nick on his back, giggling so hard that his sides shook up and down and it was all the children could do to stick on.

By and by he stopped. "Ho, hum," he said, putting his satchel down and wiping his tiny eyes with his trunk. "I am having the best time on my vacation. But I do wish I could find a peanut tree."

"I told you that peanuts don't grow on trees," said Nick.

"Did you?" said Weeny. "So you did. I remember. You said they grew in paper bags."

"No, I didn't," said Nick. I said ——".

But Weeny interrupted him. "I do declare. I didn't know we had come so far. Do I or do I not see Mister Giraffe's head over those tree tops. Get me my specks, Nancy."

So Nancy slid down and opened his satchel and gave him his specks and he hooked them behind his ears.

"Yes, sir. That's him," said Weeny.

"It's him," said Weeny crossly. "I guess I know my geography, so I do. I know it's him because he looks as though his ears had been stuck on with clothes-pins, such funny horns he has. Hello, there, Mister Giraffe!"

Mister Giraffe looked their way and made some funny motions with his head.

"What's he doing?" asked Nick.

"Wig-wagging," said Weeny. "Giraffe's can't say a word—no voices at all! So they've learned to wig-wag."

"What's he saying!" asked Nancy.

"He said to please come and help him," said Weeny.

So over they went.

"My wife went to a party and left the washing out to dry," wig-wagged Mister Giraffe. "She always uses my neck on Mondays for the clothes-line But I got a crick in it and straightened up, and the clothes fell off. She'll be as cross as a plus-mark when she comes back. I was wondering what to do."

"We'll help you," said Nancy.

So she and Nick and Weeny picked up the clothes and hung them on Mister Giraffe's neck again, while he obligingly stretched it out.

"Goodby," said Weeny. "We're going on our vacation."

Mister Giraffe didn't answer.

He didn't dare to wig-wag or the clothes would have slid off again.

SHOT AT PREMIER.

Mussolini, of Italy, Had Narrow Escape While Out Driving.

LONDON, September 4 (United Press). — Reports of an attempt to assassinate Premier Mussolini near Acqua Pendente on Sunday night have caused a sensation in Italy, according to the Daily Express Rome correspondent, who says the Stock Exchange was affected adversely.

A general opinion prevails that the opponents of the Fascisti Government were the authors of the outrage.

The attempt, the correspondent says, presumably against Mussolini's life, was made while the Premier was motoring from Acqua Pendente to Rome.

Shots were fired from the roadside.

Mussolini's car was untouched, but a second car was hit.

VALENTINO COMES BACK GRACEFULLY

Latest Picture, "Monsieur Beaucaire," at Grauman's Million Dollar Theatre.

By JACK JUNGMEYER.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 4.—If there had been any doubt that the Valentino vogue had waned during his absence from the screen, it has been completely dissipated by the ovation given him at the western premier of "Monsieur Beaucaire" at Grauman's Million Dollar Theatre in Los Angeles and the New York opening at the Strand.

Here not only picture celebrities massed as they have seldom gathered for any first showing, but folk who make and maintain the cinema gods clamored for standing room. Women largely, yes. But men, too, who hope to learn about gallants from Rudy.

The picture amply justifies the curiosity and continued patronage.

Every bit of painstaking labor, artistry and prescience which could be summoned by Paramount, the producers, was focused in the making of "Beaucaire." It will undoubtedly stand high among the best ten of the season's contributions.

As a gorgeous costume play, and for sheer beauty of presentation, it has never been topped. Very cannily, perhaps with some doubt as to Valentino's reception, the producers did not subordinate the production to the star. It stands very sturdily upon its own handsome legs, without, however, distracting in any wise from Valentino's personality and gifts or his own prodigally displayed nethers. For this balance, "Beaucaire" is a rare achievement.

The picture, too, entrenches Sidney Olcott, director, among the stalwarts of his craft. To him much of the film's superb quality is due.

In the role of cavalier at the studiously erotic court of Louis XV. and the assemblies of the powerful Madame Pompadour, Valentino has wide latitude to display those amorous traits which have made him an idol.

Rudy's Silk Tights.

"Beaucaire" is a prince who masquerades for a time as a barber to escape the dangerous displeasure of Pompadour and the complexities of romantic escapades. In his disguise he thanks his pagan gods that he is not expected to make love to every woman he meets. But as the barber, he jumps from frying pan into fire in an entanglement with the belle of Bath, Lady Mary, shallow leader of England's smart set of the hour. After an exile replete with risky adventure he returns to marry the dignified and virginal French girl who alone had rebuffed his mocking advances.

In adapting himself to the role of a French dandy, Valentino has shuffled off some of his characteristic languor.

The usual physical stress is less evident in "Beaucaire" than in its immediate precursors. This despite the fact that producers made an obvious effort to cater to the presumed erotic interest of his followers—in dwelling upon scenes displaying Rudy's bare torso, his silk tights, his fencing and athletic prowess, the corporeal Valentino rather than the actor.

His love making is set to incident calculated to bring out a new pathetic quality. In this part he is not so much master as victim. Pity is added to the tribute of his votaries. This reaches its height in the sequence with Lady Mary who recoils when she discovers "the barber's" masquerade and he is wounded in an unequal duel for her sake.

Seeing Valentino in this his screen resurrection, one is challenged anew to define his charm and undeniable hold on a vast following. Mere physical appeal does not wholly account for it. Nor his mere acting ability, appraised as that may be.

Is it his seeming modesty under the camera, his air of deference in romantic situation, his designing show of reluctance to reveal consuming passions, so provocative to those who like to toy with fire?

BROKE BOTH WRISTS.

Kingston Boy Jumped From Load of Hay When Horses Bolted.

KINGSTON, Ont., Sept. 4.—(Special).—Milton Storms, aged 11 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Storms, living at Violet, had both his wrists broken, when he jumped off a load of hay when a team of horses became frightened and ran away. The lad's father also jumped off the load, and one wheel of the waggon passed over his leg, but he escaped serious injury.

The injured boy walked to his home, a half mile from the scene of the accident, and greeted his mother as follows: "Don't worry about me, mother, I have both my wrists broken, but I will be all right."

He was brought to the General Hospital in Kingston, and is doing well.

TWO SCHOLARSHIPS.

Robert Fowler, of the Collegiate, Made a Good Record.

Robert Fowler, of the Collegiate Institute, is to be congratulated for having won two scholarships at the honour matriculation examinations held in June last.

Robert won the Second Edward Blake Mathematics Proficiency Scholarship ($235), obtaining first-class honours in English literature and English composition, Latin authors and Latin composition, French authors and French composition, physics, algebra, geometry, trigonometry and problems.

He also ranked first for the Second Edward Blake Mathematics Scholarship (algebra, geometry, trigonometry and problems). This scholarship is worth $220, but as no person is eligible to hold two scholarships the second one was awarded to the candidate who came second.

This is a splendid showing for a pupil seventeen years of age in competition with the rest of the Province.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

REASONS WHY THE CENTRALIZED SYSTEM

Of Issuing Automobile Licenses from Toronto should be Opposed.

(1) It is claimed that there would be a saving of $40,000 to the government in issuing licenses from Toronto only.

What are the facts as far as can be ascertained?

At present issuers outside of Toronto are paid a modest 25c for each license issued (this includes filling out applications forms for at least 90 per cent. of the applicants) to which is added say 3c per license as overhead charges in Toronto, making 28c per license.

Making a total cost of $56,000 for approximately 200,000 licenses issued outside of Toronto.

With the proposed system the cost would work out approximately as follows:

Cost of issuing license at Toronto, lowest cost	6c
Cost of mailing license to applicant	15c
Cost of mailing permit card	3c
Cost of forwarding a letter for correction to 10 per cent of outside applicants, including stationery and postage	1c
Total average cost of issuing one license	25c
Total average cost of issuing 200,000 licenses	$50,000

There a saving to the government of $6,000.

Against which there is an added cost to the applicant of postage of application	3c
To which should be added cost of forwarding second application by 10 per cent. of the applicants owing to incorrect or incompleted form	1c
No cost for declaring of affidavit.
Cost to average applicant	4c
Total cost for 200,000	$8,000

Therefore making an additional cost of $2,000 to all concerned.

No consideration is taken of the added quarters that may have to be secured in Toronto to handle the 265,000 licenses that are issued for the province.

(2) It will take at least two days for any mailing applicant to secure a license, and probably more, owing to the demand for the majority of licenses being concentrated in one month.

(3) It is possible in almost every case at present to state the locality of any license number, owing to certain series of numbers being issued by the 82 issuers outside of Toronto (12 issuers only are officials of Motor Clubs.)

The records of the local issuers are now of considerable value to police officials in tracing stolen cars and in promptly locating owners of local cars. If application had to be made to Toronto for this information the delay would be prejudicial to law enforcement, and in case of accidents might have serious consequences.

(4) Centralized license-issuing has not been successful in many States, including the State of New York, Ohio and Michigan, and also the Province of Quebec.

(5) The proposed system would be a retrograde movement in the service rendered to aproximately 265,000 motorists in Ontario, which is being increased by ten per cent. yearly.

(6) As it costs practically twenty-cents for the local club to issue the licenses, the only particular advantage in issuing them here is that an opportunity is given to advertise the Ontario Motor League and secure the co-operation of the motorist in supporting the League in its work of road-signing, etc., which might be considered as an assistance to the Provincial government.

COUPE STOLEN THEN ABANDONED

Found Upside Down in Ditch on Provincial Highway.

Some unknown party took a coupe from 415 Rubidge street, on Monday evening. The car belonged to Miss Margaret Hamilton, who at the time was out of the city.

The stolen car was found the next morning about four miles from the city, turned turtle, in the right ditch of the Port Hope Provincial Highway.

The police are working on the case but as yet the night marauder has not been found. The brakes were jammed on when the car was found and this leads some to believe that the thief was intoxicated.

EVACUATION OF RUHR.

Battalion of 16th Artillery Will Be Withdrawn To-night.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 4. — Canadian Press. — The Belgian military evacuation of the Ruhr begins to-night with the withdrawal of a battalion of the 16th artillery, which will rejoin the garrison at Tillemont. Other units will be taken out from time to time. The second stage of the evacuation will be the removal of the infantry, which will be brought back by entire regiments, instead of by battalions.

A NEW CHANCELLOR.

TORONTO, Sept. 4. — (Canadian Press)—By acclamation, Sir William Mulock was elected yesterday by a graduate body to the office of Chancellor of the University of Toronto, in succession to the late Sir Edmund Walker.

Sir William was appointed by the University Senate to succeed the late Sir Edmund during interregnum between Sir Edmund's death and the quadrennial election. It was generally believed that Sir William would be the new Chancellor, but it was not until last night, with nominations all in, that Registrar James Brosner was able to announce definitely that there had been but one nomination for the Chancellorship, that of Sir William.

FABLES ON HEALTH

A hair specialist to whom Mrs. Mann of Anytown, went once in a while prescribed for her a good treatment for the hair, and one easily secured.

Each day ventilate and thoroughly shake the hair to rid it of dust that may have gathered.

A tonic may be easily made at home from a pint of witch-hazel, 8 ounces of eau de cologne and a few drams of chloroform (three drams are preferable.) Apply the lotion with a sponge after shaking out the dust.

If applied twice a day a good tonic is secured, according to many testimonials.

When the hair is entirely dry brush it with a quick downward stroke until a gloss appears.

This is a particularly easy process with bobbed hair in vogue.

In applying a shampoo a tablespoonful of borax has been found beneficial for cleansing the scalp; it also heal the irritation of soreness that may be bothering the scalp.

NEGRO PETITION

WASHINGTON, Septemer 4 (Canadian Press). — Petition on behalf of "four million members of the Universal Negro Improvement Association,' 'with a million actual signatures, was presented to President Coolidge yesterday, praying his cooperation in the movement to transfer the negro population of the United States to Africa.

The petition points out that with the growth in numbers and the efficiency of the negro race in the United States, race conflicts seem almost certain to arise, and urges the President to use his good influence with the "State and other Departments of your Government to facilitate in every way the exorts to repatriate the American negroes in Africa and in the development of such independent negro nations as are now existing."

"GAS"

Forty years ago, kerosene was the main by products of crude oil. Around refineries, men drew off a barrel of gasoline to wash a pair of overalls, and dumped it out. Then came the auto.

This year, refiners say, 9177 million gallons of gasoline will be produced in the United States. This will be a fifth more than in 1923. How long, at this rate of increase, until the underground oil reserves will be exhausted?

The future fuel, and probably within your lifetime, will be alchol or electricity sent by radio from central stations.

SYOSSET, Long Island, N.Y., Sept 4. (United Press.) — "The pace that kills," is just a jog trot for Britain's prince.

An average of about six hours sleep each morning seems to be all His Highness requires.

The Prince dined with members of the British International polo team, a grouping of noted sportsmen, at the Pipingrock Club, last night. He bade farewell to his hosts at an early hour of the morning, and went on somewhere else to dance till dawn.

The Pipingrock party was a stag with about 150 horsemen present. Everything was decidedly informal, and Wales, who was seated between H. Rogers, Winthrop and Clarence MacKay, chatted with his hosts and appeared to be enjoying himself hugely.

INTERNATIONAL LOAN.

What If American Money Loan Is Spent on Armies.

HULL, England, Sept. 4.—(United Press).—The wisdom of making an international loan to Germany since the money might go eventually for armament and lead to the "final obliteration of the civilized world," was challenged to-day by Wm. Brady, delegate to the American Federation of Labor to the British Trades Union Congress.

"American bankers advance the money," Brady said, referring to a proposed $200,000,000 loan. Then they expect a general minority to repay the American investor, after France has the money. What folly it would be if the money then were spent so as to lead to bigger armies and navys.

Brady contemplates the assessment of heavy German reparations and deplored the "six years of purgatory that followed the armistice."

BANK CLEARINGS.

The Total For This Week Is Away Down.

The bank clearings for the week ending to-day shows a decrease of $153,098, when compared with last week. The clearings for this week amounted to $618,006, for last week $771,103, and for the corresponding week one month ago and one years ago the totals were $823,227 and $754,877 respectively.

A VETERAN CONDCUTOR.

STRATFORD, Sept. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Robert Thomas Buchanan, aged 78, one of the oldest railway conductors in the city, and the man who conducted the first train from Stratford to Owen Sound, died at his home here Tuesday. Mr. Buchanan was also one of the oldest Masons in the city.

Mr. Buchanan is survived by one son and one daughter: Sam. Buchanan, of Owen Sound, and Miss Mary A. Buchanan of this city.

GAIN.

Out of miles of statistics and endless argument about our foreign trade comes this fact which sums the situation in a nutshell:

Reducing our foreign trade to 1913 prices (so we won't be fooled into mistaking higher prices for an increase in the physical volume of trade), American exports are about 20 per cent more than they were before the war, and imports have increased 45 per cent.

FACTORY WAS BURNED.

Loss at Cooksville Estimated at Between $400,000 and $500,000.

COOKSVILLE, Ont., Sept. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Bursting upon a group of workmen in the plant without warning flames last night totally destroyed the machine shop and equipment of the Cooksville Shale and Brick Company, on Dundas Highway, one mile west of here.

Late last evening while jets of flame were still shooting up from the smouldering ruins of what had been the largest shop of its kind on the continent it was difficult to obtain an estimate of the loss. A. U. Coats, manager of the Company, was unable to place a definite estimate of damage but stated that property loss, in addition to loss of business, would amount to between $400,000 and $500,000.

A means to preserve one of the most powerful of feminine appeals, ageless, always potent in womankind. It is the appeal which is your person—dainty, sweet, immaculately clean.

And it is a thing which is not attained by soap and water, by perfumed baths, alone. For there is a trouble maker here which calls for corrective measures. — Perspiration always leaves the lingering mark of its presence.

Under the arm it is particularly troublesome—due to the fact that the perspiration glands here are very active and normal evaporation in this shut-in hollow is impossible. Physicians call this condition Hyperidrosis and say it is entirely harmless to control excessive perspiration in so small an area.

As a safe, scientific corrective of excessive perspiration Odorono was formulated by a physician. It is now widely used in hospitals by physicians and nurses.

One application gives you complete relief from all perspiration annoyance for at least three days. Its regular use just twice a week will safeguard you from distressing perspiration moisture and unpleasant underarm odor.

No more stained and ruined clothing; no more doubt of your perfect daintiness! Enjoy this assurance. You can get Odorono at any toilet counter, 35c, 60c and $1, or sent by mail postpaid. Address The Odorono Company, Ltd., 107 Duke Street, Toronto.

KINGSTON WENT 12 INNINGS TO CHECK JUNIORS

Lakeviews Stick To Guns For Twelve Frames Before Wild Crowd at Kingston.

SCORE WAS 2 ALL.

Both Whitehouse and Clarke Go Route and Turn in Fine Exhibitions.

The fighting Lakeviews of this city chased the noted Circle Six team of Kingston into a 12-innings game yesterday, and the game would have gone much farther had it not been on account of darkness, as both teams were very evenly matched, and neither was making headway in the run column. The final score was 2 all, and neither team scored in the last five innings.

Circle Six took the lead in the fourth when they scored one on a single, a fielders' choice and a double. At this stage of the game one run looked very big, and when they added another to it in the sixth it looked as if the game was shot.

The Petes, fighting with their backs to the wall, turned around in the seventh inning and tied up the score on a single by Whitlow, a sacrifice by Whitehouse, a double by Halliday and a timely single by Johnston. This sewed the game up, and it stood like this till the end, and would have most likely stayed like this for two or three more runs had the game not been called at the end of the twelfth.

Frank Whitehouse went the route on the mound for the Lakeviews, and turned in a nice battle. He was in great shape, and although the large crowd of fans were never quiet, he stuck to his post well and was going better at the end of the game than at the start. The fans were no doubt a little wild over losing the protest, and they endeavored to take it out on the Petes. They kept up their razzing all through the game, and attempted to start a riot after the game, but the Peterboro boys managed to get away unhurt.

Clarke, who did the mound work for the Circle Six nine, was a mystery to the Petes. They hit him often but either couldn't get the ball out of the infield or knocked it right into the fielders' mitts. Eight high flies were knocked to the outfield, and a slip on nearly any one would have given the Lakeviews the verdict, but the Kingston gang are a smart bunch of fielders, and they robbed the Petes of hits time and again.

The Lakeviews were in dead earnest all the way, but when they evened up the score in the seventh inning they brightened up a little and were right on their toes for the rest of the game.

Kingston's one run in the fourth was made by shear luck as their was one man down. The next man up drove a high fly back of second, but the ball got away from Marchen in the sun and the man was safe at first. The next man up hit to short stop, forcing the runner at second, making two down. The side would have been retired at this stage had the fly not got away from Marchen, but the fly got away and the next man up doubled, scoring Kingston's first run.

Whitehouse held the limestone lads to five scattered hits in the twelve innings while his opponent Clarke a right hander held the Lake views to eight scattered hits. The Petes had four errors to Kingston's 3, but none of them had anything to do with the runs.

Clarke the twirler was the outstanding player for the Circle Six while the whole infield and outfield worked like a machine and it seemed impossible to put a ball through the infield. Reid in centre field had a busy day when he handled five flies.

Whitehouse was the big factor for the Petes but LeBarr at first, Marchen at second, Johnston at third and Ash in left field all turned in a nice game.

C.G.E. BETHANY GAME ON FRIDAY AT 4 P.M.

First of Home and Home Series In Intermediate O.B.A.A. Section.

For their second round O.B.A.A. game with Bethany at Exhibition Park Friday afternoon the C.G.E. club has decided not to charge admission to the ground, but will take a silver collection for the grandstand.

The game is called for four o'clock and Bethany are coming in with threats of wielding the willow as strenuously as in their group games. C.G.E. go to Bethany on Tuesday and intend to take no chances with the Durham league champions who have demonstrated in their local appearance a dangerous batting power. This attraction tomorrow afternoon should draw a good crowd. Many of those who saw the C.G.E.-Oshawa game last Saturday expressed their satisfaction with the accommodation at the Exhibition Park and are expected to be regular fans at the south end ground for the rest of the season.

THREE MEN MISSING.

All Efforts of Search Parties To Locate Them Failed.

KIPAWA, Ont., Sept. 4. — Since last Monday night three men who left here to cruise the timber limits of the Pembroke Lumber Company, on the western shore of Kipawa Lake have been lost in the woods and all efforts of the search parties to locate them have failed.

None of the men knows the section where they are believed to be wandering, and they left camp without food.

The men are Joseph Lacroix, aged 55, Adelard Lepage, aged 23, both of Kipawa, and William Mercier of Sanlac, Quebec.

News of their plight was brought to Kipawa by Michael Lacroix, guide of the party, and brother of Joseph.

Camp was made on Lake Kipawa, about 12 miles from here on Monday afternoon. At dusk, and before they had had their evening meal, the three left the guide for a short tramp in the bush, expecting to return in an hour.

The guide waited till next morning for their return and then paddled to Kipawa in search of help.

Search parties set out but not a trace of the men has yet been found and huge bonfires made each night have failed to attract them.

Joseph Lacroix carried the rifle and as moose and deer abound in this region it is thought that the men may be able to sustain themselves.

EDITH CUMMINGS LOSES HER TITLE

Defeated By Miriam Burns in Women's Golf Tournament.

NAYATT, R.I., Sept. 4. — Miss Edith Cummings of Chicago was dethroned as woman champion golfer of the United States yesterday afternoon when she dropped an exciting match which sent three extra holes to Miriam Barns, of Kansas City. The better putting of the champion and her excellent approach work did not offset the long shots of Miss Burns in a heavy wind. After they had done the round in 87 each Miss Burns missed a putt of less than a yard to win at the first extra hole. At the last hole Miss Burns was on in two while Miss Cummings took four. The champion sank her fifth while Miss Burns took two to the cup.

Other matches of interest showed Miss Mary K. Browne, former tennis champion, defeating Miss Fordyce of Youngstown, Ohio, 2 and 1; Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd of Philadelphia beating Miss Orcutt of Englewood 6 and 4, and Miss Glenna Collett of Providence triumphing over Mrs. J. Renwick of Mount Kisco, 8 and 6.

AMERICAN LEAGUE PENNANT MAY HANG IN DOUBT UNTIL LAST DAY

Schedule For September's Climax Favors Detroit and St. Louis—New York and Washington Finish On the Road.

By Billy Evans

The American League pennant race has narrowed down to four clubs, New York and Washington in the east, Detroit and St. Louis in the west.

The month of September can be considered the home stretch of the long six months' campaign. The showing made in September will determine the pennant winner.

New York and Washington finish on the road. September 7 completes the home schedule of each club. From then on it is a battle on foreign fields for the Yankees and Nationals.

Playing away from home is no longer the great handicap that it once was. As a matter of fact, certain clubs play better abroad than at home.

Here is the situation that the four contenders face during September, the home stretch of the American League Derby.

Washington plays 25 games, five at home, 20 abroad.

Twelve of these games are against the west while 13 are with the east, seven with Boston and six with Philadelphia. The Athletics and Boston are now playing tight baseball.

New York plays 28 games, eight at home and 20 abroad.

Twelve games are staged with the west, while Philadelphia is met in seven games and Boston nine.

Detroit plays 26 games, 17 at home and nine on the road.

The Tygers play 12 of these games with the Chicago White Sox, always a troublesome club for the Cobbmen.

St. Louis has the most advantageous schedule for September of any of the contenders.

The Browns play 25 games, 20 at home and only five on the road. Ten games are with the Cleveland Indians.

It is a rather interesting fact that during the month of September no games will be played between the eastern contenders, New York and Washington, or the western leaders, Detroit and St. Louis.

New York and Washington had completed the 1924 schedule between the two clubs prior to September, as had St. Louis and Detroit.

If there is any great advantage in being at home while coming down the stretch, that margin is with Detroit and St. Louis, particularly the latter.

It seems as if rival clubs always take a keen delight in knocking off the champion, for that reason the New York club can expect the stern est opposition everywhere.

It would occasion no great surprise if all four contenders stayed in the race until the final week of play. Indeed it is very possible that the winner will not be determined until the last day.

That was the situation in the American League in 1908. If Chicago beat Detroit it meant the pennant Loss of the game dropped the White Sox to third.

Pitching, plus the club that gets the best managerial ride, are going to be the two big factors.

RICKARD RELIEVED.

Doesnt's Expect Firpo's Trouble To Prevent the Fight.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3. —Having shifted from Saratoga Springs to New York the scene of preparation for his 12 round battle with Harry Wills at Boyle's Thirty Acres on the night of September 11, Luis Angel Firpo to-day re-arranged his training schedule while Tex Rickard took steps to thwart any attempts to block the fight, growing out of agitation for the deportation of the Argentine heavyweight.

"We anticipate no actual interference with the match, despite proceedings now before the department of labor," dclared Rickard, referring to the efforts of the Rev. William S. Chase to have Firpo deported.

Nevertheless Rickard seemed relieved when informed that in department of labor circles it was not felt that sufficient time remained to accomplish deportation proceedings against Firpo before the fight.

DO YOU KNOW BASEBALL?

BY BILLY EVANS

QUESTIONS.

1. The other day in the summary of a big league game I noticed where a certain player had been used twice as a pinch runner. Was this a mistake in print or could such a thing happen? —D. Y.

2. Pitcher delivers a batted ball while not in his proper position on the rubber. No one was on base at the time. The ball was squarely over the plate, but since it was illegally delivered the umpire rules it a ball as per the rules. If the batter struck at the ball and hit safely would it have counted? —D. F. G.

3. When a fielder throws his glove at a batted or thrown ball is it necessary that the glove come into contact with the ball for the fielder to be penalized? A claims the more throwing of the glove calls for a penalty. B insists the glove must come into contact with the ball. Who is right and what is the penalty in each case?—S. A. K

ANSWERS.

1. The situation was made possible by the manager of a certain team permitting a player to run for the regular who was injured. Since the regular intended to resume play when his injury was dressed, the manager of the team in the field permitted a player to run for him without the status of either player being affected, so as to avoid a tedious delay. Later in the game the manager called on the same player to act as substitute runner for a slow man who had hit safely.

2. If a batter elects to strike at an illegally delivered ball it counts as a strike or whatever happens. In the case cited the safe hit made was legal.

3. B is correct in his contention. The glove must come into contact with the ball for a penalty to be inflicted. It is two bases, if a thrown ball, three bases if a batted ball

BILLY EVANS SAYS

The most talked about pitcher in the National League to-day is Dazzy Vance of Brooklyn. There are many reasons.

Vance is the first pitcher in either major league to score 20 victories. He also leads in strikeouts in the National.

At this writing he has won nine straight. He hasn't been beaten in the western end of the National circuit this year.

The season of 1924 is the biggest of his career.

The rise to fame of Dazzy Vance as a big league pitcher should serve as a great lesson to every youngster who yearns to be a major league star.

The success of Vance is a glowing tribute to the plodder. It proves that perseverance can overcome the greatest of obstacles.

Most ball players like to make the big show early in life, preferring to quit the game if unable to play up to the major league standard. Vance came early, failed, but persevered.

A few after failing to deliver, go back to the "bushes" and again work up. A great many give up in disgust when it looks as if the baseball future held nothing but a long stay in the minors.

Dazzy Vance has reached the top rung of baseball by persistency. He believes in himself after major league managers had turned thumbs down on him.

Eight years in the minors, in which he played many towns, didn't kill off his cherished ambition to be a big league star.

Well do I recall Dazzy Vance as he came to the New York Yankees, back in 1916.

I umpired several games in which he was sent in as relief pitcher after the Yanks appeared out of the running. That was about the only chance he got to show as a Yank.

Vance in those days had a great fast ball, but that was all. His curve didn't amount to anything, and he lacked a change of pace. That was quite a handicap.

Opposing batters, knowing that speed was Vance's chief asset, set for it and usually made merry at his expense.

New York passed Vance on to Pittsburg, where he tarried for a brief time. Then came a long sojourn in the minors.

Starting with Hastings in 1914, he played the minors until 1922 with the exception of his short stay in the majors in 1916.

In those eight years, he played with Hastings, New York, Pittsburg, St. Joseph, Toledo, Memphis, Rochester, Sacramento, Memphis once more, and New Orleans.

Vance's rise to the premier pitcher of the National League is well deserved. He refused to quit, finally got the breaks, and is now a national figure n the baseball world.

ARTISTS.

Photographer is taking the place of the artist in advertising. Half the advertising pictures in magazines already are made by camera. This pleases photographers at their national convention in Milwaukee.

The outcome? There'll be fewer artists. The gifted painters will continue producing, but the wane of commercial art will not send them back to the garret. The rich will patronize them, as always happens when civilizations grow older.

KINGSTON HERE TO TRIM PETES

Lakevews Will Go at Kingston With Hammer and Tongs After Way They Were Treated in Penitentiary Town.

BOUND TO WIN.

Lakeview Juniors and Circle Six of Kingston will perform on Saturday afternoon at Riverside Park at 3 o'clock in one of the fastest games that will be played in this city this season. The two teams battled twelve innings to a 2 to 2 tie in Kingston yesterday, and the teams are so evenly matched that it will be a hard proposition to decide the winner until the last game has been played. Wednesday's game lasted twelve innings, and by the way both teams were going it looked as if they might have been going yet with the score still tied, had the game not been called on account of darkness.

The Lakeviews have to win here on Saturday or they will be fighting with their backs to the wall, when they play the return game in Kingston next Wednesday. By the way both teams are going, it would not be surprising if a fourth game is needed to decide the winner, as Kingston, with their hard boiled crowd of fans, expect to scare the young Petes to death when they go to Kingston next Wednesday.

After the razzing the local boys got in Kingston yesterday, by the large crowd of fans, it would be nothing but fair if the citizens of this city would turn out and root for the homesters, but it is hoped that the fans here will not go at the Kingston boys the way the Kingston fans went at the Petes.

Since Batston's gang has been thrown out of the O.B.A. finals and Peterboro has taken their place, the whole town has turned out to root for the Circle Six and do anything in their power to put Peterboro out of the running. Besides a number of fans who will come with the Juniors from Kingston, it is expected that the Peterboro fans will turn out in a body and support the boys who are on the chase for the Ontario championship.

Clarke, who twirled for the Circle Six on Wednesday, is billed to do the heaving here Saturday, while the Lakeviews' burden will fall on Frank Whitehouse's shoulder, and he is capable of turning in a victory for the Peterboro crew.

KIWANIS PRACTICE.

Bantams To Prepare For Battle in Toronto Saturday.

The kids are at present in the best of shape, and expect to pull through with a win over the city boys. Every player is requested to turn out for the practice to-night.

MIDGETS PLAY OFF.

Crescents Go To Toronto For Game on Saturday Afternoon.

Crescent Midgets will play the winning team of the O.A.B.A. Midget series on Saturday afternoon in Toronto. The return game will likely be played here next Wednesday evening at the Exhibition Grounds.

MORE EVIDENCE IN SERTH CASE

In the Meantime Oshawa Claims the Ball Championship.

OSHAWA, September 4. — Kingston was suspended from the Central Ontario League at a meeting of the sub-committee held yesterday morning, when the Peterboro protest against the Kingston battery, Kelly and Rickman, was heard. Evidence was produced which established that neither player had been in residence in Kingston, in fact in Canada, at January 1st last. N. E. Phelan, appearing for the Peterboro Club, produced a telegram signed by a Dominion immigration officer, which declared that Kelly and Rickman had entered Canada on May 3rd last, and that they were illegally in the country. This evidence together with an examination of affidavits taken by the suspended players, was sufficient to convince the board that the protest was well founded, and made a finding, suspending the club from the league and ordering that the games played in which the suspended players took part be struck from the league records.

The protest of Kngston against pitcher Serth of Peterboro, was laid over until Saturday noon when a meeting will be held and a decision handed down. Both clubs were ordered to have in the hansd of the secretary by noon, September 6th, further evidence. Kingston has already taken steps to prove that Serth was a resident in the United States previous to April, 1923. Armed with an affidavit signed by Serth, W. R. Givens for Kingston made verbal allegations and offered to let the matter rest there; however, N. E. Phelan for the Petes insisted that the evidence should enter if the protest was to stand.

"You have bluffed us long enough" declared Mr. Givens, as he read the signed statement, sworn to by Serth in the presence of Notty Lee and before a Commissioner of oaths in Rochester, and then delivered to the league secretary, John Nott.

The statement read that he, Serth, had not entered into residence in Peterboro until on or about April 3rd this year, and that he left the city of Rochester to go to Peterboro for the sole purpose of playing baseball with the Peterboro club in C.O.B.L., together with other charges which were struck out and not entered by Mr. Givens, thinking it to the best interests of amateur sport to strike out that section. The signatures on this affidavit and the signatures on the players' certificates were examined and they were found to be written in the same handwriting, and convinced the executive that there was something wrong. To give both clubs the opportunity of putting further evidence, the issue was laid over until next Saturday, and the Kingston club in the meantime will secure an immigration department certificate dealing with the date of Serth's entry into the dominion which borders on the verge, if not within the Alien labor act, which does not permit entry into Canaad under contract.—Oshawa Telegram.

ON UNEMPLOYMENT.

Conference Resumed This Morning—Manufacturers Heard.

OTTAWA, Sept. 6.— (Canadian Press.)—When unemployment conference re-convened this morning, Hon. J. A. Robb, Acting Minister of Finance, was seated beside Hon. James Murdock, Minister of Labor, who presided. The latter stated that representatives of the Canadian Manufacturers might continue their remarks on effect of tariff. Last night Mr. Murdock sharply objected when C. M. A. representatives spoke of tariff reduction being responsible for unemployment.

L. L. P. Deslongchamps, Montreal, President of the Canadian Shoe Manufacturers' Association emphasized the seriousness to the Canadian shoe industry of imported boots and shoes from the United Kingdom. He said Canadian manufacturers could not compete with cheap British labor. Joseph M. Piggott, Hamilton, president of the Association of Canadian Building and Construction Industries, submitted a memorandum, taking the ground that construction work in winter was not more expensive in that season than in the summer.

Other representatives of building industries suggested that all proposed construction work should be commenced immediately.

If my good friends of Canadian Manufacturers' Association would get together and agree on policy, if they would help the government to develop markets for Canadian goods they would do more towards solving the unemployment problem than anybody else could do."

This statement was made by Hon. J. A. Robb before the conference considering unemployment this morning. Quoting figures to show that the government had sixteen millions of dollars less in the present fiscal year to spend on the administration of public works than the government of 1914, Mr. Robb urged that the only way to create employment for all was to build up markets for Canadian products.

In a belligerent mood, Mr. Robb pointed out that the manufacturers of the east would be lacking a market for their goods if the crop in the west was bad.

"The proposed trade treaty between Canada and Finland was killed in the Senate last session at the instance of some members of Canadian Manufacturers' Association, and I know who they are. The same crowd are now preventing us from getting a preferential tariff with Australia, although we stand to gain by reciprocal tariff," he declared.

Delegates to conference generally expressed dissatisfaction with the Government's poli-

DOCTOR PARTED WITH A DOLLAR TO METHODISTS

The Mysterious MacDonald Sought Envelopes To Contribute To Church.

HUNG OUT SIGN.

Man Who Hoodwinked Peterborough Medical Men Sought By Police.

The only known real money which the mysterious Dr. R. J. MacDonald parted with while fraternizing with the medical men of this district appears to have been the one dollar bill he put in the collection plate at the Millbrook Methodist church on Sunday morning. Everywhere else he got away with cheques ranging from $5 to $4,000. In all, ten worthless cheques are known to have been passed, mostly on doctors, and there are doubtless others of which the victims will say nothing. In addition, the pseudo-doctor took away with him a valuable selection of instruments from Dr. King's surgery, and a club bag loaned him by Dr. L. J. Stuart of Millbrook.

A survey of the mysterious doctor's activities here show that he played his game with consummate skill. At the Empress Hotel, where he evidently excited the only suspicion that fell upon him during his stay, it was thought that he must be either a freak or a genius, and when it was seen that he had been taken up by prominent city doctors it was taken for granted that he was in the latter category. His signature first aroused interest at the hotel, resembling the amateur scribbling of a school boy with a shaky hand more than the firm stroke of an eminent surgeoen. 'Dr. R. J. Macedonald" it looks like.

On Monday, when the banks were closed, the doctor attempted to cash his cheque for $20, but the clerks pointed to their instructions not to cash cheques. George Graham, impressed by the cordiality with which the new Millbrook doctor had been received by city practitioners, was appealed to and gave instructions that the cheque should be cashed. He lost $20 there.

Previously, Dr. MacDonald had expressed his desire to pay his board by the week. He did not, he said, care for "that joint," referring to Millbrook, and preferred to travel there by rail for the day until his living arrangements had been completed in the new hospital. His cheque was accepted at the Hotel on Saturday night.

Boasted His Prowess.

Making full capital of his professed experience with the famous Mayo Brothers, the distinguished guest of Peterborough entertained in turn physicians and surgeons among the most prominent in the city, and boasted of how he would "put it over" Dr. Turner at Millbrook.

With a $5,000 X-ray outfit as only a detail in his equipment, two permanent nurses(a doctor, and a housekeeper, he would have the most up-to-date private hospital in the country. He himself, of course, would do the important surgical work.

When someone cast a doubt upon MacDonald's ability to outclass the revered Dr. Turner, another city doctor present told how the new man had already made $37.50 in one day's work in Millbrook.

Left a Club Bag.

When Dr. MacDonald left the Empress Hotel on Tuesday morning he said to the clerk that he would return as usual that night. He then walked to the White House and telephoned for a taxi, which was supplid by Fontaine's livery. In the hired car he drove to the C.N.R. Station, took the grips containing Dr. King's instruments from the lockers, and drove to Frazerville, where he boarded a train. At Frazerville he dropped from sight of his medical friends and the police alike.

At the Empress Hotel he left a club bag, of dark brown leather, grained, and in it was a stethoscope. The latter was identified as Dr. King's and the club bag may be the property of Dr. L. J. Stuart. Dr. Stuart is a Peterborough man, now practising dentistry in Millbrook.

And in Millbrook.

Seldom if ever, has the arrival of a new citizen caused so much stir in Millbrook as did Dr. MacDonald's; but his coming was overshadowed by the excitement attending his disappearance. He first descended on the village last week with Dr. D. C. King of Peterorough who introduced him in the community. On Saturday he bought the Vance homestead which the Misses Vance have been anxious for some time to sell, paying with a cheque for $4,000. He intimated that he was a wealthy man, his father having given him a large amount of money, and that his account would be speedily transferred to the bank in Millbrook.

Dr. MacDonald persuaded Dr. Stuart to cash a $10.00 cheque to oblige him, and N. Gilmour cashed a $5.00 cheque for him. The refund was to come from his transferred bank account.

Was a Methodist

The new adjunct to the medical genius of the village claimed he was a Methodist, and attended service in that Church on Sunday morning. He put a $1 bill on the plate but did not return at night to renew his munificence. He called on the pastor Rev. F. Howard, and sought to ingratiate himself with the other major profession by intimating his desire for church envelopes in order that he might contribute regularly and in order.

Rival City Clinic

The Standard Medical and Surgical Clinic in Peterborough, with its imposing building and its galaxy of practised physicians and surgeons would be in the piker class compared with the new Millbrook hospital, the credible people of both city and village were told. Despite the fact, however, that he would put the Peterborough clinic in the shade, Dr. MacDonald informed the village of Millbrook generally that he had the co-operation of the Peterborough doctors and of the medical men and influential citizens in Bailieboro' Garden Hill, Pontypool, and in fact, all the surrounding district.

On Tuesday when he was supposed to be in Port Hope for surgical work at the hospital., no one woried about him, but it was later found that he had borrowed a $30 club bag from Dr. Stuart and had actually assisted the Peterborough police in searching for himself and slipped away from their front door.

Sign Was Out

Many villagers walked specially past the Vance homestead on Saturday night to admire the sign that Dr. MacDonald had just had painted and hung out announcing the new hospital. Most of them thought he was foolish to attempt competition with Dr. Turner, who has demonstrated his ability and won the hearts of the people of the village, but they were still flattered that so eminent a man should choose Millbrook as his field of labor.

The Doctor had engaged a boy, Stanford Gilmour, to drive his automobile when it arrived. The boy had a position with the Lindsay Creamery, driving one of their trucks, and he gave this up to take the more lucrative position offered by the new doctor. It is doubtful whether he will regain his position.

Action Uncertain

It is not yet known whether Judge Vance, brother of the Misses Vance, will take steps to bring Dr. MacDonald to account, while Dr. Stuart is resigned to the loss of his club bag and $10. Mr. Gilmour will not move unless the other victims do, he told The Examiner.

Whatever action is taken, there will be no "welcome" mat on the doorsteps of Millbrook or Peterborough professional men for eminent visiting surgeons for some time.

Police On Trail

The confidence trick was not uncovered until Tuesday at noon, when Dr. King returned from his fruitless trip to Port Hope in search of Dr. MacDonald and an important operation. In the Empress Hotel he asked for the doctor, and on being told that he had gone to Millbrook as usual, accurately diagnosed the case as one of absconditis and gloomily prognosticated, contrary to the usual practice of physicians, "you'll never see him again."

Telegraph wires and telephones were set humming and post cards bearing a description of the missing man were despatched by Inspector James Reid who is acting for Chief Constable S. Newhall.

FEW WARRIORS AMONG CHINESE

Armies of Ten Thousand Men Face Each Other—Pay In Advance.

SHANGHAI, September 4 (Canadian Press). — A pitched battle between the forces of Lu Hungsiang Tuchun, of Chekiang, and Chi Shieh Yuuan, Governor of Kiangsu, opened at daylight this morning along the Shanghai-Nanking Railway, near Hwanctu, about a dozen miles from Shanghai, according to reports from Defence Commissioner Ho.

The battle commenced with a heavy attack between the Kiangsu troops, estimated at 10,000.

While the left wing of the Chekiang Army was forced back, the centre and right slowly gained ground, according to Ho's secretary.

Later reinforcements reached Chekiant left wing, enabling it to push forward at 5 o'clock.

On the whole, the Chekiang force gained about two miles.

Bitter fighting between the armies of the rural Chinese war lords, striving for the possession of Shanghai, continued to-day.

There was heavy artillery fire, and additional wounded were brought into Shanghai.

The Kiangsu troops, which advanced toward Shanghai in force yesterday, were repulsed after bitter fighting, and the Chekiang forces claimed to have carried out countermovements successfully at several points along the front.

The battle line apparently has not reached any point nearer than 127 miles from the city.

A number of airplanes passed over Shanghai this morning en route to Quinsan where the fighting is the heaviest.

A deluge of rain has hampered the movement of heavy artillery on both sides.

Conscription by the rival Chinese war lords continued throughout the Shanghai region, according to a Central News despatch to-day.

Many coolies are being equipped with makeshift uniforms and old rifles.

Preparations are being made to establish a camp for the International Marine Forces in Jessfield Park, in Shanghai.

The correspondent says the fighting is very difficult because of the rice fields being covered with water, in which the troops bounder about helplessly.

Both sides are plentifully supplied with airplanes, but are short of pilots.

The troops of General Lu Yung Hsiang, the ruler of the contested Kiangsu district, are fighting with four months' pay in advance.

There is a strong belief, the correspondent says, that the Manchurian dictator Chang Tso Lin, is financing them.

FOOTBALL NOTE.

The G.W.V.A. team to play against the Quakers at the Oval on Saturday next will be selected from the following players: Griffin, Frick, Crowe, Wasson, Logan, H. Mann, Bestard, Monk, Logan, Bryce, Dyer and Gash.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

Pola Negri's latest Paramount star picture, "Lily of the Dust," a Dimitri Buchowetzki production, was shown for the first time at the Capitol Theatre yesterday. This picture reveals Miss Negri in a role radically different from anything she has ever attempted before. Heretofore, she has essayed the heartless, fiery vamp, but in this one it is another thing again. She plays the role of a real lovable woman—even as you and I.

The screen play is based upon Paul Bern's adapttion of the powerful story and play, "The Song of Songs." It concerns the adventurous career of a poverty-stricken girl whose beauty is the cause of all her misfortunes. Despite her innate goodness, she is compelled, by circumstances over which she has no control, to accept the unwelcome attentions of men. She tries again and again to get a new foothold and start afresh. But even her affections and kindnesses spread snares for her. The plot works up to a smashing climax and then marches on to a happy and logical ending.

From the moment the film begins to unwind on the screen, Pola's vivid personality dominates the picture. She is by turns, tender and wistful, vital and cyclonic. Her zeal, her earnestness and sincerity, make you forget that she is merely playing a part.

The supporting cast is thoroughly up to the fine work of the star. Noah Beery is one of the most effective villains in captivity, and such a good actor that we mix our hissing for his screen villainy with our admiration for his work. Ben Lyon proves once more that he is one of the best juveniles in the world of lights and shadows; and Raymond Griffith gives a tremendousip impressive performance.

AT THE ROYAL.

GLADYS WALTON IN "THE WILD PARTY" AT THE ROYAL NOW.

Vivid Story of Modern Youth.

Motion picture patrons who remember Gladys Walton when only a few years ago, she was "breaking into the movies" as a bathing beauty, will enjoy particularly the early sequences of her latest starring vehicle for Universal, "The Wild Party," which opens to-day at the Royal Theatre.

Miss Walton enacts the role of a society reporter on a metropolitan newspaper, and appears in several scenes in the play in the costume with which she made her screen debut. The several years that have elapsed since she was employed regularly as a bathing girl have not served to detract from her aquatic ability. She is unquestionably a remarkable swimmer and she does a superb back dive.

It's distinctly a Walton picture and the star handles her part, which is essentially a comedy role, with her usual charm; but it is not a "one part" picture. There are several "fat" parts in the play, particularly those played by Robert Ellis, the leading man Dorothy Valerga, as a society vampire, and Sidney Brace as the bootlegger.

In Miss Valerga, Universal has undoubtedly presented a real "find" in a new type of dramatic actress. Her role in this production is that of a vampire, but she displays an ability that gives promise of unusual emotional strength which should bring her rapidly into prominence.

The play is based on a newspaper story in which the facts are twisted and the publication of which brings about a $100,000 libel suit.

The girl reporter, who wrote the story, was then assigned by her city editor to the task of proving the statements which she made in the story.

How she broke into a mountain cabin, and the confusion that resulted and culminated finally in the arrest of a number of society persons, and a double wedding in the city jail, furnishes a series of comedy situations which are refreshingly entertaining.

Perhaps farce comedy would fit the picture better than comedy drama, for there is little actual drama in it. There is no attempt to be serious and you don't want any seriousness in it. It is very funny in places and the scenes in between the laughs are well sprinkled with chuckles.

Any police reporter who sees Gladys Walton in "The Wild Party" will have the satisfaction of seeing a picturized version of his own convictions, that a society reporter is "off her range" when she attempts to enter his pet field of journalism.

Marion Orth wrote "The Wild Party" and Herbert Blache directed it.

LATEST DANA FILM TELLS MERRY STORY.

Viola Dana's newest Metro picture, "Don't Doubt Your Husband," directed by Harry Beaumont, is announced as the attraction at the Royal Theatre for three days, beginning Monday. It tells the story of a young couple who have been hitting all the bumps that can be found on the matrimonial road as it exists in smart, swift suburban society. Miss Dana is the suspicious wife who notices that her husband is more interested in the interior decorator's ankles than in the decorations and stirs up a storm of racy entertainment.

The cast includes Alan Forrest, Winifred Bryson, John Patrick, Willard Louis, Adele Watson and Robert Dunbar. The story was written by Sada Cowan and Howard Higgin.

NEW FILM STAR FINDS LOOT SUNK IN HARBOR BY PIRATE

Regent Thurs., Frid., and Sat.

Jean Tolley Discovers $50,000 Gold While Making Diving Scene

HER FIRST PICTURE TOO! "Most Photographed Girl" was on Location for "The Uninvited Guest"

Within forty-eight hours after Jean Tolley, taking a dip in the Spanish Main, dived into $50,000 worth of sunken pirate treasure, Miss Tolley was the recipient by actual count of one thousand investment prospectuses, fifty-two letters asking charity from "relatives" she never heard of, three hundred nineteen congratulatory messages, one offer to head her own motion picture company, two requests from newspaper syndicates for the story of her life, two offers to appear in Broadway revues, one from a "crank" threatening her life, fifteen requests for magazine articles on "How I discovered Captain Kidd's Booty," one offer to make a lecture tour, and thirty invitations from prominent societies to be their guest of honor!

And it all came about as the result of Jean's going to Nassau in the Bahama Islands to appear in the motion picture, "The Uninvited Guest," presented by J. E. Williamson and produced by the Submarine Film Corporation, which is announced to be shown at the Regent Theatre.

You Have Admired Her

Before that Jean Tolley was famous as "the most photographed girl in the world" —actually! For Jean's abundant beauty had graced hundreds of advertisements that you see when you open your paper in the morning an in the magazines, and even on billboard posters. She was the "Happiness" girl and the "Pepsodent" girl and the what-not girl, before Producer J. E. Williamson and Director Ralph Ince were so struck by her screen possibilities when they recognized her beauty as an ornamental feature of a breakfast food advertisement, that they traced Miss Tolley's identity and engaged her for the leading feminine role in "The Uninvited Guest.' But that, as Shakespeare maybe said, is another story.

Preceded Henry Morgan

Francis L'Ollonois, whose depradations along the coasts of the Americas preceded those of the famous Henry Morgan, was known to have obtained several million dollars in loot during his vicious career, from Spanish merchantmen and from the rich Spanish towns in Central America. The largest portion of this treasure either originally gold coin when seized by the buccaneer or converted into doubloons and pieces of eight, has never been accounted for. Since Miss Tolley's discovery of the old chest with its fortune, historians have suggested two theories; either that the changing coastlines wrought in several centuries have caused the hiding place of part of L'Ollonois treasure to become the ocean bed, or that the treasure was lost by ship wreck in what is now Nassau Harbor.

Either of these two theories are probable, for the treasure chest was found at a depth which Miss Tolley was able to reach in diving. It is supposed that recent dredging operations where the Williamson Company was filming the undersea scenes for "The Uninvited Guest" unearthed the chest from the sands of centuries that had obscured it, and that undoubtely hide at present hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of such treasure, from fortune hunters.

LIEUT. GOVERNOR WILL OPEN FAIR

Important Occasion In History of Peterborough Exhibition.

HERE ON THURSDAY.

When the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario arrives a week from to-day to open the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition he will be entertained to lunch by the Mayor and Council in the Empress Hotel.

From there he will be driven, in a carriage drawn by horses, to the Exhibition Grounds, accompanied by a military guard of honor. At two o'clock he will speak from the platform in front of the grand-stand, declaring the big Peterboro Fair open. He will then visit the exhibits in the buildings.

The visit of His Honor Henry Cockshutt marks an epoch in the history of the Peterboro Exhibition. It is many years since a Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario visited the city, and it is the first time so exalted a personage has pressed the button to unloose on the city the delights of Exhibition week.

That the Exhibition Board is justified in the ambitious move is evident from the growth of the Exhibition. Every year sees its new building or buildings, and every year sees the new accommodation crowded to the limit. Merchants are compelled to take smaller space than they desire, so great is the competition for places in the industrial buildings. Cattle are crowded out to the fences when overflowing barns refuse to hold them under cover. The grand-stand was last year inadequate, and this year has been enlarged to an extent that will at least relieve the situation.

Improvement and growth are evident in every succeeding exhibition, and the one that will open next week with the visit of the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario will surpass all previous years. Few people in the city miss this big annual event, and those who fail to be present next week will have an added regret in missing the visit of the King's representative in Ontario.

NEW DISARMAMENT

GENEVA, Sept. 4. — (Canadian Press).—The British Premier urged that the time had come to arrange a new disarmament conference, with all Powers, including Germany, present. All plans for security, including the United States plan, should be turned over to a special commission which would study them and seek a basis for conference, he said. Future disarmament conferences must be held in Europe, Mr. MacDonald thought, in order that responsible statesmen might attend them and not be too far removed from contact with home affairs.

He concluded by declaring that Great Britain was committed always to share in moves for peace.

Great applause from the assemblage obliged the Prime Minister to stand and acknowledge the tribute for some time before resuming his seat.

A WORLD WIDE CONFERENCE IS PREMIER'S HOPE

Future Disarmament Conferences Will Have To Be Held in Europe.

LEAGUE MEETING.

National Security Is At Present World's Greatest Problem.

GENEVA, Sept. 4. — (United Press). — Before an enthusiastic, applauding assembly of the League of Nations, Premier MacDonald of Great Britain to-day voiced a demand for a world conference on land disarmament and called upon the League to prepare the ground for such a conclave, that it might not fail.

"America has taken the first step toward naval reduction," the Labor Premier declared, while delegates and crowded galleries hung on his words. The subject of land disarmaments is more complicated. If such a conference were summoned now, it would fail.

The League's role now is to prepare the ground. All nations here present must begin preparations.

"Two points are essential. First, that all countries be represented; second, that the conference be held in Europe, where heads of Governments can be present."

The League of Nations Assembly went wild in greeting Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain today as he rose to speak at the start of the day's session. Delegates rose as one man, cheering and applauding the Labor Prime Minister, a spontaneous ovation which continued for several minutes.

MacDonald declared himself unreservedly for the League.

"If the future justifies our hopes and war is ended," he began, "it will only be through the League of Nations."

After the cheering that greeted his unqualified endorsement had died down, the speaker continued:

"National security is our greatest problem, but it must be settled by means that will not entail grave problems later.

"England is here to increase the authority of the League.

"Europe is impoverished owing to the war. We enter through the League to lay foundations of peace of the world."

Premier MacDonald declared that Germany cannot remain outside of the League. The best way of handling the problem of aggression, he said, was to set up a court or courts of arbitration.

Before beginning his speech before a crowded hall, he conferred with representatives of the British Dominions, outlining to them the main issues he would follow.

During his address he declared the British Empire would do everything in its power to widen the influence and prestige of the League. Warning against attempting to base peace upon force, he said: "If we cannot devise a system of arbitration then do not let us fool ourselves that we are going to have peace."

Military alliances he declared would bring the world back to the situation which existed before 1914.

In his reference to Germany's place in the League, Mr. MacDonald said: "We cannot sit endlessly with a vacant chair in our midst. The London conference created new relationship between the rest of Europe and Germany. She should have her seat here."

FALL OPENING AT THE GRAND

"So This Is London" Will Be Here For Three Nights Next Week.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evening of next week the Grand Opera House will re-open for the fall and winter season. The House has been taken over by a number of local business men and every effort will be made to give the theatre goers of Peterborough high class attractions throughout the season. The opening offering will be George M. Cohan's triumph, "So This Is London." This is a clean, clever, wholesome play.

Its double-edged satire provides a vast amount of laughable comedy situations and from beginning to end is an uncommonly fresh and and humorous entertainment. The fun in "So This Is London" begins to tickle you before the curtain has been up five minutes and the two hours and a half following are filled with brisk dialogue that brings laughter with every line.

It is all touched here and there with some sound truths concerning the cause of happiness and the futility of nations in waving their respective flags at each other's faces. You can go to the Grand Opera House next week with the absolute certainty of finding an agreeable comedy with a most interesting plot and plenty of refreshing laughter presented in an atmosphere of refinement by this excellent company of players.

YOUTH HELD UP LOCAL CHINAMAN

Italian Fruit Merchant Is Charged With Assaulting Delinquent Debtor.

DRUNK FINED.

Police Court experienced one of the busiest sessions in months today. In the absence of Magistrate Langley, who is presiding at the hearing of a serious charge in Apsley, Justices of the Peace H. Rush and V. Eastwood presided.

Rarely do Chinamen figure in Police Court proceedings here, but this morning, in the role of complainant, a passive looking Oriental did grace the court-room.

Charged with holding up and demanding 50c from a Chinese laundryman, a youth under 21 years of age was allowed to go on suspended sentence. He had appeared in Court before, and V. J. McElderry, after entering a plea of guilty on behalf of the accused, made a stirring appeal for mercy, pointing out the sub-normal physique and mentality of the boy.

"Do what is right and learn to be a good citizen. You have been here before young man, and to give you a chance, we are letting you off on suspended sentence," observed Mr. Rush in allowing the youth his freedom.

Assault Case.

As a sequel to an altercation between an Italian fruit merchant and a debtor on Saturday evening of August 23rd, they provided the principals in a more thrilling scene in Police Court this morning.

While walking down George Street with his wife the prosecutor was hailed by the defendant, who demanded payment of an old account and grabbed him by the throat, shoving him against a car. This was the plaintiff's version. But the defendant declared that he requested the prosecutor in a nice gentlemanly manner to let him have a payment on his old long-standing account, as he was in need of the money. Throwing up his hands as if to strike me, he said, "Go to—and get it."

The merchant testified that he shoved the prosecutor with open hand to protect himself, and never clenched his throat as alleged.

To this the plaintiff declared that he only said, "O Hell," an expression he used very frequently, at home and otherwise.

"Have you any children?" asked Mr. Rush.

"No," replied the witness.

"Well, it is a very poor term to express yourself on any occasion."

"It's a habit of mine," declared the witness.

"A personal characteristic," interjected defence counsel, W. F. Huycke.

In view of the conflict of evidence and the legal points involved, the two justices will deliver sentence tomorrow at 10 a.m., giving them an opportunity to consider the evidence more fully.

J. F. Strickland acted for the prosecution and W. F. Huycke for the defence.

Drunk Fined.

Found by P. C. Wheeler, at the corner of London and Bethune Street, yesterday afternoon, in an intoxicated condition, a local plumber was fined $10 and costs.

A NOTED FIGURE HERE ON SUNDAY

Mr. Liu Dse Ru Will Speak Three Times in the Local Churches.

Arrangements have been completed whereby this city is to be included in the world tour of one of the foremost figures in the religious and business life of China, in the person of Mr. Liu Dre Ru.

In business occupying one of the most influential and important posts in the Western part of the Chinese Republic, Mr. Liu has been recognised in unique ways by the business men of this country since his arrival here a short time ago. Complimentary luncheons have been given him by the Toronto Board of Trade, the Toronto Board of Education, Sir Joseph Flavelle, and many other organisations and individuals.

Thoroughly understanding the complicated economic and political situation in China to-day, he has been much sought after by business men eager for information along such lines.

In religious work he is the great pillar of many missionary enterprises among his fellow-countrymen. Himself a converted Confucianist, he has given much time and effort to the preaching of the Christian message, and scarce a Sunday passes without his occupying the pulpit of some mission station. He has spoken three times each Sunday since his arrival in Canada, and his remaining time here is already fully booked up in some of the leading churches of the country.

He will speak three times here, in the morning in Trinity Church, in the afternoon at a union gathering of all the Methodist Sunday Schools in George Street Church, and at the evening service in George Street Church.

GERMANY MUST JOIN THE LEAGUE MACDONALD ASSERTS IN PLEDGING SUPPORT OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE

Premier Advocates Arbitration For Settling Disputes Between the Nations.

LOFTY IDEAL HELD BEFORE THE LEAGUE

Several Expressions Misconstrued By French As Offensive To Them—Premier Explains.

URGES CONFERENCE.

Representatives Of All Nations To Discuss General Scheme of Disarmament.

GENEVA, Sept. 5. — (Canadian Press).—The British Prime Minister, Ramsay MacDonald, with characteristic forcefulness and precision, set forth before the assembly of the League of Nations yesterday, the British Government's attitude on the harrassing questions of security and disarmament.

Arbitration was the keynote of his speech. The problem of aggression, he declared, could best be handled by a court or courts of arbitration. His Government had no faith that military alliances could bring security.

Everything in its power would be done by the British Empire to widen the influence and prestige of the League of Nations, but Germany must become a member of the League.

"If we cannot devise a system of arbitration, do not let us fool ourselves that we are going to have peace," the Premier exclaimed.

Faith in United States.

Mr. MacDonald's references to the loyal way in which the United States Government was co-operating in the reconstruction of Europe were especially remarked. These references and his prediction that one day the United States would enter the League, when Europe herself had given evidence of her desire for peace, were widely commented upon by the delegates generally as voicing the British belief, that the United States would not abandon her collaboration with Europe.

Despite fundamental differences between Great Britain and France as to how best to reach the goal of outlawing war, a hopeful note was struck in authorized French circles last night that a way would actually be found before the present sessions of the assembly were concluded.

The most favorite outline of the situation last night was that France deemed that security must come before unlimited arbitration and that disarmament should logically follow in the wake of the operation of arbitration.

Two statements made by Premier MacDonald in his dramatic address, in which he appealed for unfaltering courage in handling the problems before the assembly, caused much misunderstanding and a particularly unpleasant feeling among Frenchmen. One was his apparent characterization of the League arbitration solution of the Upper Silesia affair as a mistake.

MacDonald Misunderstood.

Following upon the uproar caused by his remark, Mr. MacDonald issued a statement saying that he cited Upper Silesia as a case hotly criticized in some quarters and meant merely to point out that criticism like this received great publicity, whereas good actions performed by the League of Nations were rarely mentioned. He insisted that he had no intention of passing judgment on the Upper Silesian decision.

The second cause for consternation was the imperfect rendering into French of Premier MacDonald's assertion regarding the inability of contemporary politicians to fix the responsibility for aggression. In the course of his remarks on this subject he said:

"Everybody knows that assigning the responsibility for aggression is the last thing done, and it is always done by historians who write fifty years after the aggression has been made, and never by politicians who live through the beginnings of the war."

This was immediately seized upon as an expression of Mr. MacDonald's doubt as to where responsibility for the great war lay. But the British Prime Minister last night

FARMER DROPPED DEAD.

Sank Into Son's Arms While at Work.

AYLMER, Ont., Sept. 5.—(Canadian Press)—Mitchell Edwin Walker dropped dead in his barn on his farm near Springtawer. Mr. Walker was working around the barn with his son John. He called to his son that he felt queer, and as his son reached him he fell into his arms dead. Heart failure was the cause of death. He was in his 63rd year, and was born at Glencoe, where he lived for the greater part of his life. He lived in London for some time, and about three years ago moved to the Starkey farm near Springwater, where he died.

PINNED UNDER CAR.

Four Women Injured—Driver Escaped Unhurt.

FOREST, Ont., Sept. 5.—(Canadian Press).—A heavy touring car en route from Goderich to Detroit stalled on the Hillboro Hill near here, backed down and turned completely over in the ditch, pinning all five occupants beneath it. The car was driven by Mr. Morphus, of Goderich, who with his wife, was taking three elderly ladies, the Misses Elbert, back to their home in Detroit.

One of the Misses Elbert sustained a broken collar bone and several fractured ribs. Mrs. Morphus received a badly injured shoulder and arm, and the other two ladies were badly bruised and cut. Mr. Morphus practically escaped injuries.

DRUGGIST DUPED.

Chatham Case Similar To Mean Trick in Kingston.

CHATHAM, Ont., Sept. 5.—E. L. Taylor, local druggist, is out of pocket to the extent of eighteen dollars and a two dollar water bottle is out of his stock as a result of a trick played upon him by confidence men. He received a telephone call to send a hot water bottle to the Wellington Apartments and change for a twenty dollar bill. A man met the errand boy at the entrance of the apartment house and handed over a twenty dollar bill which was later discovered to be Mexican currency.

This coat refused absolutely to be ordinary. Over its black silk surface is embroidered an elaborate design in black and white silk and the lapels reveal the white satin with which the whole garment is lined. It is wrapped tightly about the hips to give the narrow silhouette.

ONLY TWENTY PER CENT OF PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES BRUSH THEIR TEETH

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., September 5. — Only 20 per cent. of the people of the United States are "tooth conscious," and there are only 60,00 dentists to attend the one hundred and ten million people, G. Layton Grier of Cleveland told the convention here yesterday of the Dental Trades Association, of which he is the president.

"This proportion, small as it is, is larger than that of any other country," said Mr. Grier.

"In Europe, this condition is pitiable. Until the other 80 per cent. of Americans become 'tooth conscious,' which means they brush their teeth, we will not have a really healthful country.

"Dentistry is comparatively a new profession, dating back only about eighty-five years. It had its birth in Philadelphia. Until the war, the medical profession did not give the dentists much credit.

"It was the splendid work done by the dentists in reclaiming thousands of men for the service whom the medical profession had rejected that won the respect of the doctors."

LEOPOLD PLANS TO WRITE BOOK

Also Makes Last Will Devising His Birds To Field Museum.

PREPARES SPEECH.

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—Nathan Leopold, Jr., would turn author and tell stories of prison life if his counsel would permit it.

"When my counsel thinks it will be safe, I want to write my memoirs," he said, "including an absolutely frank and clear record of my life in jail and of the re-actions experienced by a prisoner."

He was asked if he would put in the work any reference to the killing of Robert Franks or those who took a prominent part in his trial. Although he refused to commit himself definitely on this point, he said the work would be comprehensive.

When the work was completed, he said, he would offer it to the local newspapers for publication.

"Perhaps I will sell it to the highest bidder; perhaps the reporter who has given me the best breaks will get it," he continued. "I don't know just yet. I do not particularly want the money."

Leopold's last will has been made public.

"It doesn't mean that either he or I believe he is to hang," Mr. Darrow said. "If he goes to prison he cannot take the collection with him. He is simply making a disposition of his property, knowing that under any circumstances he won't be able to use it."

The giving away of his property, however, is only part of his plans. If he should be required to mount the scaffold he will have a farewell speech ready.

"What I would say would make the world listen," he asserts.

But he will not divulge the nature of his speech, intimating that the farewell will not be written and rehearsed until he knows there will be opportunity to deliver it.

Leopold bequeaths to the Field Museum first choice of any five objects in Leopold's ornithological collection.

Next choice is given to a cousin of Leopold, who may choose of any three articles after the museum has made its selection.

Third, the museum is given its choice of any of Leopold's birds, mineral's or transcripts.

To Try Pierce Death Veil.

Leopold also has completed plans for attempts to pierce the veil shrouding death, if he is hanged. He has prepared the questions which he plans to attempt to answer by communicating with friends on earth, should he die on the gallows. The questions are:

"Are the experiences of human life carried into the hereafter?

"Is the intellectual or the spiritual the dominant note after death?

"Is the absence of the physical being an advantage or a detriment to such intellectual or spiritual happiness?

"Is the hereafter dimensional as on earth or is there complete omnicience?

"Does one retain reactions to sensations registered on the mind previous to death?

"Is life on earth a necessary precedent to life hereafter? If so, how long a life?

"If the intellectual is dominant in the hereafter is earthly knowledge adequate or insufficient to its enjoyment?

"Is life on earth a correct balance of rewards and penalties or is there a higher judgment?

Plans Speech on Gallows.

"If life hereafter is spiritual are the cultural experiences on earth necessary? What of the savage mind?

"What is happiness?"

BROCKVILLE CHEESE.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Sept. 4.—At the regular meeting of the cheese board there were 2,842 boxes of cheese offered, consisting of 1,085 boxes white and 1,757 boxes colored of which 312 boxes were sold at 16 1-8 cents per lb.

FOLLIES BEAUTY KISSES GEORGES

Mary Eaton Bids French Boxer Impetuous Farewell—Good Publicity Stuff.

JUST A FRIEND.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5. — Mary Eaton, who "glorifies" Eddie Cantor's musical comedy "Kid Boots," planted an impetuous American farewell on the handsome lips of "gorgeous" Georges Carpentier.

Just before the Berengaria pulled out, Mary threw her arms around the neck of the world's handsomest heavyweight. A queen bee seeking the nectar of a great yellow rose—that was Mary!

Why does the tide have to hurry so

"All ashore that's going ashore!"

Memories of the prize ring. The clinch. The stern command of the referee:

"Break!"

Just a Friend, Says Mary.

Georges on the deck. Mary on the dock. A pair of fluttering handkerchiefs, one big and blue, one small and pink. Then the questions:

"Are you in love? Is Georges going to Paris to get a French divorce and come back and marry you?"

Great indignation. A stamp of a slippered foot. A sweet voice pitched to unaccustomed shrillness:

"Don't be silly. He isn't a Siki. This is 1924. Can't a girl kiss a man friend good-bye He's just a friend. Nothing more. Everybody kised him good-bye. He's known me three years. He called on me and my sister and my mother. We all know he's married."

The scene on the Berengaria recalled Labor Day evening's performance of "Kid Boots." That night Georges was in the very front row. He never took his eyes off Mary. On one side of him sat Mary's sister. On the other sat Mary's mother. He got up and bowed when Eddie Cantor called attention to his presence and the spot light was thrown on his head and shoulders.

Samuel Kingston, general manager for Florence Ziegfeld, owner of the "Kid Boots" show, said:

"The report that Miss Eaton is in love with Carpentier and that he intends to divorce his wife to marry her is a ridiculous fake."

Carpentier, it was explained in sporting circles yesterday, left America at this time because he failed to get a sufficient guarantee for a proposed bout with Jimmy Slattery September 16 at Buffalo.

C.N.R. BOND SALE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—For the second time this year, the Dominion of Canada will enter the New York market to-morrow with an offering of $26,000,000 thirty year 4 1-2 per cent. bonds for the account of the Canadian National Railways. A simultaneous offer of the issue will be made in Canada.

RESIGNS SEAT.

REGINA, Sask., Sept. 5.—George W. Robertson, secretary of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool and opposition member of the Provincial Legislature for Wynyard, has resigned his seat in the House. A formal statement will be issued later to his coonstituents.

CITY COUNCIL

HUSBAND SLAIN BY KLANSMEN IN HERRIN BATTLE

Widow Describes Shooting and Klan Witnesses Utterly Deny It.

COURT IS GUARDED.

Stenographer At Inquest Named By Klansmen—Feud Feeling Disclosed.

HERRIN, Ill., Sept. 5.—It remained for two women, one newly widowed in the civil strife that is raging in Williamson county, to openly defy the Ku Klux Klan.

One was Mrs. Chester Reid, whose husband was killed Saturday in the fierce fight here between Klan and anti-Klan forces, which cost the lives of six men.

Appearing at the coroner's inquest, Mrs. Reid boldly testified that the shots which killed her husband were fired from a shotgun in the hands of John Smith, Klan leader, near whose garage the fight took place.

Smith, she swore, calmly shot down her husband, who stood with hands upraised clutching a white handkerchief as aflag of truce, within a few feet of the automobile in which she sat with her five months old baby.

"I jumped from the car, threw my arms about Chester and implored Smith to help me, but he deliberately turned his back on me and walked away," Mrs. Reid testified, weeping into her black-bordered handkerchief.

Nearly a score of "Klan witnesses" who followed the widow on the stand, declared that Smith was nowhere near the garage at the time of the battle. They each swore that he was at his home a block away, and did not arrive until half an hour afterwards. This has been the story of Smith himself, who is held under murder charges.

Stenographer Denies Klan Stories.

Miss Jane Lasater of Marion, an attractive girl, who was the official stenographer of the hearing, was the other one of her sex who defied the Klan. For three hours it was her lot to face witness after witness and record in her note book their charges that she was with State's Attorney Delos Duty and City Judge E. N. Bowen at the scene of the conflict, and that the county officials emptied their revolvers at the fighters.

Though the stenographer kept discreet silence as she dutily plied her pencil during the hearing, "if looks could kill," as a spectator put it, "there would be a few more dead Klansmen in Herrin to-night."

"Along drove Duty and Bowen with a young woman on the back seat, and I saw Duty and Bowen fire into the crowd," was the invariable story of each witness.

Few of these accusers looked directly at the flaming cheeked girl, whose blue gray eyes sparkled with anger. Only one witness, Charles Denham, driver of the Klansmen's death car made so bold as to flirt a nervous finger in her general direction.

"It is infamous, absurd, ridiculous" exclaimed Miss Lasater at the noon recess of the hearing. "This shows what 'Klan and anti-Klan' means at Herrin. They stop at nothing."

"Some of this gang," she continued "must have seen me with Mr. Duty and Judge Bowen, for whom I work, shortly before this shooting."

"I saw some of them lurking about the corner when I stopped a moment in Graham's drug store to get a bracelet. Mr. Duty and the Judge waited for me outside.

"And seeing me inspired them to drag us all into the mess. They know they lie."

"We drove straight to Marion and were not within two blocks of Smith's garage. I learned of the shooting hours later while at a circus."

The State's Attorney and the judge (for both of whom warrants charging murder, have been issued but not served) told a like story.

"At least a hundred people can refute this bunk," Mr. Duty declared.

Armed Soldiers Guard Hearing.

Miss Lasater insisted that she will take the witness stand herself at the inquest, "and then watch out."

It distinctly was "Klansmen's Day" at the inquest. Contrary to fears that had been expressed, not a ripple of disorder marked the proceedings. Every precaution against a possible new outbreak with its usual accompaniment of bloodshed, had been taken by the coroner. The setting for the inquest, in reality the second floor of the Herrin City Hall, had the apearance of an arsenal.

Directly back of the coroner sat a National Guardsman, his watchful eyes peering from beneath a trench helmet. Across his knees rested an automatic rifle. Strapped about him was a belt crammed with clips of cartridges.

Beside the witness chair stood two more soldiers, also wearing trench helmets, their rifles ready for instant use. Still other sentries were scattered at strategic points about the

GOVERNMENT TO PROSECUTE ALL POSSIBLE WORK

Assurance of Hon. James Murdock At Dominion Unemployment Conference.

MOORE SEES CBISIS.

Labor Leader Suggests Special Session of Parliament To Vote Money For Work.

OTTAWA, Sept. 5.— (Canadian Press).—When the Dominion Unemployment Conference reassembled after the luncheon recess Thursday, Hon. James Murdock, the Chairman, told the conference that the Federal Government intended to continue all possible public work during the winter.

Such projects as the Welland Canal he reminded the delegates, were really in the hands of the contractors so far as any final decision on winter work is concerned. Hon. Dr. J. H. King, Minister of Public Works, had been called out of town and the Minister of Labor did not know exactly what had been done to encourage contractors to maintain operations during the winter but Mr. Murdock assured the conference that any thing the Minister of Public Works the Minister of Railways and Canals, or any other member of the Government could do, would be done to prevent any lapse of operation during the winter which could be avoided.

Mayor T. W. Jutten of Hamilton, referred to a remark made in the morning by Hon.. A. Robb, that while city dwellers were unemployed farmers were short of labor. There were many unemployed in Hamilton who would be willing to go anywhere to get employment. Why did not the Government "take a chance on its next Budget going through" and build such public works as the Hamilton customs house to provide employment.

Mr. Murdock said that Mayor Jutten and men of similar positions would be the first to condemn such a departure from constitutional practice.

Mayor Jutten concluded with a view of labor conditions in Hamilton and the need for new public works in that city.

Unemployment Crisis

Tom Moore, president of the Trades and Labor Congress also took issue with the Acting Minister of Finance on the question of unemployment.

Mr. Robb had refused to admit that trade in Canada was bad. Mr. Moore read reports from many parts of

Alberta Schools Where Crops Failed Will Need Government Assistance

EDMONTON, Alta., September 5 (Canadian Press).—School inspectors are now making a survey for the Department of Education in this district affected by crop failures, this year in order to learn what measures of assistance will be necessary to keep the schools in operation.

Hon. Perron Baker, the Minister of Education, says that the Government's policy in this regard will be decided when the inspectors' reports have been made.

It is practically certain that the Government will have to do something in the way of making loans or grants to a considerable number of school districts that would not otherwise be able to operate on account of financial conditions, but just to what extent is not yet known.

LABOR OPPOSED TO BOLSHEVISM

Or To Despotism By Any Other Name, Says U.S. Delegate.

AT HULL PARLEY.

HULL, England, Sept. 5. — The Dawes reparation plan is only a new scheme for the exploitation of the German workers, M. Tomski, one of the Soviet members of the Anglo-Russian conference which recently met in London, charged yesterday in a long address in Russian before the British Trade Union Congress here.

To-day was fraternal day when the foreign delegates were invited to address the congress and one of the speakers was Peter J. Brady, president of the Federation Bank of New York, who said that United States labor was against "Kaiserism, Bolshevism or any form of despotism which seeks to overthrow democratic institutions."

The congress agreed to empower its general council to take all possible steps through the International Federation of Trade Unions to bring together the different elements of the labor movement in Europe in an effort to establish solidarity making for world peace.

REFUSAL TO PAY TAXES TO PEKIN CAUSES STRIFE

Returned Missionary Explains Present Conflict of Last Few Days.

NEAR SHANGHAI.

Defenders of the City Have Three Armies, Two of Them Mustering 40,000 Men.

OTTAWA, September 5. — Interesting sidelights on the Chinese situation were given yesterday in an interview by T. E. Plewman of Cheng Tu, West China, about 2000 miles in the interior from Shanghai, and who is in the city attending the Montreal Missionary Conference.

Mr. Plewman is in charge of the Canadian Methodist Mission Press in China. He explained that the forces at present in conflict represent two of the three great Chinese generals seeking dominance in that country. Wu Pei Fu is the general who controls Pekin, at the present moment He stansd for the Northern Government in China. Sun Yat Sen is the Southern leader. Allied with Sun Yat Sen, with a view to crushing Wu Pei Fu is another general, Chang Tso Ling, who really has nothing in common with Sun Yat Sen, declared Mr. Plewman, any more than Austria and England had in the Great War.

Mr. Plewman said that Chang Tso Ling is a former brigand. Under him is the Governor of Che Kiang, who controls Shanghai and the present fighting is between the latter general and the governor of Kiang Su, who is under Wu Pei Fu. Mr. Plewman thinks these two minor generals would not have engaged in conflict except by orders from their superiors and whether it means another general conflict is not yet apparent. Mr. Plewman intimated that what is manifesting itself near Shanghai is only typical of what those in the interior are experiencing repeatedly through the clash of military forces under Chinese generals, all determined to retain for their provinces what they have within their borders rather than forward taxes to Pekin.

No Gains in Fighting.

SHANGHAI, September 5. — Although troops estimated to number 40,000, battled yesterday, competent eye-witnesses declared that neither side had made any material gain in the fighting.

The battle front extended from the line of the Shanghai-Nanking Railway to the Yangtse river, about 18 miles from Shanghai at its nearest point, and about 25 miles at the most distant.

Lungwha headquarters of the Chekiang troops, defending Shanghai, claimed gains in the Hwangtu sector, on the railway, and in the Liuho sector on the coast. Both sides reported that they had added reinforcements to their fighting forces during the day.

Firing was continuous, the second day of the fighting, from six a.m. on When the Kiangsu troops opened their attack, only about a thousand defenders were holding the Chekiang lines. Trucks were pressed into service to rush troops and ammunition to the front, and the moving forward of reinforcements continued all day.

Three Defending Armies.

General Lu Yiung-Hsiange, commander of the defending forces styles his command the "Chekiang-Shanghai force." The defenders are divided into three arms, only o. . of which has thus far actually been engaged in the fighting.

The first army, which is estimated to include slightly over 20,000 men, is forming his present first line. It is in command of General Ho Feng-Ling, military governor of Shanghai, and Hung-Kiang. General Chang Tsi-Ping, is the second in co. mand.

The second army, which also is estimated to include over 20,000 men, is under the command of General Chen Yao-San, with General Yang Hwat-Sao second to him. This force occupies the second line, being stationed in the sector extending from Huchowain, near the northern boundary of Chekiang, to Kiating Hsien, about 14 miles west of Woosung, a suburg north of Shanghai. This army has been assigned to guard the Taihu (Lake) district, and the approaches to Lungwha Arsenal, and the Shanghai-Hang Chow Railway, way, which is still open.

The third army has been designated as a purely provincial defense force. It includes the first Chekiang division of 8,000 troops commanded by General Tsao Yang, former civil

FRANCE LOOKS FOR PEACE IN FUTURE YEARS

Premier Herriot Told Assembly In Address That the French People Wanted Peace.

MACDONALD SPOKE.

Nations Must Make What Is Right, Mighty and Mighty, Right.

GENEVA, Sept. 5. — (Canadian Press).— Premier Herriot of France addressing the League of Nations Assembly to-day stated that he brought word of France to the assembly and that he world was peace. The French Premier who received with great ovation hope that the United States would not refuse to continue its useful collaboration in disarmament especially now that arbitration had come in as feature. The question of arbitration was the greatest at the present time he said upon successful operation of which, he believed, tranquility of the world's people depended. He pleaded for some system of protection for small countries and amid applause declared that Germany if she desired admittance to the League should have the same treatment as other nations seeking admission.

"Justice without force is insufficient" Premier Herriot declared.

"We must combine right and might. We must make what is right, mighty, and what is mighty, right.

"It is necessary that force be Justice, and Justice be strong. Herriot was continuing the League debate on security and disarmament began yesterday by Premier MacDonald of Great Britain. His words caused a stir among the attending delegates and drew applause.

"Arbitration security and disarmament, all are inseparable" the French Premier insisted. Demanding fulfillment to the articles of the League covenant he pledged his country's support to "help make peace for all," provides the power of force over injustice weren't relinquished. "Herriot's speech contrasted with MacDonald's, the Britishers having been based more upon idealism and international good will.

PREMIER IS ILL.

TORONTO, Sept. 5. —(Canadian Press).—Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Provincial Premier, who was to have delivered an address at the Canadian National Exhibition this afternoon, was unable to do so, being confined to his home through illness.

governor of Chekiang, and the second Chekiang division equal in size under General Pan Kuo-Kong. These troops are stationed at Hangchow and Ningpo, cities of the northern part of Chekiang Province, and on the Chekiang borders. Military observers report that the Chekiang troops are better equipped and disciplined than their opponents. It is reported that all the Chekiang soldiers have been paid four months salary in advance together with a bonus.

Under Military Rule.

So far as the Chinese are concerned the City of Shanghai is under strict military rule, as was illustrated in the killing of two ricksha coolies yesterday, only a hundred yards from Sze Chuen Road, where electric street cars were running, and while two American witnesses stood by unable to prevent it.

Lloyd Brown, cafe proprietor of San Francisco, accompanied by a United States sailor, had entered the Chapei district on business. The Chinese guards made no move to prevent their entrance but when they sought to leave they were ordered to stop.

One of the ricksha boys protested at being stopped, and the guard promptly bayonetted him in the stomach. The guard then turned to the boy pulling the second ricksha, and clubbed him to death.

HUSBAND SLAIN

courtoom, at the door and down the stairway.

"We are here to preserve order, and we will do it," young Captain Bigelow, in charge of the soldiers, told the crowd when the inquest opened.

"And by crikety, that young fellow will do it," one lanky miner confided in a cautious whisper to his neighbor. "There ain't goin' to be any funny doin's here to-day!"

The readiness for action on the part of the soldiers was occasioned by the wide heralded announcement that Sheriff George Galligan, arch enemy of the Klan, would show up with twenty or more deputies all of them armed to the teeth.

"And, if necessary to get there," the Sheriff has declared from his fortress—the jail at Marion—"I'll lug along a couple of machine guns with me."

"And after it's all over," the Sheriff had added, "I'm goin' over to Smith's garage and pick up that car that all the shootin' was about."

Galligan Decides Not to Appear.

But the day wore slowly away, with only the drawling stories of the "Klan witnesses" to furnish the interest. Galligan at the last moment abandoned his plan. He now says he will not appear at the inquest at all.

"What's the use?" he said. "I'll sit tight now and tell my story to the Grand Jury, where maybe it'll do some good."

Representatives of both sides have tacitly expressed confidence in the neutrality of the jury, which the Coroner declares he used the utmost care in picking.

The military defence thrown about the inquest, besides serving to preserve a mouse-like stillness in the room, acted also to keep away the usual hordes of curiosity seekers. The benches were sparsely filled by an audience that betrayed no trace of factional feeling. The witnesses after "reciting their piece," as the anti-Klansmen expressed it, stole noiselessly away.

State's Attorney Duty has also declared he will take no part in the hearing.

"If I did," he said, "and the jury should reach findings antagonistic to the Klan, everybody would say 'Duty framed it.'"

Out of the court room, however, it was not difficult to pick up plentiful comments from "the other side" upon the "startling similarity" of the testimony of the Klan witnesses.

Besides the inevitable inclusion of the testimony that Mr. Duty and Judge Bowen took part in the gun battle, the witnesses almost without exception also brought the name of Dr. James T. Black of the Herrin Hospital into their statements.

"And I looked down the street and saw Doc Black acomin' in a little Ford car, and he fired shots into the crowd," declared one witness, and his story was repeated by the others.

To be sure, differences were numerous in the evidence of witness by witness, even as to the part played by the "Klan crowd," but no one would admit that he saw any Klansman in the battle flourish a gun or fire a shot. It was always Sheriff Galligan or some of his men that did all the killing.

Ora Thomas, Chief Deputy under Sheriff Galligan, who, as well as Galligan, failed to appear at the inquest, drove to Herrin late Wednesday afternoon, rode around in the business section and wound up his performance by driving leisurely by the John Smith garage, where he grimaced at Smith. By Thomas' side in the car sat a young woman. Klansmen accused him of taking her along for protection.

Captain Bigelow set out in a military car on the trail of Thomas.

"If I can get hold of him I will command him to return to the county jail at Marion and remain there as long as I am in charge here," the officer declared. He was incensed at what he termed the "silly performance."

The incident revealed that Smith had spent the afternoon barricaded in his garage, surrounded by twenty heavily-armed Klansmen, in anticipation of a second raid on the part of Sheriff Galligan and his men in an effort to gain possession of the automobile that brought about Saturday's clash.

Captain Bigelow gave permission for the wearing of Klan regalia, including hoods, within the cemetery at the funeral of Charles Williard, one of the slain Klansmen. The Klansmen asked the privilege of parading to the cemetery in their costumes, but the captain refused it.

MURDER CHARGE.

HERRIN, Ills., Sept. 5.—John E. Smith, Herrin garage owner, was charged by the coroner's jury of having killed Chester Reid here last Saturday in a shooting affray in which five other men were killed. The jury recommended that he be held to the grand jury and a warrant charging murder was issued.

COLBORNE WON FROM BRIGHTON

Defeated Home Crew By the Score of 14 To 1 in Loose Game.

BRIGHTON, September 5.—The Colborne Victorias continued their series of victories here yesterday when they gave the local team a 14 to 1 lacing at King Edward Park. It was by long odds the worst beating a Brighton team has had at home in the past six years. 'Chuck' Ross pitched wonderful ball, allowing Brighton only three scattered hits and not issuing a single base on balls.

Colborne gave him beautiful support. It would have been perfect in fact, had not Myler fumbled McKee's grounder in the eighth. Hawkins pulled down five drives that were labelled hits, two that he took from Shannon were heart-breakers. Barfett also pulled down a peach at Walt's expense. Myles, Billcox, and Mayhew also contributed some snappy fielding.

The game was more interesting than the score would indicate. Colborne got three runs in the first and added one in the second, but Roblin got going then and turned them back scoreless in the next four innings.

Errors in the seventh discounted his good work, however, and four runs put the game beyond Brighton's reach. Shannon worked the last two innings and also suffered from errors.

An unfortunate accident occurred in the second inning, which will deprive Brighton of Orval Archer's services for the rest of the season. He and Ross Collided at the plate so forcibly that both were thrown heavily to the ground, and in some way Archer's right arm was caught and the large bone in the forearm was fractured. Archer was one of the best players on the Brighton team, and he will be sadly missed.

Myles, Wilson and Ross were the big hitters on the visiting team, each having a double and two singles.

Solomon had a double also, and it drove in Brighton's only run.

PROPOSE NEW CHEMONG BRIDGE

Reeve Corkery Secured Inspection By Premier King and Hon. G. P. Graham.

FEDERAL ASSISTANCE.

For a number of years, an agitation has been on foot for a new Chemong Bridge, replacing the present floating structure.

At the June session of the County Council, it was suggested that the members, as a body, go to Ottawa to interview the Honourable George P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals, in reference to the proposal, but the presence of the Hon. Mr. Graham and the Prime Minister in Peterboro on August 28, presented an opportunity which was soon realized.

Reeve Corkery of Ennismore quickly requested a visit, and as a result the two Ministers, along with the local representative, G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., and members of the County Council, drove out to the bridge.

This inspection afforded an opportunity for the Premier and the Minister of Railways and Canals to become appraised of the magnitude of the undertaking and to consider the demands for the new bridge. It no doubt will prove the foreshadow of final negotiations with the Federal Government, in reference to its share of the proposed expenditure.

Every encouragement was given to Reeve Corkery as to his solicitation, and the Honourable Mr. Graham requested the County to determine what proportion of the expenditure will be borne by the county and the Province, before any definite assurance of the part the Dominion Government will assume in reference to such expenditure.

E. Bliss, vice-president and general manager. The company will develop its own power from the Kapuskasing River. It owns Trout-Chapleau Timber Limits from which it will draw its raw material.

PORT HOPE AT CAMPBELLFORD

Won the Silver Trophy in the Bowling Tournament—Peterboro Rinks There.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 5.—The Port Hope rink, skipped by J. Bunting, won the silver cup donated by A. J. Meyers, at the lawn bowling tournament which opened here yesterday, their margin over the Cobourg rink, of which F. J. Skitch was skip, being one shot. That shot, the last one in the game of 14 ends, was made by Skip Bunting, who broke the tie.

Twenty-one rinks, thirteen from outside, took part in the tournament, and the different games were sharply contested. Peterboro sent five rinks, among them being the veteran players, D. H. Moore and T. C. Elliott. Delora and Cobourg were each represented by a rink, and Belleville, Warkworth and Port Hope by two each. The various rinks were skipped as follows:

Peterboro — G. Cairns, T. C. Elliott, Walter Oke, T. E. Curvin, and G. V. Sedgwick.

Delora—V. Durling.

Belleville—R. J. Wray and T. J. Hurley.

Port Hope—D. J. Oke and J. Bunting.

Warkworth—J. Thompson, Dr. Armstrong.

Cobourg—F. J. Skitch.

Campbellford—L. P. Glover, J. P. Archer, R. J. Allan, J. R. Wilkinson, A. J. Meyers, Dr. O. C. Watson, T. S. Tait and D. E. Tait.

Everything about the club's premises looked spick and span in the bright sunshine. The green was in the pink of condition, and the club house was gay in a fresh coat of paint. The new flag pole, a shapely spruce, presented to the club by J. R. Wilkinson, had been set up a few days before the opening, and from the top, 45 feet above the ground, the national flag waved. Visitors to the green never fail to compliment the club on the ideal location, the appointments and the surroundings. The handsome prizes were on exhibition in the club room where the lady members served refreshments all day.

In the evening the Regimental Band was in attendance and furnished one of their usual entertaining programmes This added attraction drew a large crowd of spectators who waited until the last play for the Myers trophy. The following is a record of the day's play:

Primaries.

Wilkinson 7, Skitch 20.
Allan 7, Walter Oke 14.
Archer 16, D. Oke 21.
Curvin 14, Wray 20.
Glover 12, Dr. Armstrong 11.
Elliott 9, J. Thompson 8.

First Round.

Cairns 11, Hurley 8.
Durling 11, T. S. Tait 15.
D. T. Tait 9, Bunting 16.
A. J. Meyers 12, Sedgwick 13.
Dr. Watson 10; Glover 4.

Second Round.

Skitch 19; Wray 14.
Elliott 16; Cairns 14.
T. S. Tait 12; Bunting 13.
Sedgwick 10; Glover 12.

Third Round.

Skitch 20; Elliott 15.
Bunting 14; Glover 8.

Final.

Skitch 11; Bunting 12.

Some fine shots were made by both Port Hope and Cobourg in the final. The result was in doubt up to the end. First one and the other rink was one or two up and Port Hope was leading by two when the last end began. Cobourg managed to tie the score and that was the standing Skip Bunting took his place for the last shot. A champion billiardist could not have done more delicate work as he barely touched the Kitty, moving it sufficiently to score one and win the trophy.

A. J. Meyers, president of the club presented the cup to the visitors, complimenting them on their excellent play. Each memebr of the rink received in addition a carving set, and the runners up were also given prizes

The cup donated by W. S. Wiggins will be played for to-day, and there will be prizes awarded in Scotch doubles.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Work of the Upper Canada Society—Personal Mention.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 5—Miss Frances La Pape of Montreal representing the Upper Canada Religious Tract and Book Society is spending af few days in Campbellford making the annual canvass for funds to carry on the good work of that society. The scope of the Society's operations is Dominion wide and is worthy of the most liberal support.

From the Tract Societys' Depositary, thousands of the very best books are every year distributed to all parts of Canada. The aim being to scatter the good seed where it is not otherwise sown, hence its colportage work in isolated parts of the Dominion and its mission to men sailors, soldiers, lumbermen, etc., who because of the nature of their daily work and circumstances are deprived of many of the privileges of ordinary life.

The missionary and Social Service activities of the Tract Society are interdemoninational in character and international in scope.

The mission to sailors, "On Inland Waters", is the only organization in Canada doing sailor welfare work among the 25,000 sailors of the Great Lakes and other inland waters and the Lighthouse keepers and men of the Life Saving Stations on both sides of the waterways and lakes.

The Tract Society owns and operates the Royal Arthur Sailors' Institute at Port Arthur and The Sailors' Rest, Toronto. These are well equipped resorts for the sailors ashore.

A free shipping bureau is conducted at each. The society further supplies loan libraries for use on board. Books are also supplied for the use of soldiers. The Tract Society has sent good reading matter to the military hospitals and convalescent homes, from Halifax to Vancouver. One of the most important fields in Canada is that offered by the lumber, mining and railroad camps. There are in the Dominion over a quarter of a million camp laborers. The tract society reaches as many as possible and supplies them with good literature. Friends are needed to enable the society to carry on this work.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Collins, of Shannonville, spent Wednesday in Campbellford, the guest of his sister, Mrs. Joseph Douglas, Church street.

HOTHOUSE TOMATOES.

A delicious salad is made by peeling and slicing hothouse tomatoes on a flat dish, then covering them with finely chopped lettuce and celery and mayonnaise dressing.

LUNCHEON DISH.

For a luncheon dish sprinkle grated ham and grated cheese over slices of toast and set in the oven until the cheese has had an opportunity to melt.

FRUIT COMBINATIONS.

Combinations of fruit make most delicious and nourishing desserts and are not difficult to prepare. Pineapple and cherries or strawberries or bananas and oranges are much better for summer consumption than pastries.

KEEPS PICK HANDY.

Put a screw eye on the end of your ice pick and keep it hung up near the refrigerator. It is one of the most easily lost of all kitchen tools.

ECONOMIZE ON GAS.

If your oven has less space than you have foods to place in it, stand a brick on end and set a dish on that. As long as you have to keep the oven going you should plan to do as much baking as possible with one application of heat.

COLBORNE PLAYER BROKE HIS WRIST

Collided With Brighton Man in Northumberland League Contest.

ORLAND, Sept. 5. — At the Northumberland League fixture game between Brighton and Colborne at Brighton, the home team met with a big loss, and Orval Archer with a very painful accident.

Archer collided with Ross of the visiting team with the result of a broken wrist.

Baseball players from all the county teams will sincerely sympathize with Mr. Archer in his painful accident.

Archer was a good man anywhere he was placed on the team.

A year ago he resigned the position of teller at the Standard Bank at Brighton and became bookkeeper for Mr. Grant Quick at the Presque Isle Pleasure Hotel, Presque Isle Point.

BUILDING IN WINTER

Several speakers at the unemployment conference in Ottawa have strongly condemned the old idea that building operations should be suspended in Canada during the winter months.

Then contention is that there is a needless amount of seasonal unemployment and that construction work can economically and successfully be carried on in the cold weather.

It is a matter of record that work on the Mount Royal Hotel in Montreal, was pushed steadily throughout the winter and little difficulty was experienced.

Large numbers of men engaged in the building trade are usually thrown out of employment in the winter and it is contended that the lay off could easily be avoided once the idea that construction work can be done during the winter is generally sold.

Those who have brought this idea before the unemployment conference have made a valuable contribution.

If it is found possible to continue building during the mid-winter months, the unemployment problem is solved so far as many thousands of workers is concerned.

HAVELOCK'S TRIUMPH.

Staid residents of Havelock remained out of bed until an early hour this morning to give a noisy and enthusiastic welcome to a gallant little band of youngsters, the Havelock Midget Lacrosse team who yesterday captured the provincial championship by defeating Fergus in a sudden-death game in Toronto.

The tribute was well merited.

It is no slight honour to capture an Ontario championship in any line of sport and it is unusual for a centre as small as Havelock to win such a title.

The East Peterborough village is one of the few places in Ontario to fight consistently and valiantly for the perservation of Canada's National game.

While baseball has been so rapidly encroaching upon Ontario soil as to almost completely drive lacrosse out of existence the Canadian game has been kept alive in Havelock and for what has been done by the citizens of that village in fostering lacrosse there should be general admiration.

It is fitting that the efforts made to keep the old game alive should be rewarded by the capture of an Ontario championship and the Examiner is sure that citizens of Peterborough will congratulate the youngsters of the Havelock team and the good fellows who have stood behind them in their fight for the title.

RALLY ROUND THE EXHHIBITION.

Peterborough's attention next week should be focussed on the Industrial Exhibition which this year promises to surpass all previous local fairs.

If the enthusiasm of the dierctors could be transferred to the public generally, there would be no doubt of the record-breaking nature of next week's big event.

The Canadian National Exhibition has been built up largely upon two things, the vision and foresight of its management and the fact that every citizen of Toronto, in fact, nearly every citizen of Ontario has been a booster for the Exhibition.

Toronto people talk about the "Ex" and write to their friends about the "Ex" for months before it arrives.

Most of them regulate their holidays by it—coming home from the summer resorts in time for the great event.

Exactly the same ind of attitude should be adopted by the people of Peterborough toward their own exhibition.

If every citizen of this city and district were to show the same spirit in regard to the Peterborough Industrial as Toronto people do toward the Canadian National, the progress of the local fair would be so striking to attract Dominion-wide attention.

It is Peterborough's own exhibition and if given the support it deserves there is no limit to the growth and development it may achieve.

"Rally behind the Peterborough Industrial" should be slogan for next week.

TRYING IT ANOTHER WAY.

London ratepayers will have a ballot handed to them the next time they vote, asking them to state wheeher they desire to have two members elected to the police commission of this city, says the London Advertiser. Mayor Wenige failed in his drive to get this legislation through the provincial House, and this is another way of trying to bring pressure to bear on the point he tried to make before.

The police commission at present consists of the county judge, the police magistrate and the mayor. The proposed plan would increase the membership to five at the very time when the trend in the administration of civic business is towards smaller bodies. The mayor believes in a smaller council, but a larger police commission.

The weakness of the proposal is that there is no good purpose to be served by introducing local politics into the administration of the police department. It is borrowing a leaf from the system in vogue in United States, where they elect all officials on a straight party ticket.

The people are represented on the police commission at present by the mayor, who is elected by the people so it is a fact that the commission at present is partly elective.

Were the present system being abused there might be good reason for urging that a change be made, but it is not being abused, and it is not charged that such is the case. London can do very well when it votes on the matter by leaving things as they are.

THE WESTERN SITUATION.

We are once more turning on a main pivot in the commercial history of the country. The harvest is being gathered. Much depends on the volume of grain in the west, where single-crop farming still obtains in considerable degree. At all events, the output of wheat, and the price at which it can be marketed, are important factors in the whole business situation of the Dominion. For this vital reason, we shall all watch with interest the outcome in western Canada during the next two months, says the Ottawa Journal.

It is certain that the yield of wheat will fall about 100,000,000 bushels below that of last year; but the market price promises to be about 25 per cent. higher. That will go a long way toward countervailing the shortage in volume, so far as the primary producers are concerned. It will not, however, offset the loss in traffic to the railways, and we are all very much concerned in what happens in that regard. It will mean a cut of possibly $13,000,000 in the gross earnings of the Canadian National Railway, in which the people of Canada are the stockholders, and about the same amount to the Canadian Pacific. We shall therefore watch with direct concern the efforts of Sir Henry Thornton, to produce by rigid economy as large an operating surplus as he obtained last year.

There has been discontent and discouragement in the west ever since the inevitable and inexorable process of deflation began in 1920. The prices for what the farmer had to sell declined below the prices of what he had to buy. This quite naturally made for dissatisfaction. In that state of mind he failed to clearly realize the play of economic laws, and fell back on the assumption that Government "might do something" in the matter. He is now about to receive a fair price for his wheat, and should frankly confess that Government had nothing whatever to do with that. Under such bettered conditions it is to be hoped he will find his sense of class consciousness somewhat less acute.

It would indeed be a happy thing if the upturn in the market price should bring about broader and sounder thinking in the west. If we are to achieve national aims and ideals, there must be a subsidence of the provincialism which has hitherto been asserted. It conflicts with full and hearty co-operation. It also complicates the political situation. It makes for separation rather than unity. Incidentally, it lies at the bottom of the pork barrel form of placation and is from every point of view undesirable. No one can doubt that we shall be stronger in all the elements of nationhood when sectionalism has entirely disappeared.

LABOR AND HUMAN VALUES.

Perhaps no holiday of the year is made as little use of, except for holiday purposes, as Labor Day. Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter are fully recognized and commemorated. This is increasingly true of Dominion Day, but not of Labor Day. An occasional labor parade in some of the larger cities is the extent of any intelligent commemoration of the day. The pulpits, on the Sunday, discuss more thoroughly, and, in some cases, more intelligently, the problems of labor than the labor people do on the Monday. Whatever may have been the failure of the pulpit in the past in this respect, it is certainly not failing in the present to fully appreciate the problems and possibilities of labor, and is speaking fearlessly and frankly on the question.

* * * *

The new note being sounded from the pulpits on industrial matters has to do with human life and values. It stresses the human touch, human character and the value of human personality. After all, this brings one to the heart of the whole question. Even a century ago human life in England was counted as cheap. The people of that day argued "that the prosperity of any society depended upon an abundant supply of ignorant poor to do the hard, unskilled work cheaply." Women worked naked in the mines and toiled at the coal trucks like mules, while children became veritable slaves in the textile mills of the old land. No wonder the late Dr. John Clifford of London became one of England's great reformers, when as a child of eight years he was pulled out of bed between 4 and 5 o'clock in the morning and his bare feet placed upon the cold slab floor so he would not go to sleep again, and sent off to the mills to work until late at night. In China today business magnates from so-called Christian countries are exploiting labor in the same way.

* * * *

It has been claimed that for the prosperity of any societ y an abundant supply of ignorant poor must be available. But a certain writer well asks: "What do these statesmen mean by society? Evidently not the majority of the people, for in this so-called prosperous society they meant a society in which only a small minority are really prosperous." We have had in the past too much of that kind of society which deprives the great majority of people of any hope of living lives which will result in liberty, happiness or satisfaction.

* * * *

We are coming today to recognize the human element in industry. The sacredness of personality has loomed up as a great truth. It is truth and noble ideas and ideals which change things. The truth that man is a spirit and not a chattel is revolutionary in its power. It demands that human rights precede revenue, and that Christian principles in business are of more importance than profits. The teachings of Jesus always laid great stress on the value of a human soul. It was He who asked the question: "How much is a man better than a sheep?" "What will it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" A famous man, seeing how this principle of the sacredness of human life must change things, exclaimed as he saw a passing lad: "I wish I was that boy; he will see in his lifetime the most wonderful development and changes of human society that the world has yet witnessed."—London Free Press.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

A Herrin, Ill., man has been charged with murder. It has always been suspected that if they kept on killing people in that town sooner or later somebody would get into trouble.

The unemployment conference has developed nothing of great importance so far except the announcement that the Government does not intend to come to the assistance of the municipalities.

A farmer near Peterborough has produced 63 bushels of wheat to the acre. Will United States papers please copy, says the Toronto Star.

It will soon be necessary to adopt a quota law to regulate the movement of ball players from across the border.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

The most popular summer resort is, "It's too hot to work to-day."

We would hate to be a bow-legged summer girl and always wonder if we were standing in the light.

Some people are so absent-minded they forget themselves.

It took six days to make the world and still some want to change it in one.

A man who doesn't know where he is going seldom gets anywhere.

Nothing hurts your luck like having it in for somebody.

The first three months of summer are the hottest.

Our idea of hard luck is a fat man at a dance on a hot night.

Never count your chickens before they return from an auto ride.

A pretty girl never likes to take her own word for it.

Looking for trouble is a fine way to lose your head.

People who sleep on sleeping porches should get up first.

We would hate to be a rich man's son and have to stay in trouble nearly all the time.

Money makes the mare go. It also seems to make the hair go.

The man who doesn't have to work might as well collect his life insurance.

One great objection to living in the country is you have to go to town for your vacation.

It's an unlucky fisherman who doesn't even catch one to lie about.

An easy way to make a small boy take a bath is to paint a "No Swimming" sign on the bath room door.

Fish usually stay in water over their heads. So do human fish.

A man in love will do anything, but he usually does nothing.

A THOUGHT

LONELINESS.

At times, I tread the crowded ways
Where faces smile and laughter rings,
But sigh for friends of other days,
And vanished things.
And so, amid the noisy throng,—
The slaves who bow at Pleasure's throne,—
I hear the echo of a song,
And walk alone.

The clatter and the din of streets,—
The cheerful folk in fashion dressed,—
How worthless these, to one who meets
No friend to soothe a troubled breast;
The blighted hopes of wasted youth
Oppress my soul, like weights of stone,
And, groping blindly, for the truth,
I walk alone.

Yet moments come, at eventide,
When in my soul a Voice I hear,
Which tells me that the things denied
Are drawing near,
And oft I feel the strength to shun
The sordid fears my heart has known,
Convinced that God will guide the one
Who walks alone.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, September 5. — A bunch of 22 1,340 pound steers sold late on Wednesday at $7.25 a cwt. Ollie Atwell had a nice load of black feeders nearly 900 pounds each, for which he wanted $5.50 a cwt., but the price did not appear attractive to the buyers. The same firm were carrying a pen of useful butchers' heifers for which the best bid was only $4.25 a cwt.

Trading in cattle showed no improvement over the earlier part of the week and prices on medium and common butchers are down below Monday. Tired holders were letting go quite freely yesterday morning, and packers were able to make almost their own terms. A good proportion of the cattle on sale will be sold before the day was over.

Loads of stockers around 750 pounds each sold at $4.25 a cwt. The best butchers on offer yesterday did not bring over $6.00 a cwt., and some good killers were had at $5.40 and $5.50 a cwt.

The calf market continues decidedly snappy. Late on Wednesday J. Calvert sold calves off the road at 11 1-2 cents a pound and for one 210 pounds Puddy ros. paid 13 cents a pound. Yesterday mornig's market was steady. Choice calves were 10 3-4 cents and 11 cents, and good 25 cents to $9.25 a cwt. f.o.b.

Lambs were steady yesterday at 12 1-2 cents. One bunch which was extra good, was being held at 13 cents but sold at $12.60 a cwt. For one large bunch 12 1-2 cents was paid. A few handyweight sheep sold at $6.25 a cwt.

Hogs were quoted yesterday morning at $9.50 a cwt. f.o.b., and the week-end quotation will be reduced the demand is due to increasing sup-

EGG PRICES.

OTTAWA, September 5 (Canadian Press). — Latest reports from producing sections state there has been some increase in egg receipts during the past few days, with the demand not so good. It is felt in trade circles that the slackening in the lemand is due to increasing supplies of fresh fruits and to the advance in egg prices.

Toronto market easy unchanged. Retailing specials 52 to 55 extras 45 to 48, firsts 38 to 43, seconds 32 to 35.

Montreal market active. Jobbing specials 47 to 48, extras 42 to 43, firsts 36, seconds 30.

Ottawa receipts light quality improving. Retailing extras 43 to 48, firsts 37 to 42, seconds 33 to 38.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, September 5 (Canadian Press). — The foreign demand for grain here yesterday was quieter, and as prices bid were generally below those of Wednesday little new business was done. There was, however, a fair demand from New York exporters for grain here, and sales of some round lots if No. 1 Northern wheat were made at 19 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg October option. A moderate trade was done in spot supplies of oats and the tone of the market was firm with prices unchanged.

There was no important change in spring wheat grades of flour, the prices being steady. Demand from foreign buyers was fair. A feature of trade in winter wheat flour was the demand from British West Indies buyers for supplies, and sales were made of some fair-sized lots. The tone of the market was steady. Trade in white corn flou rwas quiet.

The demand for millfeed continues good, and a moderate business was done, with no change in prices. The market for rolled oats was quiet.

Trade in baled hay continues fair, and a firm feeling prevails on a shortage of supplies.

There is nothing new in the egg situation, with prices firmly maintained and no change in prices.

There was some demand from English importers for supplies of butter, but the domestic trade was very limited, indicating that supplies on hand are ample at present. There was quite a lot of inquiry from foreign buyers for cheese, but the prices bid were below levels asked and little business was done. In consequence the market is quiet, with an easy undertone.

Marketing of the new bean crop has been retarded by weather conditions, and will not be on sale, it is expected, before the end of the month. Old crop beans are selling at $2.45 to $3.00 per bushel for choice No. 1 grades.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, September 5 (Canadian Press). .... Cattle, 13,000; trade on better grade fed steers and yearlings very active at strong to 25c higher prices; other grades steady to strong; clearance good; extreme top, $11.50 paid by shippers for Illinois fed long yearlings scaling 1,084 pounds; best matured steers, $11.25; bulk fed steers and yearlings, $9.50 to $11.00; grassy cows 15c to 25c lower; fed kind steady to weak; yearling heifers higher in sympathy with yearling steer trade; other classes generally steady; bulls closing weak; stockers and feeders slow; country men refusing to follow fat cattle advance; bulk vealers $12.75 to $13.25 to packers, outsiders up to $14.00.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, September 5 (Canadian Press). — Trading in all grain was light yesterday, and with lack of buying power the markets were easily influenced. At the finish wheat showed a net loss of 3-8c to 7-8c with September $1.23 7-8 to $1.24 and December $1.28 7-8 to $1.29.

Corn was off 1-8c to 3-8c.

Oats was 1-8c lower to 5-8c higher.

Provisions unchanged to 20 cents down.

Disappointing cables and hedging pressure in wheat at the start caused uneasiness, it being evident that the market was a little overbought as a result of elimination of much of the short interest on Wednesday's closing bulge.

On the downturns some buying developed and carried values above the previous closing level. These gains, however, were quickly wiped away when free selling by houses said to be acting for elevator interests and believed to be hedging was brought out. Foreign demand has subsided somewhat as a result of Wednesday's advance here.

A DOLE SYSTEM NOT ENCOURAGED

Conference On Unemployment Came To An End Last Evening.

OTTAWA, September 5 (Canadian Press) — Concrete proposals for solving the unemployment problem in Canada were last night placed before the National Conference called for the purpose. They were submitted in the report of the committee named by the conference and with a few sight changes were adopted clause by clause, and late this evening the conference came to an end after two days of much lively discussion.

After declaring that the system of relief involving payment of doles be not continued, the report recommends that all work of a permanent and necessary nature be undertaken with a view to providing as much winter employment as possible.

The Federal and Provincial Governments are urged to proceed to call for tenders and to begin work on all public works for which appropriations have been passed in last session of the various legislative bodies.

It is also urged that where possible shorter hours would be instituted for the purpose of providing employment for a larger number of men.

The national committee said the report should be appointed to survey the field and determine where and what kinds of work can be most suitably found and also consult with the various governing bodies to devise ways and means of financing such undertakings. Emergency relief was also favoured.

In certain provinces it set forth that much unemployment exists, and it urged that in such areas some definite understanding should be reached between the various bodies on this question, and that emergency relief should be provided on the basis whereby municipalities pay 50 per cent. of such relief cost, and the remainder be equally divided between the Federal and Provincial Governments.

It also recommended that the emergency relief in the respective municipalities be confined to bona-fide residents and that the Federal and Provincial Governments provide relief for the migratory workers out of jobs.

ACCIDENT NEAR ORLAND.

Two Cars With One Light Each Collided on the Highway.

ORLAND, Sept. 5.—On Saturday evening at about 7.30 as Mr. Louis Stephens of Belleville was coming westward on the Provincial highway near Mr. Brock Scripture's place about half a mile east of Brighton he came into collision with an east bound truck which was on the wrong side of the road, with the following results that the truck was nearly demolished and all of the four occupants were more or less hurt, while Messrs. Stephens and Cooney who were in the front seat of the Stephens car were unhurt. Their wives who were in the back seat were more unfortunate, as Mrs. Cooney who had an infant in her arms, was thrown out on her back on the running board and had one foot caught in the braces of the top but held on to the infant who was unhurt. Mrs. Stephens was thrown on her face on the road.

When the question of damages arose it was found that each vehicle had only one light and so the matter was hushed up to avoid fines.

Mr. Cooney is the second son of Mr. William Cooney who lives near this place and he was on his way to spend the week end with his father when the accident occurred.

ORLAND FLUME LEAKS.

If It Leaks in the Flood Time It Will Mean the Loss of 400 Yards of Earth.

ORLAND, Sept. 5.—Great concern if felt by the County road officials over the leak through the old flume which was recently filled in with earth.

Mr. Ryckman has raised the water and then the leak was discovered at first on the north side and later on the south side.

Most of the residents thought that it was unwise to fill this flume as in a flood time there would not be sufficient room to get rid of overplus water, but the road engineer was of the opinion that it would not be necessary.

However if it leaks now it will certainly be worse in flood time and if it should go out it will mean the loss of 400 yards of earth and gravel and time putting it in.

The Pen that Convinced the World

The history of the fountain pen is very like that of the telephone, the telegraph, the radio and a host of other present-day conveniences.

Fifty years ago no one thought a satisfactory fountain pen would ever be an accomplished fact. Scores of pens had been invented, but not one of them would write properly. They only worked at times; the ink flow could not be controlled.

But in 1883 came Waterman's Ideal—the perfect pen—one that would always work properly, one that would not leak, one that would meet the peculiar requirements of every man's hand.

From a beginning of 200 pens in a year—made by hand—Waterman's has developed into a great industry. To-day there are millions of Waterman's Ideals in service in all parts of the world.

NAVY BLUE FROCK

Embroidery is being used more discriminately than usual this season, and therefore is more effective than ever before. On this navy blue frock the tan embroidery not only brightens up the dress itself but it emphasizes the best lines without detracting from their simplicity. The sleeves are unusual and so is the use of the buttons following the side seam on the skirt.

FACTORIES BLEW UP.

Many Were Killed and Towns Were Wrecked Near Turkish Capital.

LONDON, Sept. 5. — (United Press).—The countryside around Constantinople was shaken for miles, many workmen were killed and others died in hospitals and the town of Makrinkeny was practically wiped out when powder factories about twenty miles from the former Turkish capital blew up, according to a Central News despatch to-day.

Communists were blamed at first, but later the disaster was attributed to carelessness on the part of employees.

WHEAT HARVEST GIVES MEED OF GOLDEN GRAINS

Prosperity of Canada Depends Upon Success of Farmers.

EPIC OF YEAR

Men Made Divinity of Wheat That Still Rules the World Markets.

By WILLIAM L. CHENERY.

The yellow grain is ripening. Across wide fields as far as the eye can see the matured heads of wheat are calling to the reapers and today again, as so often before in human history, the Summer's harvest is the centre around which great affairs are revolving.

In the tumultous "Pit" of the Board of Trade at Chicago, in the lesser markets of Kansas City, Duluth, Minneapolis, Winnipeg, in Liverpool, Odessa and India, far below the equator in Buenos Aires, in Cape Town and in Australia keen men are directing their best intelligence in the effort to comprehend how wheat is faring in its annual battle for life against the unfavorable elements.

On tiny farms and bonanza estates men and women and their children are anxiously scanning the skies for signs of wind and weather, and every morning walking out to the tawny fields to learn by actually touching the grains how the harvest is maturing.

In the political capitals and in the industrial centres men responsible for the largest affairs are hardly less eager. They know all too well that political destiny and commercial prosperity will be intimately affected by what happens this Summer to wheat, the principal food crop of the world.

Long ago men made of wheat a divinity and when the harvest was safely gathered they did honor to a goddess fashioned of the broken grains. Forms and rituals have changed somewhat with time, but all knowledge attained by the most sophisticated of all generations has diminished but little man's dependence on this cereal, and if no longer sacrifices are offered to Demeter, whole populations continue to pray for rain and sun in order that seed sown may come to fruition. Wheat is in very truth the centre of a great world drama.

Fortunes are being made today in the markets, and tomorrow the new-found riches may be gone.

Harvest Here.

On the farms and vast plantations the climax of the year has come and in this country it is bringing hope and the promise of a new prosperity. Prodigious efforts are being put forth. Men and women and their children are laboring with feverish energy.

The harvest has reached its flood tide. Day by day the hot sun is accomplishing its endless miracle and farmers are mobilizing their forces to garner the grain while they may. The binders and reapers and threshers have been oiled and repaired and made ready for the great test.

Before dawn the women folk are stirring and fires are built in the kitchen stoves. Each farmhouse is the commissary of a labor troop and incalculable numbers of biscuits and pies and cakes are being baked to sustain the men who bear the heavy work of the harvest. Around each kitchen table there are many strangers, strong men summoned to take part in the swift onslaught upon the matured wheat.

No time can be lost. Once the tiny grains have ripened they must be gathered before a rain, so welcome a few days before, threatens to destroy the results of a season's labors. Only those who have shared in the undertaking can understand the full fury of bringing in the harvest. Horses and tractors are dragging the intricate machines far across great fields and behind the binders and reapers men are exerting themselves to the utmost under the broiling heat of a fiery sun. From early morning until late evening the work goes on. Interruption is intolerable until the harvest is in and the men drive themselves and are driven until the last ounce of energy is expended. In large wagons strong young men arrange the bundles of wheat, racing with their fellows to keep up the swift pace.

Strange Companies.

Strange companions compose the companies and battalions of the wheat fields. Alone the farmers and their families and permanent laborers could harvest but a small fraction of the actual crop. So tens of thousands of day laborers are assembled.

Young men and boys, peasants from Europe and college lads, laborers from the cities and factories, men who have been defeated and broken in the struggle of life, and others who are at the threshold looking into the future for the satisfaction of their desires and aspirations, are indiscriminately assembled. Strong backs and willing hands are wanted, and few questions are asked. A Vachel Lindsay or a Knut Hamsum may be toiling on any man's farm alongside a homeless and nameless wanderer. Who they are matters little so long as they can endure the ordeal

But for the myriads of migrant laborers who have so little of the good things of life the wheat would rot on the stalk. What these men do between harvests no one cares. Where they live, how they obtain food and shelter, what comforts and satisfaction are theirs concerns none. Only the call goes out when their arms and backs are needed. Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta demand urgently so many "hands," and the hands appear from everywhere. Men who look like tramps and who must tramp or steal rides on the railroads come forth for the great agricultural mobilization, and when their work is done they vanish, "homeless, voteless, womanless," whither few know and fewer care, essential as they are to the world drama of wheat.

Farmers Lead Assault.

The farmers are the captains and the generals. They direct the drive and theirs is the responsibility, the prospective gains or the inescapable losses. This year, for the first time since war prices broke, there is expectation of profit. The calamity which unfavorable weather brought to other countries has blessed the Canadian grower. His wife is thinking of new hats, his banker is expecting notes long overdue to be paid, his children, who a few weeks ago were prepared to forego the hope of more education, are now looking forward to college. He is wondering how long the price of wheat will hold. Can he get his bushels to the elevator before their value goes down? Will the price go higher? Should he hold his harvest for the rise? These are anxious days in the wheat belt.

But whether the price continues high or falls, the work must proceed. Horses are tugging at their heavy loads, motors are sputtering, and hot, dirty men, covered with the sweat and the dust of the wheat fields, are driving on. Little boys and girls in large straw hats are hauling large pails of water to quench the thirst of dry throats. The dry sheaves are being plunged into the exhaustless maws of the threshing machines; the hard yellow grains are pouring forth to be caught in bags and hauled away, and huge mountains of straw are being erected, the waste product of the harvest. Months from now, when the season's work is done, the farmers will return to set fire to the straw, and for days the countryside will be illuminated at night and darkened by the day with the burning.

Now, however, the waste is forgotten, and as soon as the threshing is done the hard task of hauling the wheat to the elevators is undertaken.

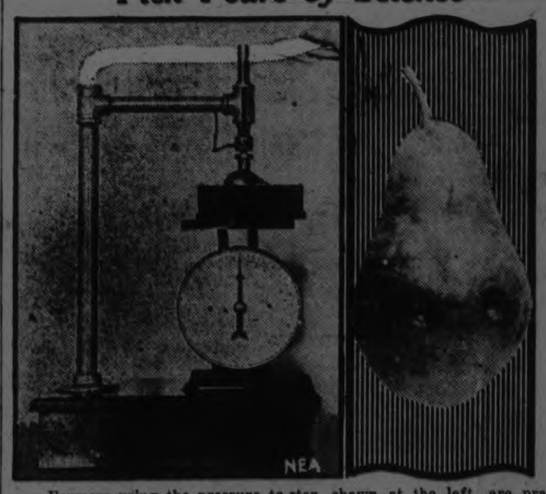
Wheat In Politics.

Here is the politics of wheat. The interest of farmers and of manufacturers are seldom identical; but in seasons of prosperity the differences are not emphasized. When every one has enough, tolerance is an easy virtue. But the depression came, and when other groups again became prosperous, the farmers continued to be poor. There are thousands of women in the wheat belt who have not bought new hats during the last two or three years. Tens of thousands of wives and mothers who previously had domestic help have been bearing the heavy load of a farmer's wife without assistance. Men have gone without material things they desired greatly. The political uneasiness in the wheat region has been grounded in the actual lack of comforts, if not of necessities.

Here is the politics of wheat. It cannot be argued away. Men who work plowing the fields, sowing the grain, harvesting the crop, think long thoughts when they are compelled to sell the fruit of their labor without profit. Three months ago no change had come and it seemed probable that 1924 might be a repetition of previous years.

Now the change has come. If the price remains relatively high, millions will find a new comfort in life; if it falls, unrest is inescapable.

Pick Pears by Science



Farmers using the pressure te ster, shown at the left, are practically sure of the proper time to h arvest their pears. At right is a pear after it has been tested, show ing pressure marks at its widest diameter.

CORVALLIS, Ore., Sept. 5.—Picking pears has been put on a scientific basis.

No longer will this fruit ripen before it reaches the consumer, nor will farmers have to face any loss on this account.

A device known as a "pressure tester" has been invented by Prof. A. E. Murneck of the Oregon Agricultural Experiment Station here to make pear culture an accurate agricultural science. It does in a sure way what farmers have long been trying to do in a haphazard manner—tell when the pears are just right for shipment.

Prof. Murneck based his invention on the definite theory that the resistance pressure offered by the pear at its widest diameter is the most accurate measure of the fruit's degree of maturity. It consists of a plunger which, when forced into the pear at its largest diameter, registers the pear's pressure resistance on a scale.

After thousands of experiments with all kinds of pears, Prof. Murneck has completed a table of pressure limits indicating when each class of pear is ripe for picking and shipping. For example, he has found that harvesting of Bartletts should begin when the pressure indicates an average resistance of 35 pounds. The lowest limit at which it is still safe to pick Bartletts is at 25 pounds, but the lower the pressure the closer must be the shipping point.

Only freshly picked uninjured fruit should be taken for testing by this method. To overcome individual peculiarities each lot should consist of 10 to 15 specimens. They should represent an average condition of the orchard or a particular section of it.

This method of testing pears is now in use in several fruit-growing districts of Oregon and Washington, and it has been found highly satisfactory. It may extend to the practice of picking other fruit than pears.

JUDGING TESTS AT EXHIBITION

Young Men and Women Are Eligible to Compete for Valuable Prizes.

TRIP TO OTTAWA

The young men and women of the county and city of Peterborough and townships of Emily and Cavan are again reminded of the judging competitions which are to be held at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition on Thursday morning, Sept. 11, at 9.30 sharp.

Boys will judge heavy horses, beef and dairy cattle, sheep and swine.

Girls will judge bread, cake, sewing and good dressing.

Fifty per cent. will be allowed for placing and 50 per cent. for written reasons.

Entries will be received up to the time the competition starts.

Ninety dollars in cash prizes are being offered by the Exhibition Board, and a free trip to the Royal Winter Fair to the boy and girl making the highest total score is being offered by Roland Denne, President of the board.

The Examiner Will Publish Reports Of Activities Of Farm Organizations

The winter season, with its round of meetings, will soon be upon the district. The Examiner, unable, because of the scattered population, to have a reporter at every meeting in the country district, will be glad to receive and publish authentic reports of meetings of farm women or of any farm organizations.

It is suggested that a press committee be appointed in every club to prepare the report and mail it immediately after the meeting.

To those who will forward reports promptly, which means the day the event occurred or the following morning, The Examiner will be glad to furnish stamps, stationery and envelopes.

Besides boosting the work of the club and adding to the membership, these reports will give a valuable record of the work accomplished.

EIGHT BILLIONS SUNK IN FARMS OF ALL CANADA

Greatest Number of Active Farms is in Province of Ontario.

PER CAPITA $2,525

Tangible Wealth of the Dominion Exceeds 22 Billions.

A survey of the national wealth of Canada as in 1921 completed by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, and including for the first time the provincial distribution of Canadian wealth, places the estimated aggregate of the tangible wealth of the Dominion at $22,195,000,000. This makes the per capita wealth of all kinds in Canada $2,525.

Some seventeen items enter into the estimated national wealth of Canada, in which the capital invested in the farms of the Dominion, including implements and livestock, naturally comes first, amounting to $6,587,000,000, or 29.68 per cent of the whole. The value of agricultural production in 1921, $1,396,000,000, was also included to cover the average stocks of agricultural goods in the possession of farmers and traders, and the amount invested in the preparation for the new crop. Thus the agricultural wealth of Canada totalled $7,983,000,000, or nearly 36 per cent of all the wealth of Canada.

City Property.

The second largest element in the national wealth was urban real property, including the assessed valuations of taxed and exempted property, to which was added one-third to provide for under-valuation by assessors and for roads, bridges, and sewers. The estimated value as based on returns for 1921, was $5,752,000,000, or 25.91 per cent of the total wealth of the Dominion.

Ontario Leads.

The wealth invested in steam railways, computed from the cost of road and equipment, and distributed by provinces on the basis of mileage, constituted the next largest item, amounting to $2,159,000,000, or 9.73 per cent of the total. Other important items include stocks in process, raw material, and finished products of manufacturing establishments to which was added 100 per cent as an estimate of the manufactured goods in the hands of the dealers, the whole amounting to $1,363,000,000, or 6.14 per cent; the tangible value of the forests, amounting to $1,197,000,000, or 5.4 per cent; and household furnishings and other personal property, including automobiles, amounting to $1,144,000,000, or 5.15 per cent.

In absolute wealth the Province of Ontario leads with 33.1 per cent of the total, followed by Quebec, which accounts for 25.01 per cent. Following in order come Saskatchewan with 12.8 per cent; Alberta, 8.8; British Columbia, 6.2; Manitoba, 7.4; Nova Scotia, 3.4; New Brunswick, 2.7; Prince Edward Island, 0.5; and the Yukon, 0.1 per cent. In the distribution of the per capita wealth, however, the order is drastically changed, the Provinces of Western Canada leading. The per capita wealth of the Yukon is estimated to be $4,058; of Saskatchewan, $3,757; Alberta, $3,317; Manitoba, $2,705; British Columbia, $2,604; Ontario, $2,507; Quebec, $2,347; New Brunswick, $1,541; Nova Scotia, $1,437; Prince Edward Island, $1,353.

On the basis of the 1921 population the per capita wealth invested in farms and equipment was $749; in urban real property, $654; in the railways, $246; in the forests, $136; and in household furnishings, clothing and motors, $130; manufactures, $70; mines, $64; imported merchandise, $43; central electric stations, $27; electric railways, $21; telephones, $18; canals, $16; shipping, $11; and fisheries, $3.

Agricultural Census 1921.

According to the agricultural census of 1921, there were at that time 711,090 occupied farms in Canada, covering an area of $140,887,903 acres. Of this total acreage 70,769,548 acres were improved and 70,118,335 acres unimproved. Of the acreage improved, 49,680,666 acres were in the field crops, 297,053 acres in orchard, 7,090 in vineyard, and 17,741 acres in small fruits. The average number of inhabitants per farm was 6.18, the average area of the Canadian farm 197.7 acres, the average land improved on this 99.36 acres.

Comparing these items with these of the census of 1911, it is found that the number of occupied farms in the Dominion has increased during the decade by over 4 per cent, and that at the same time there has been an increase of some forty acres in the size of the average Canadian farm, resulting in an increase of the total area of occupied farms amounting to nearly thirty per cent. The percentage of farm land improved on each farm increased in the decade from 44.72 per cent to 50.23 per cent, whilst there was an average increase of the number of inhabitants per farm from 5.70 to 6.18. The percentage of the total land area of Canada now occupied by farms stands at 10.05 per cent.

Tendency Toward Larger Farms.

The tendency in Canada, despite greater intensity of farming and the adoption of diversified methods, would seem to be towards the larger farm. The farms of two hundred acres and over accounted for 196,379 of the total 711,090, having recorded an increase of 47.90 per cent in the decade, the most substantial of any class. On the other hand, there are only 21,503 farms of from one to four acres, these having recorded a decrease of 51.14 per cent in the ten-year period. Farms of from one to two hundred acres numbering 229,648 at the 1921 census, likewise record an increase of .75 per cent. Farms of from five to ten acres numbering 22,555, of from eleven to fifty acres numbering 82,713, and from fifty to one hundred acres numbering 158,292, likewise show decreases of 7.62, 7.08 and 3.58 per cent respectively.

A phase of the farm occupancy which arrests the attention in a survey of these statistics, is the astonishingly low percentage of tenant farmers in Canada. Out of the total of 711,090 farms in Canada at the time of the census, only 55,948, or 1.86 per cent, were worked by tenants. This is an increase of 3.58 per cent for the ten years. Those farms occupied by part owner and part tenant amount to only 39,962, leaving 615,180 farms, or over 86 per cent of all Canadian farms, fully owned by the farmers occupying them.

Greatest Number Farms in Ontario.

The greatest number of farms are found in Ontario, which has 198,053, followed by Quebec with 137,619. The three Prairie Provinces follow next with 119,451 occupied farms in Saskatchewan, 82,954 in Alberta, and 53,252 in Manitoba. In the Maratime Provinces there are 47,432 farms in Nova Scotia, 36,655 in New Brunswick, and 13,701 in Prince Edward Island. British Columbia has 21,973 occupied farms. In the Province of Ontario the majority of the farms are from one to three hundred acres, whilst the greater number in Quebec run from one hundred to two hundred acres, and then in the class over three hundred acres. In the three Prairie Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the overwhelming majority of farms are over three hundred acres. In the Maritimes the largest number of farms are found to be from fifty to two hundred acres. It is surprising to find that in British Columbia the class of farms which runs highest is that over three hundred acres, whilst the second is that from one hundred to two hundred acres

The total of farm land values in Canada in 1921, including land, buildings, implements and machinery and livestock, was $6,586,648,126. This was divided amongst the provinces as follows;—Ontario, $1,691,686,034; Quebec, $1,096,787,710; Saskatchewan, $1,650,069,196; Alberta, $968,437,018; Manitoba, $650,638,045; British Columbia, $201,384,913; Nova Scotia, $136,841,573; New Brunswick, $131,825,675; and Prince Edward Island, $58,977,962. The Province of Ontario leads in the value of buildings and livestock, but the greater occupied land area of Saskatchewan gives this province the lead in the value of land and in machinery and implements

Farm Values.

Following up this item of farm values it is to be noted that the decline in agricultural prices from their war-time pinnacle resulted in 1923 in a lowering of the value of the average acre of land in Canada, including both improved and unimproved lands, together with all buildings thereon, is now returned at $37 per acre as compared with $40 in 1922 and 1921. The highest value is in British Columbia, where small farms and intensive farming is the general rule, where the average is $100 per acre. The lowest in the Prairie Provinces, with Manitoba $23 per acre and Saskatchewan and Alberta $24. The other provinces run: Ontario, $64; Quebec, $56; Prince Edward Island, $51; New Brunswick, $32; Nova Scotia, $31. This, it should be borne in mind, includes all land, and farm lands are to be purchased much cheaper in the raw state, especially in the Prairie Provinces.

A survey of the foregoing reveals ample reason for the last decade's influx of agriculturalists into Western Canada, particularly from the United States. Canada is a land of farm-owners, where the low prices prevailing for lands makes it possible for those who have been tenants all their lives to own their own farm homes within a short space of time. When, in addition to this, as has previously been pointed out, it is possible on these low priced lands to raise yet larger yields than those held and farmed at high prices, and to market the product more economically, the argument for farming in Canada becomes very powerful.

Did the first months of 1924 seem discouraging? Did the summer suns hide behind clouds? Every farmer in the Peterborough district had his days and hours of worry this year, and cherished plans seemed far short of fulfilment.

Then came August warmth, just in time, but in plenty of time, as it happened, to ripen the grain and fill the heads and dry the sheaves for the harvest. Today nearly every farmer is sitting pretty with his barns filled and his bins overflowing with golden grain that means a year of freedom from worry and a year of satisfaction: Still four months remain of this year. The latter months retrieved the apparent failure of the first months. Just to see for your own satisfaction how father time and bountiful nature are treating you, check off on the accompanying calendar for the remainder of the year the bright days against the dull. Put a circle, portraying the benevolent sun around days when things go well and score out the days when you have a kick at circumstances, or the weather, or nature.

The curtains of prosperity have been rolled back on the fields of Peterborough and the hearts of toiling farm women resound the glad song of harvest home.

INCREASED SALE DAIRY PRODUCTS

Large Market on This Continent Opens Up for Canadian Farmer.

EVADES DIFFICULTY

TORONTO, Sept. 5.— According to investigations just completed by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics the consumption of both butter and cheese in Canada is increasing measurably. During 1921 the consumption was 226,640,667 lbs., or 25.79 per capita. This increased in 1922 to 234,377,859 lbs., or 26.14 per capita, and last year to 251,038,733 lbs., or 27.45 per head of the population. Cheese consumption rose from 22,033,846 lbs. in 1921 to 28,503,602 during 1923, or from 2.51 per capita to 3.12.

This increase in the consumption of dairy products in Canada is rather significant in view of the fact that Canada has had some difficulty in the past in disposing of her dairy products to advantage in competition with those of such countries as New Zealand and Denmark. It is gradually being found that there is a much larger market for these products within the North American continent than was apparent five years, or less, ago.

BETHANY NEEDS RAIN

Harvest All in And Ground Too Hard for Ploughing.

BETHANY, Sept. 5.—The last week, which has been without any rain, has enabled the farmers to complete the harvest with the possible exception of late oats. Corn has grown wonderfully during the warm weather and will be a bumper crop. Fall ploughing is rather hard, and unless rain comes soon will have to be abandoned until rain moistens the ground. Threshing operations are not under way as yet, with the exception of a few remote cases. Mr. Challice, who lost his large barn by fire, is contemplating the erection of an all-steel barn which will be erected during next month.

FARMERS MOVE FROM DRY AREA

Changes Made By Some in Southern Alberta Recently.

NO EXODUS

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Sept. 5.—There has been no general exodus of farmers from the drought areas to the irrigated areas as yet, but a number of farmers have made the change. The Government of the province has announced that it will render some assistance, but details of the scheme have not been made public. In the meantime, a number of the irrigated areas are being canvassed and a check made on available farms with buildings. Farms either for rent or sale are being listed, and these will be shown intending settlers. One of the plainest pieces of advice to farmers in the very dry districts was made recently by a leader of the Mormon Church, Apostle Melvin J. Ballard, who advised those living in the very arid parts not to leave Canada, but to move as soon as possible to a district where they could get some land "under the ditch." It had been the experience of the Mormon Church, he declared, that their colonies had been the greatest success where some irrigation was available. "Diversify your products, Feed more livestock. Milk more cows and raise more poultry, for you will never reach stable prosperity raising wheat only."

OMEMEE GARNERS SPLENDID CROPS

Farmers Delighted and Contemplate Bigger Acreage

OMEMEE, Sept. 5.—Wonderful crops of fall wheat are reported throughout this district, and more especially through Ops. David McMann of Reaboro had 600 bushels off 11 acres, which is an average of 55 bushels to the acre. George Magahey has 650 bushels and Thomas Hawkins has 700 bushels. The market price is $1.20 a bushel. Many farmers are elated over the yield, and also the price, and are making preparations for an increased acreage next year.

The hog market shows a raise in price. Heavies are quoted at $10, with selects at $11 a cwt.

GRAIN EXCHANGE CREDITED WITH RESCUING FARM

Present Market Methods Keep Prices Up at Right Time.

BY GERALD MILLER

Says Grin is on Farmer's Face Because Returns Are Right.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 5.—General Farm Depression has marched his army of private worries down in the valley of recuperation to recover from the recent battle with supply and demand, who have been aided by Mrs. Nature, according to a constant flow of reports to the grain markets, it was declared by Samuel P. Arnot, executive vice-president of the Chicago Board of Trade.

The grin on the farmers' face isn't there because he got the fence down in the back pasture lot mended. It's there because corn is up to the point where it pays to plow and because the price of wheat is more than a whisper—and it is there to stay for the rest of the year, claims Arnot.

"Farmers are happier than at any time since the World War," reports from all agricultural districts. Never before in history has an upward price swing come at a more opportune time for the grain farmer. Talk that the farmer will not get the full benefit of these higher prices is absurd, for the higher prices have come just at harvest time wehn he has his whole crop to place on the market. His prosperity is inevitable.

"Only a few weeks ago Congress was being bombarded to enact a law to 'dispose of our huge surplus.' It is now quite evident that the farmers will have no difficulty in disposing of their supplies—and at excellent prices. Wheat has gone up thirty-six cents or more since that time, and corn, oats and rye have shown corresponding upward swings.

"Farmers are extolling the merits of the grain exchanges, while critics of the present marketing machinery, who built political hopes on agrarian unrest and extravagant promises, find themselves in somewhat of a quandary.

"Grain exchanges, with their vast facilities for gathering and disseminating information on world conditions, have made high prices possible at this time rather than after the crop had been marketed. In the old days of grain mraketing it was difficult to determine a shortage until it had become an actuality, or only after a very large part of the crop had been placed on the market.

"Today the public is kept informed of the ever-changing conditions which register the future needs of the world. With this information it is possible for manufacturers, exporters and consumers to buy their supplies for future delivery, and for men of means who have confidence in higher prices at harvest time to lend support to the market. Thus the farmer finds high prices at harvest time, when he is ready to sell his crop, instead of at the end of the year, when his crop has passed into other hands.

"Everything now points to agricultural prosperity which will mean prosperity for the entire nation."

HENRY'S AYRSHIRE HERD

Selects Milk for Ford Hospital Because of qualities.

The dairy herd of Henry Ford of motor car fame, will at first consist of 103 head of Ayrshire cattle from the Gossard Breeding Estates. These are to form the foundation herd on his 9,000-acre farm at Dearborn, Michigan. Mr. Ford has been considering the question of how to obtain the best milk for use of the patients in the Ford General Hospital. The consignment consists of 100 females and three males, most of which are descended from the great breeding and championbull "Beuchan Peter Pan." This bull has more tested daughters than any other Ayrshire sire in America, 56 of which average 11,099 lbs. of milk and 431.81 pounds fat.

Ayrshires have been selected because of the character of their milk. A number of hospitals and other States have kept medical records demonstrating highly successful results when the 4 per cent. milk of the Ayrshire is used. The proportion of its several nutrients and the smallness of its fat globules are thought by dieticians to be strong factors in the marked improvement of patients receiving it. So highly satisfactory has the milk proved that the Ford General Hospital, one of the greatest of its kind in the world, is, through the purchase of this herd, to give Ayrshire milk a part in restoring to health those who come to it for medical treatment.

CANADA SHOULD BE ACQUAINTED WITH JAPANESE

Rev. Daniel Norman Would Bring Two Peoples Closer Together.

RACIAL CHALLENGE.

Excluded People Seek Explanation in American Economic Needs.

TORONTO, Sept. 5.—As his last contribution to the better relations of the Canadian and Japanese peoples, before sailing on Aug. 28 for his home in Japan, Rev. Daniel Norman, D.D., prepared an article summarizing the points for and against immigration, prefacing this discussion with a disclosure of the more intimate aspects of Japan's reaction to the American exclusion bill. Dr. Norman challenges every Canadian newspaperman and public-spirited citizen to learn the available facts in regard to this interracial problem.

Dr. Norman has been for twenty-six years a missionary of the Canadian Methodist Church in Japan. He is a native of York County, Ont. A scholar and a street preacher, he knows the Japanese well.

The following is an article by Dr. Notman, based on personal observation in Japan and in this country.

"The challenge of Mount Everest and that of the Race Problem are closely parallel. They are, both of them, in the separate ways, the biggest thing in the world. Each has defied man's efforts. Each makes an irresistible call to the adventure of facing its perils and defying its difficulties.

"The very fact that the new post-war race problem is the supreme feature in the world landscape to-day, and that it lies right across the path of the onward trek of mankind, makes the attack upon it as inescapable for us as it is fascinating."

The foregoing are the opening sentences of Basil Mathews' preface to his new book, "The Clash of Colour."

I propose to study this clash as it affects Canada, the United States and Japan.

The cables have told us of the excitement that was manifested in Tokyo by the passage of the Immigration Bill in the United States Congress and Senate, but we have heard little of the attitude and expression of feeling on the part of the sober-minded, thoughtful people in Japan. When we have read that one man committed suicide after the old style(hara-kiri), and that some youths marched into the Imperial Hotel just after dinner when the dancing was about to begin and that the foreigners fled in terror from the ballroom (though the youths were not armed and did not threaten anyone), and that mobs demanded that American films and American goods be boycotted, we have not sufficient data on which to judge and condemn Japan. We should inform ourselves on several other lines if we would know or understand what manner of men the Japanese are.

One line of evidence is that supplied by business men residing in Japan. There is an American Association in Japan, and the executive committee has issued a statement signed by Mr. W. R. Devin, the chairman, and every member of the executive, saying: "We are in a position to deny that there has been any mistreatment of Americans here. The most radical elements in Japan have publicly announced that resident Americans would not be harmed. We request that the widest publicity be given this statement, especially on the Pacific Coast."

Much more could be added along this line from foreigners in Japan, showing that the Japanese have at least as much self-control under provocation as the highest ideals of conduct demand of us Westerners.

A Jolly Protest.

The next line of investigation will be a look into a Japanese meeting. Three thousand students gathered in the auditorium of the Industrial building in Kojimachi, the most important ward of Tokyo, and protested against the United States Exclusion Act. They spoke eloquently and fluently in a foreign tongue—English—yet every thought was caught and every humorous phrase understood by this turbulent, sympathetic throng. Demure Japanese maids sang in English, French and German; American residents in Tokyo gave music on the banjo, mandolin and mouth organ. Some apologizing for speaking too long were encouraged by "Never mind," "Go ahead," etc. The meeting began at 1 p.m. and continued for five hours. The crowd laughed, applauded, were serious, as the occasion demanded. In every heart there was doubtless resentment, but their attitude was calm and their midst was cordial." This is an abbreviated quotation from an English daily published in Tokyo. One striking thing is that it was Japanese speakers who explained the situation in such a way as to quiet and control the crowd. They gave a detailed account of social and labor conditions in America and of United States policies. Passion and prejudice were not aroused, not appealed to, but rather the aim was to get a fair understanding of the whole situation.

Christians Moderate.

Still another sidelight is the attitude and utterances of leading Christians. Meetings have been held; hot and strong denunciation has been poured forth, but that does not represent the spirit of the Christian churches, as a whole, by any means. The stronger men and women have spoken, and have really led the body of Christians in saying that they regretted the action of the United States Government, yet they recognized that "The majority of Christians in the United States condemned the legislation and worked to defeat it, and no doubt will continue to work against it in order to restore the friendly relation historicallyr existing between Japan and the United States." In a formal statement, a representative gathering of many churches made the following moderate but stirring pronouncement:

"The Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of mankind are fundamental to the spirit of Christianity. Therefore, for the perfecting of the highest civilization, individuals and nations should work together; there should be no discriminatory treatment which would engender strife and illwill on account of differences of race and nationality. . . . It is recognized by all nations that the limitation of immigration belongs to the sovereign rights of each nation. Nevertheless, the standard by which such limitation is determined should be based upon common intellectual, physical, political and moral qualifications and upon no other ground.

"The Immigration Act of 1924 of the United States in its present form is neither in accord with the spirit of Christianity nor with the standard-mentioned above. Furthermore, intres national amenities were not duly considered, nor was there time for mutual conference and friendly negotiations. And this, we feel, is an additional matter for regret."

Would Unify Asia.

Dr. Rabindranath Tagore has visited Japan since the passage of the Exclusion Bill, and has spoken in Kobe and Tokyo before large representative audiences. His address in Tokyo was in the new hall connected with the law department of the Imperial University. The lecture was to begin at 3 p.m., but long before that hour the hall was packed to the doors and windows. Over 2000 were waiting to hear Dr. Tagore when he arrived. He was received with enthusiastic applause, but as soon as the aged seer began to speak a great hush fell over the audience. He said, in the course of his address, that India is looking to Japan for leadership and expecting great things in the realization of the mission of the Orient.

"Asiatic peoples have a quality of mind peculiar to themselves; they try to understand the meaning of life and the stupendous scheme of the world in which we live. Western peoples emphasize material success and concentrate their energies on the accomplishment of it.' Jesus was a failure from the materialistic point of view, but he triumphed over material existence. We value the spiritual heritage of Asiatic culture. Japan has much in common with India in this respect. For this reason we feel keenly painful of any indignity that Japan should suffer. Japan's mission is in the spiritual domain. She should be the champion of Oriental culture and civilization which is quite distinct from that of the West. Western civilization is well unified. It aims to accomplish and achieve. The tendency in the West is to attain success at the expense of the rural districts. Wealth is the aim of the material civilization of the West. It is greedy and suicidal. Oriental culture is neither unified nor systematized, and it is of primal importance for us Asiatics to bring about its unification for the realization of its hopes and aspirations."

Thus spoke the prophet-patriot of India, Dr. Tagore. He went on to emphasize the necessity of rural reconstruction, saying that the happiness of the rural community should not be sacrificed for the sake of the cities. He said that Japan is in danger by following recklessly the material manifestations of Western civilization.

Some Myths Exploedd.

The Japanese Government has wisely discouraged, in fact has prevented, noisy clamor and agitation such as might lead to acts of violence against Americans, but has allowed calm discussion of the subject both in the press and on the public platform. The United States Government has been led by clever propaganda and clamor to enact legislation on a delicate international question that should have been handled by diplomacy or by special commission after careful study of the question from all angles. It is to be hoped that we will not follow the United States in the same blundering fashion.

Propagandists tell us that white people are not allowed to purchase land in Japan; that Western laborers are excluded; that there is discrimination against foreigners in commerce, mining and agriculture in Japan; that the average Japanese family in Canada is nine; that if a wife of a Japanese in Canada is childless she is sent back and another comes instead; that the Japanese work long hours and live so economically that we poor weak Canadians are in danger of being driven out, etc., etc.

Some of these statements are absolutely false, and some are partly true and partly false, and are just as true of us and other Western peoples.

I know dozens of white people—Westerners—who own land in Japan, and know that there is no difficulty in commercial concerns and religious societies purchasing land.

The labor market in Japan is so crowded and wages so low that Western laborers would not for a moment think of trying to compete. I know hundreds of Japanese families in Japay and have known but a few in which there were nine children—the average family in Japan is a fraction under five.

I have known several Japanese families in Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver that were childless, and never knew such an exchange of wives as I have read about and reported above. I was born in the county of York, Ont., on my mother's side a Canadian of the fourth generation, and nine children were born to my parents; moreover, my father, an Englishman, worked long hours and was thrifty and economical; yet my parents were highly respected—were not considered undesirable citizens.

I have visited Japanese in the cities of Vancouver, Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa, and other places in our Dominion, and have found in every case that they conform to our laws and customs and ideals of life, have as good homes, as well furnished and kept as their Canadian neighbors.

I found a Japanese woman going out in her neighborhood helping one mother to feed and care for her children and making an apology for the neighbor. "You know she is a foreigneg and does not seem to understand how to feed her baby properly." She advised this same neighbor as to bathing the baby. Yet this neighbor is a recent arrival from England with an Italian husband.

I find in the homes of my Japanese friends cleanliness and comfort and good books, and children that are respectful and well behaved and bright. I made inquiries of others, and learn that they are at the head of their classes in school, that their credit is good in the banks and stores; in fact, all who know them speak well of them

We are told that the question does not affect Eastern Canada, but that it is acute in British Columbia. If so, let it be investigated by a fair commission. The best returns that I could get show that four years ago there were 5,437 acres owned and 3,616 acres rented by Japanese in British Columbia, or abour one per cent of field crops of the province, but very small per cent of the land of the pr.

They do not figure much in our police courst, judging from debates in our House of Commons, No. 47, May 19, 1922: Mr. Boland, Minister of Health, stated that there had been 835 convictions during the previous year for trading in illicit drugs—opium and its derivatives—but there was no record of any Japanese being charged with such offences.

If we have made a mistake in our immigration policy in the past, let us study the question and seek to amend; but let us not hastily offend Japan, who is our neighbor and friend and one of our best customers. We have a great wealth of land and other natural resources in our fair Dominion, but we have no absolute right to it in perpetuity; we hold it in trust from the Almighty who created it, and will eventually see that the honest and worthy trustee is rewarded.

MISS CHURCH SUGGESTS A REMEDY—.

FABLES ON HEALTH

Not everyone can choose the climate in which he is forced to live.

And Anytown was no balmy California or Florida town.

So the Manns, like most people, has to adapt themselves to the existing climatic conditions.

Climate, of itself, has been found to be a lesser consideration. What is important is that a person take advantage of the fresh aid to be obtained wherever he or she may live.

The main advantage of fresh air may be had wherever you may live. Even in a large city outdoor air is, except in unusual cases, most invigorating.

The old cry of "it's too damp" is being drowned by hygienic investigation. It is being found that prejudices against common dampness greatly exaggerate the evils. It's healthier to live in damp or foggy air than to remain a shut-in.

Those who react to dampness, drafts and all such changes are quite likely to be the people who spend great portions of their time shut up in rooms and offices.

So don't worry about climate. If you can afford to go to one that pleases more, go right along. If you can't get acquainted with the air at home.

There is a good story going the rounds just now concerning the alleged thriftiness of a certain movie-star who shall be nameless.

The yarn goes that a girl went riding up in the mountains back of Hollywood, and was thrown from her horse and missing for two days.

It is a wild, desolate stretch of country, and the "star" in question offered a reward of a thousand dollars to anyone who succeeded in finding her.

It looked at that time, mind you, as if they weren't going to find her. But they did.

Then the people who found her offered five hundred of the thousand to anybody that could find the man who had offered the reward!

A man got a job at a siding running wagons down an incline. There was only a sleeper at the bottom to stop the wagons, and the manager told him to be careful and keep the brake on. On the third day four wagons went down at a terrific speed, jumped the sleeper, and plunged into the canal.

The manager, his face wrathful, rushed from the office.

The man forestalled him. "You needn't come grumbling at me," he said. "I've left!"

NEWSPAPER STANDARDS CALLED HIGHER THAN EVER BEFORE

Charges of Standardization Answered in The World's Work—Papers Now Said To Be In "Golden Age" of News Presentation.

The independence of the American press is discussed by Carl C. Dickey in the September issue of The World's Work, beginning a series of articles, "The Truth About the Newspapers."

"The doleful ones charge that newspapers are becoming standardized," Mr. Dickey writes; "that advertisers have an undue influence on the news and editorials; that the individual newspapers, themselves corporations, voice the thoughts and ideas of capital and shun progressive policies; that the standards of newspaper reporting are lower than in the 'good old days,' and that the reporter has fallen under the spell of the press agent.

"Yet the decade just closing in the history of American journalism is matched by no other in eventfulness and interest, unless it was the decade starting with the Civil War and ending, roughly, with the death of Horace Greeley. If the last decade in every respect has not been a golden age in American journalism, there are no golden ages. Its achievements in the presentation of news surpass those of the Civil War. Its scope of service to the reading public has expanded far beyond the dreams of the editors of that other golden age. And when we come to the question of clean advertising, there is no argument—the newspaper of to-day is so far ahead of the newspaper of even twenty-five years ago in recognizing its responsibility in the presentation of clean and truthful advertising that no argument is possible.

"'The waning power of the press' has been a familiar phrase in American speech since it was coined by the late Francis E. Leupp, for many years a Washington correspondent, and it has been used eagerly and loosely by those who wish to condemn the press. He meant that American newspapers were losing their influence in politics and on political thought."

The keystone of the new order of journalism, Mr. Dickey says, is contained in the following extract from an address delivered before an editorial association thirty-three years ago by the present publisher of The New York Times:

"A journal conducted as a newspaper, being a fearless purveyor and, when needed, an equally fearless interpreter of the news, is, in the intelligent public opinion, the newspaper of the future. The day of the organ, if not past, is rapidly passing. The people, as they gain culture, breadth of understanding and independence of thought, more and more demand the paper that prints the history of each day without fear of consequences, the favoring of special theories or the promotion of special interests. The duty of the editor and publisher who serves an intelligent and manly constituency is to give his patrons the facts, and attempt nothing with reference thereto beyond assisting to a clearer understanding of the same."

"One of the great services of The Times to American journalism," Mr. Dickey observes, "has been its success in showing that a great newspaper, if it is worthy of the name, should present the political news of all parties without prejudice or bias, no matter what the opinions expressed in the editorial columns.

"Most of those who lament the 'waning power of the press' compare our papers with those of the era of Greeley, Raymond, Dana, McCullagh, Halstead, Medill and Watterson. Yet the influence of the old Tribune was not solely the influence of a newspaper on politics; it was largely the personal influence of Greeley; the influence of The Times under Raymond was not entirely the influence of an unbiassed journal, but the influence of Raymond and the Republican Party. Theirs was a day of 'personal journalism,' and I have not been able to find an editor anywhere who longs for the return of that 'personal journalism' which was partisan, biased, prejudiced journalism, serving parties and political creeds.

"The power and influence of the press as a whole has not decreased. The press has merely changed its course and is now exerting its influence in a more calm, detached and impartial manner. It is trying less to force its own opinions and policies on its readers than in the days of Greeley and the personal journalists, and is seeking more and more to mold a sounder public opinion by printing the news and views on both sides of political and governmental questions and then seeking to give its own interpretations.

"It is doubtless true that the favorable comment of the press, both Democratic and Republican, contributed largely toward making John W. Davis the Presidential nominee of the Democratic Party, just as the favorable press comment contributed so largely to making national figures of Coolidge as the outstanding figure of the Boston police strike, and of Dawes as the picturesque soldier and Director of the Budget. Until Mr. Dawes became Ambassador to Great Britain he was comparatively little known, although he had a fine record in Congress and as Solicitor-General. In the past five years, however, he was built up as a Presidential possibility by Republican, Democratic and non-partisan press, who repeatedly spoke favorably of his general availability and statesmanlike qualities.

"Those who have written about the 'waning power of the press' go so far back in political history in citing their examples of the increasing impotence of the editorial pages of our newspapers that they disprove their own case; what they really prove is that the editorial pages of our newspapers never had the great power attributed to them. Many victories in municipal elections in the larger cities in recent years, in the face of a hostile press, have been cited as proof of this decrease in editorial influence upon politics, but the influence of the press was no more potent in municipal politics fifty years ago than it is now. Thirty-five years ago The New York Evening Post, under the powerful editorial regime of Godkin, essayed an expose of the methods of Tammany Hall, which failed as dismally in attaining its real aims as the recent attempt of The New York World to show that John F. Hylan was unfit to be Mayor of New York.

"There are plenty of examples of this expose or crusade type of story to show that in that field modern newspapers hold their power and influence. One of the recent exposes was that conducted by The St. Louis Star and its reporters, notably Harry T. Brundidge, of the 'fake diploma' mills turning out quack doctors, an expose that has already put men behind the bars. Another is the expose of the New Jersey system of State institutions, by Harold Littledale, in The New York Evening Post, which resulted in the modernization of the entire system. Still another was the expose of The New York World of the system of peonage prevailing in the prison camps in Florida, which resulted in immediate reform.

"A sinister attempt to grasp political power is seen in the formation of so-called chains of newspapers through the country. A few months ago Arthur T. Robb, managing-editor of Editor and Publisher, laboriously compiled a list of these chain ownerships. Mr. Robb's figures showed that 212 of about 2,500 daily newspapers of the country were owned in groups or strings.

"It cannot be conceived that the American reading public would consent to take its opinions from a wholesale factory; it might take its steel or breakfast food, its shoes or its woollens from a corporation that had a thousand factories, but there is so much of the dissenter in the average American citizen that it is doubtful if any large string of newspapers could withstand the shocks of the "trust busters,' who are always looking for the chance to limit the powers of individuals and corporations. Certainly this country, because of its great area and population, is more free of any menace of a 'press monopoly' which might prevail in a country small in area and population."

ALMANAC FORECASTS WITHOUT VALUE

The publishing of weather forecasts by days for an entire calendar year, as practiced by many almanacs, is undoubtedly based on the willingness of many people to accept without question anything that appears in print, says the Weather Bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture. Actually such forecasts are not based on sound principles, and, therefore, are without any value whatsoever. Accurate prediction of the weather and temperature for a season in advance cannot be made for places in general, because there are no known laws on which to base them. An exception to this statement is found in the case of forecasting the strength of the monsoon winds of India, on which the summer rains of that country are dependent. These forecasts, while not infallible, give in general terms an indication as to whether rainfall will be above, below or approximately normal for the summer months. They are, therefore, valuable.

The farmer who attempts to carry on his business with only almanac forecasts to guide him must necessarily lose rather than gain by following them. Similarly, forecasts of weather and temperature for a long time in advance published in the newspapers should be disregarded in planning farming operations. When daily weather maps of the world can be made the first step at arriving at the principles of seasonal weather forecasting will be possible.—N.Y. Times, Aug. 29, 1923.

"Save the surface and you save all"—Paint & Varnish

THE LAST LEAF

O. Henry wrote a story called "The Last Leaf" in which the life of a frail little girl hung upon the slender stalk of a leaf that fluttered in the wind outside her tenement window. For, she thought, when that leaf falls, then I shall die. It was Autumn, this very time of year, and all the other leaves had fluttered down and away. Still this leaf did not fall. It stayed and stayed and—at last—encouraged by its persistence and will to live, the little girl lived also and grew well. For the last leaf that would not leave the vine was painted upon the brick wall—painted there at night while she slept—by a master hand.

And in that story lies this great truth that the author never meant to include in a tale of human devotion—that paint is the mighty counter weight to Nature's destructive forces. What nature would destroy through rot, rust and general decay, that paint will preserve. The truth applies in YOUR home too. Look around at the surfaces exposed everywhere, outdoors and within, and see how many there are for paint and varnish to save. It is downright economy to paint this fall because you will be saving repairs in the Spring.

MACDONALD HAD GOOD SIDELINE

Champion Confidence Man Said To Have Distributed Liquor Prescriptions

VICTIMS SEE JOKE.

As a sideline to his cheque passing activities, Dr. R. J. MacDonald, who took Peterboro doctors by storm and carried away Dr. D. C. King's instruments, is now credited with handing out a large number of liquor prescriptions during his stay here. As a sidelight on the amazing versatility of the man who hoodwinked some of the most acute citizens of Peterboro and district, and was able to talk learnedly on dentistry in its operating branch as well as on anatomy, this is illuminating. Most of his cheques were for small amounts, $5 and $10 being general, with George Graham specially honored with a $20 order on the Bank of Toronto, and the liquor prescriptions will have netted the proposed founder of Millbrook private hospital only a few dollars. The house which he secured in exchange for a $4,000 cheque is useless to him, and the instruments for which he turned over a $2,000 cheque to Dr. King were afterwards taken without the formality of a trade. In actual cash, therefore, the elaborate confidence trick gleaned only about $60 or $70 and the ticket to Montreal cost $9.15.

The doctor, who carried as his constant companion a brass bound medical emergency case, told a Peterboro man on the train as he made his hasty departure that he was bound for Cobourg. Provincial Constable Cousens has been on the look-out there, but has no trace of the wanted man.

Victims Philosophical.

Most of the victims of the confidence man are taking their losses with good grace. One told The Examiner it will be a standing joke on him for months, while another laughed heartily in recalling the clever way in which he had been fooled by the plausible stories concocted by MacDonald.

In Millbrook, where the doctor cut almost as wide a swath as in Peterboro, the cheques had actually been presented to the bank before the trickery was discovered. One Millbrook man had even had the cheque entered in his pass-book, when the bank called him to ask permission to withdraw the credit until Dr. MacDonald's account was transferred there. This he permitted, and is now the poorer by the sum.

THE COMPLETE ANGLER.

The novice at trout fishing had hooked a very small trout, and had wound it in till it was rammed against the end of the rod.

Pupil—What do I do now?

Instructor— Climb up the rod and stab it.—Dry Goods Economist.

FEWER NOTCHES.

A tourist in Arizona heard a shot and in a short itme came upon a rough-looking man cutting a notch on the handle of his gun.

"Have you killed a man?" he gasped.

"No," was the reply.

"Then why the notch?"

"I only cuts 'em when I misses."—Tit-Bits.

RUFFLES POPULAR.

Ruffles were never used more interestingly than this season when they rarely go all the way around a frock and unusually follow a diagonal rather than a straight line.

QUITE WILLING.

"It's a shame," cried the young wife; "not a thing in the house fit to eat. I'm going straight home to mamma."

"If you don't mind, dear," said the husband, reaching for his hat, "I'll go with you."

SALES SAFEGUARDED

According to a new law in Canada automobiles may be sold only by legally authorized dealer who can furnish a bond protecting the buyers if the autos sold happen to be stolen cars. It is expected auto stealing will be reduced considerably.

THE QUESTION.

"I don't see how we can go to Europe this summer."

"You know it's on the children's account."

"Yes, but have they that much in the bank?"—The Harvard Lampoon.

BRAKE LAWS LAX

An utter laxity of brake control has been discovered in the laws covering proper use and care of this important part of the auto, finds the legislative committee of the American Automobile Association; Conecticut is the only state that has a definite requirement about brake performance, says Thomas P. Henry, president.

GERMANY MUST

made it perfectly clear that he was not referring to any particular war.

Meet In Europe.

Developing the plan which he had enunciated in a statement to the newspaper correspondents, the previous night, Premier MacDonald urged the convocation of a disarmament conference in Europe, attended by representatives of all the nations, including the United States and Germany, and he recommended also elaboration of the covenant of the League and that the authority of the council be exercised so as to insure the continued existence and prosperity of the League.

He referred specifically to Articles 10, 12, 13, 15 and 16 of the covenant, relating to the arbitration of disputes and the commission of an act of war by an aggressor nation against the other members of the League, and he declared that these might well form themselves into a charter of peace:

Re-draft Covenant.

Meanwhile, if Premier MacDonald's recommendations are carried out, it is realized that the tremendous task of re-framing the covenant will have to be faced. This would admittedly be slow, because only one of a dozen amendments already made to the covenant has gone into force, owing to delay in ratifying by the various states.

Mr. MacDonald spoke last night of the profitable character of the draft pact of security drawn up by the Americans. Outlining his suggestions for an enlarged arbitral commission, or court, which would settle all disputes, he thought that the judges might be selected from the world's elder statesmen.

Comments on Address.

Various views were heard among the delegates concerning the British Prime Minister's address. Some acclaimed it as one of the masterpieces of international political history; others hailed it as the dream of a sincere idealist who forgets that the voice of cannon cannot be silenced forever until man has attained spiritual perfection and frees himself from the shackles of materialism and greed.

From the League of Nations' standpoint the outstanding feature of Thursday's debate was the increased prestige accorded to the League and the probability that all great problems, including disarmament, will be directly handled through the League.

Several other orators urged haste in the convocation of a new disarmament conference.

GOVERNMENT TO PROSECUTE

Canada to show that unemployment in Canada amounted to a crisis. If there was a stone wall of Parlimentary precedent to prevent the Federal Government from taking practical steps to alleviate such conditions now, than a special session of Parliament should be called to deal with the crisis. Could not the Government undertake to spend during the coming winter all the money voted for any public works in the belief that Parliament next session would vote more. If the Government would not give such a promise, Mr. Moore felt like calling on the conference to demand a special session of Parliament this fall to deal with unemployment.

Grant MacNeil, speaking for ex-service men said that he had no intention of speaking until he had heard before luncheon the statement of Hon. J. A. Robb about trade being good and men being unemployed in the cities because they were unwilling to work on the land. Mr. MacNeil asserted that when 20,000 men were called for recently for harvest work, 20,000 answered the call. He denied that ex-service men were unwilling to work, on the land or else where, and ahe cited the history of individual cases of unavoidable distress resulting from unemployment. Co-operation between the Federal Provincial anod Municipal Governments was essestial if the unemployment problem was to be solved.

Stop Immigration

Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, Minister of Labor for Ontario, urged the need for selected immigration to Canada. A Canadian born and bred and eucated was worth a hundred Finlanders or other foreign Europeans he said. Stop all immigration except farm labor, and if those admitted do not stay on the farms, send them back where they came from, he said. He also urged that Canadians use goods made in Canada. So far as Ontario was concerned, said Dr. God frey, he only needed to read a message from Premier Ferguson which said that the Provincial Government was prepared to spesd several million dollars in the next year on public works to provide employment.

Tom Moore asked when Ontario intended to reconvene the Advisory Council to its Department of Labor. Dr. Godfrey said that he was willing to call the council together if it was called for and if all parties concerned named their representatives.

Fred Cook, secretary of Ontario's Union of Municipalities, read a report of an advisory committee which recently recommended to the City of Ottawa a scheme whereby such work as interior decoration and other repairs and alterations in the home should be done in the winter to provide employment.

Louis Luzon, Deputy Minister of Labor for Quabec, outlined the conditions in his province and told the conference what Quebec intended to do in the way of public works.

Hon. W. R. Clubb, Minister of Public Works for Manitoba dealt in the same way with the plans of his Governme it and said that while he had hoped the Federal Government would have been more generous his province would carry its own burden if there was no alternative.

British Columbia's Case

J. D. McNiven, Deputy Minister of Labor in British Columbia reviewed industrial conditions in his province. One of the drawbacks attending Btirish Columbia's pleasant winter was that while that province only sent an average of 6,000 men to the prairie harvest fields, it was a lucky year if only 8,000 came back. The cities of that province were thereby saddled with unemployed in the winter which did not belong to British Columbia.

He though the Federal Government had no more right to pass on responsibilities for unemployment to the provinces than provincial governments would have to pass it on to the municipalities. But British Columbia he said, would do its duty and its utmost.

Judge Dennistoun Is Appointed Chairman

IMAGINARY LINE NOT A BARRIER ALONG BORDER

Declares Cleveland Congressman Now Visiting in Peterborough.

PRAISES DISTRICT

Is Democratic Candidate for Re-election and Resting Up Prior to Campaign.

Hon. Robert Crosser, of Cleveland, is at present in the city, having spent the past few weeks in the Kawartha district, taking a rest prior to an arduous election campaign. He is a staunch Democrat and a member of Congress for 21st District, Ohio.

In the United States a candidate has two campaigns, and especially if he is a Democrat. First the convention, when the party representative is chosen, and then the red-hot electioneering. The one is as strenuous as the other.

Mr. Crosser was enamoured with the natural beauty of the Kawartha Lakes. "One must come up here to see virgin nature, nature in its original aspect," remarked the Senator. "On the other side everything is worn and old, but it is entirely different up here."

He was high in his praise of the Lakes from an angler's point of view and declared that he had never experienced better fishing than while here mentioning in particular Jack's Lake.

When interviewed Mr. Crosser hesitated to draw any comparison between the city of Peterborough and American cities of the same size.

"People are people wherever you go and I find the Canadians very fine and generous. There is no noticeable difference between Canadians and Americans, unless perhaps it is in the accent. Your customs are the same and an imaginary line cannot separate the bonds of friendship or the characteristics of the people."

Touching upon the peculiarity of the Canadian accent, Mr. Crosser stated that the expression "Good-night," met him as very queer at first. This is the substitute for the American term "Good evening," and is only used by the American as an exclamation of surprise and not as a greeting.

Born in Scotland and coming to United States at the age of seven years Mr. Crosser claims to be the only Scotsman in Congress. He is an attorney by profession and a member of the legal firm of Crosser, Bishop & Blythin, Cleveland.

Turning to the things in common between Canada and the United States and characteristic of all the English - speaing nations, Mr. Crosser spoke of the English common law, which forms the basis of American law. It permeates the entire system and English cases are frequently quoted as authorities in the American Courts. Similarly Canadian decisions are sometimes quoted.

The presidential election will be a close, hard-fought one, according to the opinion of the Cleveland Congressman, but Davis has an excellent chance and the United States promises to have a Democrat for its next president. LaFolette is strong in sections and Coolidge is popular, but Davis with a large united following is constantly growing in favour.

On 28th August the Hon. Crosser passed over the Lift Lock with Premier King and his party.

While in Peterborough he is visiting with Detective and Mrs. William Meagher, Crescent Street.

EUROPEAN OPERAS ARE CRITICIZED

Beyreuth Festival Needs New Settings, Say Critics.

BEYREUTH, September 5. — There is much speculation as to whether the Wagner Festival, revived this year, will be continued beyond the death of Frau Cosima Wagner, widow of the noted composer. The World War and the ten years of darkness it brought to the Wagner Festival Theatre have brought changes in the artistic as well as the economic and social world.

Performances of the Wagner operas, which were acceptable on the old-fashioned stage of the Beyreuth opera house ten years ago, very clearly do not satisfy to-day. There is a demand now for new scenery, new stage machinery, new methods of production.

Admitting the excellence of the orchestra and the adequate singing of the chorus and the principals in most of the offerings this year at Beyreuth, many critics, and chiefly German critics at that, express the opinion that the opera houses in Berlin, Dresden, and Munich, with their adequate modern stages, offer better productions of the Wagnerian operas than Beyreuth affords.

BREAD UP IN AUSTRIA.

VIENNA, September 5.—Despite financial supervision by the League of Nations and the stable currency, the price of bread is alarmingly on the increase.

The price of 7,900 kronen for a loaf, fixed by the authorities for August, is said to be higher than ever, even compared with the worst time of the inflation period.

UNIFIED SCREW AND BOLT THREADS

Are Adapted by American Engineering Standards Committee.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—The American Engineering Standards Committee has approved as American Standard a 32-page document, constituting the finished work of the Sectional Committee on Standardization and Unification of Screw Threads, in the field of threads for bolts, machine screws, nuts and commercially tapped holes. The committee has done this work under the joint sponsorship of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and includes in its membership many of the most distinguished experts on this important and difficult subject.

By the adoption of the report of this committee, screw threads are narrowed down to, and standardized upon, two series, an "American Coarse Series" for general work, and an "American Fine Series" for work in which a finer thread is desirable. The same form of thread is used in both.

The adoption of standard screw threads, the committee says, is perhaps the most important single advance in American industrial standardization, certainly in the mechanical industries, since screw threads are fundamental to design and manufacture in every field, and enter into almost every kind of manufactured product and machine.

Different classes of fit ("loose," "free," "medium" and "close") are established with corresponding numerical tolerances to provide for unavoidable inaccuracies of workmanship under practical conditions. Wheat and chaff

JAPS SINK OLD RUSSIAN WARSHIP

Battleship Orel of Historic Significance Was Unit in Baltic Fleet.

TOKIO, Sept. 5.—(Associated Press).—Stirring events of 19 years ago were recalled recently by the sinking off Yokosuka of the old battleship Iwana, doomed under the Washington Naval Treaty. The old sea fighter was used as a target for practice by the naval air forces. Six bombing planes took part, sending the Iwamma to the bottom in less time than was anticipated.

It was expected that the Iwama would provide two days' practice for the bombers and naval attaches of foreign countries were invited to witness the second day's operations. The invitations, however, were recalled because the Iwama was sent to the bottom the first day.

The Iwama, formerly the Russian battleship Orel, was a unit of the Baltic fleet. She survived the battle of the Sea of Japan, May 27, 1905, only to be captured by Admiral Togo's fleet. As a unit of the Japanese fleet, the Iwama took part in 1914 in the operations which cleared the Pacific of German raiders.

BIRDS INDICATE WEATHER

So Say Wise Men of San Joaquin Valley, California.

VISALIA, Cal., Sept. 5.—A wet winter, greatly needed through California, is predicted by many of the weather wise in the San Joaquin valley, who base their belief on the fact that great flocks of pelicans have paid an unaccustomed visit inland, and that the quail have nested twice in one season.

This summer the quail mated early and again later, bringing forth two families. They will do this, the wise men assert, only when their instinct tells them there will be plenty of feed for the young next season.

FABLES ON HEALTH

"A cold bath is about the best tonic for the skin," the neighbors would tell Mrs. Mann.

It is a good tonic, but it does not cleanse the skin, nor does it help beautify the skin.

The coarsest and reddest skins often respond to a bath in which milk, bran or starch are placed. But they must be patiently used. A lotion for whitening the skin can be made from a teaspoonful of tincture of benzoin mixed with an ounce of rosewater.

Oil of almonds and almonds are very good for the skin. Crushed almonds can be used instead of soap, as can also lemon juice.

By mixing half a teaspoonful of glycerin and rosewater with a little warm water a good face lotion for daily use can be made.

ALASKA DRAWS HARDY SETTLERS

Vie for Bravery With Early Settlers of New France.

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, Sept. 5.—Braving 650 miles of treacherous and open waters between Seattle and Ketchikan, Linden Pentz, his wife, baby and a goat, arrived here recently in a 16-foot open motor boat. The cruise, which took two months, was made without mishap.

After going on to Skagway, the family will abandon its boat and travel into the interior of Alaska.

SWISS RESTRICT GERMAN RAILWAYS

Demand Electrically Equipped Coaches in Crossing Frontier.

BERNE, Sept. 5.—(Associated Press).—The Federal Railway Administration has announced that in the future only electrically equipped German railway coaches and sleepers will be permitted to cross the Swiss frontier in transit to Italy. The order was issued as a result of the railroad disaster last April at the Swiss exit of the Simplon tunnel, in which Dr. Helfferich, former German Finance Minister, was among those killed.

Gas lighted coaches were said to be responsible for the fire that started immediately after the wreck.

ROSENEATH NEWS.

Victim of Fire Moves Into Another House—Personals.

ROSENEATH, Sept. 5.—Mr. Fred. Sherwin and family, who had their house and all its contents burned recently, have moved into his other house across the street, and he is very thankful to the kind friends who turned out the night of the fire, and who also collected a generous supply of clothing in the village and surrounding district since.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Parker and Misses Pearl and May Parker and Violet Sherwin motored to Toronto on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Parker and Messrs. Clark, Sandercock, Fred. Turner, Meredith Brown and Elton Turner are all taking in the Exhibition.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Heal and family have returned to Peterborough after visiting friends here.

Mrs. Bell of British Columbia left for Peterborough Tuesday en route for her home. She has been visiting friends here and is a daughter of the late Wm. Wiley.

Yoo Hoo Lodge, Margaret's Island, had forty week-end visitors. It is also filled for the balance of the week as the duck shooting opened on Monday.

Trent Valley Lodge also had its share of tourists over the holiday.

THE SEA HAWK

Sea Rovers. Lovers. Intrigue. Mystery. Drama.

A Thrilling New Serial Starting in

The Evening Examiner.

By Rafael Sabatini

ON SATURDAY, SEPT. 6th

In "The Sea Hawk" The Examiner is offering the best Serial Story of the year, by the most popular writer of romantic love stories and tales of picturesque adventure of the century. His novels sell by the hundreds of thousands, and "The Sea Hawk" has surpassed all of his other stories in popularity. For many months it has been among the four best sellers.

The Examiner has secured sole rights to the story in serial form in this district.

It is a love story so compelling that no reader, having started it, will miss a single instalment. It is adventure as Dumas knew how to depict it. In fact, Sabatini has been called "the modern Dumas," not only by critics in this country but by those in Europe as well.

"THE SEA HAWK"

has as its motif a lover's trial in the wild, free days when Moorish raiders bore down upon any Christian barque that came within range of their slave-manned oars, and sold the miserable captives on open market to toil in the fields or ply the oars of followers of the great Allah. The spirit of the sea breathes through every chapter of tumultous action and struggle. The story of the galley slave who became the sea rover, terrorizing the shipping of all nations, an outcast from religion and race, is thrilling in its masterly telling and pathetic in its vivid picturization.

LOVERS OF THE DRAMATIC

Will appreciate the style of Sabatini, and admirers of boldly conceived romance cannot but follow with interest the enthralling chapters of what is an epoch-making venture in the realm of fiction.

REVIEWERS SAY—

"It is a vivid portrayal of the times, with an entrancing tale of love and mystery. Sabatini has excelled himself. In 'The Sea Hawk' he is Dumas at his best."

"A greater than Dumas has arisen. The story of the year, written in masterly style by Rafael Sabatini, sets a new standard for romantic tales with adventure and mystery predominant. "The Sea Hawk" will add lustre to Sabatini's already brilliant record."

The First Instalment of "The Sea Hawk" will appear in the Examiner To-Morrow.

GERMAN WOMEN ACTIVE IN POLITICAL AFFAIRS

Twenty-nine Have Seats in New Reichstag and Help To Mold Legislation—Kaiser's Creed of Children, Kitchen and Church Swept Away.

By CONSTANCE DREXEL.

THE German revolution of 1918, from which sprang the new republic, brought no more drastic change than the political awakening of the women of that country. The movement for women's political rights, which caused such a stir in England, the United States and Scandinavian countries in the years preceding the war, met with little response in Germany. The three Ks of the Kaiser: Kinder, Kuche and Kirche (children, kitchen and church) began and ended the alphabet of the German woman's life.

Therefore the sudden change did not result so much from a demand on the part of women, as from foresight on the part of the men of the new democracy. The latter felt that the co-operation of every individual in the State would be necessary if the republic were to survive. Consequently, full civil and political rights for women above the age of 20 were firmly established in several articles of the Constitution.

And German women have answered the call. It is said that in the German districts of Chicago and Pennsylvania it is almost impossible to make the women vote because they still belong to the old school of thought. But the women of the new Fatherland throng the polls every time there is a city, State or national election. Indeed, the proportion of voters in Germany is extremely heavy, more than 80 per cent. having cast their ballots in the national elections for the Reichstag on May 4. More than 50 per cent. were women. That proportion was due not only to keen interest, but to the fact that there are nearly 3,000,000 more women (of all ages) than men in Germany.

Twenty-nine women sit in the Reichstag today in a total membership of 472, while there are but eight women among the 630 members of the House of Commons. Moreover, the Reichstag is perhaps the most powerful single legislative body in the world, corresponding to the whole of Parliament or Congress There is no House of Lords or Senate in Germany, but a small upper body called the Reichsrat, whose members, all appointed, number about sixty officers of the various States federated in the German Reich—for example, Prussia, Bavaria, Baden and Saxony. The Reichsrat has virtually no power to create legislation, although it has veto power over the Reichstag and can execute some of the Reichstag's acts, execute some of the Reichstag's acts, notably financial measures. After laws are passed by the Reichstag they go to the Reichsrat, which has a period of fourteen days in which to approve or veto them. In the latter event, the objections must be clearly stated. Then the bill goes back to the Reichstag, and the objections must be cleared by a two-thirds majority to become law.

A recital of these wide powers of the Reichstag is necessary to show the influence of the twenty-nine women members, and also how and why the Social Hygiene act of 1923 was temporarily defeated.

The new Reichstag, elected May 4, has five members less than the number that sat in the Reichstag dissolved when the general election was called this Spring. Twenty of the women members were re-elected, eight new women were elected, and the twenty-ninth was seated when the man who won resigned shortly afterward. As the system of proportional representation prevails in Germany, no new election was necessary. Frau Pfulf, a public school teacher in Munchen, was second on the list and thus gained the seat.

Women Work Hard.

Unfortunately the Reichstag was not in session during the week in July when I visited Berlin. I was told that the women members were not attractive to look at, either in personal appearance or dress. Indeed, any attempt at feminine charm is taboo, the women being there frankly for hard work on the same terms as men, asking for no quarter. And as for social graces and political entertaining, such as at least three women M. P.'s make use of in London, they are frowned upon. As a matter of fact, virtually all of the Reichstag women are humbly situated, and, anyhow, there is no "society" in the Berlin of today.

When one asked in Berlin who was the most important women in the new Reichstag the answer was Ruth Fischer, or Frau Dr. Gertrud Baumer, according to the views, or shall one say, the sense of humor, of the individual asked. Ruth Fischer is the floor leader of the Communist Party in the Reichstag. In the directory she is listed as "Frau Golke, born Ruth Fischer; writer." And thereby hangs a tale. She is an Austrian, and when she was about to be deported because of participation in Communist disturbances some time ago, she thwarted the expulsion by marrying a German workman. They separated the next day, but she thus gained German citizenship, making it impossible to deport her.

After election to the Reichstag the newspapers raised a heated discussion as to her eligibility and there was a demand for her expulsion, but she was within her rights, as the Constitution states that electors over 25 years, after a year's German citizenship, are eligible to the governing body and alien women become German citizens upon their marriage to a German citizen. Hence Ruth Fischer cannot be budged from the Reichstag unless the law is changed. Naturally she is a picturesque character and an important factor in parliamentary debates and decisions.

Frau Dr. Baumer, on the other hand, is an entirely different type. In the early forties, with black hair and black eyes, she is typical of the university and professional women one may meet in any country. She holds the degree of Doctor of Philosophy and is unmarried, but all the women in the Reichstag are listed as Frau, though they may be Frauleins.

What is more important, she was a prominent member of the last Reichstag as well as of this one and has the title of "Ministerialrat," meaning member of a Ministry. She is chief of the Children's Welfare Bureau in the Ministry of the Interior, corresponding to the chief of the Children's Bureau in the Department of Labor in Washington. Moreover, on account of recent co-ordination of work in various Ministries, she has had added to her job secondary education, which is important, as the Government is working on new education projects and laws. She is one of the two women in the German Democratic Party's membership of twenty-eight in the Reichstag, the other being Frau Dr. Luders, representing a district in the Ruhr. Both these women speak both French and English fluently, as do all well-educated German women.

Women Favor Dawes Plan.

When I went to see Dr. Baumer in her office in the Ministry of the Interior, on one side of Konigplatz—the square dominated by the immense Reichstag building—she had but recently returned from a meeting of the Executive Board of the International Council of Women in Copenhagen. Dr. Baumer is a Past President of the German National Council of Women and now is its First Vice-President.

Approaching the subject of women's participation in the Reichstag, Dr. Baumer declared that naturally almost everything was in abeyance pending the outcome of the London parley on reparations. Her party stood for the acceptance of the Dawes plan, provided the Allies were willing to carry out its provisions.

"Are there women on the Finance and on the Foreign Relations committees which are preparing laws to present to the Reichstag for the execution of the plan?" I asked her.

"No," she replied, "because these two committees consist of the leaders of each party in the Reichstag, but I can state unreservedly that the women members belonging to the various parties are being consulted and are in close touch with what is going on. The only exception is the extreme Nationalist Party (the new National-Socialist-Liberal Party, of which General Ludendorff is a member), as that party is against women in politics and has no women in the Reichstag. Their entrance in the elections and winning of thirty-two seats is the reason why there are five less women in this Reichstag than in the last—the Social Democratic Party, which had many women members, having lost many seats.

"But in all the other parties and on all subjects, including that of Germany's politics in foreign affairs," Dr. Baumer continued, "I can state that we women are consulted and have a voice. And by that I mean before the questions come to the floor of the Reichstag."

"And how is this brought about," I asked.

"Because the ten political parties represented in the Reichstag through the system of proportional representation are closely knit organizations. We members in the Reichstag, men and women of the party, meet in caucus two or three times a week to discuss among ourselves what our leaders shall stand for, let us say, on those Finance and Foreign Relations Committees of which you speak. Moreover, each party has its own big table in the Reichstag restaurant, where we gather for discussion at luncheon or dinner. So there is plenty of opportunity for exchange of opinion on issues and policies, and I can state that the men listen to our views and want our support."

Equal Rights With Men.

As for policies and laws that could be credited to the entrance of women in German politics, Dr. Baumer first pointed to the new constitution. About forty women were members of the Weimar Assembly which framed the structure. In addition to the articles granting political and civil rights to women on the same terms as men, there are others dealing with fundamental questions of human and social welfare, notably:

Art. 119: Marriage rests on the equality of rights of the two sexes; motherhood has the right of protection and assistance from the State.

Art. 121: The law must assure illegitimate children the same conditions of physical, moral and social development as legitimate children.

Art. 122: Children must be protected against moral, physical or cultural dangers by State and municipality.

Since the establishment of the new constitution, German women in the Reichstag have been trying to frame laws in accordance with these theories. The most important is the Child Welfare Act of 1922, probably the most comprehensive attempt to safeguard the children of a nation ever attempted. The opening paragraph declares that "every German child has a right to physical, mental and moral development"; if the parents can't or won't do this, the State must and shall. The law provides for a co-ordination of private organizations with national, State and municipal agencies, but owing to the unsettled conditions in Germany, many of its provisions have not yet been executed.

Only second in importance was the Social Hygiene Act passed by the Reichstag through the efforts of the women members in June, 1923. In brief, it abolishes the system of regulation of prostitution in Germany and called for both compulsory and voluntary treatment of social diseases. But, as stated in the beginning of this article, the Bill met with a veto from the Reichsrat owing to a provision which allowed others except licensed physicians to treat these diseases. There is a great deal of controversy on the subject, also about the State expenditures involved, and therefore the pressure of more urgent problems has prevented renewed discussion in the Reichstag.

Reichstag committees on which women predominate are preparing bills relative to marriage and divorce (much along the lines of the new Scandinavian laws); bills establishing the rights of illegitimate children, and new educational measures. This is only a limited statement of the contribution of women to the new German Republic. It is obvious that German women are taking a deep interest in the affairs of government, and that their influence is extensive.

LOSE WEIGHT.

Three large unsweetened stewed prunes, 4 tablespoons vegetable hash on toast with 1 poached egg, 1-2 head lettuce with sliced radishes and onions and pepper, 1 cup clear soup, 1-2 broiled live lobster, 1 tomato sliced with 1-2 medium sized cucumber on 2 ounces lettuce with a tablespoon lemon juice, 2 tablespoons of rhubarb baked with 6 raisins, 2 crisp pieces gluten toast, 3 bread sticks, 2 thin slices gluten bread, 1 pint skimmed milk, 1 tablespoon butter for lobster.

If you love lobster you will be glad to know that you can eat it freely if it's just boiled or broiled. The average "chicken" lobster weighs around 1 1-2 pounds before it is cooked and as the shell is the heaviest part of it you can eat a whole one and not use more than 150 calories. However, each tablespoon of melted butter adds 100 calories of fat, so beware of any sauce. But lobster a la Newburg and deviled lobster and all fancy lobsters are not for the likes of you. Lobsters have no iron content, as all meats and most other fish have, so you must make up the deficiency in other foods.

The vegetable hash as calculated contained carrots, asparagus, string beans, a bit of onion, and just enough potato to hold the whole together.

GAIN WEIGHT.

Six large sweetened stewed prunes, 1 cup boiled rice with 1 tablespoon sugar and 1 cup cream, 1-2 cup of creamed smoked halibut, 2 slices of graham toast, 4 tablespoons vegetable hash on buttered toast with 1-2 cup cream sauce poured over, 1-2 head lettuce with sliced radishes and onions and pepper with 2 tablespoons French dressing, 1 cup clear soup, 1-2 broiled live lobster, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 4 tablespoons potato au gratin, 1 toamato sliced with 1-2 cucumber on 2 ounces letutce with 2 tablespoons oil mayonnaise, 4 tablespoons rhubarb baked with 12 raisins, 1 cottage pudding with 2 tablespoons strawberry sauce, 3 bread sticks, 2 hard rolls, 3 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons rhubarb marmalade, 1 pint whole milk.

The rhubarb and raisin combination baked in a casserole is very likeable. Skin the rhubarb and cut in inch lengths. Put a layer in the casserole, sprinkle over seeded raisins and cover with a layer of rhubarb. Dont add any water. Put the cover on the casserole and bake in a moderate oven. When half done sprinkle with sugar. If you used four cups of rhubarb and 1-2 cup caisins you will need about 1 1-4 cups sugar, more if you like it very sweet.

FALL SILHOUETTE VARIES GREATLY

Warm Weather Doesn't Stop Display of Fall Frocks.

NEW YORK, September 3. — United Press. — Shops are already displaying their Fall frocks in spite of warm weather and many women are buying their fall things now before the newer models have been picked over.

The Fall silhouette is quite varied both in the imported and the domestic models. There are numerous models which continue in straight, narrow lines both in unbelted and narrow string belt types. Skirts of these models are shorter and they are more scant than ever, if that can be possible. Other models follow the tunic lines, which are newer than the straight lined models.

Tunics are long—extending within four or five inches from the hem of the short underskirt. Sheath frocks which are split up one side to allow freedom of motion, are numerous among the imports. These are without belts or any suggestion of a waist line.

Among the frocks designed for the young girls are several high or normal waisted models, but these are made with the detached string belt so they may also be worn in long-waisted manner. There is no great rush towards the use of the high waist line. At least it isn't evidenced among the new frocks which all show either the long waist line or follow the beltless idea. Some of the flappers are striving to introduce the high waist but few are slender enough to find it a becoming style, for in order to effectively wear a high waist line one must wear a corset of some descrption.

Fall Tunics.

Tunics are one of the outstanding features of the Fall season. They are used on frocks, suits and long coats and will undoubtedly be very popular. Frocks made on tunic design are varied. A few of them are cut with the circular hem effect, others are straight lined, and about two yards in width at the bottom. Still others are very narrow and are slit at the sideseams. The underskirt is invariably quite scant.

Nearly all frocks for early Fall wear are embroidery trimmed. Those for later wear—velvets and cloth materials—are often fur-trimmed about the border of the tunic. Where embroidery is used it is in narrow band or applique effect rather than in extensive design.

Among the popular materials are black satin, black crepe de chine and flat crepes, faille silk, Poiret twill and various worsteds. Satin, is perhaps the most popular material for early season wear. Black and white combination are still being used although these have been a bit overdone and do not appear as new as other combinations. Black embroidered in bronze is new and black and red is a favorite combination. Where bright color is combined with black there is liable to be a narrow gold braid connecting their joining.

High necklines are shown on many frocks and long sleeves are a certainty. Sleeves may be tight-fitting or very full, pleated affairs of georgette gathered in to a Gibson cuff at the wrist. The wide-Gibson cuff is newer than the narrow wrist band where sleeves are full. A model which exemplifies the full sleeve idea is made of black satin with sleeves combining three colors of georgette, orchid, purple and majenta. These three tones of georgette are sewed together and plated in the tiniest of pleats. This sleeve gathers into a four-inch wrist-band of black satin which buttons tight about the wrist. The remainder of the frock is left untrimmed by color and has straight lines with a narrow string belt.

Tight-fitting sleeves extend well over the hand usually finished at the wrist with a narrow band of colored crepe de chene which ties in a bow with ends hanging. Sleeves that are tight-fitting until they end in a full puff just above the wrist are used on some models.

Chinese Frocks

Chinese embroidery effects predominate among the Fall models. Where the tunic is used, it has the effect of the three-quarter length Mandarin jacquette since it is finished at the neckline with narrow strips if Chinese embroidery or is trimmed with Chinese flowers or dragons done in the Peking embroidery stitch Where the frock is of Chinese inspiration the collar is either rounding snugly about the neck or is a narrow up-standing band. Side front openings are generally used on these models. The embroidery appears as a front vest panel and again on the same frock the split sides of the tunic may be finished with Chinese ribbon or narrow band embroidery. Although loose Mandrin sleeves would naturally be used on such frocks, this is not the case this season. The sleeves are tight fitting and entirely untrimmed.

CIRCLE SIX TO PLAY SATURDAY

Lakeviews Will Have Strongest Team on Field For Battle.

One of the fastest exhibitions of baseball played on Riverside Park this season is billed for Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock when the Lakeviews of this city and Circle Six team of Kingston play the second game of the third round of the O.B.A for Eastern Ontario championship.

The game will no doubt be of senior calibre and should draw a large crowd of fans.

After battling 12 innings to a 2 all score on Wednesday in Kingston, with either team making much headway the game here is sure to be a thriller.

If the weather is favorable the fans will no doubt turn out in droves to cheer for the local ball tossers who are out to bring fame to the City of Peterboro as they did last season.

Frank Whitehouse is in the pink of condition and will do the heaving for the Lakeviews while Clarke who pitched in Kingston for the Circle Six will perform on the mound here.

Luckily the water at this point was only two or three feet deep, and the driver escaped without a scratch. The car was somewhat damaged.

C. N. CORDON AT C. N. E. LUNCHEON

Attended Directors' Luncheon at Toronto Fair Yesterday.

TRANSPORTATION DAY.

At the directors' luncheon at the Canadian National Exhibition yesterday, the two speakers were Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, and Honourable George P. Graham, Federal Minister of Railways and Canals. Seated at the tables were representatives of Canadian and American Railways, steamship lines and other interests, associated with transportation. At the head table, seated beside Sir Henry Thornton, was another representative of the Dominion House in the person of G. N. Gordon, Deputy Speaker of the House of Commons.

In the Mail and Empire to-day appears a group picture of D. J. McDougald, Toronto, director Canadian National Railways; Hon. G. P. Graham, Minister of Railways; Robert Miller, president C.N.E.; Sir Henry Thornton, president Canadian National Railways; G. N. Gordon, Deputy Speaker of the Federal House, and T. A. Russell, director C.N.E., who were prominent figures at the luncheon.

Yesterday was Transportation Day at the Exhibition. Sir Henry Thornton was pronounced in his utterances, and among other things promised that the new Union Station, which had become a subject of ridicule, would soon be the scene of much activity.

Sir Henry defended the present Government-owned railway system, and said that the citizens of Canada should maintain a healthy spirit of optimism, reinforced by an abiding faith in the possibilities of the Dominion. He predicted that the deepening of the St. Lawrence would become a reality and that the time was not far distant when ships, bearing the flags of many nations, would be accepting and discharging freight cargoes and passengers in Toronto harbor.

Dealing with the St. Lawrence project, Hon. G. P. Graham said that action on the part of the Government had been blocked by several obstacles, the nature of which he could not divulge. They were matters that had to be investigated, and it was a matter of postponing definite action until they had been carefully investigated, with a view to guarding against serious interruptions liable to develop in years to come. The Government were not opposing the scheme, but had declined to take action until it was found that the interests of Canada on the international waterway were carefully protected.

At the luncheon yesterday was one of the most representative assemblages of railway and steamship men ever gathered at the Exhibition.

A PRESENTATION TO MRS. SKINNER

The Eastern Star Lodge Held a Reception For Member.

The Eastren Star L.O.B.A. No. 525, held a reception at the home of Mrs. Skinner (nee Miss Bertha Wylder), on Tuesday evening, and presented her with a beautiful mantel clock. The following address was read by P. M. A. Huffman and the presentation made by the W.M. R. Sexsmith:

Dear Bertha,— We, the officers and members have gathered here this evening to convey gretings to you on your approaching marriage and to wish you joy and success in the future. We regret very much your departure from amongst us, but we feel that our loss, though deeply felt, is yours and Mr. Skinner's gain.

In our Order you have always been one of our most faithful and zealous workers and we trust that wherever you are you will endeavor to carry on the glorious work of our beloved Order, of which we were always proud to own you as a member.

We ask you to accept this clock as a slight token of our appreciation and hope that as the hours tick by each one may add more health, wealth and joy to both you and your husband, and though many miles may separate us we still think of this motto, 'Absence makes the heart grow fonder.'

Again assuring you of our best wishes for happy future, we are— Your Sisters and Brothers of Eastern Star L.O.B.A. No. 525.

Mr. and Mrs. Skinner gratefully acknowledged the gift and extended a hearty invitation to the officers and members to visit them in their new home in California.

A dainty lunch was served and the evening was brought to a close by singing 'For They Are Jolly Good Fellows.'

FIND NO SIGNS OF LIFE ON MARS

SAN JOSE, Cal., Sept. 5.—Astronomers who have been observing Mars through telescopes at Lick Observatory have thus far found no evidence of life on the planet, according to Dr. R. G. Aitken, associate director of the observatory. "We do not see the fine network of canals sometimes portrayed and reported to have been seen by other astronomers," he said. 'We do see markings of various kinds that look more natural than artificial. We have no evidence so far that any of these markings are other than natural. We do not claim that Mars is not inhabited, but merely state that our observations have shown no indication that it is."

NORTHERN ONTARIO IN NEED OF POWER

Malcolm Lang Urges the Development of Power in North.

TORONTO, Sept. 5.—(Canadian Press).—Malcolm Lang, Liberal member of the Ontario Legislature for Cochrane, is in the city to-day urging upon the Government and the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission the urgent necessity for the Commission at once taking over and developing the power resources of Northern Ontario mining districts. Mr. Lang says that negotiations are now proceeding between the three largest power producers in the north looking to merger that will "entirely dominate the power situation in the north for all futurity." The interests he mentions are the Hollinger power concerns, Northern Canada Power Company and the Abitibi. Mr. Lang avers that the vast timber limits as well as power rights would be tied up by these private concerns if the contemplated deal goes through.

Mr. Lang says that the present Minister of Mines, Hon. Charles McCrea, of Sudbury, is a "corporationist."

"I know Mr. McCrea's policy favors the development of power in Northern Ontario by private enterprise under contracts which will protect public interest," said Mr. Lang. "But the Government as a whole should take a forward step in public ownership now that the opportunity is ripe."

TOO MUCH HORSE RACING IN B. C.

Ten Weeks' Continuous Racing Has Been Staged in Vancouver.

VANCOUVER, Sept. 5.—(Canadian Press).—Protesting against the horse racing situation in British Columbia, Hon. H. H. Stevens, M.P., has addressed a letter to Hon. E. Lapointe, Minister of Justice, asking for the Ministers' intervention. He claims that by resurrection of obsolete racing charters ten weeks' continuous racing has been staged in the vicinity of Vancouver, although the Miller Act provides for only two weeks' racing each year at any course.

He expects seven million dollars have passed through pari-mutuel machines in ten weeks, and states that this constitutes a "terrific drain on the economic wealth of the community." The letter discounts entirely the claim that racing is giving impetus to blood-stock. He declares that most of the horses are brought from Mexican race courses. "The whole promotion," Mr. Stevens holds, "is based on the commercializing of the gambling instinct, largely at the expense of the legitimate business interest."

SURFACE OF VENUS HIDDEN.

Earth's Twin Sometimes Is Only 26,000,000 Miles Away.

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—The surface of Venus, which the astronomers at the University of Chicago's Yerkes Observatory at Wiliams Bay, Wis., have found visible at high noon, probably never is seen because of the heavy atmosphere enveloping her.

"Venus shows phases similar to those of our moon, and for the same reason," says the announcement from Edwin B. Frost, director of the observatroy:

"No definite and permanent markings can be seen on photographs. The planet has a heavy atmosphere which probably never allows us to see the surface of the planet itself. This is one reason for its great reflecting power.

"Venus is nearly a twin of the earth in respect to size and probably mass. It is also the nearest to the earth of the large planets. Its average distance from us is 67,000,000 miles, but this ranges from 160,000,000 miles when the planet is on the farthest side of its orbit from the sun to 26,000,000 miles when it is at the nearest point to the earth on our side of the sun."

COLOR PICTURES NOW PERFECTED.

The Technicolor Company Reaches Goal in Metro's "The Uninvited Guest."

With the appearance of "The Uninvited Guest," a new Metro motion picture, produced by J. E. Williamson of the Submarine Film Corporation, colored motion picture photography reaches the highest point of an amazing development that long ago gave promise of revolutionizing the making of movies.

The natural color scenes in "The Uninvited Guest," Williamson's newest production for Metro, that show the striking beauty of the Bahama Islands, where the picture was made, and the strange forms of aquatic life, were filmed by the Technicolor Motion Picture Corporation.

Dr. Daniel F. Comstock, inventor of the Technicolor process, and Dr. Herbert T. Kalmus, who has since been in charge of its technical development, experimented seven years before attaining the success in colored pictures that was first seen in a Metro Technicolor picture "The Toll of the Sea," several years ago. It was this film that Adolph Zukor said was one of the ten greatest motion pictures ever made.

Divides Colors in Two.

The Technicolor process is based on the underlying principle that all the colors of the spectrum are divided, roughly, into red and green. By coating a strip of celluloid with an emulsion which one one side of the film is sensitive to red, and which on the other side is sensitive to green, and by then projecting light through them, the rays so filter that you see upon the screen the colors just as they are seen by the cameraman making the picture.

Because there were two identical pictures on the strip of film, care had to be taken that they coincided, in order to avoid a margin of red or green showing on the screen. Before the Technicolor process, none had been invented to overcome this.

Makes Two in One.

Dr. Comstock conceived the idea of arranging mirrors within the camera whereby the rays of light coming through one lens were reflected to two different areas upon the strip of film. That caused two photographs to be taken every time the shutter opened and closed. By means of screens of glass, colored to eliminate certain tints in nature, red registered on one area and green on another. The patented device that prints these two photographs on the positive film eliminated the chief stumbling block to the success of colored motion pictures.

"The Uninvited Guest," which is coming next week to the Regent Theatre, was directed by Ralph Ince from Curtis Benton's story. It was produced by the Submarine Film Corporation, under patents of the Williamson Submarine Corporation, and is distributed by Metro.

AT THE GRAND.

"SO THIS IS LONDON" AT THE GRAND NEXT MONDAY AND TUESDAY.

In the contest for the capital prize for the creator of wholesome stage humour, it is likely that there would be but a single entry, and that one the inimitable George M. Cohan. "The Cohan Brand" is a slogan that invariably tests the capacity of every theatre, and there is no doubt that Cohan's greatest comedy, "So This Is London," will break records when presented at the Grand next Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, with matinee on Wednesday.

"So This Is London" is said to be rich and abundant in whimsical humour and charm that makes for genuine and hearty entertainment. It satirises in a delightful way the generally accepted idea of the pro-American abroad and his cousin, the pro-Briton. It is comedy designed to make the two great English-speaking countries understand each other better for having had a good laugh at each other's expense.

AT THE ROYAL.

CHARMING GLADYS PLEASES WITH "COMEDY OF ERRORS"

"A Wild Party" At Royal Now.

A unique conception of the term "wild party" is presented in Universal's current Gladys Walton production now showing at the Royal.

The particular wild party from which this photoplay gets its title, is a study in confusion. And out of the confusion evolves a farce comedy that is more than ordinarily entertaining.

The story is built around a newspaper article that resulted in a threatened libel action. The succeeding events find the girl reporter who wrote the article, striving frantically to prove the truth of her statements.

The picture makes no pretence of being other than a farce comedy. It is a light and airy little play with comedy situations following each other in rapid succession. Miss Walton is attractive as the society reporter who "scooped" the rival newspapers with a story that was all wrong. She hasn't as much to do as in some of her previous pictures, but the picture as a whole is well balanced, and the action of the supporting cast is well divided.

Robert Ellis is a good-looking and effective leading man, and makes the most of his opportunities. Sidney Brace offers several laughs by his antics as the storm-tossed bootlegger.

Besides the star, the outstanding character in the play is the unhappily married society vampire, played by Dorothy Valerga. Miss Valerga is a former legitimate stage player and a comparatively newcomer to the screen, but her work gives promise of sending her rapidly along the ladder of success in the motion picture industry. She displays a fire that seems to prove a strong inner sense of dramatic value and she photographs beautifully. Perhaps credit for this latter point should be given Clyde De Vinna, the cameraman, but she certainly has the appearance of a "comer."

CANDY MATINEE AT ROYAL SATURDAY.

The kiddies will get their treat again at the Royal on Saturday matinee. Besides a programme that they will enjoy, a free bag of candy will be given with every ticket.

AT THE CAPITOL.

EMPTY HANDS IS STORY OF CANADIAN ROCKIES FEATURING JACK HOLT

A dandy story of the Canadian Rockies comes to the Capitol Theatre to-day and Saturday, when Jack Holt will be seen in his latest dramatic production, "Empty Hands." In this attraction Mr. Holt is supported by Norma Shearer, a young Montreal girl, who is making rapid headway in the movies and will probably soon be starred by Famous Players.

"Empty Hands" tells a thrilling story of a man and a woman lost in the heart of the mountains and cut off by insurmountable barriers from communicating with civilization. Their struggle for life against the terrific odds against them is vividly told in "Empty Hands." Here is a picture that will please the most discriminating, possessing, as it does, strong dramatic qualities and a pleasing love theme and a happy ending. The story was written by the Canadian author, Arthur Stringer. The remainder of the programme consists of an Educational comedy, a Topic of the Day, Aesop's Funny Fables, and the overture by the Capitol orchestra.

RAMON NOVARRO AND ALICE TERRY COMING IN INGRAM'S "THE ARAB"

Rex Ingram's latest offering, "The Arab," will be the feature presentation at the Capitol Theatre next Monday and Tuesday. Ramon Novarro and Alice Terry are featured in this production. The entire company spent several months in the Algerian desert making this picture, in which several hundred real Arab tribesmen from the desert nomads appear.

PERCY HUTCHINSON.

Percy Hutchison is taking no chances of running short of leading ladies during his forthcoming Canadian tour under the direction of Theatrical Enterprises, Ltd., as he has engaged no less than four of the most popular on the English stage. First on the list is Miss Kate Carew, who will be remembered by Canadian playgoers for her excellent work in "The Luck of the Navy," on Mr. Hutchison's first Canadian tour. Miss Betty Nelson will be the juvenile lead, and one of the featured players in "Nighty Night," in which she scored a sensational success with Mr. Hutchison in South Africa last season. Another newcomer to Canada will be Miss Lilias Earle, who supported the late Sir Charles Wyndham. Last, but not least, comes Miss Nina Oldfield, a direct descendant of Miss Nance Oldfield, first actress ever presented at the English court, an event which happened in Queen Anne's time.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

PETERBOROUGH INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION BOARD.

Sir,—There has been more fault-finding than you perhaps realise because you have Children's Day on the first day. Do you ever stop to think that there are parents who go with their children and can only go one day, and that day is the day when the children can leave school?

Now, look here, gentlemen, if you are giving away anything, why not give of your best and not the worst day of the Fair?

The opening day is never complete excepting a complete lot of kicking by adults who have to go and see a lot of empty stalls, and, in fact, hardly any exhibit complete.

It is not too late yet to give the children another day—a day when the judging is also finished at least on some classes of exhibits.

Yours truly,
Maurice E. Ketcheson.

Deloro Tie Up Point Ann Series - Maple Leafs Win in Lindsay - Brooklyn In Second Place

POINT ANN AND DELORO ARE NOW ON EVEN TERMS

Trent Valley Champs Sew Up Series By Clean Cut Win at Home.

PLAY OFF AT COBOURG

Winners Likely Meet C.G.E. In Next Round of O.B.A.A. Series.

(By F. D. C.)

Playing snappy ball behind steady pitching by Frank Leal and interjecting their hits to the best advantage with opposition errors, Deloro, Trent Valley winners evened up their intermediate O.B.A.A. series with Point Ann, Bay of Quinte title holders at Deloro yesterday, by beating "Soup" Goyer's crew 7 runs to 2. Point Ann won the first game on Monday so that a third battle is now necessary to see which team will play the C.G.E. or Bethany in the next round.

The play off will take place at Cobourg on Tuesday.

Deloro earned the verdict yesterday.

Leal, the former Peterboro boy, went along in cool fashion, keeping the enemy hits well scattered while his team-mates supported him cleverly.

Point Ann sent Sonny Green their little Indian right-hander back at the Elliott outfit and although he showed a lot of stuff his support was far from airtight and he was touched up at times that hurt.

An outstanding feature of the game was a feat rarely seen on a ball field, the throwing out of a batter at first base on an apparently clean single to centre field. Ada the Queen's boy playing in the outfield for Deloro was the hero of the performance and old "Soup" Goyer, former Central Ontario Leaguer was the victim. Point Ann had runners on second and third with two out in the third when Goyer whaled a beauty over second. Ada came in on the run, scooped up the ball like an infielder and made a beautiful throw to first, catching Goyer by a step. The play cut Point Ann out of two runs.

Quinn at second base for Deloro handled seven chances very smoothly.

The biggest crowd that ever saw a game at Deloro was on hand. Point Ann and Belleville were well represented while Madoc, Tweed, Marmora and Havelock all sent large delegations.

The fixture was well handled by "Shiner" Johnston and C. Shaughnessy of Peterboro.

Deloro shot into the lead in the third. Leal cracked a hit off C. Maracle's glove. Schultz hit to the box and everybody was safe when Bennett dropped the pitcher's throw. Ada's timely single to left centre scored Leal and sent Schultz to third. Ada was thrown out trying to steal second and A. Quinn fanned but Maracle dropped Johnston's long fly to left allowing Schultz to register after which Goyer shot down Johnston at second when he tried to steal.

Point Ann got one back in the fourth. "Josh" Maracle opened the frame with a long triple to right and trotted home when M. Green ripped a single between short and third. Bradshaw hit into a fast double play, A. Quinn to Johnston to Schultz and C. Maracle popped to Leal.

Deloro increased the lead in the fourth. Boudreau opened hostilities with a long double to left centre but was eliminated at third on Regan's rap to the box. C. Maracle fumbled Brown's roller and J. Quinn shot a double past third, scoring Regan. Leal struck out and Goyer doubled Brown off third.

There was no further scoring until the sixth when Deloro added another. Boudreau was safe on C. Maracle's fumble. Regan flied to right and Brown rolled to E. Green but J. Quinn singled to send the run in.

The winners put the game on ice in the seventh. Ada started with a single through short, going to second while Bennett was tossing out A. Quinn. Johnston cut a single past Bennett scoring Ada and taking second on the throw-in. Boudreau slashed past third scoring Johnston and going to third on a bad throw to second. Regan hit to Bennett and Boudreau scored when the second baesman's throw got away from Goyer. Regan was out at third on Brown's tap to E. Green and J. Quinn popped to Gaulin.

Point Ann got their last counter in the eighth. With two out, Goyer singled over second, went to third on J. Maracle's long single to right and scored on M. Green's double to centre. Bradshaw then rolled to A. Quinn for the final out.

Her first victory was scored at Wheeling when she was only 18 years old.

DODGERS CROWD PITTSBURGH OUT

Thirteen Straight Victories Land Them Two Games Behind the Giants.

Vance held the Braves to three hits in the opener, struck out 11, won his 24th game of the year and incidentally his 12th consecutive victory.

LEAFS DEFEAT LINDSAY TEAM ON HOME FIELD

Donley Hurls a Nice Game For the Leafs and Wins By 11 To 6.

LOOSE FIELDING.

Lindsay Crew Lose Game By Loose Fielding Throughout the Contest.

Maple Leafs made it two straight and won the first round of the O. B. A. A. Juvenile series by winning in Lindsay yesterday afternoon by the score of 11 to 6. Delahaye started the Leafs right by slamming out a three-bagger to open the game, the frame netting three runs, two of which were driven in by Jack LeBarr. After that it was the Leafs all the way. The Greybirds came through with a punch in the fifth to score four runs, but the rally was short-lived. Donnelly fanned the next two batters to retire the side, and in the face of some rather stiff razzing from the side-lines, hied his opponents to one run in the last three innings.

The Leafs scored three runs in their half of the ninth, the game being called on account of darkness. The box score:

HAVELOCK MIDGETS WON FROM FERGUS

Championship of Lightweights of O. A. L. A. Snatched From Fergus Team.

SCARBORO BEACH, Sept. 5.—The championship of the Midget series of the O.A.L.A. was settled here yesterday afternoon when Havelock won from Fergus by the score of 13 to 8. Fergus were accompanied by a band of rooters who chartered a special train for the occasion. Havelock had but a small handful of rooters but they proved yesterday that rooters couldn't win games. The Havelock lads had it on the Fergus boys in weight but the trickiness of Fergus players caused many an exciting moment.

First Quarter

Havelock with their superior speed had an edge on the play in the first quarter but some loose checking on their defence allowed Ketchen of Fergus to tally 3 goals. Havelock notched 2, and had many chances but the Fergus goal keeper saved repeatedly.

First Quarter score Fergus 3, Havelock 2.

Half Time

In the second session the Havelock boys hit their stride and made some spectacular plays. They tore in on the Fergus goalie and managed to collect six goals making their total 8, while they held the Fergus boys to 1. Fergus put up a great fight but were outclassed in this frame. Half time score Havelock 8, Fergus 4.

Third Quarter

In the third quarter the boys were beginning to show signs of fatigue and each team succeeded in scoring one run, making the score 9 to 5. Havelock now changed to a defensive game and for the later part of the third period they satisfied themselves with keeping the Fergus lads from piling up ao large score.

Final period

The final period was the most exciting one of the game. Both teams were full of pep and during the last stanza seven goals were scored four for the Havelock boys and three for Fergus. Although Fergus was beaten they were not satisfied and entered a protest against the Havelock team, claiming that two of their men played under assumed names. Final score 13-8. The Line-up.

SENATORS GAIN ON THE YANKEES

Another Win For Walter Johnson—Team Got 20 Hits Off Boston.

YANKS SET BACK.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Washington increased its lead over New York to two games to-day by defeating Boston 12 to 5 as the Yankees lost to the Athletics. The Senators battled Fullerton, Ross and Winters for twenty hits. Johnson rarely was forced to pitch at top speed and retired in favor of Russell after the seventh inning. Score:

Washington	004 203 30x—12 20 2

Mackmen Hit Hard

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—The Philadephia Athletics gave the New York Americans another setback in their pennant campaign here to-day, easily winning the first game of the series by a score of 8 to 3. Philadelphia piled up 17 hits for a total of twenty eight bases on Hoyt, Gaston and Shawkey. Score:

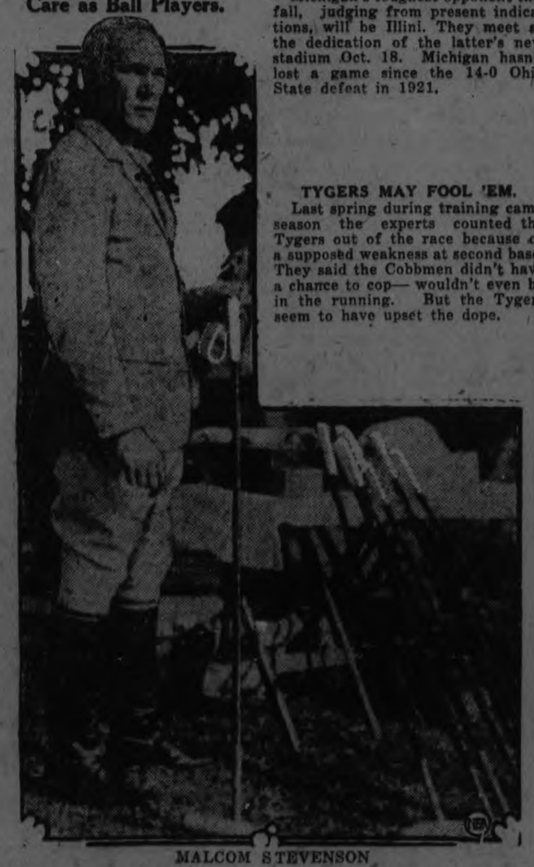
POLO BATS!

Mounted Stars Choose Weapons With Same Care as Ball Players.



MALCOM STEVENSON

One of America's hopes to stem the onslaught of the invading British polo four is Malcom Stevensoon, a player of rare skill and great courage. Stevenson is pictured here selecting his favorite mallet just before a practice skirmish. The mounted stars are just as finicky and particular about their weapons as the temperamental home runnists of the diamond. Always they have their own collection and the number is usually 10 or more.

Peterboro Youngsters Play Toronto Winners In O.B.A.A. Championships

The Toronto Star says: Amateur ball fans will be afforded an opportunity to see the game as it is played amongst the youngsters of the city on Saturday afternoon at Willowvale Park, when two games will be staged in the first roundofthe Ontario Baseball Amateur Association championships. The first game is in the bantam series. McCormick, champions of the Playgrounds league and the city group, meet the Peterboro City League champions, the Kiwanis bantams. The age in this series is under 15, but it is a treat to see the ball these youngsters put up. Many of their games are better and faster played than a lot in the higher series. The local team have a high class battery in Duff and McWilliams. Duff is a right hander and has not been beaten this season. The second game is in the midget series which is for boys under 16. Peterboro again sends the team to meet Humewood, who are also a playground team. The Peterboro entry is the Sacred Heart team. Humewood have a great team, and had to play high class ball all through the season to annex the championship. Glatt and Calligan are the Humewood battery. Glatt is a right-hander, who has turned in many sparkling games. The Peterboro teams are of high class calibre. The Lift Lock City has the honor of taking down the lion's share of the minor league championships last year

SKEETERS BEATEN.

Error in Ninth Cost Them Two Runs and the Game.

JERSEY CITY, N.J., Sept. 4.—An error by Ray in the ninth inning of to-day's game with two out cost two runs and defeat for the Skeeters in their opener with Reading by a score of 3 to 2. With the score 2 to 1 in the Jersey men's favor in the ninth, Ormond led off with a single for Reading, Dowd sacrificed, McLarry walked but was forced at second on Brown's drive to Sheridan. Brown stole second and he and Ormond scored when Blackstop's easy grounded slipped through Ray.

The score:

Reading	00 000 102—3 4 1
Jersey City	000 200 000—2 4 1

Zubris and Haley; Zellars and Freitag.

MEAT FOR BROILING.

Meat for broiling should be of the best quality obtainable, otherwise another method of cooking is preferable.

MICHIGAN FEARS ILLINOIS.

Michigan's toughest opponent this fall, judging from present indications, will be Illini. They meet at the dedication of the latter's new stadium Oct. 18. Michigan hasn't lost a game since the 14-0 Ohio State defeat in 1921.

TYGERS MAY FOOL 'EM.

Last spring during training camp season the experts counted the Tygers out of the race because of a supposed weakness at second base. They said the Cobbmen didn't have a chance to cop— wouldn't even be in the running. But the Tygers seem to have upset the dope.

BROWN PANTHER AFTER WILD BULL

Has Been Considered a Menace to White Supremacy.

BRILLIANT CAREER

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(Associated Press).—Looking back over 95 battles which led, through a period of 13 years, to his most important engagement, that with Luis Angel Firpo at Boyle's Thirty Acres on September 11, Harry Wills, negro heavyweight, made a simple comment:

"I like to fight."

Looking forward to the five years of active ring work, which he considers still remain for him regardless of the outcome of the Firpo fight or a possible battle with Jack Dempsey for the goal of all pugilists, the heavyweight championship of the world, he answered a query regarding his future:

"I like to fight."

Of his 95 battles, Wills won 44 by knockouts and 30 by decisions. He was knocked out once, lost four times by decisions, fought two draws, 13 no-decision engagements and one exhibition, record books show.

The only knockout he suffered in his career was administered by Sam Langford, negro heavyweight considered by many observers as the hardest hitting man of his weight who ever fought. It came in 1916 in the 19th round. Wills more than evened the score by knocking out Langford in five rounds in 1918.

Sam McVey, Bill Tate, Tut Jackson, Kid Norfolk and Jeff Clarke, all negro boxers, were also bowled over by Wills as he fought his way to challenge the white heavyweights. The first of these to take a chance, Fred Fulton, was knocked out in 1920 in one round; since that time no white man of prominence has risked his ring prestige with "the Brown Panther."

Wills and his manager, Paddy Mullins, have been consistently challenging Jack Dempsey for the heavyweight championship. The match, tentatively arranged many times, was finally lost in the brilliant rise of Firpo. It is understood, however, that the winner of the Wills-Firpo struggle will be matched with Dempsey in 1925.

Two years ago Wills was considered a real menace to white supremacy; since that time, however, he has fought only four times. The ability of his "brittle" hands to stand the test of a championship bout has been doubted; his failure to knock out Bartley Madden in 15 rounds in his most recent fight, has been added food for skeptics who declare that he has "gone back."

Meanwhile Wills is carefully, methodically preparing for the moment when the first gong rings, as he has conscientiously trained for each of his 95 fights. To his critics he answers calmly:

"I am not holding my opponent cheaply and am working into my best condition. My hands are ready and I am confident. I like to fight."

C.G.E. MERCANTILES WIN SECOND HALF

Bradley's Pitching A Big Factor in Defeat of Westclox.

"Stuffy" Mahood's C.G.E. team won the second half of the Mercantile schedule when they defeated the Westclox crew 5 to 1 at Riverside last evening.

The pitching of "Chuck" Bradley had the Westclox batters completely baffled, and this, coupled with fine support by his team mates when at rare times it was needed, kept the game within the grasp. Scores:

SOCCER NOTES

The Quaker Oats meet the league leaders, G.W.V.A., Saturday afternoon in a league game at the Oval. Kick-off at 2 o'clock. Referee, Alex Mitchell.

At 3.30 prompt to-morrow (Saturday) afternoon at King Edward Park, the Thistle and Canadian Woollens play a league game. Referee, Jack Clark.

On Monday evening, in the Chamber of Commerce room, the P. and D.F.A. will meet to discuss urgent business. The Plenty Cup selection committee will hand in their report.

If the Canadian Woollens win tomorrow, they will head the league, providing, of course, the Quakers defeat the G.W.V.A. Otherwise, if the Thistle win, they will be even with the Vets—if they lose, with the total of 15 points.

The Peterboro local soccer boys who contemplate being in the Plenty team will have to be the best the city can produce because Brantford soccer fans reckon that they have the best team in Ontario. Two of their team played on the All-Ontario team.

Ballantyne, the Partick Thistle player, of Scotland who jumped the Glasgow team after signing an official form and receiving his wages, has been stopped by immigration officials, on the soccer officials complaint. He may be sent back home.

The following Thistle players be on hand at 3 o'clock: Curtis, Rae and Anderson, Jackson, Dawson, Ross, Young, McPhail, Richmond, Williams, Cross, Faidler and Burgess.

Canadian Woollens will pick their team from the following: Hillman, Cridland, Chambers, Foster, Monkman, Blowers, Ward, Clark, Mitchell, Hodson, Sayers. Reserves Roberts, ones and Gaskell. Be on hand early.

Geo. and William Logan of the Quakers have been fully transferred to the Vets and most likely will be included in the team tomorrow.

Clark of the Vets has been transferred to the Canadian Woollens.

SOCCER CUP TEAM CHOSEN

Players From Every Team Included in the Plenty Eleven.

JACKSON IS CAPTAIN

The committee appointed to select the Plenty (Peterboro) Cup team met last evening in the Chamber of Commerce rooms and after a careful consultation picked the following players as representative of the senior team.

The team—Griffin (G.W.V.A.), goal-keeper; Rae (Thistle) and Chambers (Canadian Woollens) full-backs; Jackson, Capt. (Thistle); Dawson (Thistle) and Blowers (Canadian Woollens), half-backs; Clark (Canadian Woollens), Mitchell (Canadian Woollens), Richmond (Thistle), Dyer (G.W.V.A. and Burgess (Thistle) forwards. Reserves, Craig (Quakers), Cridland (Woollens) and Wyllie (Quakers).

The selection of captain of the team was given very careful consideration and every member of the committee had expressed their opinion they ultimately decided that Andy Jackson was the most fit and proper person for the position. Andy has had considerable experience in local soccer which will enable him to handle the game.

Mr. Wm. Gatfield, the well-known athlete, will be requested to act in the capacity of trainer and without doubt, under his capable instruction there will be no mistakes made during the practice games or on the day they meet the Brantford team in the second round of the Plenty Cup.

WHAT KINGSTON THINKS OF CLUB

Reproduces Letter Said To Have Been Signed By Charles Serth.

KINGSTON, Sept. 5.—The Protest Committee which met at Oshawa to consider the protest of the Peterboro' team against the two players, Messrs. Kelly and Rickman of the Kingston team, decided that, in view of the conflicting evidence, the only decision they could come to was to allow the protest of the Peterboro' Club. This automatically worked as a suspension of the Kingston Club for the balance of the season as that is covered by the Constitution and was followed out in the case of Oshawa last year when Belleville won its protest against that team.

In respect of the protest entered by Kingston against Charles Serth, a former pitcher of the Peterboro' team, a strong affidavit was presented to the meeting, made by Serth himself, showing clearly that he was not a resident of Peterboro' until April, whereas the Residence Rule requires that he should be a resident on January 1st. To offset this there was on file a declaration signed by Mr. Serth in November that he was a resident of Peterboro' at that time. In view of these two conflicting statements the Committee asked the Kingston team to produce further evidence. Mr. Knotty Lee, who was present, explained that he himself had gone to Rochester to get the affidavit dated August 29, and that he had seen Serth sign it. The Committee, however, was not satisfied even with this and insisted upon further evidence.

In this connection it is understood that Mr. Serth claims that in the case of the first document which he signed, he signed it without reading it over at all and after being told that it was merely his contract with the Peterboro' Club to play ball.

The Serth affidavit submitted by Kingston was as follows:

State of New York,
County of Monroe,
City of Rochester.

Charles Serth, being duly sworn, deposes and says that he is a resident of the City of Rochester, New York.

Deponent says that he was not a resident of Peterboro', Ont., on Jan. 1, 1924, and that he did not take up his residence in said city of Peterboro' until or or about the 3rd day of April, 1924. That the only purpose in taking up his residence in the said City of Peterboro', Ont., was to enable him to play paseball, to wit, pitch in the Central Ontario League for the Peterboro' team.

CHARLES SERTH.

Sworn and subscribed to before me, this 29th day of August, 1924.

JACOB ARK,
Com. of Deeds

Needless to say, the Kingston members felt that this affidavit secured only a few days ago, and Mr. Lee's statement that he had seen Serth sign the document, were conclusive evidence that Serth was ineligible under the January 1st Residence Rule, and argued strongly to this effect, but the committee ruled otherwise, and of very necessity the Kingstonians were obliged to bow as gracefully as they could to this decision.

Kingston was represented at the meeting by W. R. Givens, B. N. Steacy and "Knotty" Lee.—"Kingston Standard."

LACEY IS CAPTAIN.

Will Head British In First Polo Game To-morrow.

WESTBURY, N. Y., Sept. 5. — Louis Lacey, Canadian-Argentine member of the invading British international polo team, will be the field captain of the British team when it lines up against the United States' four at Meadowbrook in the first game of the international series on Saturday. Lacey was elected to this position yesterday following the resignation of Major Hurndall.

The official team was announced to-day by Colonel Miller, chairman of the selection committee. Kirkwood will be at number 1, Hurndall at number 2, Atkinson at number 3 and Lacey at back. The latter is the only 10 goal man on the team, Kirkwood and Atkinson being eight goal men and Hurndall a nine goal man. This makes the British team a 35 goal team. The United States' team is a 38 goal team.

NORTHAMPTON WON.

LONDON, Sept. 4.— (Canadian Press Cable.)—In the third division, southern section of the Association Football League to-day, Northampton defeated Aberdare by 5 goals to 0.

DO YOU KNOW BASEBALL?

BY BILLY EVANS

QUESTIONS

1. There are runners on first and second and one out. Batsman hits a fly ball which the umpire immediately calls an infield fly. There is a strong wind blowin that finally carries the ball foul, without any fielder touching the ball. Is the batter out because the umpire first ruled it an infield fly?—B. D. F.

2. When the umpire is of the opinion that the ball and the runner have arrived at the base at exactly the same time, it is customary to favor the runner in rendering a ruling?—F. G. G.

3. It is the last half of the ninth, two out, and the score 2 to 1 in favor of the visiting team. There are men on first and second and two out. The batsman hits a ball that goes between center fielder and the right fielder, rolling to the extreme corner of the field. The two men on the bases, as well as the batsman, cross the plate before the ball is returned to the infield. Is the batsman credited with a home run and what is the final score of the game?—D. D. K.

ANSWERS

1. It is impossible to rule infield fly on a foul ball, as was the case due to the high wind blowing over the field. The umpire, who first called the hit infield fly, must reverse himself and simply declare it a foul ball.

2. If in the opinion of the umpire the baserunner has tied the play, he rules him safe.

3. The batsman is not entitled to a home run. The game ends when the runner on first crosses the plate the final score being 3 to 2. The batsman gets credit for a triple, having advanced the winning run that many bases on his drive. If the ball had been batted out of the playing field, over the fence or into the stands, the batter would have been credited with a home run and the final score would have been 4 to 2.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

Twenty-three years ago, Clarke Griffith, as manager of the Chicago White Sox, won the American League pennant.

Griffith, in addition to managing the club, was one of its leading pitchers. The "Old Fox," as Griffith was known, didn't have the stuff of Walter Johnson, but he was tough to beat.

That was back in 1901, the second year of the American League, his first as the pilot of a major league club.

Since then Griffith has managed a number of clubs in both major leagues but has never been able to repeat his penant debut.

Back in 1904, Griffith, then managing the New York Americans, fought it out until the last day of the schedule with the Boston Red Sox, only to be beaten.

A wild pitch by Jack Chesbro, then king of the spitball pitchers, decided the pennant. Working for Boston was Bill Dinneen, now an umpire in the American League.

Four or five years ago Griffith gave up the active management of the Washington club to become its president. In 1912 he went to Washington as manager and had a big first year. His club faltered in the stretch after being a contender all the way.

Now, after 23 years of waiting, Griffith, weighted down with the title of president, had a chance to have his pennant appetite satisfied. The Washington club, under Manager Harris, is sure giving him a run for his money.

Dame Fortune has been mighty fickle with her pennant smiles as far as Griffith is concerned. Coming down the home stretch frowns rather than smiles have been his sad portion. In the old pinch the tough breaks have always gone against him.

Twenty-three years is a long time to wait but Griffith will be content if the pennant breaks finally favor him. He feels that he is due.

Unlimited confidence in the ability of Manager "Bucky" Harris is Griffith's strongest talking point. He regards Harris as one of the smartest men in baseball. In the spring, when he surprised the baseball world by the selection of his youthful infielder as manager, President Griffith said:

"Harris is going to be a great manager. He will give Washington a club of which is may well feel proud. It will be an aggressive fighting aggregation. Harris is one of the smartest players in the game."

Harris has more than made good President Griffith's prophecy. It would be fitting if he could give Griffith a second pennant to enthuse over.

PATTERSON LOST.

La Coste Won His Davis Cup Game, But Borotra Defeated.

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 5. — Gerald L. Patterson, of Australia, went down to defeat before Rene La Coste, of France, in the opening match of the final inter-zone competition of the Davis Cup series at the Longwood Cricket Club turf courts here yesterday afternoon, but Pat O'Hara Wood furnished a second surprise by outlasting Jean Borotra, champion of Britain and France, in a five set contest. As a result the score stands one match apiece for the rivals who aspire to challenge the United States for the international trophy in the year's concluding matches at Philadelphia next week. La Coste defeated Patterson, 6-3, 6-2, 10-8, and Wood defeat Borotra 1-6, 6-4, 1-6, 6-4, 6-2.

The NUT CRACKER

BY JOE VILLIAMS

A DAY WITH FIRPO.

10 a.m.—Alarm clock shrieks violently. Firpo demands to know what all the shooting is about. "You said set the alarm for Thursday," explains a sparring partner. "Yes, but I said Thursday a week, you sap."

11 a.m.—Light breakfast consisting of 3 hams, 48 eggs, mess of lake trout and 14 stacks of buckwheats. "No milk this morning. I'll try and tough it along on this."

12 m.—"Do you think this is a good day to run 20 miles?" Firpo asks trainer ....."I do, good senor." ....."Well, go ahead and run 25, I'm not selfish."

1 p.m.—Crawls into porch hammock and facetiously announces intention to take beauty sleep ..... "Well, sleep a long time," advises village wise cracker.

2 p.m.—Calls secretary and inquires if Cuban mail has arrived. Learns only mail is letter from young lady in Centralia, Mo., who writes, "Please send me one of your front teeth and a lock of your eyebrow. I think you are too romantic for words."

3 p.m.—Audience with newspaper men. Refuses to denounce the klan by name. Thinks prize fighters ought to be original even if presidential candidates aren't.

4 p.m.—Recreation period. Parlor tricks, pinochle, mah jong, egg rolling, clock golf, riding to the hounds and post office. (Isn't this the darndest stuff you ever read!)

5 p.m.—Poses for photographers. Obligingly stretches out full length on ground at request of a camera man who asks him to look natural.

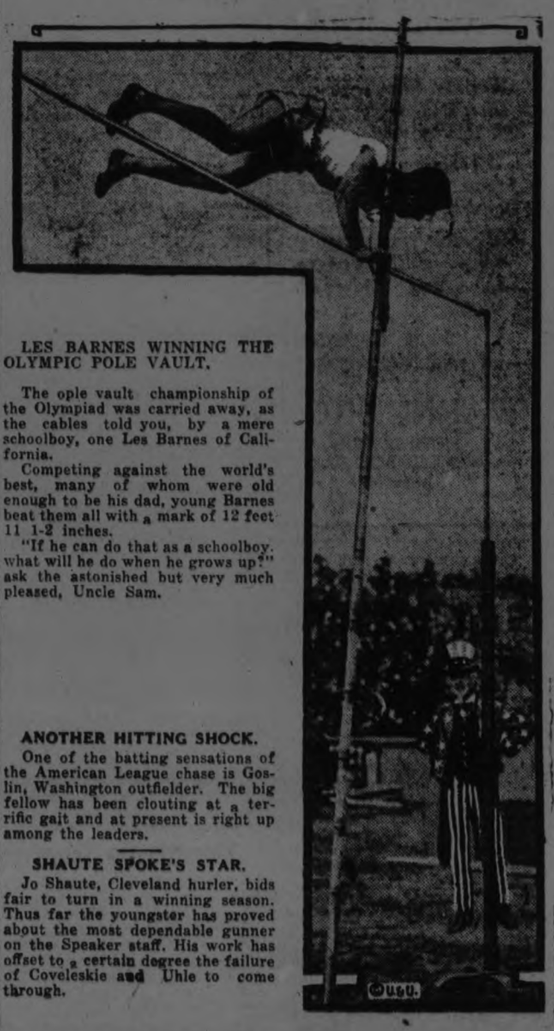
6 p.m.—Responds reluctantly to dinner bell and partakes sparingly of (1) side of beef, (3) slabs of bacon, (14) pecks of turnips and (9) gallons of ice cream. "Never mind the finger bowl, Mrs. Jenkins, I'm in training, you know."

7 p.m. —Public reception. Visitors wishing to take sock at bull's chin form in line to the right. Children are asked to refrain from feeding the animal peanuts, tin cans and other forms of tasty debris.

8 p.m.—Bed time stories. "And little Red Riding Hood peeled off a case note and said shoot the works."

WAIT TILL HE GROWS UP!

California Schoolboy Was Good Enough To Beat All Others in Olympic Pole Vault.



LES BARNES WINNING THE OLYMPIC POLE VAULT.

The ople vault championship of the Olympiad was carried away, as the cables told you, by a mere schoolboy, one Les Barnes of California.

Competing against the world's best, many of whom were old enough to be his dad, young Barnes beat them all with a mark of 12 feet 11 1-2 inches.

"If he can do that as a schoolboy, what will he do when he grows up?" ask the astonished but very much pleased, Uncle Sam.

ANOTHER HITTING SHOCK.

One of the batting sensations of the American League chase is Goslin, Washington outfielder. The big fellow has been clouting at a terrific gait and at present is right up among the leaders.

SHAUTE SPOKE'S STAR.

Jo Shaute, Cleveland hurler, bids fair to turn in a winning season. Thus far the youngster has proved about the most dependable gunner on the Speaker staff. His work has offset to a certain degree the failure of Coveleskie and Uhle to come through.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Contract For a New Building on the Fair Grounds.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 5.—The directors of the Seymour Agricultural Society have awarded the contract for building a horse barn at the Fair Grounds to David Johnston, who has already started work. The building is to be 24 x 50 feet, and will cost $400, of which amount $355 was the board's percentage of the midway held under their auspices recently.

Wedding at Codrington.

Rena McNaught and Garnet Ralph Hay were quietly married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley McNaught, near Codrington. Only the immediate relatives were present. The groom, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Hay, Campbellford, is a farmer near Stanwood. The attendants were Gerald Hay, brother of the groom, and Miss Vera Plumpton.

Mr. and Mrs. Hay left for a honeymoon trip to the Toronto Exhibition and Rochester. They will reside at Stanwood.

That Leaking Boiler.

Mason and Hawkrigg had the subcontract for the plumbing work and putting in the two boilers in the new High School. At the meeting of the Board of Education it was reported that one of the boilers had sprung a leak above the fuel box, and since that time some people have insinuated that Mason and Hawkrigg were responsible for this defect.

The firm in question simply placed the boilers, which were purchased in Toronto. The manufacturers are ready to repair the damage, which is, after all, a small matter, which can be easily remedied.

REDISTRIBUTION TO BE REHASHED

Non-Partisan Meeting at Norwood To Protest Against Recent Measure.

As a result of the recent Redistribution Bill, by which the constituency of East Peterboro lost its entity as a riding, a meeting, called by the joint executives of the Progressive, Liberal-Conservative and Liberal Associations of East Peterboro, will be held in the Town Hall, at Norwood, on Tuesday, September 9th, 1924, at 1.30 p.m.

Incensed at the passing of the riding he formerly represented, G. A. Brethren, (Progressive), M. P., has already voiced his disapproval of the arrangement through the press.

According to the bills posted throughout the county, the meeting is convened in the interests of the electors of the county as a whole, and the doors are wide open to the electors of city, town, village and township alike. It is a peoples' meeting to give a united expression of their desire.

The posters further state that the purpose of the meeting is to protest against the present Redistribution bill, as it affects the County of Peterboro, and to bring before the Federal authorities at Ottawa an expression of the desire of the electors of the County to retin the present municipal county boundaries for a United Peterborough.

HORNSBY'S RECORD SURPASSES RUTH'S

Card Star Has Hit .388 For Four Years, Against Babe's .366 as a Yankee.

CHICAGO, Sept. 5 (Associated Press)—When President Hedler of the National League proclaimed that, in his judgment, Rogers Hornsby was a greater batsman than "Babe" Ruth, the admirers of the Bambino, after a search through the records, discovered to their amazement that Heydler was exactly right. The figures bear out his assertion.

Ruth's admirers throughout the nation, after reading Heydler's words of praise in behalf of the great St. Louis second baseman, no doubt thought the National League President favored Hornsby slightly. The figures revealed Tuesday show that for the last four years Hornsby had a grand average of .388 as compared with .366 for the American League star.

The figures show that since joining the Yankees in 1920 Ruth has socked out 231 home runs, including those of this season, while Hornsby had connected with 112. The St. Louis star, however, captures the honors in total number of hits, and in doubles and triples. Hornsby, in the last four years, excluding this season, has garnered 886 hits while Ruth's best effort was 709.

An idea of Hornsby's remarkable batting this season may be obtained from the fact that if the Cardinal star were to play in the thirty-odd remaining games scheduled for his team and fail to get a hit for the balance of the 1924 season he would wind up the season with an average better than .330 based on four trips to the plate in each game. Hornsby, at present, is out of the game due to a damaged hand. He had a batting average of .434. He had made 200 or more hits, four out of five years.

That Hornsby has the edge on Ruth in all around batting is shown in the following records for the last four seasons:

Rogers Hornsby.

WORLD FLIERS LEFT ON LAST JUMP AT 11.14

Lieut. Smith Told the United Press They Would Be in Boston By To-night.

FINE WEATHER

Machines Were All Carefully Repaired Before Taking Off.

PICTOU, Sept. 5. — (Canadian Press).—The American fliers took off at 11.14 a.m. for Boston.

At 7 a.m. the sun was shining brightly and there was little wind. The aviators were up at 6 a.m. The mechanicians went immediately to the water front to prepare for the take-off.

Lieut. Lowell Smith, commander, was in good spirits and said he expected the start would be made before noon unless there was an unexpected change in the weather.

At 7.45 a.m. the three pilots, Lieuts. Smith, Wade and Nelson, came to the wharf and accompanied their mechanicians in a motor launch out to the buoys where the planes were moored.

The tuning up of the big air cruisers was started at once. There was a great sputtering of motors as the fen went over their motors inch by inch.

A small crowd gathered on the wharf to watch the proceedings. At this time the sky was overcast slightly, but the glow of the sun showing through in the east, and everything indicated a take-off by 10 o'clock.

We'll be in Boston by to-night, Lieut. Smith told the United Press.

Shortly after 9 a.m. the airmen began to take on oil and gasoline from the destroyer Barry, and awaited only final weather reports to be received.

A shiny new propeller, bound with brass, was brought in to-day and put on Wade's machine. He was not satisfied with the propeller with which the Boston 11 was flown to Pictou.

Weather reports were received on the Barry from the cruiser Richmond, and the destroyers MacFarland and Lawrence, which are patrolling the course along the main coast line and off Boston.

The Richmond at 9 a.m. reported clear weather with light winds, and a visibility of fifty miles. The Lawrence and MacFarlane reports were not so favorable, but the visibility was given as eight or ten miles.

At 10.20 a.m. Lieut. Nelson was in his seat with Lieut. Harding standing on the pontoon ready for the start.

Harding shouted "All well," and the three planes got ready to take off.

Lieut. Smith was stowing his personal baggage in the fuselage of his machine.

Lieuts. Wade and Ogden, however, were still working on their plane, assisted by Lieut. Bertrand.

At 11.14 a.m. they took off for Boston.

HUSBAND, 71, QUITS BRIDE AFTER WEEK

"Modern Women Not What They're 'Sposed to Be," He Says, Granted Decree.

DETROIT, Sept. 5. — "These modern women aren't what they're supposed to be," said John Morrow, 71 years old, sadly, as Judge Ernest P. Lajoie handed him a decree of divorce from Lydia, twenty-nine years his junior.

"No, I never shall marry again, if I live to be 1,000 years old."

John and Lydia were married last November, after a courtship of only six weeks. They lived together only one week.

"When were were married, I thought she loved me; but it was my property she loved." Morrow explained. "She immediately wanted me to sign it over to her. Women didn't used to be like that."

Morrow appeared many years younger than he is, which led the court to ask him if he would not essay another marital venture, but he emphatically said no.

FIERCE FIGHTING IN THREE SECTORS

The Major Engagement Appeared To Be Along the Yangtze River.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 5. — Canadian Press. — Foreign observers from the battle front state that the most noticeable features of the campaign just opened are the primitive and utterly unsanitary arrangements provided to deal with the wounded and the rapsication type of Chinese soldier involved, following the usual Chinese custom of putting the least trained and the poorest troops into the front line.

The press gang continues busy here. The work is carried on by groups of soldiers with ropes and handcuffs who seize likely looking Chinese for military duty, roping five or six of them together and handcuffing those who resist. Refugees continue to pour into the foreign settlements.

At daybreak this morning all was quiet along the battle front, with activity behind the Shi Hsieh Yuan lines, aparently indicating preparations for a second offensive.

Fierce fighting in three sectors between the armies of rival Chinese military governors continues unabated to-day, but added fury was given to the battles by the movement of airplanes into the war zone, and the reported concentration of Chinese battleships for action along the Yangtze River.

The major engagement appeared to be near Lius, 30 miles north west of Shanghai, and the outcome of the battle is doubtful. Both sides are employing artillery, it is stated. The Chekiang governors forces are being reinforced at Swangtu, 15 miles west of here, where the fighting continues.

Although between 30,000 and 40,000 troops were engaged in an all day struggle yesterday neither side gained any material advantage, and the casualties were but slight. Apparently much ammunition was expended with little loss of life.

Accurate news regarding the fighting was difficult to obtain because the belligerent generals refused to allow correspondents near the lines.

The infantry engaged was equipped with old rifles, and not composed of fighting men of high calibre. The battle went first in favor of the attacking troops of General Chi, a ne then the forces of General Lu, aided by reinforcements, evened matters along the line from the Shanghai-Nanking Railroad to the sea.

Mrs. Peter B. Kyne, wife of the American novelist, had a narrow escape while observing this battle from the top of one of the Chinese temples at Lieu-Hou. The temple was struck by a shell and partly demolished. Mrs. Kyne escaped however and returned to Shanghai in safety.

STILL SEARCHING FOR MISSING MAN

Sisters of Theatrical Magnate Who Disappeared in 1919 Still Have Hopes.

TORONTO, Sept. 5.—(Canadian Press).—Misses Gertrude and Florence Small, who are unrelenting in the pursuit of every possible clue to the disappearance of their brother, Ambrose Small, millionaire theatrical magnate, in December, 1919, have drawn the attention of the Attorney-General of the Province to information they have obtained that shortly after Mr. Small disappeared notice was posted in the chapel of St. Joseph's Convent, in this city, requesting prayers "for the recovery of Ambrose J. Small, who is now dangerously ill. The Misses Small suggest that such a request for prayers could have been made only by some one who had knowledge of his whereabouts at the time. They have appealed to the convent authorities, who decline to give them further information on the ground of confidential propriety.

The sisters also demand that the Crown authorities make further enquiry regarding the identity of the unknown man at Hanover, Ontario, about the time of the disappearance of Ambrose Small.

MacDonald's Speech Disliked By the French at the League Meeting.

PARIS, September 5 (Canadian Press). .... Premier Ramsay MacDonald's speech before the League of Nations assembly at Geneva yesterday brought down upon the British Prime Minister the wrath of the French Nationalist press.

"Pertinax" in the Echo de Paris says he "has revealed himself as the impenitent Germanophile we always suspected him of being."

Most of the widely circulated newspapers, particularly the Independents, mae little or no comment on the speech.

STIRRETT-MORRISON NUPTIALS

STIRRETT—MORRISON.

A quiet but pretty wedding solemnized in the presence of the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties, took place at half past six o'clock on the evening of Wednesday, September 3rd, in Trinity Methodist church, when Ethel Lenore, younger daughter of Dr. and Mrs. M. A. Morrison, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to George Milton Stirrett, B.S.A., M.S.A., son of Mr. and Mrs. George Stirrett, of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. J. Langford.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a handsome gown of white kittens' ear crepe, trimmed with silver. Her train and veil were of tulle, caught with pearls and orange blossoms, and her bouquet was of ophelia roses and lily of the valley.

The bridesmaid, Miss Agnes Neill, wore a French dress of yellow crepe de chine, with white over-drape, hat and shoes to match, and carried a bouquet of butterlfly roses.

A niece of the bridegroom, Miss Doreen Donovan, of Toronto, made a charming little flower girl, in a frilled frock of white net, carrying a basket of sweet peas.

Mr. Frank Cullinan of Lafayette, Indiana, acted as best man. The wedding march was played by Mr. John Crane.

Ushers were George H. Edwards of Guelph, and a brother of the bride, Fred R. Morrison.

The church was decorated for the ocasion with quantities of ferns and hydrangeas.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The drawing room was arranged with a profusion of gladioli, asters, sweet peas and zinnias; and the dining room was decorated in yellow, a buffet luncheon being served from a table arranged with yellow candles and yellow snapdragon.

Mr. and Mrs. Stirrett left later by motor for a honeymoon at Stoney Lake, to be followed by a boat trip to Duluth. They will reside in St. Paul, Minn.

The bride wore a suit of black striped suedine, with large black hat and black fox scarf.

Out of town guests at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. George Donovan and Miss Doreen Donovan of Toronto, Miss Faith Stirrett, of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Hall of Gravenhurst; Miss Georgie Trieckler, of Sandborn, New York; Miss Marion Stirrett, of Sarnia; Mrs. M. A. Allen of Blythe, Ont; Mrs. Harry McMillan, of Toronto; Miss Olive Murphy of Toronto; Dr. and Mrs. L. B. Shier of Lindsay; and Mr. and Mrs. George H. Edwards, of Guelph.

LEAGUE CHOSEN BY NATIONS AS PEACE NUCLEUS

Geneva's Court Only Body To Solidify World Peace With Security.

PLEDGE OF FRANCE.

Disarmament and Guarantees of Protection Bound Up In Problem Facing World Leaders.

GENEVA, Sept. 6.—Great events, which in League of Nations circles it is firmly believed are destined to affect the future of the whole world, occurred at Friday's session of the assembly of the League.

France joined Great Britain in pledging support for the principle of compulsory arbitration, and through her premier M. Herriot, in removing the doubts of those who feared that France would hesitate to weaken her force as a great continental military power.

M. Herriot announced unequivocably that France favors an international conference on disarmament. In a calm, masterly oration like that Premier MacDonald of Great Britain delivered before the assembly on Thursday, M. Herriot made the men and women present sit stock still in rigid attention and seemingly thrilled them through and through.

The premier told the world through the assembly that henceforth that nation which refused to submit disputes to arbitration would be stigmatized as an aggressor nation.

What of United States?

Last night the one supreme topic for speculation among the delegates generally was that the reaction in the last few days in the assembly would have on the United States. Next to definite commitments to the policy of arbitration, one thing stands out clearly that is THAT ALL EUROPE, LED BY GREAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE, NOW HAS PROCLAIMED THAT IT IS THROUGH THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS AND NO OTHER BODY THAT THE PEACE OF THE WORLD MUST BE SOLIDIFIED.

France, like Great Britain has made it clear that the next disarmament conference must be convoked, by the league of Nations, because it is considered the only body fitted and properly equipped to carry through such a conference.

"If you were to succeed outside the league," declared M. Herriot in his speech, "in creating any body to carry on this conference, would you not have conflict between two bodies each fighting the other in the name of peace?"

Apparently in the opinion of many of the delegates, the United States must come to Europe and probably Geneva, and cooperate with the League of Nations if that country desires to take any part in the next international effort to reduce armaments on land and sea. Last night the general impression exists that the United States will participate in such a conference.

America Is Needed

M. Herriot, speaking of the necessity of universality in the league membership and after paying tribute to the useful collaboration of the United States in the past, voiced the hope that now that arbitration was to be the keystone of the future the United States would not refuse her collaborations.

Great as are the new hopes eagerly discussed by the delegates last night as to the outcome of the political transition of the great European powers, the way to fulfilment is recognized as filled with peril and pitfalls.

That great difficulties lies in the way was made evident both in the discourse of M. Herriot and the addresses of others who followed him, like Lord Parmoor, of Great Britain M. Theunis of Belgium, M. Benes of Czecho-Slovakia and Signor Salandra of Italy. Arbitration alone is not sufficient M. Herriot eloquently argued, "for it does not meet the requirements of the covenant of the league, which declares that armaments should be reduced to a point compatible with national scurity."

Disarmament Essential

To the French premier arbitration must be inseparably joined with the security of disarmament. Arbitration he declared, showed good faith, but good faith must be protected. He then quoted the words of Pascal the noted French philosopher, "justice without force is power; force without justice is tyranny."

Concretely the situation stands as follows: Compulsory arbitration is agreed upon by the leading powers of Europe in principle. Realizing that

Two Girls Drowned By Wave Upsetting Boat

QUEBEC, Que., Sept. 6. Rose Burbeau, aged 14, of Sherbrooke, and a native of New Brunswick, were drowned this morning near Echo Vale, Megantic county. The two girls, together with F. Benoit, of Sherbrooke, were proceeding to Sandy Bay when their flat-bottomed boat was capsized in sight of many people on the shore by a heavy weave. Benoit's efforts to save the girls were unavailing.

Miss St. Pierre's body was recovered this afternoon several hours after the tragedy but that of Miss Barbeau had not been found up to late hour this evening.

GIRL'S ABDUCTOR SENT TO PRISON

Norman Kelso, of Bobcaygeon, Sentenced To Five Years For Stealing Car.

MYSTERY CLEARED.

LINDSAY, September 6 (Special to The Examiner). — The climax in the so-called kidnapping case at Bobcaygeon was reached on Wednesday when Norman Kelso, a resident of the paid a second visit and carried stable Nicholls on the charge of stealing a car, the property of Mr. James, of Bobcaygeon.

This was the car the young man took when he paid a visit to the Aldred home early on Wednesday morning, and later paid a secosd visit and carried off a sixteen-year-old girl.

Kelso was brought to Lindsay, and came before Police Magistrate Bradford on Thursday night.

He received a sentence of five years in the Penitentiary on the charge of stealing an automobile.

This sentence was imposed because of the peculiar aspects of the case, and also because Kelso had a Police Court record, having served terms in the Industrial School and also the Reformatory.

No action was preferred against him in connection with his escapade with the young girl, as nothing of a criminal nature had occurred after he had left the Aldred home with the daughter of Mr. David Aldred.

The girl jumped from the car after she had realised that Kelso was taking her in the opposite direction to her uncle's home.

TRADE TREATY WITH HOLLAND

Signed Yesterday By Canadian and Netherlands Representatives.

FAVORED NATION.

OTTAWA, Sept. 6. — (Canadian Press).— The trade treaty between Canada and the Netherlands, which was signed Friday by Hon. James A. Robb, Acting Minister of Finance, and Hon. T. A. Low, Minister of Trade and Commerce, on behalf of Canada, and by Consul General T. H. Demeester of Montreal, for the Netherlands, is similar to the treaty now in operation between Canada and France. Under the new treaty there is an exchange of most favoured nation treatment. Approval of the Parliament in both countries must be obtained before the new agreement becomes operative.

The trade between the two countries amounted to nearly fifteen million dollars in the last fiscal year. Exports of wheat alone from Canada to the Netherlands were to the value of $4,844,985 and of wheat flour $1,267,418. Other grains were exported from the Dominion to the Netherlands to the value of approximately three quarters of a million dollars. Exports of bituminous coal from this country amounted in value to $473,678 during the last fiscal year condensed milk to $602,315, automobiles to $240,493, and lard to $154,028. Other commodities which Canada exports to the Netherlands in appreciable quantity are canned salmon, dried apples, oatmeal, sugar, asbestos, oil cake, meats, garden tools and small harvesting machinery.

The chief articles of import are cocoa butter, gin, bulbs, nursery stock, electric lamps, carbolic or heavy oil, incandesent lamp bulbs, aniline dyes, zinc white and toys.

OTTAWA, Sept. 5.—The Department of Finance acknowledges receipts of twenty dollars conscience money, received by the Department of Marine and Fisheries in an envelope postmarked Bathurst, N. B., August 28, 1924.

ROBB DECLARES RAILWAYS WILL BE PROFITABLE

C. N. R. Official Says Canada's Investment Will Eventually Show a Surplus.

OPPORTUNITY HERE.

Workers Can Become Their Own Masters—Praises—Thornton—Staff Loyal.

LONDON, Sept. 6. — (Canadian Press).—"We do not only think but we know that, given a fair opportunity, we shall be able to turn the deficit into a surplus and show the Dominion that its investment in the Canadian National Railways is one of the best the government has ever made" declared W. D. Robb, vice-president of the Canadian National Railways last night when he met a considerable number of English newspaper men at dinner.

Mr. Robb gave his hearers a candid review of both the railway position and Canadian conditions generally. He frankly told them that Canada was a place for hard work but he also made it clear that it was not a place for continual drudgery. Referring to the opportunities open to land settlers in Canada Mr. Robb said:

"We want to help every settler. A discontented settler sending discouraging news home does more harm than thousands of dollars spent on propaganda can overtake while a contetnted settler does more to bring out others than thousands of dollars in advertising. Being a Canadian myself it may be a rosy picture I am presenting to you but to me it is real and any man coming to live with us will see the same picture. The progress of the country and the prosperity enjoyed by the bulk of the people is positive proof of my assertions. It is doubtful if anywhere in the whole world the same opportunities exist for the worker to become his own master."

Alluding to Sir Henry Thornton, president of the C. N. R. Mr. Robb said: "The government has picked an ideal man. If they had hunted the world over I do not think they could have found another man to fill the position with more credit to himself and to Canada. Inside of a year he brought about harmony, loyalty, team work and confidence among all the C. N. R workers and if I know anything about the signs of the times the same confidence which has been imparted to the officers and the employees is now being imparted to the people of the whole Dominion"

ANNUITY ANOMALIES.

Contrasts In Operation of Dominion Government's Fund.

OTTAWA, Sept. 6.—(Canadian Press).—A glance at the records of the Dominion Government annuities branch reveals some curious contrasts A Toronto woman recently deceased, and whose benefits were cancelled by her death, had received only $9,124 in annuities while the total payments made in her name were $29,280—leaving an enormous profit to the Government fund. But like any other insurance system, the boot is sometimes on the other foot. Recently a lump sum of $55,000 was paid on a certificate which brought the annuity fund little more than $5,000. The Federal Labor Departemnt states that the fund is doing very well and is increasingly popular with Canadians.

KLANSMAN HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Only One Alive of Three Accused By Coroners Jury at Herrin.

TRUCE ARRANGED.

HERRIN, Ill., Sept. 6.—John E. Smith, the reputed Klansman, whose garage was the scene of the battle here last Saturday in which six men were killed, was charged in a verdict rendered by the Coroner's Jury Thursday with killing Chester Reid in that affray. The jury recommended that he be held for the Grand Jury and a warrant charging him with murder was issued.

Smith was the only one of those who, accused by the jury, escaped the rain of bullets with his life.

The jury found that Deputy Sheriff J. H. ("Bud") Allison was killed by Green Dunning, and that Dunning was killed by Allison; that Chester Reid, while acting as a peace-maker, was killed by John Smith; that Otto Rowland, Dewey Newbold and Charles Wollard were killed by persons unknown. Newbold and Wollard were acknowledged Klansmen. Rowland was a bystander.

Witness Describes Battle.

At the closing session of the inquest Wes Freeman testified that he saw Green Dunning, a Klansman, fire from a grape arbor across the streets from the garage. He believed it was Dunning's fire that killed Allison.

Freeman also testified that he saw an automobile in which sat City Judge Bowen, his stenographer, Miss Jane Lasater, and another man whom he did not recognize, pass the scene but that he did not see any shots fired from this automobile. Thursday's witnesses testified that Judge Bowen and State's Attorney Duty passed the garage in an automobile and fired several shots.

"A lot of people were shouting," the witness continued. "I saw the Sheriff's bunch go down the street to the garage. Galligan had a gun and I believe I saw one on Ora Thomas, too. I saw Charles Penhar and two other men come along in an automobile and they also began firing.

"I saw a man in Denham's car fall wounded," Freeman said. "I also saw Dunning dron after being struck by bullets. Bud Allison was the first man shot, and the shots that struck him came from the direction of the grape arbor behind which Dunning was hidden while firing.

Concerning Dr. John T. Black, head of the hospital here, Freeman testified he saw the physician kneeling beside the body of a man on the sidewalk.

"I have done my best," the Coroner said, when the evidence was completed. "I have been fair to both sides and have shown no partiality. Every one has had an

LINDSAY COURT TURNS DEFENDANT OVER TO DOCTORS FOR EXAMINATION OF SANITY

J. B. Chamberlain Shouted at Crown Attorney To Sit Down—Carried Revolver—Accused of Assault In Which An Axe and Frying Pan Were Weapons.

(Special to The Examiner.)

LINDSAY, Sept. 6. — A police court session, presided over by Police Magistrate Bradford, had a somewhat sensational ending Friday.

Mr. J. B. Chamberlain, a resident of the town, who has been in the limelight for some time because of his radical tendencies, and who contested the Mayoralty with ex-Mayor Carew two years ago, was accused of assault on a neighbor and also of carrying a revolver. The two cases were heard by a crowded court room, and the hearing was featured by cross-firing between the opposing factions.

Chamberlain was accused of assaulting Mrs. Hodson, a neighbor, and the Hodson family was out in force. One after the other told the story of the assault in which a frying pan, axe and other articles figured prominently. Chamberlain, who conducted his own case, came into court with a pile of law books, etc., and proceeded to run the court, dictating to the magistrate and everyone else concerned in the case.

Alleged Perjury.

He finally took the box in his own behalf and flatly contradicted the evidence submitted by the witnesses for the prosecution, accusing the members of the Hodson family of wilful perjury. All the time he was gesticulating wildly and struck a dramatic pose every time that he considered a point had been made. He was interrupted once by Mr. Hodson, who called him a lawyer, and when he was termed "too smart" by County Crown Attorney Anderson, counsel for the plaintiff, he retorted by saying: "I can't help that—I was born smart, and it would be well for you that you were born under similar circumstances." In being cross-examined Chamberlain said he would not tell a lie for "man, God or devil," and he "would give his body, soul and all to pacify the Hodsons.

Defendant Apologizes.

The climax came when Mrs. Chamberlain entered the witness box. Her husband interrupted her at times in her evidence, and finally Mr. Anderson requested him to give the witness a chance.

"Sit down," he shouted to Mr. Anderson, whereupon the Magistrate called upon him to apologize to the court or he would be charged with contempt of court. He immediately apologized.

Chamberlain pleaded guilty to the charge of carrying a revolver. He claimed he carried the weapon in order to protect himself and family. He had appealed, he said, to the Attorney-General, to the County Crown Attorney, to the Police Magistrate, Chief of Police and Provincial Officer Storey for protection and had received none. A murder would be committed, but it would be provocative.

Will Be Examined.

Police Magistrate Bradford informed Chamberlain that he would reserve judgment in order that the authorities could examine him as to his mental condition. The usual procedure would have to be followed in the case and the necessary detention papers made out. Chamberlain startled the court by declaring that he was perfectly willing to be examined. He had nothing to fear on that score, and furthermore it was not necessary for the court to make out papers, as he would not insist on that formality. He was perfectly satisfied that he was as sane as any man in the court.

STANDARD FARM WORK.

British Trade Unionists Urge Other Improvements.

LONDON, Sept. 5. — (Canadian Press).—The trade union congress at Hull today passed a resolution which is to be submitteddd to the agricultural workers' union in favour of instituting a rural campaign to secure a legal minimum wage that would ensure a proper standard of living of 48 hours, as well as other improved conditions for the workers.

The congress voted £1,000 towards a fund for the campaign in behalf of the farm laborers.

JEWELS STOLEN IN DARING RAID

Montreal Robbers Escape With $15,000 Worth From Store of "The Main."

CLERK SUBDUED.

MONTREAL, Sept. 6.—(Canadian Press).—While two men walked into the store and subdued a twenty-year-old clerk, four others tossed a muffled brick through the window of Charles Hermann's jewellery store on St. Lawrence Boulevard and escaped with jewellery valued at $15,000 here late Friday afternoon.

The clerk, Louis Haft, had been left in charge by Hermann. Two men walked into the shop and presented pistols to Haft, ordering him to throw up his hands. Almost at the same time a brick sailed through the window.

Tray after tray of rings and pins and watches were gathered up and relayed back to the automobile which waited at the curb. The two gunmen dashed out of the store and the machine sped away with the hold-up men and their plunder.

No arrests have as yet been made.

U.S. FLIERS SE FOOT ON NATIV STRAND FAMOU

Forced To Descend By Sou Fog On Maine Coast Last Night.

THRONG AT BOSTON

Disappointed By Delay Continue To-day and Fly Over New York Sunday.

BOSTON, Sept. 6.— (Canadi Press).—Fog and thick weather th rolled up along the Maine co brought about an unexpected lan ing by the United States world gir ling army aviators at Mere Poi near Brunswick Maine, Friday wh a crowd of nearly 40,000 perso awaited them at the Boston air po Reaching the mainland of the Unit States after an absence of near five months, in which they cor pleted the virtual circumnavigati of the world by air, the fliers r ceived by telephone the congratul tions of high army officials who h gathered here to meet them.

Forced by fog to turn back wi his squadron of eleven planes wi which he hoped to escort the avi tors to Boston, Major General M son M. Patrick, chief of the a service, found a telephone call fr Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith, lea er of the world flight, awaiting hi on his return here.

Fog Too Thick.

Smith's first greeting to his chi was: "Sorry we had to disappoi you, sir, but the fog was too thic for me to take a chance with thes men and our ships."

General Patrick replied: "Might glad indeed to have you so nea home. I know you did the bes you could to get through today. W went up to meet you and realiz what the conditions were."

"Everything is looked for a ge away tomorrow," Smith reported.

"Will look for you tomorrow the You boys have done splendidly, General Patrick replied.

Taking the telephone, Assistan Secretary of War Dwight Davis who had accompanied General Pat rick in another plane and who ha just alighted, said:

"Welcome to our country. Sorr you had to come down."

To which Lieutenant Smith re plied:

"We did our best, sir, to com through. Look for us tomorrow."

"Did A Fine Job."

Greeting to old comrades cam from Lieutenant St. Clair Streett aide to General Patrick, who commanded the Alaskan flight in addition to plotting the main route fo the world tour.

"Hello Smith," he said, "You fellows have done a fine job. Hope you come down all right, see you tomorrow."

The aviators, who alighted on the waters of Casco Bay, Maine, without mishap, last night were planning to proceed here as early as possible Saturday where a rearranged program of ceremonies is to be carried out. Then, according to arrangements made by Major General Patrick the planes will be overhauled, the pontoons removed and landing gear substituted. On Sunday, according to plans, they will push on to New York City. They will land at Mitchell Field from where they will continue their flight to the Pacific Coast.

Flew From Pictou.

The flight started at Pictou yesterday morning with good weather, but as the planes came down from the Bay of Fandy and headed along the Maine coast, the fog began to bother them. They were forced to fly low most of the way, at times not more than 150 feet above the water.

Over the telephone last night Lieutenant Smith gave to the press a brief account of the experience of the fliers.

"We ran into fog most of the way down the coast," he said. "When we reached Gasco Bay it was dense but we hoped we could make our way along a little farther in the thought that we might strike clear weather. It could not be done and we looked around for a landing place.

"After circling about the bay for a while we discovered a good place near Mere Point. We made an easy landing at 5:10 p.m. daylight saving time, and anchored so near shore that we had no difficulty in getting on dry land our first step on United States soil since we left Seattle.

"We are all very glad to be here. We have been working a long time to get here. It seems good to be back with our people again.

Cottagers' Guests.

"We shall spend the night at summer cottages on Mere Point and I hope we can hop off for Boston between 9 and 10 o'clock tomorrow morning."

Then the flight commander said

LIU DSE RU WILL BE HERE SUNDAY

A Distinguished Chinaman, Worth Million, Will Speak in This City To-morrow.

The people of Peterboro will have an opporunity to-morrow to hear one of the most interesting men to visit the city in many days in the person of Mr. Liu Dse Ru, the millionaire chinese philanthropist and business man who is at present on a tour of the world.

Mr. Liu occupies a unique position in the life of West China. He started life without a penny, and up to the age of thirty-five years found nothing but struggle each day. At that age he secured work with a sewing machine company as a selling agent, and after a few months of initial effort found unusual success coming his way. His work was so outstanding that he was soon made district manager, with sucessive salary advances until he was getting $1000.00 per week. His district prospered, until he was promoted to be manager for the whole of West China, with 87 districts under his control and a salary of about $100.00 a day. As a business man he is a powerful factor in the commercial life of that part of the world.

Mr. Liu was born a Confucianist, but in later young manhood he became an earnest Christian. He speedily took an active part in church work, andd became a lay preacher of note. He still carries on that work, and has marked success therein. Almost every Sunday he is preaching at some native church. He built and maintains an orphanage in which there are at present about 200 children and plans are now drawn up for its enlargement to accomodate 500. All the expenses of maintenance he pays out of his own pocket. On his present tour of the world he is addressing public bodies of many sorts and is to address leading missionary organizations on this continent. Complimentary luncheons have been tendered him by the Toronto Board of Education, the Toronto Board of Trade, Sir Joseph Flavelle and many others.

He may be heard in George Street Church to-morrow afternoon or evening. In the afternoon he will address the Methodist Sunday Schools of Peterboro and in the evening he will preach at the regular service at seven o'clock.

AMERICAN AVIATORS MADE TOWN HAPPY

Round-the-World Aviators Paid a Fortnight's Visit to Quaint Yorkshire Town.

BROUGH, England, Sept. 66.—This quaint Yorkshire village by the river Humber, proud of its long history, is no less proud of the distinction which the American round-the-world aviators conferred upon it.

Brough was old when Caesar's legions annexed Britain to the Roman Empire. The visit of Lieutenant Smith and his five gallant companions lifted this quiet hamlet out of its long past and humdrum present to a place of world importance. For it was selected by the American airmen as the base where they overhauled their machines and made final preparations for the last leg of their trans-Atlantic flight home. Great was the rejoicing of the townsfolk when the six American fliers alighted here.

The welcome of the inhabitants genuine and sincere and within hours they had taken the visitors their hearts and homes. The kburn Aeroplane Works placed factory and staff at the full sal of the Americans, who were ts during their stay at the so- club which the Blackburn com- maintains for its employes. was the industry of the Ameri- their willingness to do any work in connection with the hauling of their planes, that the admiration of the Brough ople. AS PATE OF ST. PETER NUDE?

Bald-Headed as is Pictured by Many Artists.

ONDON, Sept. 6.—Christian art e the Fifth Century has con- ntly depicted the Apostle as headed with a thin fringe of hair he back of the head. Raphael's re "The Dispute" is a familiar mparatively modern example.

at now the antiquarians are ondering if Christian art hasn't been, on the whole, unjust to the fiery disciple, at least in the matter of pulcharitude, since a very ancient silver image of St. Peter has been found near Constantinople showing him with an abundant crop of curly hair.

Some authorities take this silver image very seriously. They believe t it is a late example of the work the Gnostics sect somewhere around the second century; as they were very fond of images and apparently took great pains to make them true to the tradition handed down in the early Church, the fact that a Gnostic image reveals the Saint with a grand mop of hair carries weight. On the other hand, if the silver image in question is merely work of an early Christian craftsman who admired curly hair and gave it to his favorite Disciple, there is nothing more to be said in the matter.

But European antiquarians, now discussing the latest find in their journals admit that it raises for them a very serious question.

TROTZKY FEARED BY SOVIET OFFICIALS

Still Dominant and Very Popular With People.

MOSCOW, Sept. 6.—(Associated Press).—Leon Trotzky, Soviet Minister of War, retains a dominant place in the minds and hearts of the Russian Bolsheviki. All efforts within the Communist Party and Soviet Government to subordinate him have failed. There is little doubt that if a referendum were held among the people of Communist leanings, the creator of the Red Army would be selected to fill the place left vacant by the death of Premier Lenin. But the War Minister's associates in the Government fear if he were chosen as the national leader of the country, he would attempt eventually to set himself up as a sort of Napoleonic dictator. For this reason they lose no opportunity to repress his personal ambitions and political activities.

Trotzky's services as a speaker are in great demand because of his ready oratorical skill and wide knowledge of international affairs. Scarcely a day goes by that he is not called upon to address a political convention, a scientific congress, or a workingmen's gathering. One of his favorite topics at these meetings is America and the American "bourgeoisie." But Americans at home must sometimes be amused at some of the extravagant and alarmist expressions of the Soviet War Minister. He is forever ranting about "America's preparations for a new and more deadly warfare on Europe and Japan."

In a flamboyant speech before the All-Russian Sanitary Congress recently, Trotzky said the European proletariat, in its struggle for power and world revolution, would have to reckon upon "capitalistic America as an irreconcilable and all-powerful enemy." He said the revolution would develop much more slowly in the United States than in Russia and the East. He predicted the people of the East would throw off the yoke of imperialist countries and seize power in Europe, but that "America will remain the most formidable opponent of the proletariat."

The head of the Red Army said that the World War, which reduced Europe to ruins, was made possible only by American support. "Now that the war is over," he continued, "the United States is helping the European bourgeoisie maintain its position. The United States, which has tenaciously refused to recognize Russia, is attempting through the report of the Dawes Committee to organize a system for the enslavement of the European laboring masses. America is monstrously rich. Her bourgeoisie possesses unusual resources for maneuvring internal and foreign politics."

RAMPOLLA STATUE IS NOW COMPLETE

Cardinal Rampolla Became Nearly Being Elected Pope of Rome.

ROME, Sept. 6.—(United Press).—The monument of Cardinal Rampolla, who is recognized as the greatest papal secretary of state of the past hundred years and who came nearer being elected Pope than any other candidate of modern times, is now ready, and will be erected in the basilica of S. Cecelia in Rome soon after the opening of the Holy Year, 1925.

The monument shows the great cardinal in a standing pose in an attitude of receiving a vision. It is 20 feet high and is sculptured in many-colored marble. His flowing robes have given ample scope for grace, while his long train is draped delicately down the few steps leading to the base.

Pope's Teacher and Guide.

Pope Benedict XV. was instrumental in having the sculpture completed, as Cardinal Rampolla was his teacher and guide. When the cardinal became secretary of state to Leo XIII., Monsignor Della Chiesa, as Benedict XV. then was, never fail in his homage to his great master. Becoming Pope, it was his desire to commemorate his work, and for this he had the monument started.

Cardinal Rampolla was almost elected Pope in the election following the death of Leo XIII. The conclave was long and tiresome, and after many ballots, the tide was turning to Rampolla. When his election was practically assured, if another ballot would be taken, the Austrian cardinals announced that Emperor Franz Joseph would oppose tht choice of Rampolla. The conclave was thrown in a further deadlock and repeated ballots occurred which resulted in the choice of Cardinal Sarto, then patriarch of Venice, who became Pope Pius X.

The ceremonies of the unveiling of the statue will constitute one of the important events of Holy Year.

WAR MEMORIAL CAMPBELLFORD

Scheme Will Be Revived at the Next Council Meeting —Nothing Done.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 6.—At the June session of the Town Council, Councillor Johnston offered a resolution, which was carried, providing that steps be taken to erect a town building which would also serve as a war memorial. A committee, consisting of Mayor Meyers and Councillors Johnston, McDonald and Kingston, was appointed to make the preliminary arrangements. Architect Blackwell of Peterboro was to be asked to prepare plans and the committee was also instructed to confer with the I.O.D.E. and the Chamber of Commerce. As soon as the plans and an estimate of the cost of the proposed building was obtained, it was proposed to submit the question to a vote of the people.

Although this proposition met with no opposition from any member of the Council, no further action has ever been taken, and Councillor McDonald says he will bring the question up again at the meeting of the Council Monday night.

Home From California.

Fred. N. Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hill, of Hastings, and a native of that village, is home on a vacation after an absence of 25 years spent in the United States. He is at present spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Varcol.

Mr. Hill for the past 10 years has resided at San Bernardino, Cal., where he is with a refrigerator company, and also owns an orange grove. He lives about a mile from Mr. and Mrs. Ben I. Gibson, who left Campbellford for California last fall, and who are prospering on an orange farm. In California no one is surprised to meet with people from the old home district as well as those from all parts of the world, as the population is in every sense cosmopolitan.

Mr. Hill says that business conditions in the United States have improved since the Presidential candidates were nominated. While he believes that the majority of the people, on the tariff issue alone, would prefer to see Coolidge elected, they are not worrying of the situation. Both candidates are good men and both have the confidence of the people and the support of Wall Street. The financial interests are not uneasy and this fact has a tendency to improve the business outlook.

California sends 13 representatives to the Electoral College, where the final vote for President is taken. It is the only State in the Union that chooses its Presidential electors by congressional districts instead of at large. California may for that reason cast seven votes for the Republican candidate and six for the Democratic nominee, or divide its support on any other ratio. It would therefore be possible for that State to have only one vote in the Electoral College, whereas all the other states would register their full quota either for one candidate or the other. California weakens its own prestige in determining the final result on account of this arrangement.

Prohibition in the United States is working just as it is in Canada. There is bootlegging and other infractions of the law which is more drastic than it is here, as it is unlawful for any resident to keep liquor, either in large or small quantities, in his private residence.

Preparing For Plebiscite.

Temperance workers are showing interest in the coming vote on the plebiscite, and are looking over the voters' list to see that no names have been omitted. A Court of Revision will be held here in a short time, and all those whose names are not on the list and who believe they are entitled to a vote, are requested to take the necessary steps to have such oversight corrected.

INTERESTING BIDS

Belgium Lowest in Tenders Submitted to Chile.

LONDON September 6. (United Press.) — Heretofore Chile has been buying her locomotives in the United States, but she has changed that policy, and invited manufacturers throughout the world to tender bids for three locomotives of the "Micado" type for the Arica La Paz Railway. Here are the bids she got:

Per Locomotive.

Belgian lowest tender	4,700 pounds
German lowest tender ..	4,756 pounds
U. S. lowest tender	7,550 pounds
British lowest tender	9,260 pounds

To say that the British manufacturers are stunned at finding themselves nearly double the successful competitor is putting it mildly. But there is some satisfatcion expressed over the fact that the American bids were equally out of the running.

WON'T SHARE LOSS.

MELBOUNE, Australia, Sept. 5.—(Canadian Press).—Whatever loss there may be in connection with the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley the Australian Governm..t will not be involved in any loss. A statement to this effect was made to-day by Premier S. N. Bruce.

ANIMALS FROM U. S. IMPROVE BREEDING

East To Purchase More Cattle, Ayrshires and Guernseys.

HOUSTON, Tex., September 6.—Porto Rico plans to import several consignments of American animals for the purpose of improving the Porto Rican breed of cattle, horses, swine, goats, poultry and rabbits.

One consignment consists of 45 head of Texas milch cows which have passed through various stages of Texas fever and now are believed to be immune from that disease which is prevalent on the island. Eight sires, four Jerseys and four Holsteins, were purchased from the Texas A. and M. College by W. M. Ellison of the staff of the Porto Rican Department of Agriculture.

A portion of the sires and all of the cows will go to the Porto Rican Health Department which, among other things seeks a continuous milk supply for the hospital for tubercular patients at Rio Piedras. Native cows, it seems give a good quality of milk for a limited time each year, but the supply is short and averages, the government estimates, about a half tea cup full to each inhabitant on the island. The health department also will get one of the sires and the experiment station of the Department of Agriculture another. The remainder will be used for breeding purposes.

Mr. Ellison was here on his way East to purchase more cattle, including Ayrshires and Guernseys, for shipment to Porto Rico. He also has been commissioned to purchase a pure-bred Arabian stallion, a number of Nubian goats, a quantity of swine, and a number of rabbits, as well as eggs from high-grade poultry.

Porto Rico's eggs, he said, come largely from game chickens, and are undersized as compared with egs from the American hen. Inferior eggs on the island are sold during the winter for 50 cents a dozen.

that he could not talk longer at this time because he wanted to go out and look over the planes once more before going to bed.

Mere Point is between Harpswell and Brunswick. It is a long narrow neck of sand, with only a few cottages scattered about. It is about 20 miles from Portland, jutting out into a section of the bay dotted with islands. The cottagers welcomed the aviators and quickly offered them shelter for the night. Lieutenant Smith accepted the hospitality of M. C. Chase and his companions went to other cottages.

HASTINGS IN RACE.

Correct Standing of the Northumberland Baseball League.

BRIGHTON, Sept. 6. — The defeats sustained by Campbellford and Brighton on Wednesday practically eliminate them from the Northumberland League race. Colborne downed Brighton 14-1, Orland accounted for Campbellford 11-7, and Hastings won from Roseneath 8-3. The race is apparently between Colborne and Hastings, although Roseneath still has a chance to figure. The correct standing, with the game won by Brighton from Hastings removed, now is:

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Colborne	6	1	.858
Hastings	4	2	.667
Orland	3	4	.429
Roseneath	2	3	.400
Brighton	2	4	.333
Campbellford	1	4	.200

The schedule shows that the following games must still be played:

Wednesday, Sept. 10—Campbellford at Roseneath; Orland at Colborne; Brighton at Hastings.

Friday, Sept. 12—Brighton vs. Hastings at Campbellford.

Saturday, Sept. 13—Roseneath at Campbellford.

Wednesday, Sept. 17—Colborne at Hastings; Roseneath at Brighton; Campbellford at Orland.

Saturday, Sept. 20—Colborne at Roseneath; Hastings at Campbellford.

Dates not set for—Brighton at Campbellford; Roseneath at Orland.

CAVAN LADIES HEAR OF JAPAN

Informal Address By Miss Rorke Returned Missionary, Was Interesting.

CURIOS EXHIBITED.

CAVAN, Sept. 6. — The Cavan Ladies' Aid held their September meeting at the parsonage on Thursday afternoon.

A special feature of the meeting was the presence of Miss Rorke, missionary on furlough. Rev. G. S. and Mrs. Rorke, with Mrs. Cross, were also present by special invitation.

The ladies of the different women's organizations on the Cavan Circuit had looked forward with pleasant anticipation to meeting Miss Rorke. They had become interested in her work during the three years which her father, Rev. G. S. Rorke, spent on this circuit. Miss Rorke is not allowed, by the Missionary Board's ruling, to deliver an address for some months, in order to have a complete rest. However, on being invited, she came, and in an informal way, told something of her work in Japan. She showed a table of curios. Many articles used in the daily life in Japan, also records of Japanese music, which, when played on a Victrola, made sweet music. She also had a very beautiful silk Japanese costume—a kimona. She put the costume on that all might see the Japanese form of dress.

She described her work in a very interesting manner, and throughout had the sympathy and interest of the ladies. All are interested in this work and endeavoring to help it on, and it was nice indeed to hear about it from one engaged in the work.

Miss Tinney sang a solo and Mrs. R. S. Staples gave an excellent paper on "The Sin of Omission."

Rev. R. T. Richards conducted the devotional exercises and was chairman.

Before the programme the members of the Aid held their business meeting in the kitchen.

Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland, elocutionist, of Peterboro, has been engaged as entertainer for the fowl dinner at Thanksgiving. Reports were not ready regarding the music for that occasion.

After the programme, a delicious and satisfying lunch was served by the ladies. The tables were on the lawn and laden with an abundance of good things to eat.

Many ladies were present from Fairmount and Millbrook.

The October meeting of the Aid will be held at the home of Mrs. R. Matchett, Thursday, October 9th.

Sunday Service.

Commencing Sunday, September 7th, the service in Cavan Church will be at 7 o'clock p.m. Sunday School will be held in the afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Messrs. John Thompson, Robert Fowler and Cyril Moore attended Toronto Exhibition.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Staples, Hamilton, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Keegan.

opportunity before this jury to testify," and turning to the jury, he told them to return their verdict on the evidence placed before it.

Both Sides Agree to Truce.

The jury deliberated an hour. Its members comprised two farmers, three miners and a former justice of the peace.

Captain Harold M. Bigelow, commanding the troops remaining on guard here, gained promise from Sheriff Galligan in Marion that he and his deputy, Ora Thomas, would appear in Herrin only in case of official business and then would inform the military of his plans.

Similarly the Captain received the promise of John Smith, a leader of the local Klan, that he would deliver the automobile now held in Smith's garage to Galligan's deputies without question. Galligan had gone to obtain this car, armed with a writ of replevin, when the fighting began Saturday.

The truce came as a relief to the citizens, who feared an outbreak at the Coroner's inquest.

arbitration cannot stand alone, the powers probably will agree to work out a system of economic and financial sanctions. The rock upon which the new movement for world peace may split, is, in the opinion of some of the observers, the military sanctions upon which France and Belgium and some of the smaller states insist as necessary for real security.

With regard to disarmament the work now facing the assembly is: A commission will study the covenant and bring it into harmony with modern conditions and formulate a plan of guarantees. The commission will prepare the way for a disarmament conference, which will not be convoked, however, before there are reasonable probabilities for success.

FLY THE FLAG.

Peterborough's Industrial Exhibition is one of the big yearly events, and it should be recognized as such by the citizens generally.

Particularly should there be a willingness to indicate that something unusual is taking place in Peterborough by a display of flags and bunting during Exhibition week.

There is nothing that adds so much to the appearance of a city or that conveys to visitors a more attractive picture than a liberal showing of the Union Jack.

This year's Exhibition week is a particularly appropriate time for flag-flying inasmuch as Peterborough is to be favoured by a visit from Lieutenant-Governor Cockshutt, whose presence should be recognized.

There will be thousands of visitors to the city next week.

Let them see that Peterborough recognizes the importance of the Exhibition, and let them feel, too, as they see flags flying everywhere, that it is a gala week for this city and for its visitors.

The business section especially should be a mass of national colours next week.

It may seem a minor point, but the adoption of this suggestion on a general scale will do much to put the Exhibition over successfully.

MICHAEL FARRELL'S LESSON.

Michael Farrell, tailor, came to Canada from Ireland when he was sixteen and became a farm laborer. He died the other day leaving an estate valued at $225,000.

Michael Farrell teaches a lesson, says the Ottawa Journal. It is a lesson that this generation needs to be taught, namely: that in Canada there is always room at the top, that industry, courage, perseverance, thrift inevitably find a way.

Canada remains a land of opportunity. Not the land of opportunity that it would be were its leaders more wise, its public more active and alert, but a land of opportunity nevertheless. A land where the individual who applies intelligence, enthusiasm, thrift, integrity, can always reach the goal. A land, speaking broadly, where only laziness, shiftlessness, moral or mental incapacity, forbids success.

Canada will never be a Utopia. It will never afford easy success, never yield the summit to the mere envious, to the mere indolent, to the mere sluggard or incompetent. But it reaches out both hands to the man who has the will to succeed, and the courage to sustain his will.

By wise legislation, by divorcement from panaceas and fads and cults, by laws that encourage individual enterprise, that do not place a premium upon unworthiness, yet protect the weak from the aggression of the strong, we must try to keep it so.

THE PAVING PROGRAMME.

The carrying out of a considerable programme of paving this year is a progressive step upon which the members of the City Council are to be congratulated.

With a similar programme for the next two or three years, the majority of the streets in Peterborough upon which there is heavy traffic will have been taken care of, and the city will have caught up to other centres which were quicker to see the economy of building permanent roads rather than sinking large sums each year in repairs and patches which could at the best last but a comparatively short time.

Like many other things, the theory of road-making has been changed by the popularity of the motor car.

Methods that were sound enough a decade ago are hopelessly out-of-date now, and there is no reason to doubt that the building of permanent roads is the only genuinely economical policy that could be followed.

Peterborough will pay less for road maintenance as she continues to construct paved streets, and, of course, the permanent roadway is much more satisfactory in every other respect.

The streets that have been paved this year represent a substantial addition to the city's list of permanent roads, and next year should see at least an equal amount of work planned and undertaken by next year's Council.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

It is proposed by the Kitchener Council to submit a referendum next year to ascertain the opinion of the electors as to the advisability of changing the date of the municipal elections from January 1st to the first Monday in December.

The Council has power to make the change without submitting the question to the people, but the majority felt thuat the wisest course was to let the electors decide for themselves, at least that section of the electorate which bothers to go to the polls at any time.

Kitchener's plan might afford the local Council a subject for discussion.

The question of a change in the municipal election date has never been seriously talked over by Peterborough's Aldermen—although in many other municipalities the December date has already been adopted.

It may be that the local Council is flatly opposed to abandoning the January 1st, date, feeling that there is every likelihood of getting as large an expression of public opinion on New Year's Day as upon any other date that might be chosen.

The point, however, in referring to the matter now, is that should there be any desire on the part of the Aldermen to test the electorate on this question it might be submitted, as in Kitchener, to the people on New Year's Day in order that the expense of taking a vote could be minimized.

That some plan of stirring up general interest in the municipal elections and in securing a larger number of electors to use their franchise is only too evident.

Whether holding the elections early in December rather than on New Year's Day would result in any improvement is not, of course, quite as clear.

However, the Council should be able to get information from other centres, and if considered advisable be prepared to submit the question on New Year's Day.

TOURIST TRADE A GREAT CASH CROP.

Cars bearing license plates from all the States in the Union continue to travel the Canadian roads, says the London Advertiser. Almost any hour of any day these cars are to be seen on our streets, at garages, in front of stores and hotels. On such roads as the Sarnia to London highway U. S. cars seem to outnumber Ontario licenses several times over.

What does it all mean? For one thing, that many of these people are a long way from home. We are not surprised now when we see a car from California at the gas station—a long way from home. These tourists come prepared to pay their way, to spend their money; they visit our cities and towns; they invade the resorts on our great lakes and northern waters, and all the time they are leaving their money here.

Those whose business it is to keep record of cars coming into Canada state that the tourist trade this year will be worth $135,000,000, and they give the basis of their conclusions in the way of an estimate that looks reasonable. For instance, British Columbia in 1923 had 60,000 foreign motor cars with an average of four to a car. The average stay was five days, with an average daily expenditure per person of $10. Some would stay under this figure, but others would exceed it by a very liberal margin. On that basis it was estimated that British Columbia received $36,000,000 of tourist money in 1923.

It is a cash trade for which Canada has to make very little outlay.

If the figure of $135,000,000 is even approximately correct, it means that the tourist traffic is one of Canada's greatest cash crops, greater than the total export value of minerals and mineral products; equal to the export value of animals and animal products.

It does not deplete our natural resources; rather it tends to impress upon us the need of keeping them in good shape, and our natural beauty spots unimpaired so that their attractiveness may remain as a drawing card.

Tourist traffic is an increasing business; next year it will be greater than ever, with receipts in proportion. It is a development the importance of which Canadians have not yet fully realized.

THE LONDON AGREEMENT—AND AFTER.

While political opinion in France has long been subject to swift and violent changes, the pendulum has seldom swung so far in reverse as it has done during the last four months. In the past, such upheavals were airily dismissed as characteristic of the Latin temperament, but so complete a change in foreign policy as has occurred since Poincare stepped down can hardly be attributed to Gallic volatility.

In a few brief weeks, the attitude of the Quai d'Orsay has been completely changed. Well may the "Echo de Paris," in summarizing Conservative opinion following the Senate's acceptance of the London Agreement, ask in despair: "Whom are we following now?" For two hours former Premier Poincare criticized and attacked his opponent, justified his past policy and issued grave warnings about the future. Yet when the vote came to be taken, even his former Minister, M. Cherron, and other staunch supporters of six months ago, deserted him. The vote in the Senate was an overwhelming endorsement of the new Premier, and it must have been bitter to Poincare, with the memories of past triumphs still green and the walls of the great hall still ringing with the echoes of the applause that followed his fiery "no surrender" speeches, to meet with such a humiliating defeat.

The vote in the Senate is no isolated expression of French opinion. The peasantry of France, the backbone of the country, seem well satisfied with the new policy. France is the first nation to give full support to the London Agreement. Germany, still violently protesting and threatening to disclaim its leaders, is likely to follow suit, and President Ebert is so determined that the work of Marx and Stresemann shall not be nullified, that he has taken the unprecedented step of forcing ratification through by threat of dissolution. This is a club in the Chief Executive's hands which both Monarchists and Communists will scrutinize very warily before they allow Ebert to bring it down on their heads.

In Britain, the reaction after the agreement has special interest. It is all very well for British Labor to shout from the hustings that the key to the unemployment puzzle was hidden in the Reparations problem, yet now that it has been fitted with much care by the political locksmiths, the question is being asked: "How will the rehabilitation of German industry affect British trade?

Protest comes from the miners that no further reparations shall be paid by Germany in coal. "Reparations" was good bait for vote catching, but "reparations" means quite another thing when it directly affects the hours of labor and the wages of the British workers. The rank and file of Labor does not intend that its economic conditions shall be disturbed by any political consideration whatever, if it can help it. Mr. Graham gave a hint that some form of Protection might be adopted by Labor when the Dawes agreement was in operation, and German industry on its feet again, competing with Britain in distant markets with her cheap labor and low-exchange raw materials.

So as the day of the putting into effect of the Dawes Agreement draws nearer, France changes from positive hostility to any settlement to an exuberant enthusiasm for terms which she would have rejected scornfully four months ago. Germany, suspicious, but willing to make the experiment, is being driven into acceptance by the whip of necessity, while Britain begins to show concern with regard to the settlement. The peace of Europe is assured, says the persuasive voice of the politician, but the British worker wonders if a full dinner pail is equally certain.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

There is too much politics at the unemployment conference to give much hope of any practical benefits.

Next week should be given over to the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition. Make no other engagements that will prevent your attendance at the big Fair.

Another fatality in an automobile race calls renewed attention to the folly of this form of "sport." No satisfactory object is served by these insane contests.

The Canadian National Exhibition has surpassed last year's attendance mark, indicating that Canadian conditions cannot be so bad after all.

A THOUGHT

THE PRIDE OF ACHIEVEMENT

Man, a hundred thousand years ago, must have been a low-bending, crouching, beastlike animal living in trees or caves, and existing for food on frogs, fish snails, birds, eggs, grass and other greens.

To-day, man stands on his hind legs and lives in houses built of trees and caves constructed of rock. He exists on about the same food he did a hundred thousand years ago.

In many respects, man does about the same things he did countless centuries ago, only he does these things with more dignity; but "dignity" is not the word—he does these things with more personal pride or vanity.

I am inclined to believe that vanity has saved man from being the victim of a vicious past. Sometimes I think that we need more of this self-love. A little more vanity would help the unsuccessful timid.

Better that a man bring his vanity in the sunlight of success than hide his humility under a bushel. Vanity gives us vim.

My suggestion to the modest man is this: Perk up. Keep your personal pride afloat. The flabbergasted are the failures.

It is often said by the unthinking that the average successful man is only trying to make more money. Making money is not a crime, but being without money has caused most of the crimes.

The chief concern of most men that are making money is not so much how to pile up more money, but these men actually enjoy the fun found in achievement.

These men want the world to consider them constructionists. These men like world applause. It is natural for a doer to fish for publicity and care much for compliments. When this nature in a man fails to function he is on his way to the ash can.

The higher the intelligence, the greater the personal pride, the more urge there is in a man to rise above the ages-old "low-bending, crouching, beast-like animal."

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, September 6.—Cattle receipts at the Union Stock Yards for the three days of this week were less than 5,500 head, or not much more than half of those of the week before. The smaller offering had no beneficial influence on prices, however, and in fact the volume of unfitted butchers compelled even lower prices and fair quality killers had to be sold at $4.25 a cwt.

The Ontario farmer is meeting the usual fall competition from the West in the poor grades of butchers' cattle and until he puts his shipments into a more finished condition there is going to be little or no money in them either for the raiser or the drover.

Rogers & Maybee again took care of all the heavy fisished steers on the market and made three shipments overseas for the week. For quality steers the prices did not vary much from the previous week. For a small bunch $7.75 a cwt. was paid and $7.65 for full loads. The spread for the bulk of purchases was $7.00 to $7.75.

Stores coarse steers and heifers for overseas did not average over $6.25 a cwt., and a quantity of bulls bought for export cost from $3.35 to $4.00 a cwt. Although Rogers & Maybee had no definite buying commissions until Thursday, they expect to be operating next week, though perhaps not as heavily.

Butchers who cater for some of the best local beef trade did very little this week. The quality of cattle they wanted was not to be had, although they were prepared to pay up to $7.00 a cwt. for the right kind. Most of the butchers' steers called good brought around $6.25 cwt., the best of the mediums were $5.60. Useful light killers were at $4.25 to $4.50, and some of the real common butchers, no use for further feeding, sold down to around $3.00 a cwt.

Even at the lower prices it was impossible to clean up the supply, and a good deal of rough stuff was left over on Thursday.

Butchers' cows and bulls sold lower this week. Packers are getting many butchers' cows from the West, as well as steers and heifers, and local cow prices are being depressed. Only an odd choice cow sold at $5.00 a cwt., and the bulk of good cows were only $3.75 to $4.25.

Common cows were below $3.00. Stockers and feeders moved quite freely. Light stockers were $3.26 to around $4.00 and feeders up to about 900 pounds from $6.00 to $5.50 a cwt. For next week the prospects are good only for choice export and butchers steers. Unfinished butchers should be kept at home for the present.

A general all-round demand for calves sent the good kind up a dollar a cwt. for the week and the choice ones sold at 11 cents and over a pound. Any good calves brought 10 cents and medium 9 cents. Grassers are bringing 4 1-4 to 4 1-2 cents.

Lambs have held just about steady at 12 1-2 cents for ewes and 10 1-2 cents a pound for bucks and these prices hold at the week-end. Choice sheep are selling from 6 1-2 cents to 7 1-2 cents a pound, and yearlings 8 1-2 cents to 9 cents a pound.

Hogs have dropped half a dollar a cwt. and the week-end bid is another quarter below this at $9.25 a cwt. f.o.b. The supply is on the increase, and packers are governing the price according to the volume of offerings.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Sept. 6—(Canadian Press).—The feature of the trade on the local grain market Friday was the continued demand from New York exporters for Canadian Western oats, and quite a large business was done in this direction, including sales of No. 2 grade at 3 cents and 3½ cents per bushel over the Winnipeg October option. The tone of the market for carlots of spot oats was firm.

A fair amount of business was transacted in the spring wheat flour market and a steady tone prevailed. The foreign demand was fair. The market for winter wheat flour was without feature, prices being steady and the turnover moderate. There was no change in white corn flour.

A steady feeling prevailed in the market for millfeed and prices were unchanged. A weaker feeling prevailed in the market for rolled oats and prices were reduced ten cents per bag.

Transactions in baled hay were moderate and prices steady. There was no change in the condition of the local egg market Friday, prices being firmly maintained for all grades and the demand steady.

The demand for butter from local buyers was very limited. There was no change in prices. The demand from English importers for cheese showed no improvement, and the volume of business was small with the result that the undertone to the market continued easy.

EGG MARKETS.

OTTAWA, Sept. 6. — (Canadian Press).—The market continues easy with very little change. There are no offerings from the prairie provinces and no new developments in Canadian export business, but it has been reported that 1,000 cases of United States refrigerators have been sold at 36 cents f.o.b. seaboard Montreal.

HAMILTON IS HOST TO 500 KIWANIANS

The International President Brings Message of Good-Will From U. S.

HAMILTON, September 5.—Victor M. Johnson, of Rockford, Ill., International president, brought greetings from 90,000 Kiwanians in the United States to delegates attending the sixth annual convention of the Ontario-Quebec Kiwanis district in the Royal Connaught last night.

Quoting the memorable utterance of the late President Harding in Stanley Park, Vancouver, regarding the amity and the pact of faith and affection which made a precious comradeship between the peoples of the two countries, Mr. Johnson said that in some quarters a fear had been expressed that the International Board was attempting to centralise authority. But no organisation could be more democratic than Kiwanis. He earnestly hoped that the feeling would be dissipated that the International Board is a sort of hierarchy superimposed upon the organisation.
